Girls, do you know that there are just two days before the spring term begins? Have you planned to finish in this coming term the good work you started this term, or are you going to leave it hanging in the air? Do you remember that subject you were going to make "A" on, but you just didn't have time? Do it this Spring Term for it's your last chance this year. One warning, beware of Spring fever!

KU KLUX KLAN VISITS

NORMAL SCHOOL

A great surprise was given to the faculty and students on Tuesday morning, March 6, when after the Chapel services were over, a band of masked Knights of the Ku Klux Klan filed down the aisle of the auditorium and stood at attention while the leader presented a small box to Dr. Jarman. Within the box were found five twenty-dollar gold pieces with the following letter:

Dr. J. L. Jarman, President,
State Normal School, Farmville, Virginia.

Dear Doctor,

In token of our sincere appreciation of your untiring efforts to raise sufficient funds for the New Students' Building, in which to carry on your good work for the years to come, We, The Knights of the Invisible Empire, make you this donation.

We know that the money will be used to raise the moral standing and create a greater love for our God and our Country and a greater respect for its constitutional laws. These are the things for which we are constantly striving.

We tender you this small donation, and we hope that it will be received in the same spirit that it is being given.

May the great Lord of us all spare your life, and give you strength and health to continue your good work.

The Old Rebel Klan,
Knights of the Ku Klux Klan.

Christine (in Spanish class): "What is 'a shave'?"

Lucy: "Two bits."

BLUE RIDGE!*Are You Going?

"I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help."—Psalm 121.

Have you ever lifted your eyes up to the hills for strength or have you ever realized what an emphasis is placed on the strengthening power of the hills in the Bible?

You have if you have been to Blue Ridge, the Land of the Sky, where you have ten days of comradeship in council, play, and worship amid God's mountains. Even though you go a perfect stranger, you come home with a train of new acquaintances, and a finer knowledge of Him who is responsible for the mighty mountains and the calm lakes. No atmosphere is more conducive to discussion groups of the "whys" of things and of the meaning of life and God, as well as to such good times as hikes, stunts, sports, than at intercollegiate conferences. The Conference is a place where you learn to love life.

It is not a question of what you get out of it, for you get more than can be measured by words or dollars. One girl's description of what the Conference gives is this:

"You develop a social consciousness,
And an individual consciousness.
You learn loyalty to truth,
You achieve victory over self,
And earnestness of purpose.
You feel readiness to serve.
You acquire breath of mind.
You gain new ambition.
You learn to know yourself,
Your fellowmen, your God."
Are you planning to go this year from June 5-15?

CORRESPONDENCE CORNER

These are just a few of the letters which were received by Dr. Jarman on and before Founders Day:

Dear Dr. Jarman,

I'm enclosing a check for $175 from the Portsmouth Chapter of the Farmville Alumnae Association, and also a few personal checks, all of which, I think, are part or entire payment of pledges. We hope the money will roll in so fast and furiously that it will take a week or two to count it all.

Sincerely yours,
Sallie Perkins Oast,
Pres. Portsmouth Chapter.

Dear Dr. Jarman,

Please find check for five dollars to be applied toward the Student Building Fund. Kindly see that the class of Feb. 1901 gets credit for this amount. Wishing you all success.

Yours truly,
Mrs. W. J. Cox (Ida Sharpe).

Dear "Alma Mater,"

To you I owe much. Just how much I cannot estimate, but this I know, that I owe to you the foundation of my education. The law and order, faithfulness to duty, brotherly love and cooperation which you, through your beloved head, Dr. Cunningham, and faithful teachers instilled in us, have been a safe foundation upon which to stand and build a larger life. So, it is with a great deal of love and gratitude that I send my offering before the date in March which you mention in the ROTUNDA.

As one of the very old girls, I wish to send a special message of gratitude to your present able head, Dr. Jarman.

I hope for an early meeting with all who are working so faithfully to further the interests, you, dear Alma Mater, have so worthily set forth. The time has been so long since I graduated, over a quarter of a century, I cannot send the date.

Sincerely,

Ella T. Taliaferro (Ella Trent of Roanoke, Va.)

Dear Dr. Jarman,

Here's admiration for your pluck, faith in your success, and five dollars for your Building Fund.

Most cordially,

Carrie M. Dungan.

Dear Dr. Jarman,

I am enclosing my five dollars for the Students' Building Fund. How glad I am that I can be in the snake dance. I wish I could be there when the dance is finished on Founder's Day.

My best wishes that the $10,000 and more may be realized.

Sincerely,

Thurzetta Thomas.

Bless you, my children.

Bessie McD. Turner.

Dear Dr. Jarman,

It was with a great deal of interest that I read the February issue of the ROTUNDA. A real "homesickness" for the Normal School has possessed me ever since. I'm hoping to "come back" for a little visit sometime during the spring. Enclosed is a check and with it my very best wishes for the Students' Building.

May the excellent work which the Normal has been doing and is doing continue.

With kindest regards to you, I am

Very sincerely yours,

Bertha Dolan Cox.

FARMVILLE IS WINNER OF TRIANGULAR CHAMPIONSHIP

The Farmville Normal basketball team met its only defeat of the season at the hands of Radford on March 9, in the roughest game played this season by the score of 19 to 23. Some idea of the roughness can be gained from the fact that Radford had sixteen fouls and Farmville thirteen and the frequent number of times that time out had to be called on account of players being knocked out. Radford won the game on the accuracy of their foul shooting.

This is the last game of the triangular series of the Normal Schools and gives Farmville the championship, having won three and lost one as follows: Won, from Harrisonburg two, and from Radford one, and lost to Radford, one. Radford won one from Farmville and lost one to Farmville and one to Harrisonburg. Harrisonburg lost two to Farmville, and won one and lost one to Radford. In points Farmville is seventeen ahead of either of the other schools.

AT THE EACO THEATRE

Week March 19th-24th.

MON.—BERT LYTELL in the Metro Classic Production "The Right that Failed," adapted from The Saturday Evening Post story. A clean, racy human story of fists and kisses. This is a rib-tickler that lands a knockout with laughs. Also Pathe News.

TUE.—"The Greatest Truth," a Paramount picture enacted by an all star cast. The drama of a great-souled woman who risked her life and reputation for the man she loved. Romance portrayed in spectacular settings. Revealing the secrets of high life and the reveals of royalty. And through it all a tender story of human hearts. Also good comedy.

WED. & THU.—DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS in "The Three Musketeers," with nothing that has ever been done in the vast multitude of films given to the world, can you fairly compare this supreme picturization of a story that has made millions of men and women in every country on the face of the earth laugh and sob with unforgettable emotion. And Douglas Fairbanks as the noble D'Artagnan has caught, with rare feeling, that indescribable "something" that enables him truly to live the part. "ALL FOR ONE, ONE FOR ALL." EVERY ONE SHOULD KNOW WHAT A GREAT PRODUCTION THIS IS, AND NO ONE SHOULD MISS SEEING IT. MATINEE WEDNESDAY AT 3:30. Movie Chats Thursday and a good comedy Friday. Admission to Normal students 35 cents.

FRI.—WALLACE REID, THEODORE ROBERTS and an all star cast in "Across the Continent," the most thrilling and funniest of all the Reid racing romances. With Wally at his best and a great supporting cast. Mile-a-minute romance tingling with dare-devil stunts and packed with fun. IF YOU DO NOT SEE THIS, YOU MISS SOME PICTURE. Also a good comedy.

SAT.—AGNES AYRES, CONRAD NAGEL and a big cast in "The Ordeal." The drama of a beautiful woman's soul in conflict, portrayed in a setting of gorgeous gowns and luxury. See Agnes Ayres fight your greatest battle in her best picture. Also 5th episode of the serial.

Admission to Normal School Students each night or day except Wednesday and Thursday 20 cents.

He: "Oh, please don't call me Mr. Martin." She (coyly): "But our acquaintance has been so brief. Why shouldn't I call you Mr. Martin?"

He: "Because my name's MacDonald."

Asa: "Do you believe in fate?"

Spades: "Well, not exactly, but I do know that what's going to happen will happen."

FARMVILLE WINS AGAIN

Kenbridge team lost the game to Farmville Varsity on Friday, March 16. Although Farmville's score was "way up" over Kenbridge's, the game was good and interesting throughout.

Farmville played all her Varsity, beginning with a strictly Junior line-up. This shows what good stuff we have for next year.

Kenbridge, out-classed in years, weight and experience, played a splendid game, the pass-work being unusually good.

The final score was 38-9 in Farmville's favor.

SENIORS HAVE HOLIDAY

Causes of the Recent Rains and Other Things.

Who marvels at the rain of late? What more could one expect with so many Seniors leaving? They begged us not to weep and told us they'd come back—so we're smiling through our tears. Yes—Senior Holiday has begun and our bright and happy Seniors have gone home to raise themselves for an Event that will be a raise to Alma Mater's name. "Daddy" will be glad to see his "dear little daughter" that'll open his pocket-book and tell her to help herself. Not only will she add to her "sadly plenshed wardrobe," but maybe in the course of milady's shopping tours she may find a brick two for the Student Building—you never can tell!

To we Seniors who are left behind it seems at the main spring in our big clock is broken, it everything will be working again soon—at's why:

We are the Seniors, the bright and happy Seniors, We're here to praise our Alma Mater's name, When the sun's not shining, we see the silver lining, For Senior pep will e'er remain the same."

FREDERICKSBURG ATHLETIC CENTER

Open Air Theatre Completed—Athletic Field Being Built.

The Fredericksburg State Normal School for Women has been designated by the Virginia Normal School Board to offer a four year B. S. degree course in Physical Education. This will be offered next session. A new concrete open air theatre has been constructed in the beautiful grove to be dedicated May 11. A special bulletin on the theatre is now in press. A standard athletic field is to be constructed during the summer, with one fifth mile running tract and the space between leveled and sodded, to be used for field hockey and other outdoor athletic activities. The faculty will be increased to take care of the new degree course in Physical Education for Women. The Fredericksburg Normal is to be one of the centers in the State for high school athletic meets in accordance with the plan of the State Department of Public Instruction through the State Supervisor of Physical Education.

AN EVENING WITH DICKENS

Great Character Impersonator at S. N. S.

On Monday evening at 8:30 a large audience of school girls and town people assembled to witness the impersonation of well known characters from Dickens by Mr. William Sterling Battis.

In his impersonations, the entertainer gave his audience the benefit of watching him make up to represent the character. When the make-up was complete and the character costumed as Dickens had described him, Mr. Battis gave a monologue from the book from which they were taken, thus giving the people present both a mental and visual conception of their friends from Dickens.

The first impersonation was of Charles Dickens, himself, at the age of 56, and the reading of a selection from Martin Chuzzlewit which gave his philosophy of life.

The other characters were as follows:

Mr. Pecksniff	Martin Chuzzlewit
Captain Kettle	Domby and Son
Mrs. MacStinger	Domby and Son
Mr. Micawber	David Copperfield
Uriah Hee	David Copperfield
Bill Sykes	Oliver Twist
Rogue Richterhood	Our Mutual Friend
Little Nell's Grandfather	Old Curiosity Shop
Sydney Carton	Tale of Two Cities

ARE THE STUDENTS OF S. N. S. DEVELOPING INTELLECTUAL INTEGRITY?

College life is often inclined to be gregarious. Girls mingle together so closely and so constantly that they are in danger of becoming too much alike. The same interest in college activities, the same level of gossip, the same attitude toward the undertaking of college duties, tend to pass as if by contagion from the mass to the individual, and in this way hinders independent reflection on the part of each student.

The power that wedges the student out of herself into the group, invites her to step in the group instead of going on into those intellectual and social interests which the college is supposed to serve. This devotion to college rather than to learning, to girls rather than humanity, is a real danger to all students, and especially so to those individuals who have a bit of originality in them. A real student must do a great deal of independent work, for after all, it is the individual initiative in the student that counts, not the interpretation of the teacher, but the "real get up and go" in the individual. This is the goal of most colleges. Is it the goal of our college?

OUR CAMPUS

The condition of the school grounds has been called to our attention by the Campus Committee. It seems that we girls thoughtlessly and carelessly throw down all kinds of trash on the campus. While this looks bad in the winter, it looks worse in the spring, when everything is supposed to look fresh and beautiful. How can our school look beautiful if dirty old papers are lying all about?

Visitors to our school will judge it by its appearance. If the grounds are attractive they will go away saying only good things about it, but if we do not hurry to change conditions we are afraid they will have cause to say otherwise.

There is only one way that we can solve this problem, every girl must see that she does not aid in decreasing the attractiveness of the campus. She can do this by saving all her papers until she is near the trash-can. If every girl will do this faithfully, our campus will be one of the most beautiful in the Southland.

CAST OF CHARACTERS

SILENT PRAYER

If we were asked what one thing meant most to us of our busy school day, what would we answer? As we hustle around could we settle on any one thing? Should we stop to consider, we would realize the need for a stopping place in the day for renewal of strength and faith from our Father, God. We are told to go into a solitary, a quiet place and to talk continually with our Father. We do not question the need of prayer, it is sufficient to know that Christ prayed—sometimes for nights at a time and often getting up in the morning, before it was yet day, to pray. We do need to take more time to be holy and to enter into everything thru prayer. How? We can attend reverently and more regularly our evening prayer services and multiply our opportunities for individual prayer. At the business meeting, a week or so ago it was decided to have silent prayer service each Thursday night—while soft music is being played, silent prayers and real communication with God will be offered. As Christ continued all night in prayer, we can have the privilege of stopping still and silently, reverently, sincerely and joyfully talking to our Father thru His Son. We can stop in our busy week for pouring out ourselves to our Heavenly Father, from whom all good and perfect gifts come.

The music played softly in our assembling and leaving all prayer services should tend to make us more reverently listen to it. The music committee has several new popular songs for the Sings also, let's learn them. This committee also plans to conduct a contest after April 1 for the best Blue Ridge Song and will offer a worth while prize. Try for our girls to sing at Blue Ridge. Let's enrich and purify our lives by beautiful music.

The Y. W. C. A. held its regular business meeting Wednesday, March 14 as Founder's Day was on the first Wednesday. At this meeting, the regular business was conducted and the coming election announced. Upon a suggestion given, the Association decided to have a weekly silent prayer service each Thursday night, the details of this service were left to the Religious Meetings Committee.

VARSITY ENTERTAINED

On Wednesday evening, March 14, Miss Barlow delightfully entertained at supper in her home the members of the Varsity Basketball Squad. After an enjoyable chat, made especially interesting by the presence of Mrs. Jeter, who is one of the team's "mascots" and a great lover of basketball, the team was served tempting salad and iced courses.

A beautiful color scheme of yellow and green was carried out. Lovely vases of jonquils lent their charm and yellow candles glowing in the soft shadows of the evening added most to the splendor of the occasion, which will long be remembered by the Varsity.

ALUMNAE NOTES

Mrs. Annie E. Slater, who was for several years night matron in the Normal School, has been a recent patient in St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Richmond, but is now well enough to go to her home in Highland Park.

An attractive "Valentine Tea" was given the Farmville Alumnae Association, Richmond Chapter in February. It took place at the Rose Bowl Inn.

Button-Blanton

An unusually pretty wedding was solemnized in the Presbyterian Church in Farmville at 3 o'clock, March 10, when Miss Mildred Elizabeth Blanton, of Farmville, was married to Mr. Henry Evans Button, Jr., of Roanoke. Before the ceremony Miss Pattie Garrett, of Richmond, sang "Until" and "At Dawn." The bride's attendants were her sisters, Misses Martha and Thelma Blanton. The ring-bearer was little Clyde Duvall. The color scheme was green and white, carried out in the gowns of the bride's maids and in the decorations of ferns and cathedral candles. Mr. and Mrs. Button will make their home in Farmville after a wedding trip north.

Lindsey-Preston

Miss Mary Murrell Preston and Mr. Evans Willson Lindsey were married in Christ Episcopal Church, Buchanan, Va., on February 10. Their future home will be Salem, Va.

Shepherd-Hill

The many friends of Miss M. Catherine Hill and Mr. J. Moorman Shepherd, of Cumberland County, were much surprised to hear of their marriage at Martinsville, Va., Friday, March 9, as no announcement had been made of their plans. Mrs. Shepherd has been principal of the Cumberland High School for several years and will continue to teach there.

WITH APOLOGIES TO

THE BARD OF AVON

All my room's a stage,
And all the rats and mice are merely players,
They have their exits and their entrances,
And each one in his time eats many things;
Of them, there are seven stages. First the moustics
Peeping and squeaking round the closet door.
And then the crafty old mouse; with his gnawing,
And rustling all around; devouring right and left,
Inside the bureau drawers. And then the wee rats,
Fond of sweets, and nibbling, through the night,
The candy in my sweater pocket. Then the youngsters,
Waltzing at midnight across the covers,
Carrying off cakes of soap, and often silken hosiery,
To the family storehouse,
Even in daytime. And then the parents
Sleek, lazy moving; dreading not winters cold
Well fed on woodland cotton, silk and satin,
Eager to eat the most while night shall last.

So see we them. The sixth scene shifts
Into the old and grizzled grandpa.
With eyelids closed, and feet most strangely still:

His toes up turned, quite stiff, unto the bed-springs

A staring corpse; and his big squeaking voice
Forever stilled, by poison which I spread
Upon some bread crumbs. Last scene of all,
That ends this strange eventful history,
Is Sarah disinfecting the wall sepulchers
Of children, parents, grandpas, all departed.

PIERROT'S SONG

(For a picture by Dugald Walker.)

Lady, light in the east hangs low,
Draw your veils of dream apart.
Under the casement stands Pierrot
Making a song to ease his heart.
(Yet do not break the song too soon—
I love to sing in the paling moon.)

The petals are falling, heavy with dew,
The stars have fainted out of the sky.
Come to me, come, or else I too,
Faint with the weight of love will die.
(She comes—alas, I hoped to make Another stanza for her sake!)

FARMVILLE vs. VICTORIA

Farmville's high school Varsity played Victoria on last Friday, at the same time the Normal played. Their game did not turn out as well for Farmville as the other game did but they did not by any means disgrace her.

At the end of the first half the score stood 12-4 in Victoria's favor. In the second half Victoria scored 19 points and Farmville 5.

Mr. Walker, of Kenbridge, who was refereeing the game, was called on the phone between halves so Farmville's Coach, Miss Florence Buford, took the whistle and held down the referee's "job" until she was injured. The ball came towards her and the players grabbing after the ball made a mistake and grabbed her eye, hurting it badly but we hope not seriously. Although she was walking around after the game with a big black patch on her right eye, which made her look like John Silver, the pirate, she was the same "ole Buford."

The summary of the line-up:

Victoria	Pos.	Farmville
Vaughan.....	F.	Menn
Waddell.....	F.	Crutte
	F.	Anderson
C. Elliot (capt.).....	G.	McNemie
Kidd.....	G.	Paulette
Hurt.....	G.	Watkins (capt.)
Elliot, M.....	C.	Midon
Slayton.....	C.	Warriner
Patton.....	C.	Menn

WAKE-UP!

Do you want to be ashamed of Farmville's high school Varsity? No, of course not and you needn't.

They will play maybe two games this week-end. They have good stuff on their team but they can't win without your support. That doesn't mean just the high school but the Normal school too. They have supported you in your Normal Varsity games—now it's up to you to support them in their games.

Don't let them think it doesn't matter what they do. It does! They are making a reputation for Farmville just as much as the "big" Varsity is.

Arouse your sleeping spirit and come out to the games and show them you are back of them. Think, eat, sleep, talk, and yell high school varsity!

NEW DEPARTMENT OPENS

The ROTUNDA Staff with this week opens a column for the convenience of its readers. Any inquiries concerning colloquial songs such as "Hinky Dee" or the "Travelling Coon" will be answered if possible. Drop your requests in the ROTUNDA office. No words to jazz music.

will be published. The staff takes pleasure in printing "Hinky Dee" this week.

I had a little dog his name was Ned
He had some fleas on the top of his head
Every time his tale went wigglety-wag
All the little fleas started playing tag.

Chorus:

Was that dog named—Hinky Dee?
Did you say 'twas—Hinky Dee?
Are you sure 'twas—Hinky Dee?
Now we all know 'twas—Hinky Dee!

Horse and a flea and three blind mice
Sitting in the corner shooting dice
Horse sat down on top of the flea
And the flea said, "That's a horse on me!"

My grandfather had false teeth
He took them out one day last week
He put 'em in his pocket before he went to town
And he bit himself when he sat down!

COLLEGE CUT-OUTS

Valuable Documents Are Given to R. M. C.

Miss Fanny Early of Lynchburg, Virginia, a daughter of the late Bishop John Early of that city and one of the founders of R. M. C., has presented the college with some very valuable documents and papers of Bishop Early. These papers throw a great deal of light on the workings of the officials in the early history of the college, even as far back in its history as the year 1832. In due time these papers will be placed in the archives of the college for safe-keeping as they are some of the best and most accurate accounts of the actions of the founders and subscribers to the endowments of the college that they have ever had.

Roanoke Faculty Plans Summer Session

Roanoke College will have a summer session this year. The purpose of the courses is mainly to assist students in the regular session to remove conditions and to secure advanced credit. In this way the work of the winter may be materially lightened and a degree secured in a shorter time. The existence of such a demand is evidenced by the fact that during the past summer several private classes were conducted by various members of the faculty.

Dormitory and $1,000,000 Drive for Randolph-Macon

The immediate construction of a dormitory to accommodate not less than one hundred students and a special financial campaign for one million dollars has been authorized by the Board of Trustees of Randolph-Macon System.

The dormitory is to be erected in the rear of the present buildings, and as planned, should be ready for occupancy at the beginning of next September. The new dormitory will have its own dining hall and adequate provision will be made to take care of a hundred additional students. It will cost approximately ninety thousand dollars.

AT THE EACO THEATRE

Week March 26th-31st.

MON.—ETHEL CLAYTON in "For the Defense." A Paramount picture. The superlative in suspense! The kind of a picture that makes you sit hushed and breathless from first to last. The kind that you will not want to miss. With the most amazing and daring climax ever conceived. With a popular star, a great cast, and a story thrilling to the last degree. Also Pathe News.

TUE. & WED.—A real sure enough musical comedy, with twenty girls. A show such as you usually see in the larger cities. Plenty of singing and dancing, and all that goes with a good musical comedy. "The Gambols of 1923," is the name of the show. All seats reserved. Admission $1.00 and 10 cent tax—$1.10. ALL SEATS WILL BE SOLD AT THE POST-OFFICE PHARMACY RIGHT NEXT DOOR TO THE THEATRE.

THU.—D. W. GRIFFITH'S "Dream Street." Life is not what it seems—it's but a thing made out of dreams, and it's the beautiful dreams of real life that D. W. Griffith portrays in his masterly production "Dream Street." It depicts the love of two brothers, each for the other . . . and their love for the same girl. A LOVE THAT causes them to tear at each other's throat one instant . . . draw to each other's bosom in another. It is a big SPECIAL PRODUCTION OF THRILLS, SUSPENSE, ACTION, ROMANCE, AND ADVENTURE. Also FOX NEWS.

FRI.—THOMAS MEIGHAN in "The Bachelor Daddy." A SPECIAL Paramount Picture. This picture settles no world problems. But it promises you one glowing, crowded hour of real happiness. With Tom Meighan as lovely Leatrice Joy's sweetheart and the bachelor daddy of the five cutest kiddies you ever saw. EVERY GIRL IN SCHOOL SHOULD SEE AND ENJOY THIS PICTURE. Also a good comedy.

SAT.—BETTY COMPTON and an all star cast in "The Green Temptation." A Paramount picture. A brilliant romantic melodrama of Apache den and gilded cabaret—of the dancing darling of Paris and of the shadow that menaced her love. This is a gorgeous melodrama of life and love. Also 6th episode of the serial.

Admission for Normal Students to each picture 20 cents, tax included.

Rooky: "Say, why do you call the ship 'she'?"

Old Salt: "Because of her rigging, sonny, because of her rigging."

FARMVILLE REPRESENTED IN EDUCATIONAL CONFERENCE

An educational conference of the superintendents, trustees, teachers, and parents of District "E" of the Virginia State Teacher's Association was held at South Boston, Halifax County, Virginia on March 29-30, 1923. The theme of the conference was "A Stronger Professional Spirit." Many interesting and instructive addresses were given, among which were an excellent talk on "A Citizenship Program for Primary Grades" by Lucy Cheshire, a graduate of our school in the class of 1922, and an address entitled "Some Educational Advantages of the Country" by Miss Florence Stubbs, member of the faculty of the Farmville Normal.

Miss Stubbs will talk to the Community League at Mattoot on Friday night, April 6.

EGG HUNT ON MEADOW

Student Body Enjoys Egg Hunt.

Did you go to the Easter Egg hunt given by the Student Committee, Easter Monday? If you didn't you just don't know what a good time you missed.

The invitations were written on Easter cards, and there was much chatter and excitement when these cards were given out at dinner Monday. But where was it to be? On the campus? Down by the River? No, up in the meadow, near High Street, the meadow which has been the camping ground for many a "weenie roast" and "bacon bat."

Some of the Student Committee girls went ahead and hid the eggs, while several stayed behind to show the girls the way.

At three o'clock the Egg Hunters started on their way to the meadow. When they got to the gate they had to wait for the stragglers to catch up with the group, here the signal was given to start and the hunt began. And then began the fun! Girls here, and there and everywhere, voices shouting to each other—"How many have you found?", "Who found the gold egg?" and many other exclamations rang thru the woods and from one hill to another.

There was much scrambling under fences and climbing of hills in the wild hunt for the brightly colored eggs. Finally the hunters, with pockets and arms full of eggs gathered around to see who had the largest number and who had found the gold egg. Louise Scott was the lucky hunter.

The hills around the meadow suggested an egg roll, which the girls immediately entered into with much enthusiasm. After playing this for quite a while some one shouted out, "Let's play ball!" As there were quite a few base ball fans among the "Hunters" they soon had two teams lined up. Though they lacked space for a good diamond they made the best of it, and played a very thrilling and exciting game of base ball.

The ringing of the 5:30 bell made the girls remember that all good times must come to an end, so they started back to S. N. S. tired but very happy. All of those who went, wish to express their appreciation to Miss Mary and the Student Committee for this happy spot in our Easter Holiday.

EIGHTH GRADE PRESENTS AN INTERESTING PROGRAM

April the third the eighth grade of the Training School gave a very interesting program about their work in current events. Frances Newman told how they had formed a Current Event Club, and showed the books that they had made. Elizabeth Newton told of the different kinds of news reported on: national, international, and local. Grace Underwood showed some very interesting pictures of the tomb of King Tutankhamen, recently discovered in Egypt. The purpose of this Current Event Club is to make the students familiar with the news of the world and to provide reference books for future history classes.

KINDERGARTEN BUILDS THE STUDENT BUILDING

The Training School Kindergarten has just finished a model of the new Student Building. The children were very proud when Dr. Jarman came to see it, and praised them for finishing their building so quickly.

It is 5 feet x 3½ x 3; has a gymnasium, swimming pool, and shower baths, on the first floor; a reading room and dormitory, upstairs. These tiny children have nailed, sawed, painted, made bricks of clay, made furniture, sewed curtains, and even planted a real garden of grass and flowers, in front of their building. It has given them more joy than anything they have done this year.

One small boy suggests that it be put in a store window, downtown, and sold, and the money given to the real Student Building Fund. Even the Kindergarten likes to feel itself a real factor in the big thing that the whole Normal School is working for.

The following alumnae spent the Easter holidays in Farmville: Mary Lancaster (teaching in Norfolk), Martha Scott Watkins (teaching in Richmond), Nancy Watkins (teaching in South Boston), Virginia Anderson (student at William and Mary College).

Miss Ida Paulette, who is teaching at High Point, North Carolina, spent Easter in Farmville.

"YOU MUST WEAR IT"

"Say, who is that yonder?" asked an old girl to a new arrival.

"It's Mary," answered she.

"How do you know?" was the quick response.

"I saw her with that dress on yesterday," answered the new girl.

"Oh! mercy me!" exclaimed the other.

"What on earth's the matter?" asked the newly arrived.

"My dear, you can't tell the girl by the clothes she wears here. Why my sweater's been gone weeks. Every day I see it on a different girl and half the time I don't know who it is. Now behold me for instance. These hose are Mae's, this dress is Sue's, this belt is Beth's. Let me see now have I anything else? Oh! yes, my shoes are polished with borrowed polish, my face is washed with borrowed soap, my hair is curled with a borrowed curler. Now is there anything else I forgot—?"

"Merciful saints," cried the new girl. "What kind of school have I come to? I don't see why you don't all put your clothes into a common store house. That way you could wear a different dress every day in the year. That way would be just as sanitary as what you all do. I don't think it's treating your parents right. They buy the clothes for us, not for the entire school."

"My dear, let me give you a piece of advice," said the old one. "If you want to get in up here you must not say this when any one admires your things, say 'Thanks awfully, you must wear it!'"

Which way will this new girl turn? Will she follow that vast majority, or will she follow that one or two? Will she be loyal to her people at home, or will she be afraid of her school friends' opinion?

These girls do not really think borrowing is a necessity or at heart do they approve of it. They borrow because everyone else borrows. If you do not borrow you will not be borrowed from. We feel certain that the school girl mind in the near future will see the advisability of blocking this dangerous habit.

THE LOAFER

Who is the loafer? Here is one sitting in a big comfortable chair by the steam radiator, gossiping about her neighbor who never puts her light out on time. Look across the street and there you will see several more loafers waiting for some familiar town person to pass by on their way to dinner. But the best place of all is over at Gilliam's store. Some of the loafers perch themselves on the counter, others lean against the show cases for support. The atmosphere is heavy with the "latest."

You may wonder why I term them as loafers. My reason is because these individuals are generally the ones who never do anything but grumble and gossip. The result is that they are well represented in "Black Beauty."

For wisdom is only the smokes that rise From out the little burnings of some one's heart. This is my smoke that rises high And crookedly, seeking God:

Take what Life offers—and strange enough The motley gifts she brings!—bitter and sweet alike.

Thy head held high,
Play fair, nor ask to know
Thy opponents do the same.
Give love—give faith—and then—
When, as it must, time brings illusion's end
Remember, man is man—and so—
Not too divine—and do not blame.
Just go thy way—and smile.

Such is my smoke today,
Tomorrow it may become
Only the shifting mist
That floats across the sun—

AT THE EACO THEATRE

Week of April 9th-14th.

Mon.—Tom Moore and Betty Compson in "Over the Border." A thrill-swept romance of the frozen North. Where smugglers clash with the Northwest Mounted, and a bewitching heroine defies the law. With the sensational climax actually filmed in a raging blizzard. Also Pathe News.

Tue.—Mary Miles Minter in "South of Suva." Here is the Screenland's sweetest star in a glowing tale of the mysterious South Sea Islands. A stirring drama of what happened on a South Sea Island when the young American wife of a planter arrived to find that the man she married in the States had degenerated into a beach comber. Also a Good Comedy.

Wed.—"The Good Provided." From a story by Fannie Hurst. Who Pays the Jazz Bill? That unsung hero of a million homes—Father! And now, in this wonderful heart-drama by the author of "Humoresque," Father comes gloriously into his own. Made of the joys and tears of plain folks, it'll fill your heart with a glowing gladness. Also Aesop Fable.

Thu. & Fri.—Marshall Neilan's Big Special Production "The Strangers' Banquet" enacted by a cast of twenty-nine Stars. This is the greatest cast of stars ever assembled in one picture. The story of a vast Pacific shipyard—of a real girl's fight with crafty men and luring adventuresses to save the fabulous wealth left in her hands. A strong drama of love and courage. A true masterpiece of screen entertainment. Power!

Strength! Beauty! Here is a great epic of the masses and a girl who bosses with love. Fox News Thursday and a Good Comedy Friday. We Are Knockers This Big Production at Regular Admission Prices.

Sat.—Viola Dana in Irvin S. Cobb's celebrated story of a heart in hock, "The $5.00 Baby." Here we have Viola Dana as an amusing tomboy in a hilarious photoplay. Do you know that you can pawn a baby? And that babies grow up some times to be beautiful girls? See This Picture Girls, You Will Enjoy it. Also 8th episode of the serial.

Admission all this week 20 cents to school girls, tax included.

WARNING

Awful Fate of Nickel Nurser.

The other day a Nickel Nurser sent her roommate to the hall below to borrow the ROTUNDA. The roommate slipped on the steps, and in an effort to save herself wrenched her shoulder and skinned her arm. The Nickel Nurser, hearing her shrieks of anguish rushed to the rescue, knocked her hand against a lamp, broke the lamp and a platinum wrist watch. While she was out of the room the electric iron burned a hole through her best dress, a cat came in and turned over a jar of preserves on the bed and somebody clepped the fifteen dollars she was planning to go home on.

Moral: Subscribe to the ROTUNDA. Don't borrow it.

GENERALLY LATE

Lately the students of S. N. S. have been developing a habit of being tardy to chapel services. Instead of responding to the chapel bell, the girls hang around the radiator in the reception hall and talk to their friends. Each one waits for the other girl to go to chapel before she does and then makes a dash for the auditorium, when nearly everyone is seated. To make the chapel services as impressive as possible, efforts should be made on the part of the girls to be more prompt in attendance.

Dot (to Lucy going to Industrial Arts room Saturday afternoon): "What in the world are you making?"

Lucy (sadly): "Making up lost time."

CLEF COLUMN

There are songs without words and songs without melody, in fact there seems to be no set rule for the composition of songs. About the only common characteristic that songs possess insofar as the editor can discover is a clef. Therefore, this column of the ROTUNDA will, until its demise be known as the "Clef Column." The assistant editor has just informed us that all songs possess notes, but while we fully appreciate the high character of the lady, we are just a little inclined to doubt her statement after hearing her try to prove her point. This week the editor offers "Young Folks, Old Folks."

Adam was a gardener, Eve was his spouse
Lost their job in Paradise and started keeping house.

Everything was calm and peaceful in the main
'Till they had a little son and they started raising Cain.

Chorus.

Young folks, old folks, everybody come
Join the Baptist Sunday School and make yourself at home
Bring your chewing gum and razors and check 'em at the door
And we'll sing a song that we never sang before.

Moses was a homely lad sailing in a skiff
Long came Pharaoh's daughter and gave the boy a lift
She took him to the palace and gave him something grand
And he led the whole kaboodle into the Promised Land.

Daniel was a holy man, but disobeyed the king
The king said he never heard of such a funny thing
He put him in a dungeon with a lion down beneath
But Daniel was a dentist and he pulled that lion's teeth.

David was a shepherd lad, a homely little cuss
Goliath was a giant and he caused a mighty fuss
David saw it plain that he had to fight or bust
So he took his gravel shooter and he bust him on the crust.

Plans for Alumance Hall Being Perfected

The plans for Alumance Hall are almost completed and will be submitted to the building committee within the next few days. The contribution of $100,000 by the people of Alamance County to Elon's building fund has put new spirit and hope into the Elon constituency elsewhere. Already the $600,000 campaign has passed the $200,000 mark, a most remarkable achievement in view of the short time that has elapsed since the campaign begun.

Co-Eds Use Bicycles at University of Tennessee

The co-eds of the University of Tennessee have discovered the ideal way of travel. Why waste one's time waiting for street cars when knickers and bicycles are in vogue? The bicycle shops were able to furnish boy's bicycles only, but the knickers solved that problem. Now the Hill is entertained by the daring feats of these bicyclists.

Davidson College Loss by Fire

Davidson College suffered a $45,000 loss when Watts Dormitory, one of the most centrally located buildings on the campus, was destroyed by fire of unknown origin during church hour last Sunday morning. At least fifty students were rendered homeless as a result of the fire. Sparks and the heat from the fire threatened the buildings on either side, but the heroic work of the students in fighting the blaze helped save them.

Many students did not know there really was a fire for whenever a member of the feminine sex happens to venture across the campus, all the students begin to yell, "Fire, Fire," and one cannot discriminate between a real fire and a female.

GRIN AND BEAR IT

If the world seems "out" with you
Just grin and bear it.
Don't sit down and say you're blue
But grin and bear it.
Don't mope around and sob, and sigh
But look the world straight in the eye;
And then resolve to do or die,
And grin and bear it.

If insults chance to come your way
Why grin and bear it.
Don't make folks sorry for what they say
But grin and bear it;
Hold your head high in the air
Be brave enough to stand their stare,
Then gayly say you do not care
And grin and bear it.

If you have fought and have not won
Then grin and bear it;
If all your way has not been sun
Just grin and bear it,
Forget past struggles and defeat
For coming victories will be sweet,
Be strong and all your trials meet
And grin and bear it.

FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA

MARCH 31, 1923

JOHN POWELL AT THE NORMAL

As the editor of the Farmville Herald is fond of remarking, New York grows more like Farmville every day. The latest illustration of this fact is the approaching concert to be given by John Powell in the Normal School Auditorium at 8:30 P. M., April 10.

At first Mr. Powell expected to make the trip from New York expressly to help our Student Building Fund, but since this engagement was made, he has accepted an invitation to play in Texas, and will continue Southward when his evening here is over. The students are having presented to them a most unusual opportunity of listening to one of the world's greatest musicians—it will be truly unfortunate for anyone to fail to be present at this concert.

The Farmville papers have printed interesting articles about Mr. Powell. The Leader says: Born and educated in our capital city of Richmond, later receiving his B. A. from our own University and made a member of the United Arts Club and Phi Beta Kappa, he studied music under Leschetizky in Vienna and made his debut in Berlin in 1907, at the age of twenty-five. Since then he has played for royalty and is not without honor in his own country. Four years ago he came back to America. Since that time his has been a steady march along the road that leads to success. From seeking engagements he has reached the point where he can not fill all those offered him. Surely Farmville is fortunate in securing him for a concert.

John Powell's prowess as an athlete is the theme of the Herald's article: If he had not developed into a pianist of the first rank, his name might have adorned the sporting papers as a wrestler of note. Since the days of his European schooling, wrestling offered Mr. Powell the means of keeping in the best of physical condition. From the long and fatiguing hours of musical concentration, he found in this oldest of sports mental and physical relief. But John Powell is a serious young man, and he went at the business of recreation with the same intensity with which he assailed the heights of fugue and counterpoint, and with the same result. Not long ago a prominent metropolitan writer of things musical claimed that Mr. Powell could handle the intricacies of the sonata form with a skill at least equal to the best of his contemporaries. George Bothner, on the other hand, ex-champion middle-weight wrestler, claims for John Powell a similar skill with the hammerlock and the halfnelson. Mr. Bothner's one regret is that Mr. Powell forsook sport for great art.

Roanoke-Salem was the only chapter which sent a representative to the Founders' Day celebration. This was Mrs. Robert Trucks (Miss Louise Pulliam), and she brought with her, her husband and $165.00 from the chapter—both were welcome.

Dr. J. L. Jarman,
Farmville Normal School,
Farmville, Va.

My dear Dr. Jarman:

Because we feel that our "College Week" was a real success and has already been a service to Eastern Virginia, I want to thank you for the part your college played in this drive. We like Miss Lois Williams very much and she brought a message that did honor to herself and to her college. She had a real part in giving Higher Education a bigger place in Eastern Virginia.

Thanking you again, and with the very best wishes, I am

Most cordially yours,

Mildred Barrington,
Girl Reserve Secretary.

On Thursday evening, the VI, VII, VIII, and IX Grade history teachers entertained at supper in honor of Misses Peck and Elizabeth Moring. Covers were laid for ten.

FACULTY GAIN RECOGNITION

Two articles in the Virginia Journal of Education are calling forth favorable criticism. The first, "Teaching of Music by Untrained Teachers" appeared in the February number. It was written by Miss Christine E. Munoz, Head of the Department of Music. The second article, "Special Days in School," appeared in the March number. It was written by Miss Grace L. Russell, Associate Teacher in English.

TEST YOUR INTELLIGENCE

At great expense of money and brains the ROTUNDA staff is able to offer to its readers an extremely erudite and testful intelligence test. All answers are to be written on one side only of carbon paper and filed carefully in the trash can at the end of the second floor main hall.

Name—(of Aunt Edith's canary).

Age last birthday—(in tons).

Do not write to the left of this line (finding the line is an additional test).

I.

Answer the following in monosyllables:

1. Which would you rather do or go swimming?
2. How many pairs of shoes would a centipede walking from Saskatchewan to Lynchburg wear out? (The centipede had ingrowing toenails on the third and fifth toes of his sixty-eighth foot.)
3. What did the governor of North Carolina say to the governor of South Carolina?

II.

1. Do you know that there are no street cars in Farmville? If so, put P in the parenthesis. ()
2. Where have you heard the words "Student Building?" If so, check out.
3. Do you understand why Student Council girls always patronize Hubbard's? If so, write the Greek alphabet.

III.

If the following are true, construct a right angled hyperbola, if false, outline briefly the history of the world, giving dates.

1. Everybody from Richmond has large purple cars.
 2. There are no mice in the Normal School.
 3. Louise Parsons hates Norfolk.
- Pledge (to be written only with a green pencil): I have either given or received help on this test.

"Why is the moon like a woman's thoughts?"
"Because there's always a man in them."

THE REWARDS OF KNOWLEDGE

To those, who would like to impress others favorably at any time, we offer the following suggestion: Why not go around to the library and find out what is going on in the rest of the world? We have very plausible reasons for this inquiry. When we go home or elsewhere, after the first polite preliminary questions people are going to turn to topics more interesting to them just as surely as two and two makes four. If any unfortunate girl has not kept up with current events she will be left out of the conversational flow. We are not raving for we know whereof we speak by sad experience. When visiting recently we were intensely humiliated when the general talk turned to a new bill under the consideration of Congress of which we were utterly ignorant. To make matters worse, this bill vitally affected all of our various friends and relatives. We did not have the courage to ask questions thereby exposing ourselves to the contempt of others so we preserved an oyster like silence which we hoped was not noticed. The people in this case would probably have considered us in the class of morans or idiots, who had free access to material and passed by on the other side without any attempt at enlightenment. We do not mean that one should be a walking "Literary Digest," but we do not want to be like a fish out of water when we leave school either. The result of education on outside matters is not only the ability to impress others, for that is of minor importance compared to the inner satisfaction. When we connect ourselves with all of the world we have a stimulating mental growth, a deepening of comprehension and intelligence that is surprising. Try it and see.

HOW DO YOU SPEND YOUR SUNDAY?

Does Sunday mean anything to you? Does it mean going to Sunday School and church or visiting among the girls and washing your hair?

So many girls here, who at home regularly attend services on Sunday, have fallen into the habit of staying away from church on Sunday. They seem to feel that it does not matter; no one knows and cares whether they go or not, and anyway they do not belong to the church here.

But it does matter. We should attend the church regularly if for no other purpose than to form a good habit.

Each Sunday there is something to be gained from the lesson. Each Sunday you need the instruction that is given out.

And it is not alone a personal matter. We do not stop to think that our every action and speech while at school reflects either credit or discredit upon our homes and parents. People are constantly judging your home by you. Then how much better it would be for them to know that yours is a God fearing and a worshipful home, that you have been trained from early childhood to attend Sunday School and church?

Then blue Monday would disappear and with it that tired worn out feeling that follows a Sabbath wrongly spent.

S. O. S.

But if you only knew

The agony

Ye so-called Editor each week endures,

Searching and trying to excavate

Some original Pome

From out the vast Indifference

And Laziness and Scornful Sloth

Of this our noble student body

You'd write a poem!

Each week ye Ed

Once that promise was fulfilled,

Ye Editor wept with joy and unbelief—

Y. W. C. A. OFFICERS—WHO QUALIFY

In a student body as large as ours, we have a wonderful opportunity to know girls, because there are girls—and girls—and girls. When we think of this we can see what an Association of girls can mean—an Association that works for the all-round development of these many and different girls. In all groups there are some who are more fitted for leaders, who have more outstanding qualities for leadership than others and it is these girls who will lead. But all girls who are leaders are not moulded after the same pattern and are, therefore, not suited for the same kind of leadership. In thinking of our Y. W. C. A. and of the importance it holds in our student body, we must especially think of its leaders, and of what qualities we desire in the girl whom we wish to hold office in our Association. Primarily, we want an all-around girl—one who not only has a deep spiritual note in her life, but one who is interested in everything that interests girls. She must love girls if she is to understand them, and she must understand them if she is to lead them. The one-sided girl cannot understand her fellow students. If she studies too much and is attending to her mental welfare to the exclusion of the other sides of her nature, she cannot be a good leader. If she cares only for the physical things in life, if she is shallow and frivolous in the extreme, self-seeking and selfish, is her character that which we would require in a leader? If, on the other hand, she is saintly and sanctified, and holds herself aloof with a critical and disapproving air toward the girls around her, she lacks that very important something that would draw her fellow-students to her, and she cannot be expected to lead them. What must she be, then? We want a girl who is capable, dependable, and broad-minded, of course. But she must be more than this. She must not be filled with pride of holding office merely for the honor which it confers upon her; she must not even have that unconscious pride in her "goodness;" but she must be filled with the joy of living, a love and reverence for God, and a real joy in work and service for others.

AT THE EACO THEATRE

Week April 2nd-7th.

Mon.—Harrison Ford and an all star cast in "Find the Woman." A Cosmopolitan production. What chance has a lovely woman in a battle with New York—its white lights, its police, and its cold world of high society? Here's the dramatic answer in a mystery romance bristling with more thrills and suspense than the average person experiences in a life time. Also Pathe News.

Tues.—Constance Binney and an all star cast in "The Sleep Walker." A Paramount picture. If you walked in your sleep—and woke up at midnight in the arms of a man you hated—and heard the world calling you a thief—what would your thoughts and emotions be? That's just one of a dozen thrills in this wide awake drama of laughter, love, and black-mail. Also a Good Comedy.

Wed.—Bert Lytell in "Sherlock Brown." A Metro Classic Picture. A comedy drama of millions and mystery, in which an amateur sleuth outwits experienced professionals. It is a story full of humor, romance and mystery with the unusual complications. Also Aesop Fable.

Thu. & Fri.—Helene Chadwick and a big all star cast in the special production, "Brothers Under the Skin." To those who believe in a short life, but a married one—to those who are hopelessly addicted to single blessedness—to those who expect some day to sign on a dotted line—in brief to all of those who have thought about marriage, seriously or otherwise, we advise an immediate viewing of this frolicsome, daring and witty picture of wedded bliss. When henpecked husbands turn cave-men—watch out! It's a riot of laughs. Fox News Thursday and a Good Comedy Friday.

Sat.—"The Wife Trap." A Paramount picture enacted by an all star cast. She had defied the laws and conventions for the sake of a great love, and now her jealous-mad husband had misunderstood and betrayed her! Just one of the thrilling climaxes of this powerful drama. Filmed amid luxurious settings, including the real Monte Carlo. With a courtroom scene more sensational than "Madame X." Seventh episode of the serial.

Admission to Normal Students 20 cents.

ROUNDY—LINDSEY

Farmville, Va., March 24, 1923.—A quiet but pretty home wedding was solemnized on Saturday, March 24th, at high noon, when Miss Mary Elizabeth Lindsey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lindsey of Farmville, became the bride of Edward C. Roundy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. D. Roundy of Portland, Maine. The ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Geo. H. Spooner.

The home was beautifully decorated with lilly of the valley, sweetpeas and ferns, forming an improvised altar.

Just preceding the ceremony, Mr. Joseph A. Poole sang "Because." Miss Mattie Spencer Willis rendered the wedding march.

The bride, handsomely gowned in a travelling suit of blue wearing a corsage of lilly of the valley and sweetheart roses, was attended by her sister, Miss Virginia Lindsey, who wore a beautiful blue crepe-de-chine and carried a spray bouquet of sweetheart roses.

Mr. P. Cary Adams, of the Union Theological Seminary in Richmond, was best man.

Immediately following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Roundy left by motor for a short wedding trip, after which they will make their home at Hampden-Sidney.

Mr. Roundy is well known in athletic circles throughout the state, this being his third successful year as Athletic Director at Hampden-Sidney College. Mrs. Roundy is a graduate of the State Normal School of Farmville and is a very popular member of the younger set of Farmville.

It isn't idiot"—

It's spring.

THE TRAVELLING COON

The second number in the department for the promulgation of unwritten songs (which department the editor has not yet had time to name) is "The Travelling Coon," made famous by Christine Shields. Jasper, put on a new needle.

Oh, talk about your automobiles and trains that move so fast,

I'll tell you 'bout a travelling coon whose speed can't be outclassed.

He started 'round the world one morn

And he got back just about noon.

All the white folks in that town swore they'd catch that coon.

Chorus.

Oh, wa'n't he travelling, yes he was travelling
That travelling coon went all this world around.
Oh, wa'n't he travelling, yes he was travelling
And he wouldn't give up till the police shot him down!

They chased him up and they chased him down,
but they couldn't catch that coon.
They chased him round and round and round from morn till afternoon.
That coon he ran so swift and fast
The fire flew from his heels
Set the corn and wheat on fire as he passed thru the farmers' fields.

Left Charleston, South Carolina at one o'clock
one day,

At two o'clock New Orleans saw him pass that way.

He left Galveston, Texas

As the clock was striking four,

At five o'clock, so the paper says, he passed thru Baltimore.

The annual educational conference of District D of the State Teachers' Association was held at Crewe, Virginia, on March 22 and 23. Miss Janet K. Nicholson, of Jackson School, Petersburg, described "An Experiment in Teaching Reading in Third Grade." Miss Pauline Camper, of Farmville, led in the round table discussion of problems peculiar to rural schools.

Vice-President Coolidge Speaks at R. M. W. C.

Vice-President Calvin Coolidge spoke at Randolph-Macon at the Founder's Day Exercises for 1923. He declared that the United States alone, though taxes are high and public burdens heavy, "of all great nations of the earth is diminishing its expenditures and reducing its public debt."

"Instead of complaining at our lot, we should rejoice at it. Instead of trying to avoid the inevitable responsibilities of personal and national existence we ought to find satisfaction in our abundant ability to discharge them.

"Education must teach these obligations. If the hope of the founders is not to be disappointed, there must be learned the duty of taking up and doing the work of today as they took up and did their work."

Summer School Held at Rome

A course of lectures and archaeological exercises will be given from July 9 to August 18, 1923 at the American Academy at Rome for graduate students who wish to pursue their studies abroad during the summer. The lectures will be given at the academy building, and the students will have free access to the library.

The work will consist of three lectures a week on the history of the City of Rome, from its origin to the present time. The work will be under the direction of the present annual profession of the school, Professor Showerman, of the University of Wisconsin. The course will be of a grade to entitle it to credit in American universities.

No Cars at University of Texas

No student at the University of Texas will be allowed to keep cars at the school. The president of the University has mailed letters to parents to this effect.

Winthrop Recognized in California

According to a report just published by the National Bureau of Education, the State Board of Education of California ranks Winthrop College along with their own State Normal schools and along with the other colleges for teachers of the first rank throughout the United States. With this grading by the State Board the County Boards of Education in California grant Winthrop graduates a certificate to teach without examination.

Similar recognition by other states puts Winthrop into the first rank of teacher's colleges of the country.

Age of Specialists

About 2,400 years ago Herodotus, the Greek historian, wrote this about the Egyptians: "The art of medicine among them is distributed thus: Each physician is a physician of one disease only. And the whole country is full of physicians, for some profess themselves to be physicians of the eyes, others of the head, others of the teeth, others of the affections of the stomach, and others of the more obscure ailments."

And here we've been going along imagining that we have something new when we say we are living in an age of specialists. Every age is an age of specialists, and always has been, even in cave-man days when each clan had its champion spear thrower. The key to wealth and fame is specialization, doing some one thing better than others can.

S. I. N. A.

The total number of students now being served by Radford State Normal is 421. One hundred and ten of these are correspondent students. Many of these will enter the work in the Normal next summer and next session.

Employment Secretary:

The "Memory Book" which has become a feature in colleges throughout the country is now being taken up by Normal Schools and is making rapid progress. We believe it should be in use at your institution where we are sure large numbers can be sold.

There are two ways of introducing this book—one through the school itself, and the other, through some student who would take the matter up to help meet financial requirements.

In case that the school finds it impracticable we would like to have one of your students take advantage of our very attractive offer, knowing that with energy and persistence success is assured, and the alumni spirit preserved for years after graduation.

We are enclosing our descriptive brochure giving the retail prices of our several styles, and our liberal discounts should net the seller in the neighborhood of $1.00 per book according to the number of books sold.

Could you not place some active student in communication with us?

Thanking you in advance for any consideration that you may give us, we remain,

Most truly yours,

College Memory Book Company.

If anyone is interested, apply for information at the ROTUNDA Office.

JOHN POWELL IN FARMVILLE

Large Audience Attends John Powell Concert.

A large audience, consisting of Normal School students, town people, and representatives from Blackstone, Hampden-Sidney, and other nearby towns, was royally entertained on Tuesday night, April 10 in the Normal School Auditorium by John Powell, one of America's foremost pianists and composers. Virginia is very proud to add to her long list of famous men this worthy son. He is a native of Richmond, and a graduate of the University of Virginia.

The program, consisting of some of his own compositions and those of other famous masters of music, played on his own Steinway Piano, was as follows:

Beethoven—Sonata in C Major Opus. 53 (Waldstein)
Allegro con brio
Introduzione, Adagio Molto
Rondo Allegretto
Moderato, Prestissimo
2.
Chopin—Nocturne D flat, Scherzo C sharp minor, Polonaise, A flat
3.
Beethoven—Three Country Dances
C major; E flat major; C major
John Powell—Banjo Picker (from "At the Fair")
David Guion—Turkey in the Straw
4.
Liszt—Slumber Song, Rhapsodie Hongroise, No. 13

This splendid entertainment gave everyone present an opportunity of hearing a truly great artist and of seeing and feeling proud of a noted Virginian. John Powell was brought to Farmville by members of the alumnae of Farmville Normal for the benefit of the Student Building.

SCRIPTURE CAKE

One cup Judges 5:25; two cups Jeremiah 6:20; three and one-half cups I Kings 4:22; two cups I Samuel 30:10; two cups Jeremiah 8:13; one cup Genesis 43:11; one cup Proverbs 30:33; six cups Isaiah 10:14; a little Leviticus 2:13; two table-spoonsful Proverbs 24:13; sweet spices to taste, I Kings, 10:2; two heaping table spoonsful Galatians 5:9. Follow Solomon's advice for making good boys (first clause of Proverbs 23:14) and you will have a good cake. Bake in a moderately hot oven. Mrs. J. H. Hines.

Girls, here is food for thought and Biblical reference on a hungry Sunday afternoon. Also a practical suggestion to send to your mother.

PIXIE "CAMPER" SHOWS ABILITY FOR ACTING

Tuesday morning, in the Training School Assembly the Ninth Grade dramatized two scenes from "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come" in which Chad's dog, Jack is being tried for sheep killing.

In the first scene the mountaineers assemble for the trial, over which the Squire presides. The jury is chosen; and, after the witnesses are heard, the jury pronounce the dog guilty. The second scene is on the hillside near the dead sheep and Whizzer. Here Jack is found innocent and both the Turners and the Dillons return home to remain enemies for life.

The cast of characters is as follows:

Chad	Hannah Hamlet
Jack	Pixie "Camper"
Squire	Pauline Stallard
Sheriff	Peggy Madison
Joel Turner	Smitty Carter
Mrs. Turner	Margaret Hubbard
Milissa	Constance Loyd
Old Tad Dillon	Elizabeth Cash
Little Tad Dillon	Thelma Swisher
Daws Dillon	Eloise Warriner
Mrs. Dillon	Bessie Snell
Silas Brown	Fanny Grainger
Sam Jones	Alva Williams
Will Tompkins	Hallie Elmore
Tom Higgin	Mary Johns

CLEF COLUMN

The Editor offers for the delectation of the audience this week the following cheerful ditty, for which Becky Dedmon is responsible.
Did you ever think as the hearse rolls by
That maybe some day you and I
Will roll along in a big black hack
With never a thought of coming back.
And they dig a hole and bury you deep
And you never wake from that awful sleep.
And the worms crawl out, and the worms crawl in
They crawl all over your mouth and chin.
They bring their friends and their friends' friends too.

And they all come in for a friendly chew.
And your eyes fall out
And your teeth fall in
And your limbs fall off of you
Limb by limb.
Ah-men
Ah-women.

Since sitting in a certain large lecture course, we almost know how the Philistine felt when he was killed by the jawbone of an ass.

V. P. I. TO HAVE NEW BUILDING

Alumni Launch Campaign for World War Memorial Hall.

At the gathering of alumni, more than 12 hundred in number—which took place at Blacksburg last May, it was proposed by the President of the Alumni Association that a fund of $250,000 be raised with which to erect a building as a memorial to their students who fought in the great war. Some program has already been made and the committee is now planning to actively push the campaign throughout the state and the south.

The building which the alumni of V. P. I. will build for their Alma Mater is as follows:

"A large building of native stone with steel frame-work. The basement of the building to contain storing facilities and fifty or sixty shower baths, a swimming pool of the latest type, approximately thirty by seventy feet, will be built as an annex to the basement and first floor. The main floor to be devoted to a large well-equipped gymnasium. The room to be so arranged that it can be used for drill purposes during Winter months; also to be used for basketball, tennis and other indoor sports. The second floor to contain a thoroughly modern auditorium with appropriate dressing rooms. The third floor to contain large, well-equipped halls for the literary societies, several rooms to be fitted up as "a club" for the professors, graduate students and visiting alumni, a room for the Bugle Board, Editors of the "Tech," the Monogram Club and all other student organizations. The fourth floor to contain rooms with appropriate toilet and bathing facilities where all visiting athletic teams may be properly entertained and twenty to thirty additional bedrooms to be available for visiting alumni. The college authorities have agreed to permanently heat, light and furnish janitor service for this building.

The committee in charge of the campaign hopes that the cornerstone may be laid during the commencement exercises of 1923, and the building dedicated during commencement, 1924.

DRAMATIC CLUB GIVES NEXT LYCEUM NUMBER

The Dramatic Club will present three plays, "The Impertinence of the Creature" (comedy), "Spreading the News" (comedy), and "The Masque of the Two Strangers" (Poetic play of Symbolism) for their Lyceum number on April 20.

It is needless to promise a treat, for the success of the club in the past, speaks for the future. All alumnae are especially invited to attend.

THIS STAFF'S LAST WORD

This week is the last week that this staff has the privilege of working for the ROTUNDA. It ends our newspaper work at S. N. S. We take this, our last opportunity, to speak to our readers.

We wish to thank the faculty and student body for their aid in making the ROTUNDA what it is. We wish to thank Dr. Jarman for his kindness in furnishing the ROTUNDA office in such a manner that it has been a pleasure to work in it. It was because of you that this staff was able to add another sheet to the paper. Through the reorganization and enlargement of the staff, the extension of the advertising and subscription lists, the enlarging of the exchange list, the practice of having various cuts and cartoons, the introduction of the Christmas gift shop, and publishing the best material which we could obtain, we have tried to make our paper better and prove worthy of the trust you placed in us by making us members of the staff.

As the time comes to leave this work, we do so with hesitancy, because we realize what a great opportunity we have had in serving the school. This advantage will go to the new staff next week. They are full of ideas for making the ROTUNDA a better paper. It is up to you, student body and faculty, to help them attain their goal of what the ROTUNDA should be.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Everyone possesses a name. It is one thing we have in common with our neighbors. If conversation lags and we have exhausted the possibilities of the weather as a topic, why not discuss names?

Nearly every locality has names which to outsiders seem queer. In Florida I know a Miss Silvertooth. It seemed incongruous that she should possess perfect teeth with not a trace of silver about them.

I have a friend who seems to fear that some day a dire calamity may overtake her—she may not have anything with which to cover her head. To offset this possibility she married a Mr. Hatt. He died and for a long time she mourned the loss of her Hatt, but after a while she was convinced that a Roof offered even greater protection to her than a Hatt, so now she is Mrs. Roof.

The names of colors are used for family names. No doubt many of us could construct a rainbow from our acquaintances with color names. In my home town we have a druggist named White, a dentist named Black, and a merchant named Brown, all of whom are Knight Templars. They went to a convention in San Francisco. When the train stopped at a small Kansas station a man rushed in and said he wished to meet his brother Templais. Mr. White began to introduce himself, Dr. Black, and Mr. Brown. The man broke out into a hearty laugh and said, "My name's Green."

I once taught in a school where every morning the principal called the roll of the entire school at the opening exercises. He called the family first and went all the way from Anderson, Anna, to Ziggler, Mary. In my room were two girls, Annie Belle Sane and Kate Goforth. The calling of these two names amused me very much. The principal would pause for effect between the names. When he reached Sane, Annie Belle, I looked around to see whether some unfortunate occurrence had driven Annie Belle insane. Every time his voice boomed out "Go forth, Kate," I expected to see Kate rise and go forth, for our principal's commanding voice was one not likely to be disobeyed.

Sometimes we think it unfortunate that we cannot choose our own names. Often we think them inappropriate, but after all, what's in a name? Is it not what we put into it? Our names represent us and we can make them mean what we will.

Jim: "I heard you talking in your sleep about something 'sweet and Irish.'"

Bill: "Oh yes; I dreamed I was selling potatoes."

Boll Weevil.

Ted: "I suppose you're fond of golf?"

Ned: (Fingering his watch chain), "Yes, you see, I carry the links around with me."

WHAT DO YOU THINK OF THE CAMPUS FORUM?

"What do you think of the Campus Forum?" has been asked of many girls over the whole United States, even right here on our own campus. What do we as Association members think of it? First of all, what do we know about it? Do we know that it is really a section of the Y. W. C. A. publication, the Woman's Press, set aside especially for us, students. We are its contributors as well as its readers—yes, Farmville has had a contribution in the Campus Forum. Have you read it?

This is just an example of numerous questions and things of interest about the vastness of the Y. W. C. A. work which we ought to know. Ask any of the members of the Cabinet what they are doing now; they will be most apt to answer "studying" and refer you to a regular course of study and references on the Cabinet room table. They are studying. They have each been chosen for a particular fitness for her place, and they are striving to go forward, to receive training and a broader vision of the scope of the whole Association. They are to take an examination on the work and then go to Westhampton College to a Cabinet Training Council that they may be better leaders and representatives for us as Association members. Are we not to learn also? Certainly, and not necessarily all from them either. Let us study our Association, ours in the sense of the world wide influence. Let us learn the work, let up keep posted as to what's happening in our Association World. Read the Woman's Press and other good books on the Y. W. C. A. reading table.

GOOD-BYE

I was told to write a farewell poem
For the Staff
"Just something clever, don't you know—
That'll make the girls all laugh!"
I tried to make it clever
And I tried to make it rhyme
I tried and tried. Alas, it got Worse each successive time!
Anyway
It all amounts to This.
The prophet who
Was without honor in his native land
Had nothing on
The staff
Of any school Newspaper.
Not only was it honor that
We did not get
But also contributions,
But still—
We liked it all—or most of it.
We hope
You won't forget us by next week.
We hope you'll help
Our dear successors.
That's all.
Goodbye.

PIERIAN

The Pierian Literary Society held its meeting Saturday evening between 7:00 and 8:00. After the old business and some very important new business was discussed the short but interesting program was rendered:

Harriet Coleman made an interesting talk on Madam Marie Curie.

Louise Stevenson gave important points and works of Judge Florence Allen.

The meeting adjourned.

RUFFNER

The Ruffner Literary Society met Tuesday, April 3. The time was taken up with a business meeting in regard to revision of the constitution, to be decided at a joint meeting of the Athenian, Cunningham and Ruffner societies. It was also decided to change the meeting hour and day of the Ruffner Society to Saturday night at 7 o'clock.

ATHENIAN

The Athenian Literary Society held a short but interesting program on Tuesday, April 10. After the regular business, the following program was given:

AT THE EACO THEATRE

April 16th-21st.

Mon. & Tue.—"The Christian." The great Special Production from the novel by same name by Sor Hall Caine. Enacted by an all star cast headed by Richard Dix. The story of the man who had to choose between his devotion to religion and an over powering passion for London's famous stage beauty is the most thrilling and dramatic love drama the world has ever known. It has been made into the biggest picture of the year. This is the Big Picture That Was Shown in Richmond About a Month Ago, and the Film Was Kept Under Police Guard. The showing in Richmond was its first showing in the United States. It is One of the Best Pictures Ever Shown Anywhere. Pathe News Monday and a Good Comedy Tuesday. Matinee at 4 O'clock Monday. Admission to Normal Students 35 cents.

Wed.—We have requested a show for this date, but as the show is on the road we are not yet sure of getting it here.

Thu. & Fri.—Helen Chadwick and a Big All Star cast, in the Special Production "Gimme" from the story by Rupert Hughes. Suppose you had borrowed five hundred dollars to buy a trousseau for your honeymoon—and then suppose your husband were to learn of your mystery later on—What would you say in answer to his jealous accusations? Oh boy, what a picture! Rupert Hughes has made an uproarious comedy-drama of high finance in the home and you are going to howl at many a "touching" and familiar situation. Every Girl Will Enjoy This Picture. Fox News Thursday and a Good Comedy Friday. Admission to Normal Students 25 cents.

Sat.—Viola Dana in "Love in the Dark," one of her latest and very best pictures. An exciting comedy-drama with a laugh for every thrill. Girls, you will enjoy this tense, hilarious comedy, and a charming romance in a rapidly moving story. You have Viola Dana in her most delightful role. Also 9th episode of the serial. Admission to Normal Students 20 cents.

PUPPY LOVE

There is a malady more widespread than measles. And far more dangerous. In the terrors which it holds for its victims it is more deadly than smallpox, yet in its humor for on-lookers it is rivalled only by mumps.

Only fools are stricken with it, yet having had it, one ceases to be a fool automatically with its cure. I have heard many who were once afflicted so in youth speak of it, and such seems to be the consensus of opinion.

It is no respecter of age, although among adolescent youth it is perhaps most prevalent. I have seen, however strong men and able women stricken down as mercilessly as the most blattont youth.

Did I mention its name? There is no need here to mention its scientific cognomen, that being long and painful to the ear. We shall speak of it by its fervently, sometimes even violently bestowed name of Puppy Love. A particularly appropriate name, it seems to me, for many reasons too dark and deep to divulge here.

I once knew an individual who was suffering from this strange disease. He was my brother John. I did not know then what was his trouble, although I pondered on it many times, sometimes mirthfully, and sometimes distinctly otherwise. He wore, I remember, a flowing tie, long flopping hair and a pained expression. These characteristics probably had nothing to do with the malady, Puppy Love, although I am not even yet sure. I have never broached the question but once. Since that attempt to clear up what was a deep mystery to me, I have been possessed of a singular delicacy on the subject, which has caused me to refrain from any mention of it. He has since reformed.

My brother John first evidenced symptoms of Puppy Love at the table. We found then that it was necessary to scream three times before he could be persuaded to pass the butter. Not that he was partial toward the butter. He simply declined to pass anything. It did not seem to be stubbornness on his part, but rather a deafness of the brain. This grew more noticeable as the trouble grew worse. Toward the end no amount of screaming seemed to have any effect. This was true also in ordinary conversation. I remember my father grew quite vident. He had been asking John about pruning some fruit trees. After waiting some moments in vain for a response, he shouted:

"Well, you blithering moonstruck fool, can't you talk at all?" It was then that John turned around eagerly, his face alight with the expression one puts on upon finding, at last a kindred spirit. My father's mouth gaped. John was going to answer! He did. He said:

"Yes, I think 'moon' would be much better in that line than 'stars,' too. You put the very word right in my mouth!" My father seemed on the point of explosion but thought better of it, and took to his bed instead, from which he did not rise again for many days. He said that it was hard to find in his old age that one of his children was an imbecile.

John committed poetry. All Puppy Love victims do. Write would be perhaps, a more polite term, but commit is more appropriate. Yes, undoubtedly commit is the only word. For the poetry of Puppy Love is crime. It is gloried with a purple freedom one seldom finds elsewhere. It is profusely decorated with rosebuds and small gooey hearts. It is populated to overflowing with obese cupids and wondrously beautiful maidens and round, fat, pumpkin colored moons. It oozes with sticky words. It is unthinkable. It is painful. It should be punishable by law.

John suffered spasms of exquisite torture as well as moments of unlivable bliss.

He sighed—vast, gusty sighs that seemed ambitious to carry house and all away on their capacious bosoms to some distant, romantically gloomy Arcady.

He was melancholy with an inconsolable gloom and tragic darkness.

He was happy to simple mindedness.

Funerals seemed to fascinate him. He would attend every one anywhere within a radius of twenty miles, sit through the service with a sickly and watery smile, and return home, to sit in the pale moonlight and commit more poetry, commencing "If I should die, wouldst thou forget me?"

He did nothing but mope and clutter up the house with himself and his eternal ravings which he would write on paper and then leave to be blown about and read by every one who came by and disgrace the family.

He was forever in the way, and when one would remind him of this, he would move away with such a pathetic look in his eyes as puppies have when they are turned outdoors on a cold morning. One couldn't kick him. He was too pathetic.

Truly, he did those things he ought not to have done, but more truly, he left undone everything he by any remote chance should have done.

Lest I have painted this picture of a sufferer from Puppy Love in too dark tones, I shall splash vivid sunshine across the dark canvas:

One always recovers. John did. Some one laughed at him. He became cynical. He is almost normal now.

Chas.: "Have a good time in Ethel's car last night?"

Jas.: "Naw, she's too ambiguous."

Chas.: "Howzat?"

Jas.: "When she asked me if I minded if she had to take a crank along, I didn't know she meant her aunt."

Froth.

CLEAN-UP CAMPAIGN IN THE TRAINING SCHOOL

The Training School grounds have recently presented a more pleasing appearance than formerly, due to the interest the pupils are taking in them. Several weeks ago we had a "Clean Up" campaign to get before each pupil his responsibility in keeping his school building and grounds clean and attractive. Each grade from the Kindergarten through the Ninth made posters and wrote plays based on the "Keep Clean" idea. Prizes were offered for the best posters and plays. The grades winning in the poster contest were grades Two, Five and Six. Those writing the best plays were grades Four and Seven. The posters are placed in various parts of the building serving as constant reminders of what we should do with waste paper, etc. The two best plays were given before the Training School Assembly and before the student body of the Normal School.

Since this campaign was inaugurated the Training School has elected a committee composed of two representatives from each grade from the fourth to the ninth inclusive to see that no paper is thrown around on the grounds. We are learning to become good citizens of our town by first being good citizens of our school.

Every rose has its thorn, but aren't the roses sweet?

FACULTY MEMBER RECEIVES HONOR

Tidyman Elected President.

The following is a clipping from the March 29 issue of the "School Society."

The third annual meeting of the Supervisors of Student Teaching, a national organization of those engaged in supervising and directing student teaching, was held at the Cleveland School of Education, February 26 and 27, in connection with the department of superintendence of the National Education Association. The program consisted of a series of papers on various phases of practice teaching and inspection of the work of the Cleveland School of Education. Officers elected were: President, Professor W. F. Tidyman, State Normal School, Farmville, Virginia; secretary-treasurer, S. I. F. Williams, Heidelberg University,iffin, Ohio; members of executive committee, Professor Fiske Allen, State Normal College, Charleston, Ill., Professor H. C. Pryor, State Normal School, Aberdeen, South Dakota. Miss Frances King, Philadelphia Training School for Teachers, is also a member of the executive committee.

HONOR SOCIETY TO NATIONALIZE

The Pi Kappa Omega Society held its annual open meeting Saturday evening, April 14, in the Auditorium. The speaker was Mrs. Frantz Naylor, president of the Woman's Club of Norfolk. Her subject was "The Modern Woman, Her Duties and Responsibilities." The program was opened by Miss Elizabeth Moring with greetings to the guests, especially the returned alumnae members and the Harrisonburg representatives. In accordance with the custom of the society, a synopsis of the project work of the members during the year was given, after which Evelyn Barnes accompanied by Mary Vaughn sang two beautiful selections. After the address, announcement was made that the following honorary members had been elected to the society: Misses Pauline Camper, Catherine Cook, Catherine Hill, Catherine Wicker, Nellie Smithy, Carrie Sutherland, Thurzetta Thomas, Myrtle Grenels, Madeline Warburton and Mrs. H. E. Barrow.

Immediately following the meeting, a banquet was given in the Tea Room for the guests and members of the society. The table was beautifully decorated in rose and gray, Pi Kappa Omega colors, and the occasion was made enjoyable for all by the singing of society and school songs between courses and by toasts at the close of the banquet. The whole week-end was a happy one for the society as well as for the visitors. During business sessions much work was done toward nationalization, the Beta chapter to be established at Harrisonburg. Opportunity was given members to renew old friendships at an informal tea given in the Senior parlor Saturday afternoon at which the society and faculty were present.

Out of town guests for the banquet were: Misses Nathalie Lancaster, Helen Ritchie, Catherine Riddle, Sallie Kie, Helen Patton, Gwendolyn Wright, Carolyn Cogbill, Inger Scheie, Elizabeth Finch, Mary Derieux, Lucille McIlhane and Mrs. Montague.

"What's the matter with the Prof's eye?"

"Nothing so far as I know, why?"

"Well, I had to go to him yesterday in his office, and he asked me twice where my hat was and it was on my head all the time."

This staff starts work with a feeling akin to that of the little boy on Christmas morning. We are thoroughly enthusiastic concerning our new task, but slightly dazzled. We appreciate, also, the grave responsibility resting on our shoulders, and the honor the school has done us in naming us as worthy of representing it. And it would be with a feeling of trepidation that we assume our duties were it not for the knowledge of the support of the faculty and student body. The ROTUNDA at times may not be all you expect of it, but we count on you to help us rectify this fault and at the same time to remember that we are doing our best.

Notes! What a variety of meaning is expressed by that one small word. It may remind us of hasty letters received from friends or our own letters home. It suggests billet-doux or music lessons. We sigh as we recall hours of note taking done on outside reading or in class. And then, alas! We hate mention of it, but the word insists upon suggesting that other meaning, the dread significance of which every Normal girl has come to know. Their official name is "Bi-weekly Report," but we know them as "Notes"—"E Notes," "W Notes" and "Cut Notes." It is upon this last meaning of the word, unpleasant as it may be that we wish to speak.

To the recipients of E's and W's the word, "note" may bring a variety of memories. To some it recalls regrets—tears, others regard it with indifference while to a few it brings the thought of illness or unavoidable circumstances which caused her to receive a warning, but for which she was not to blame. It is harder to analyze the feeling of the girl who gets cut notes—particularly the habitual class cutter. There can be no possible excuse for her. If there had been, the written excuse could have been obtained and the absence cancelled. She either cuts class because she does not take seriously this task of acquiring an education, and feeling lazy or indispensed at the moment "can't be bothered" about going to class, or perhaps not having prepared her lesson she fears the mortification of being called upon and forced to show her hand. In the first case, she's a fool in the proper sense of the word, and some day she will wake up to the fact. She has no place in school and her unappreciated opportunity should be given to some one else. In the second case, she's a coward. If she wilfully neglected studying the lesson, she should be willing to take the consequences, if she did not have time to prepare it properly she should not run away. Even if she does not wish to excuse herself to the teacher on these grounds, she should not deprive herself of any help which might be obtained through class discussions. We do not wish to excuse the girl who gets E's and W's, but we can say that she at least attended classes whether she was prepared or unprepared, and did not try to dodge the consequences. Perhaps we have expressed it pretty strongly, but it is a matter upon which strong statements should be made. The girl who deliberately cuts a class shows the white feather.

SENIORS!! WAKE UP!

Field Day's coming! soon 'twill be here,
Coming closer 'n closer, getting pretty near.
"What'er the Seniors doing?" I heard somebody say,
"Better get busy or they'll lose Field Day."
So come on Seniors! Get in the game,
Show the folks we're still got a name.
Let 'em see we've got some pep,
And show 'em we mean to live up to our rep.
Let's beat 'em Seniors, and keep that cup!
Now let's hear from the Juniors!

Y. W. C. A. INSTALLATION SERVICE

"Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in Heaven." Math. 5:16.

The installation service is one of the most meaningful as well as beautiful of the whole Association services. This service at which all attend dressed in white with a spirit of reverence to stand behind the chosen representatives expresses the beauty and responsibilities of the membership as a whole and the Cabinet members in particular. In accepting the place into which she is installed each girl on the cabinet is pledging herself to undertake her work for interpreting Christ to herself and others. As each outgoing Cabinet member gives the charge to and lights the candle of her successor, a light of love, service and obedience to the will of Christ is set aflame. The new light flickers, grows steadier and steadier while the old light burns on—so with the purpose and its commitment by the new Cabinet. As the lights need certain conditions to make them burn so the work of the Cabinet needs your co-operation, and as the individual lights need a supreme light so the whole Association needs the Light of the World, who is Jesus Christ.

A WEEKLY TRAGEDY

Bathing on Saturday morning has caused more cases of nervous prostration, more anxiety and coveting of our neighbor's goods than any other evil in our school life. The seeker after cleanliness, armed to the teeth with a month's laundry, towels, soap and other instruments of modern scrubbing goes on her way rejoicing to take a bath. But this is more easily said than done. When she reaches her destination, she finds every single solitary tub already occupied, with a waiting list of discouraging length. Annoyed, but not defeated by this blow, the would-be bather marches on to the next bathroom. She is astonished to find the same conditions prevailing there. The unfortunate soul meanders upstairs and downstairs and at last a cheering sight greets her eye. She sees a vacant tub, which nobody has seized. She pounces upon her discovery gleefully, congratulating herself on her keen vision, for she sees that there are others gloomily searching for the same coveted object. Her agony is great, when she finds that the stopper is A. W. O. L., also the chair. It seems that these articles can be neither begged, borrowed or stolen. The situation borders on the tragic. When the sufferer, finally is convinced that fate is against her, and that suicide is the next best step, somebody announces that she can have that tub when the other finishes with it. With grim determination she watches the tub with an eagle eye, lest by chance, it should escape her. After long ages of waiting, during which she sees all of her friends gaily going downtown, she secures the longed-for prize and she splashes around in the soothing liquid for an hour to make up for the precious time she has wasted in wandering in fruitless searching. She makes a mental vow that the next time, she is going to be the early bird who will get the first tub.

SPRINGTIME IS HERE

Springtime is here! oh, joyous Spring!
In every window lattice the blue birds sing.
Out of the grasses the modest flowers peep.
Wakened by song from their long Winter's sleep.

Welcome, bright Springtime, best of the year,
To each saddened heart you bring life and cheer,
And happiness lives in each soul anew,
And shines in the eyes like sparkling dew.

Welcome, sweet Springtime, beautiful Spring!
Oh, welcome! thrice welcome, we joyfully sing,
We pay thee a tribute of love and of song,
And sing thee our praise as we travel along.

Anne (to Liz who is quite buried in a book): "Whatcha looking for, Liz?"
Liz: "Looking for something to eat."

ATHLETICS

Field Day is May 5! Didn't know it was that soon, did you? Twice a week Miss Buford, aided and abetted by her Third and Fourth Prof. gym. class draw up yet more plans concerning the celebration thereof. (Maybe it's a good thing Field Day is so soon. It would develop into a regular Olympic Meet if something didn't stop that class.) Anyway it's coming for a' that, and do you know that every participant in Field Day activities has to practice regularly for the particular form of athletics in which she competes for at least two weeks before the event? Every day bevy of damsels revolve themselves gaily around the Athletic Field adding to their skill and soreness of muscle. And they're plenty good! Get in on it before it's too late.

ALUMNAE NOTES

Mrs. E. C. Harper (Miss Jaunita Manning) has moved to Fries, Virginia, from Catawba, where her husband was a resident physician.

Miss Annie Hancock it teaching in Damascus, Virginia.

The thirteenth annual session of the Woman's Council of the Methodist Episcopal Church was held in Mobile, Alabama, April 4-12. At that time Miss Constance Rumbough, of Lynchburg, was assigned to missionary service in Siberia. Miss Rumbough, after graduation from Farmville Normal School, attended the Scarritt Bible and Training School in Kansas City, Mo., where she made an unusually fine record. She will leave for Siberia in October.

Miss Anna Spencer Daniel died Saturday, April 7, in Lumberton, N. C., after a short illness. Her death came as a shock to many friends in Farmville and elsewhere. Funeral services were conducted the following Monday from the home of her mother on Appomattox St. and were attended by Dr. Vardell, president of Flora McDonald College where Miss Daniel had taught for fifteen years, Miss Roberts and Mr. Grantham of the faculty, all of whom spoke in the highest terms of Miss Daniel and the great work she did in the college.

White—Lankford

The marriage of Miss Margaret Lankford, of Lynchburg, and Mr. Robert Harney White, of Danville, was celebrated at the home of the bride's parents Saturday evening, April 7, at six o'clock. Ashby Raine, of Danville, was best man, Miss Edley Andrews was maid of honor, and Miss Gertrude Cos bridesmaid. After the bridal trip to Atlantic City, Mr. and Mrs. White will make their home in Danville.

Ritner—Watts

Miss Ida M. Watts and Mr. J. Howard Ritner, both of Lynchburg, were married Saturday afternoon, April 7, at four o'clock, at the home of the bride. Mrs. Ritner has been prominently connected with the education and civic life of Lynchburg, being one of the foremost teachers in the city, is at present one of the principals in the public schools. Upon their return from their wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Ritner will be at home at 1001 Clay Street.

WHEN JOAN SINGS

Miss Buford said we ought to change our name. She said "Clef Column" was too deep for her, she thought a clef was machinery until somebody explained. We didn't think that was a bit kind of her, as the christening of this department had cost us unlimited time and energy, but the name she suggested really was lots better, so we hereby announce that the Clef Column is no more. It is "When Joan Sings." we rather account ourselves lucky not to be called worse than either of these, though, and call us what you will, we present our weekly, one of Christine's numerous ditties.

I have a dear old father
For whom I daily pray
But he has so many whiskers
They're always in the way

They're always in the way
The cow eats them for hay
Mother chews them in her sleep
And thinks she's eating shredded wheat.

They're always in the way
Yes always in the way
They hide the dirt on father's shirt
But they're always in the way.

Pins $2 Bills to Examination Papers.

V. P. I. students in the class of trade analysis under Professor Van Oot of the Department of Industrial Education, were treated to a unique surprise during the recent final examination in that subject. Each student received an examination paper with a two-dollar bill attached to it.

It is a rather unusual procedure for a professor to pass around two-dollar bills to his students, but in this particular case Professor Van Oot was dividing among his students the money he received from the sale of an analysis which was made by the class as a whole.

AT THE EACO THEATRE

Week April 23rd-28th

Mon.—Richard Barthelmess in "The Bond Boy." A big special picture, and one of the best Barthelmess has ever appeared in. The story is about a Southern boy and his devotion to his mother. This is a very strong and thrilling production. Also Pathe News.

Tue.—"A blind Bargain." A new special production enacted by an all star cast. Never before has the screen offered a more thrilling or baffling mystery picture. Clever, diabolic, startling, it will make you gasp. You will want to be thrilled all over again! It is the story of a man who forgot his God in his love for science. Also a good comedy.

Wed.—Shirley Mason in "The New Teacher." This is a darling of a picture, and it is just the kind that will appeal to every girl in the school. It is one of Shirley Mason's very latest productions and we can assure you that it is an exceptionally good one. Also Aesop Fable.

Thu. and Fri.—Constance Talmadge in "East is West." "East is East and West is West and never the twain shall meet." But Sweet Confusion, they do in "East is West." "She'd wink till hearts went on the blink and staid professors couldn't think and everywhere they'd stop to stare and say, 'Some Chink!' when Ming Toy winked." Just as "Smilin' Through" was Norma Talmadge's first great triumph—so "East is West" is Constance's. It is a production with eight big beautiful reels of fun and drama. Fox News Thursday and a good comedy Friday. Admission to Normal Students 25 cents.

Sat.—Viola Dana in "June Madness." A rapidly moving comedy full of jazz and joy, in which a charming society girl jilts her near-husband at the altar. It is a speedy photoplay with thrills, smiles and surprises. It is a delightful mixture of madness and gladness. Also 10th episode of the serial.

Admission to Normal Students 20 cents for each night except Thursday and Friday.

Sonnie: "Why do they put the wholes in Swiss cheese, pop?"

Pop: "The stuff needs ventilation."

Student Teacher (in grammar lesson): "Eldon, take the sentence: 'Johnnie refused the pie.' What was Johnnie?"

Eldon: "Johnnie was a fool."

A man travelling on a steamer had just fallen overboard. He shouted "drop me a line!"

"What's the use," exclaimed one of the passengers, "there's no post office where you're going."

THREE ONE-ACT PLAYS

Presented by the Dramatic Club.

The Dramatic Club, under the direction of Miss Spear, presented its Spring entertainment on the evening of April 20, at eight-thirty, in the Auditorium.

The Dramatic Club entertainment consisted of three one-act plays, "The Impertinence of the Creature," "Spreading the News," and "The Masque of the Two Strangers," making a very entertaining program. The first play was a very attractive scene between a lady and an unknown gentleman. The attempt of the gentleman to introduce himself furnished the audience with a great deal of amusement. The second play, "Spreading the News," was a very interesting Irish play showing how quickly news spreads and what ridiculous rumors can start from nothing. "The Masque of the Two Strangers" was a symbolic play portraying youth in its first conflict with sorrow and how sorrow is overcome.

The dances, which composed a very attractive part of the program, were under the direction of Miss Mary Barlow.

The costumes were designed by Miss Marion Tupper and Miss Anne Smith.

Music between the plays, and for the dancing and singing during the plays was under the direction of Miss Eugenia Vincent.

The following was the cast of characters:

INSTALLATION SERVICES OF THE Y. W. C. A.

New Cabinet Begins Its Work.

The Y. W. C. A. installed its new Cabinet, Wednesday evening, April 18, at 6:30 in the Auditorium.

The most impressive Y. W. C. A. service of the year was held when the old Cabinet placed its work in the hands of the new. A very beautiful scene was made, by numbers of candles shedding their soft glow over flowers, ferns, and the white dresses of the girls. The Cabinets met under the shadow of the blue triangle. Here the new officers received from the old the flame of love and service, that is theirs to keep burning throughout this and the coming year.

Marion Camper, the retiring president, was in charge of the devotional service, after which she gave over her office and the Constitution of the Y. W. C. A. to the new president, Lucie Farrar. Then each of the other new officers received her charge and lighted her candle from the one retiring.

The new president gave a short address and prayer after which the new and old officers went out.

One of the special features of this service was the music. Before the Y. W. C. A. officers entered the members of the Glee Club came down the aisle singing "Hymn of the Lights." The Cabinets came in while Rubenstein's "Melody in F" was played by Olive M. Smith and Fay Moss, accompanied by Ruth Shockley. During the evening Anna Bell Treake and Evelyn Barnes sang a duet, and a prayer was also sung by three members of the Glee Club. The Glee Club followed the Cabinet out singing "Follow the Glean."

OUR FRIENDS, THE BIRDS

(Presented by the Sixth Grade.)

On April 17, the Sixth Grade took charge of the assembly. Chapel was opened by the usual devotional exercises.

The Sixth Grade children who had been studying about birds in their English class decided to entertain the other grades by telling something about the different kinds of birds. They recited poems about birds and told stories illustrating the life of different birds. They explained where, when, and how to build bird nests. Some of the recitations showed how the birds aided in the progress of man and why man should protect them.

The program was ended by a bird song and a farewell to the birds.

Dr. Tidyman then read the March Honor Roll and told how the grades stood in the weekly spelling contest.

MAY DAY

Now the bright morning star, day's harbinger,
Comes dancing from the east, and leads with her
The flowery May, who from her green lap throws
The yellow cowslips and the pale primrose.

Milton.

The unfolding of the leaves of the trees, the green growing grass, the blossoming of the flowers, the budding of the plants—do these wonders of Nature draw any response from you? Do they not cause joyous but also confused feelings within which seek expression? The birds respond by beautiful warbling songs while people react to these stimuli of nature by May Day celebrations, "The utterance for the ecstasy of joy with which men hail the spring." These May Day celebrations differ in different countries as people express themselves in various ways.

We find that the celebration of May Day goes back to the time of Rome when men worshipped Flora, the goddess of fruit and flowers. The Druids kept the day by bonfires on the hill tops on May eve. The May festival in France is distinct and unique. A little white-robed girl with a crown of periwinkle and narcissus on her head and an olive scepter in her hand stands by a church's porch all day and everybody who passes drops a coin into her hand. Chaucer tells us in his "Court of love" how May Day was celebrated in England. The king and queen go a-Maying with their subjects. In the north of England, the boys and girls went into the woods before sunrise on May Day and got branches of hawthorn, bringing them home at sunrise to deck their homes. At a later date in England they kept May Day by placing a May pole trimmed with garlands in the midst of the village and the lads and lassies danced about it with feet as light as their hearts. Perhaps it would be well if some of us would copy the Scotch and Irish custom. They would go out in the early morning and wash their faces in the May dew in the belief that it would make them beautiful.

In our country we celebrate May Day in various ways. Sometimes a May queen is chosen and she is crowned on that day. Usually, there are dances and songs for the benefit of the queen. May Day in New York finds Central Park crowded with children celebrating the occasion. The May pole has also persisted down to the present day.

It seems, though, that we are gradually departing from this old custom of celebrating May Day and we think this is to be deplored because it is one of the most beautiful and appropriate times of the year to be celebrated. "Innocent as the blossoms, joyous as the birds, and earnest as earth's manifold activities, this is she who wishes only that they who ramble abroad this day may be like unto her and so remain."

FOUNDER'S DAY BANQUET

The Delta Sigma Chi Sorority held its annual Founder's Day banquet in the new Tea Room, Saturday night, April 21. The room was beautifully decorated in green and white, sorority colors. At the entrance was an ivy-covered arch and in each corner of the room was a screen, banked with trailing ivy and dogwood. Ferns and vine plants were placed about adding to the general flower garden effect. The tables were arranged in the shape of the Greek letter "Chi," and rows of green candles in tall candlesticks gave a softened light. The candles were looped together with green and white ribbons which met in the center at a huge bowl of white roses. The banquet was further made enjoyable by toasts between courses and Delta Sigma Chi songs. Alumnae members who returned for the occasion were Misses Laura Anderson of Farmville and Mary Jones, at present attending R.-M. W. C.

LITERARY SOCIETIES

JEFFERSON

The regular meeting of the Jefferson Literary Society was held Tuesday, April 17. Guy de Maupessant was the author studied this week.

The program consisted of the following: Interesting facts of the life and the literary characteristics of Maupessant—Isabel Crowder.

Short story by Maupessant—Ruth Winer.
Short story by Maupessant—Sophia Jacobson.

Talk about the Rhur—Frieda Crockin.

PIERIAN

The Pierian Literary Society held its regular meeting Saturday evening from 7 to 8 o'clock. A great deal of business was attended to, after which the meeting was adjourned.

AN EDUCATIONAL FAD

Pennsylvania has one school, at least, which children cry to attend. It was the pet plan of the First Lady of that state, and she nourished it, and cherished it, and now she has seen the realization of it. In her school, an Utopia for children, no restriction will be placed upon the speech of its scholars. If the sudden mood of bitter tears or hilarious laughter strikes one of them, he is permitted to indulge his whim.

Mrs. Governor's plan was this: unrestricted speech awakens the faculty of thinking. And thinking aloud brings one's thoughts to a climax.

The lady evidently borrowed her argument from Wells, who says that the slow mental progress of man, during his first five hundred thousand years of existence, was due to his absolute absence of speech.

As if the project were before the court of justice, argument is offered on both sides. There are those who say that free speech in the school will reduce the discipline to a state of chaos; that there is a valuable lesson to be gained in learning not to talk; that the world is suffering from and overdose of talking, from the atheist, from the crank, and from the Bolshevik; that the weakest thinker is often the greatest talker, and that the garrulous one does not propound knowledge gathered from thinking.

On the other side, this: speech is necessary as an outlet for the emotions. Let us, in the words of Oliver Wendell Holmes, "Weep for the voiceless." Emerson is still more emphatic: "The man is only half himself, the other half is his expression."

There is much to be said for both views, but to us, the ideal course is the middle one. Impress upon the pupils that they should regulate their moods; and you set aside a period during which said moods may be indulged. Then you will have both silence and expression in your schools: that is the happy medium toward which we are all striving.

ALUMNAE NOTES

The Teachers' Conference of District A was held in Warrenton, Virginia, March 15-16. The departmental conferences elected the following Farmville graduates chairmen for the ensuing year: Primary, Miss Elizabeth King, Alexandria; Grammar Grade, Miss Margaret Helm, Warrenton.

Among the resolutions passed by the teachers in attendance upon the conference held in Pulaski March 22-24 was this: "Resolved, that we express our appreciation of the splendid contribution made to the success of the conference by our visitors, Miss Lulu Metz, C. J. Heatwole, and Mrs. Lottie M. Schneider." Mrs. Schneider was Miss Lottie Dyer and has been connected with a normal school in Shepherdstown, West Virginia, for several years. Miss Mary Thomas, of Pulaski, was a member of the resolutions committee.

Miss Linda St. Clair has an admirable article on "The Honor System as Used in a Portsmouth School" in the April number of Virginia Journal of Education.

Dr. Fannie Wyche Dunn, formerly of the rural department of the Farmville State Normal School, now assistant professor of Education, Teachers College, New York, has contributed to the March number of Teachers College Record an article entitled "The Curriculum of the Rural Elementary School."

In connection with the Pi Kappa Omega meeting, April 13-14, announcement is made of the arrival of a small son in the family of Mrs. James Hamilton, of Fayetteville, West Virginia. Mrs. Hamilton, as Miss Ruth Gregory, was one of the first B.S. graduates of this school, a member of Pi Kappa Omega Society, and student government president when here.

TOPICS IN BRIEF

Dr. J. L. Jarman attended the Board Meeting of Ferum School at Ferum, Virginia, this week.

Margaret Shackelford and Helen Miller have returned from a trip to West Hampton, where they attended the annual Southern Inter-Collegiate Association of Student Government.

Lois Williams and Margaret Finch attended the meeting of the North Carolina Y. W. C. A. Council at Trinity, April 13-15.

Miss Helen Draper entertained her student teachers in the Tea Room, Friday, April 20 at 6:30.

The teachers of the fifth grade were entertained in the Tea Room by Miss Carter, Friday at 6:30, after which they attended the Dramatic Club play.

Miss Estelle Smithy has gone to Washington.

Misses Willie and Lila London went shopping in Lynchburg, Friday, April 20.

By the special request of Miss Florence Buford, the athletic director, Field Day has been changed to Wednesday, May 9.

ODDITIES OF THE BASEBALL DIAMOND

Baseball! Why I thought that was played in the winter and was played with a big ball about the size of a basketball. This remark was made by a baseball candidate. Now do you wonder that we write baseball with an exclamation point after it? Field Day, the greatest interclass battle of the year, is to be May 9, and such remarks as these were made last week. The library contains excellent reading on baseball and the daily papers are enough to open the eyes of any one. These are some of the—shall we call them, amusing things that attracted the eye and attention of the athletic editor? A catcher was called for and a long and lean young lady stepped up to fill the position. The pitcher knew the game and was good but she was the only member of the team. The catcher was willing, yes, but willing to do what—to jump aside and let the brick wall be receiver and returner of the ball. While the ball was taking its own sweet time in rolling back to the pitcher after hitting the wall no less than half a dozen runs were scored—a result of baseball errors. Remember Field Day is one week off and a little knowledge, practice, and enthusiasm won't hurt the entire bunch of us. Motto: Practice!

TEETH TERRORS

Teeth are necessary blessings in the masticating process, but they are troublesome things sometimes. I am referring to those occasions when the unfortunate owner warned by premonitory symptoms of future pain, betakes himself or herself to the dentist's office, where unknown terrors await the unlucky.

Not long ago, I mustered up sufficient courage to visit such an establishment. One doesn't like to look like an openly abject coward, so I walked in and jauntily picked up a magazine. Some of these days, I am going to petition the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals see to it that new and interesting material is used for the perusal of the miserable, afflicted readers in such places. The literature is generally antique, and intended to improve the mind while patients wait. Killing two birds with one stone is a great idea when you are normal, I admit. But mental culture is well-nigh impossible to a person waiting in fear and suspense. Can anybody feature Daniel enjoying the "Literary Digest" before he walked into the lion's den? Anyway, I failed dismally in my effort to become interested in my magazine and found myself casting furtive glances to see how the other victims were bearing up. Also, I listened for groans from the operating chair.

Just as I had made up my mind to take flight in the manner of the Arabs, my turn came. There was nothing to do but march in. Though, woe is me! I have often wondered if the tortures inflicted by dentists were not originated in the Inquisition for the benefit of nervous people. And to think that nowadays we pay to be mistreated and call ourselves progressive! It gives me the creeps to recall the buzzing, the excavating, the yanks and twists, the blood-curdling, hair-raising boring of that memorable afternoon. I had a strong impulse to demolish the fiendish instrument, to pull the dentist's few remaining hairs out, or to throw him out of the window, but I desisted, perhaps, from regard for his family, or possibly because his position was more advantageous in a skirmish. In fact, I did nothing worse than wiggle in the most strenuous moments. It was a relief when it was all over; but when I think of enduring the same process, why it seems as if old age and "store teeth" are not such a bad combination.

CONTEST OPENS

The ROTUNDA Staff announces the opening of the "Chuckles Column" April 28. Laughter will cease and prizes will be awarded June 2. The following rules govern the contest:

1. Either jokes or humorous articles not exceeding fifty words in length will be accepted.
2. Material must be of local origin.

Prizes are:

1. A ticket redeemable at Gilliam's for twelve ice cream cones or the equivalent.
2. A ticket for eight ice cream cones.
3. A ticket for six ice cream cones.

Address your contribution to the "Chuckles Column" and drop it in the ROTUNDA contribution box.

The city editor looked over the manuscript the caller had handed him. "If I run this item, madam," he said, "I shall have to use the blue pencil on about nine-tenths of it." "Oh, that's too much trouble!" she exclaimed. "Let me have it again and I'll write it all with a blue pencil!"—Success.

South Sea Expedition Returns

Rare specimens including four thousand reptile and fighting bugs, were gathered in the six months' expedition to the South Sea Islands taken by Professor F. L. AT THE EACO THEATRE

Week April 30th-May 5th.

Mon.—Shirley Mason in "Shirley of the Circus." A sizzling romance of the sawdust ring. This is the most spectacular production Shirley Mason has ever been seen in. It takes you to the circus and you see the whole show with all the glitter and glamor of the big top. Also Pathe News.

Tue.—"One Clear Call." A big special production with Milton Sills, Claire Windsor, Irene Rich and an all star cast. The story of a wandering wife and a waiting mother—both seeking the same happiness—Of a coward who found courage and a hero who was a craven—both loving the same woman. This picture has the punch of a dozen dramas. Also good comedy.

Wed.—"The Sheik." With Rodolph Valentino, Agnes Ayres and the special cast, brought back to Farmville by popular request. We need not tell you about this picture, you all know what it is. If you have seen it, you will want to see it again, and if you haven't seen it, then here's your chance. Also Aesop's Fable. Matinee at 4 o'clock.

Thu.—Conway Tearle in "Love's Masquerade." Would you convict a man on circumstantial evidence? See this picture before you answer. Can true love turn to hatred? A "woman scorned" is the cause of a world of trouble in this latest Conway Tearle picture. Also Fox News.

Fri.—Bryant Washburne and a special cast in "Hungry Hearts." What is a kiss?—the sacred bond that unites two loving souls forever—or a promise to be lightly aside? The story of the girl who refused to stand in the way of her lover's career—who was ready to sacrifice her deep devotion for his happiness is one of the most beautiful love stories ever told. You will be thrilled by the power, by the beauty, by the romance of it. Here is a picture that you will take to your heart. Also a good comedy.

Sat.—"Broken Chains." A special production starring Colleen Moore and Claire Windsor. This story was selected as the best from 32,000 manuscripts submitted in The Chicago Daily News 35 thousand dollar story contest. Without doubt more thrills have never been packed into one photodrama than are in this one. Also 11th episode of serial.

Admission to Normal Students 20 cents for each night except Friday night, on which night admission will be 25 cents.

NEW MEMBERS OF STAFF

The ROTUNDA staff announces that Misses Frances Baskerville and Leona Lauck have been added to the staff as Advertising Manager and Typist respectively.

CARNIVAL IN TOWN

Benefit of Student Building.

Plans concerning the carnival to be given April 28 under the auspices of the Farmville Alumnae Association at the Armory have by this time been completed. Music will be supplied by the Farmville Silver Band. Side shows and booths will be under the management of various organizations of the Normal School. A prize will be given the largest family in attendance. Receipts from the carnival go to the Student Building.

NEW FIELD FOR DEBATERS

Interested Audience Attends First Debate of the Course.

Much interest is being manifested in the course of debating offered this term in the Department of English under the instruction of Miss Grace L. Russell.

Members of this class could be of great help in renewing debating contests among the literary societies.

The first formal debate occurred Monday, April 23, and was attended by High School classes in history as well as the regular students of the course.

The question for debate was "Resolved: That France was justified in occupying the Ruhr Valley. Misses Julia Alexander and Estelle Bennett argued for the affirmative and Misses Harriet Munoz and Jean West for the negative. Miss Gladys Yates occupied the chair with Miss Emily Calcott acting as time keeper. The question was discussed from a legal, a political, an economical, and a moral standpoint. The arguments were put before the class with force and conviction. The members of the class acting as judges decided in favor of the affirmative.

The subject which was chosen for the debate is of particular interest today because of the differences of opinion which have arisen concerning France's present occupation of the Ruhr Valley. The Ruhr Valley covers a distance of about fifteen miles north and south of the Ruhr River and fifty miles east and west. It has an area of 1,234 square miles. Its importance lies in the fact that it is rich in coal and iron production. It is an exceedingly wealthy section and very desirable. Germany's war indemnity had not been paid and hence France's occupation of this section.

LARGE AUDIENCE HEARS GLEE CLUB

Girls at Drakes Branch.

The Glee Club girls who gave a concert at Drakes Branch, Friday night were received by a large and appreciative audience. Not only all the seats, but also the aisles and the windows were filled with people from Drakes Branch and other towns of Charlotte County.

The audience was well pleased with the program. There was much applause after each number, but especially after the readings of Elizabeth Paylor and the violin numbers by Julia Cave and Olive Smith. In response to a special request, the chorus gave "Carry Me Back to Ole Virginny" for their encore. The audience, not willing for the program to end, applauded so vigorously that the girls returned and sang some of the "Joan" songs, including "Hinky Dee" and "Travelling Coon" and ending with "The Old Normal School." This group was very much enjoyed.

The girls, who spent the night, were very much pleased with Drakes Branch. They were entertained so charmingly in different homes and welcomed so heartily by the teachers and officers of the school league, that they could hardly be persuaded to return to Farmville Saturday.

MISS SMITH AT CHAPEL

Miss Annie Agnes Smith, under the auspices of the Y. W. C. A. began a series of talks to the Farmville school girls, Wednesday Morning, April 25.

Miss Smith has made a very favorable impression upon her audiences, by her attractive personality, sincerity, and deep interest in her work. Miss Smith has conveyed to us the great responsibility that rests on us as teachers.

The service will continue to be held in the auditorium during the coming week.

The ROTUNDA Staff announces that Miss Frieda Crockin has been elected Assistant News Editor.

CIRCUS A GRAND SUCCESS

The Farmville Alumnae gave a circus in the armory, Saturday night, April 21, for the benefit of the Student Building. Various organizations in school were in charge of the different booths.

The circus opened with a blast of music, a splash of color, and a shower of confetti. The ring performance came off early in the evening. The onlookers were greatly amused by the jiggling negroes, the bears on roller skates, the elephants that danced, and the clown that acted. The eyes of the crowd expressed wonder, as they gazed at the daring bareback rider, at the doctor and his wonderful medicine that immediately made thin people fat and fat people thin. The dancers were enjoyed by all.

There was a variety of side shows. The crying babies of the "Baby Show" caused much amusement; the "Tomb of King Tut," the "Temple of Thrills," and the "Freaks" caused many a person's hair to stand on the end. Others held their breath in wonder as their fortunes were made known to them by their hand writing, by their questions, or by the lines in their palm.

People were interested in trying their luck in the games of chance. They hit at the cat, fished in the pond, and looped the loop.

Everyone was eating. There was pop corn and lemonade, as always at a circus. Then, too, ice cream cones, candy, and hot dogs were to be had. Girls gaily dressed made their way among the crowds selling balloons, balls, and confetti.

Prizes were offered for the best sideshow and also for the best ring performance. King Tut's Tomb presented by the Delta Sigma Chi Sorority won first prize and the Z. T. Club won second, as sideshows. The Tight-Rope Walker of the Third Professional Class received first prize in the ring performance.

DREAMS THAT FAILED

It is so queer that we should weep
For broken ideals, dreams that fail;
Beauty like that must needs be frail
Or else not half so fair. The dreams of sleep
Are not less kind because they go. Deep
In our hearts they dwell and make
Our slumbering souls stir in their sleep; awake;
And build new dreams that may not fail or sleep.

Dear dreams that failed—beauty that faded fast,
You hold our young dead souls close in your hands.

We would not have you otherwise. For joy you could not last;

And while our hearts shun bitterness, God understands

That with each silent joyous wraith
Of dreams that were, we keep our faith.

DEBATING AND LITERARY SOCIETIES

This week's ROTUNDA contains an account of the first open debate given in the debating course. We are in hopes that this first attempt will be the inspiration for debates on a larger scale, which in turn will prove a means to an end.

For some time, debating in this institution has been practically dead. So have literary societies. Why not revive both, each assisting the other? Numerous projects for reviving interest in literary societies have been suggested, tried, and allowed to drop. "There are too many other organizations for real interest in them," is the excuse offered. Nonsense! There is never too much work to prevent active interest in them. Ours have simply rusted through lack of use. We are in a rut. Something is needed for impetus. Why not try inter-society or inter-group debates? It can't hinder, and it may help a great deal.

A PEREGRINATION

Now there was a certain Literary Society of Farmville, Virginia and its name was Argus.

And it had many members, and of these members thirty-five were faithful.

And this Literary Society went up out of the city on to a mountain to rejoice and make merry. And the thirty-five faithful members and Mr. Lear and his wife, Mrs. Lear, and Miss Spear, Miss Peck and Miss Dietrick were there.

And it came to pass as they were leaving the city, the driver of the truck said, "The mountain is far, and the hour is late. Let us go to some other place, that we may return early."

But Mr. Lear spoke and said, "Drive on, O Rastus, for the mount is scarce a mile but eighteen, and the time is sufficient."

So the driver went his way, but his countenance was dark, and he did grumble to himself.

But the members of the Argus sang songs in their joy, and noticed him not. They sang of Carolina in the Morning and the Sweetheart of the Sigma Chi, and they sang with exceeding great joy.

And the great Calcott, and Kemp and Parker played upon string instruments, and the members of the Argus said, "The music is good."

And when the truck was come within three miles of the mountain, O! it stopped and would not move another inch. Then up spake Miss Spear, "Why delayest thou? Let us be on our way, for we are hungry and would eat."

And the driver answered her and said, "Full many an hour must you wait before eating, for the gas has failed."

And when the members heard this, they said, "There hath not been such a thing before!"

And they got out of the truck and did walk, all except Miss Spear and the six girls who remained with her.

And as they walked they picked many flowers from the side of the road for the sake of Nature Study.

And four of the members walked ahead of the remaining members, and when these four members were near the mountain they heard a mighty shout, saying, "We are they who came out of your truck, and we have got us a ride, but the mountain is near and you can walk."

And it came to pass, when the four members had walked and were come high unto the mountain, they heard a voice saying, "We have walked to the top in seventeen minutes and two seconds." And the voice was the voice of Mr. Lear who had come ahead with the first truck in his good steed automobile.

And then the members of the Argus Literary Society did take the food, and prepare a feast in the forest.

And there was much to eat, large rolls shaped like circles, hot-dogs from the shops of Farmville, and small green pickles, such as come out of jars, and mustard, and sandwiches, both banana and tomato, marshmallows, bacon and golden bananas.

And the water which they drank was brought in a white bucket from a spring called "Peaceful Valley" by name.

Student Music Teacher: "What do you mean, Mary, by speaking of Dick Wagner, Ludie Beethoven, Charlie Gounod and Gred Handel?"

Mary: "Why, you told me to get familiar with the great composers."

It is with a deeply felt appreciation of the opportunities and responsibilities that await us in the service of the Y. W. C. A. that we, the cabinet of 1923-24, begin our work. Ours is a great purpose—one that challenges the best in each one of us, one that needs the consecrated service of each individual member of the whole association. And so, fellow-members, we ask for your cooperation—your sympathy, your encouragement, your help. May you give it according to your God-given time and talents, remembering that "he that is faithful in that which is least is faithful also in much."

KING TUT MAY QUEEN

Farmville girls have been bobbing their hair at a desperate rate for the last week.

If this continues as it has started what shall we do for a May Queen? Did not all the queens of long ago have long flowing locks? Do not be so sad, perhaps we may be able to start something new. Let's dress our queen as one of the wives of King Tut. Let her wear one of those peculiarly shaped head gears. This will hide all the hair that is lacking. She must wear a straight long dress, covered with varied Egyptian designs. Earrings the longest to be had, and sandals of a brilliant scarlet. Her maids must be dressed accordingly. Instead of carrying flowers, they must bear huge baskets of fruit high over their heads. The queen must rest languidly on a low divan. The minut as formerly planned would be out of the question. The dance of the "Snakes" would be far more appropriate.

Will you save your hair until after that day, or are you going to help out those girls that are going to start a "Barber Shop" in benefit of the Student Building?

MISS MABEL CARNEY AT FARMVILLE

Miss Mabel Carney, Professor and Head of the Department of Rural Education in Teachers' College, Columbia, New York paid a visit to the Normal School at Farmville on Tuesday, April 24. Miss Carney has been making a tour of the state to study conditions in Teaching-Training Institutions.

During her stay in Farmville Miss Carney was the guest of the Department of Rural Education of which Miss Florence Stubbs is head. On her arrival here she addressed the students in chapel. She then visited John Randolph School. At noon a dinner was given in the Tea Room in Miss Carney's honor by the Department of Rural Education.

After dinner Miss Carney visited the Training School and then attended a meeting of The Parent-Teachers' Association in the Normal School auditorium where she was the principal speaker. She then made a thorough inspection of the Normal School plant.

Miss Carney imparted to all who heard her a part of her own enthusiasm to do more for the children of the rural schools.

TRIP TO MOUNT WILLIS

On Saturday morning, April 21, a group of girls of Biology 9, including Mary Bibb, Audrey Clark, Mary Morris, Olive Smith and Bessie Parker, left at nine o'clock for an all day trip to Willis Mountain. After a delightful ride of about two hours the place was reached and the automobile left behind. Each girl laden with plenty of "eats" and a stout climbing stick began the ascent. After mortal combat with projecting scenery the top was reached and each beheld a truly majestic view. On each side the earth stretched like a great patchwork quilt with alternate plots of wood and cleared ground until it faded in the dim line of the horizon.

After lunch the climb over the bare rocks was continued in the course of which a cave and many interesting insects and animals were found. About four o'clock the trip home was begun and on the way flowers for tracing and a little green snake were added to the collection. At six o'clock the sunburned but thoroughly happy group reached Farmville.

DID YOU KNOW?

Did you ever hear anybody say, "I get so tired of the ROTUNDA, same old stuff every week?"

Did you ever hear anybody say, "I enjoy —'s books, but they're all just alike?"

Did you know that even the most original person will run out of thoughts once in awhile?

Did you know that everybody has an original thought once in a life time?

Did you know that there were only about forty articles in last week's ROTUNDA?

Did you know that if each one of our 700 girls contributed her "once-in-a-lifetime" thought we could have eighteen original and entirely different ROTUNDAS?

Did you know that there is a slot in the door of the ROTUNDA office to receive contributions?

Let's see!!!

ARBOR DAY

The Fifth Grade entertained the other grades of the Training School Tuesday, April 24, in assembly. Their program was based on "Arbor Day." One girl told why and how it is celebrated. Another girl read a selection, written by Governor Trinkle telling all people to protect the trees and birds. Another girl told the uses of trees and how they aid man.

Then the Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth, and Ninth Grades marched to the grounds and each grade planted a tree. All of the children then sang "America, the Beautiful," after which they marched to their rooms.

STUDENT BODY MEETING

A Student Body Meeting was held Monday night, April 23, in the auditorium. Margaret Shackelford and Helen Miller reported on their trip to West Hampton.

Miss Barlow told us to drop nominations in the box for May Queen. She also said that she desired the Queen to have scholarship and honor as well as beauty.

CHUCKLES COLUMN

The "Chuckles Column" celebrates its first birthday with one candle, which is a figure of speech and means that the following has the honor of being the first contestant in the Contest. Come on girls! Can't you just see those ice cream cones, particularly now that it's getting to be warm weather?

Have you heard the story of the student of this celebrated institution who was recently in Virginia's Metropolis riding on a street car? When her station came she rang the bell. The car stopped. She arose and commenced a dignified exit—backward down the steps, however. The peculiar method of progress naturally impeded her progress a little, and the people on the outside thought she was getting on. They kindly gave her a helpful shove. The door closed and the car started. At the next corner she made an attempt in exactly the same manner—with identical result. Two blocks later she succeeded in getting off. By what method? We don't know, but she did get off.

BIRD PROGRAM

The sixth grade gave a program in chapel Tuesday morning. The work was done by the children in drawing, English, writing, and song class. There was original story writing, compositions on the enemies of birds, on bird law in Virginia, on ways to protect birds, habits of birds, and descriptions of birds found in our neighborhood. Birds were classified according to their usefulness to man and to their harmfulness to man. Original story writing was a feature of the work. The great authors of poetry on birds were studied and their works.

PROGRAM.

Welcome to Spring, Louise Crute.
Explanation of the Program, Alice Hardaway.
Paper on Audubon, George Wilder.
Chart B Section, Howard Stewart.
Chart A Section, Mattie Hurt.
Original story, The Bluebird Brings Happiness to a Little Sick Girl, Jeanette Dow.
Bird Alphabet, Evelyn Comer.
Letter Asking How to Build a Nest, Irene Pratt.
Letter Telling How to Build a Nest, Alice Harrison.

Bobolink, Tina Mintz.
The Robin, Margaret.
The Cardinal, Julia Rogers.
Robin, Martha Grainger.
The Mocking Bird, Floriene Gilliam.
Oral composition, Nancy Putney.
Composition, Enemies of Birds, Frederick Mintz.

How to Protect Birds, Hanna Crawley and Elsie Foster.

Birds in the Branches High, sung by class.
Our Farewell, Myrtle Thompson.

At the call meeting on May 3, Katharine Smith will tell about her trip to Mexico, where she has been for six months.

LEARN TO LET GO

One of the most practical and absolutely truthful bits of philosophy that has appeared in a long time, was recently published in Medical Talk, on the wisdom of "letting go." Says the writer:

If you want to be healthy—just let go.

That little hurt you got from a friend, perhaps it wasn't intended, perhaps it was, but never mind it. Refuse to think about it.

Let go of that feeling of hatred you have for another, the jealousy, the envy, the malice, let go all such thoughts. Sweep them out of your mind, and you will be surprised what a cleaning up and rejuvenating effect it will have upon you, both physically and mentally. Let them all go; you house them at deadly risk.

But the big troubles, the bitter disappointments, the deep wrongs and heart-breaking sorrows, the tragedies of life—what about them? Why, just let them go, too. Drop them, softly, maybe, but surely. Put away all regret and bitterness, and let sorrow be only a softening influence. Yes, let them go, too, and make the most of the future. Then that little pet ailment that you have been hanging onto and talking about, let it go. It will be a good ridance. You have treated it royally, but abandon it; let it go. Then talk about health instead, and health will come. Quit nursing that pet ailment, and let it go. You will feel better.

It is not so hard after once you get used to the habit of it—letting go of these things. You will find it such an easy way to get rid of the things that mar and embitter life that you will enjoy letting them go. You will find the world such a beautiful place. You will find it beautiful because you will be free to enjoy it—free in mind and body.

Learn to let go. As you value health of body and peace of mind—just simply let go.—The Way.

F. SANDERS.

AT THE EACO THEATRE

Week May 7th-12th.

Mon.—Shirley Mason in "Shirley of the Circus." A sparkling romance of the sawdust ring. Here's your chance to go to the circus with all the glitter and glamor of the big top, where you will see beauties and beasts, clowns and contortionists, startling stunts, acrobats and weirdists—freaks and funmakers. The most spectacular production Shirley Mason has ever been seen in. Also Pathe News.

Tue.—Wallace Reid, Lila Lee, Theodore Kosloff and a big cast in "The Dictator." A gar romantic drama, packed with thrills and fun and warm romance. It is from the famous play and novel by Richard Harding Davis. It is some good picture. Also a good comedy. Proceeds from this picture go to the monogram club of the normal school. Every girl in school should see it. Matinee at 4 o'clock.

Wed.—Thomas Meighan, Pauline Stark, Theodore Roberts and a big cast in the Paramount special production, "If You Believe It, It's So." This is Thomas Meighan's greatest triumph since "The Miracle Man." A great star at his best. A gripping story of love and regeneration. We had this picture booked for Thursday and Friday, but had to take it out on account of the Legion show, so we will only show it this one day. Matinee at 4 o'clock.

Thu. and Fri.—Girls, here's the treat of the season. On these two nights the local Post of The American Legion will put on a very high class, full dress minstrel show. They will have a twelve piece orchestra furnishing music, there will be fancy dancing by talented young ladies, and everything to make you have an enjoyable time. Admission to Normal Students 50 cents. All seats reserved, and all tickets will be sold at the Post Office Pharmacy, next door to the theatre.

Sat.—"Kindred of the Dust." Peter B. Kyne's great story of a man's belief in the woman he loves. A picture as sweeping as the league-long rollers, as strong as the forest giants that tang it. This is the picture that showed in Richmond two weeks ago at 50 cent admissions. It is one of the best pictures shown this year. We know that this is so. Also 12th episode of the serial.

Admission to Normal Students, 20 cents to each picture.

"Just a Minute."

I have just a minute, only sixty seconds in it, forced upon me; can't refuse it; didn't seek it; didn't choose it; but it's up to me to use it; I must suffer if I lose it; give account if I abuse it. Just a tiny little minute—but eternity is in it.

COLLEGE CUT OUTS

The last issue of the Hampden-Sidney Tiger urges all freshmen to join a literary society next year and take an active part in this phase of college life. The many benefits to be derived from participation in a literary society, e. g., training in public speaking, credit given by the college for such work, and the various medals to be won by different classes, are enumerated in this article.

The Training School Band of the Harrisonburg Normal recently played for the students in chapel. The band was led by some of the children and kept perfect time. The audience was very enthusiastic, and as the band played its last selection, "Dixie Land" the student body joined in singing.

Lovers of long-distance dancing will soon have a chance to fox-trot all the way from the Atlantic to Montgomery.

The feast will be possible when the Atlantic and West Point Railroad finishes the building of a new chair car, which can be quickly converted into a dance hall by folding the chairs into a specially prepared niche.

GLEE CLUB GIRLS ENJOY THEMSELVES AT AMELIA

A large audience heard the Glee Club Girls in Amelia, Saturday night, April 5 at 8:30.

We do not know how the people of Amelia enjoyed the concert. In fact not a single girl has mentioned it. They have mentioned, however, how they did enjoy Amelia. At every turn you hear them rave about the food in particular, Evelyn Barnes' party, and just everything in general. From hints dropped here and there, it is expected that many Amelia cars will be parked in front of school on Sunday afternoons hereafter.

It might be that the people of Amelia asked them—shall we say for politeness—to sing at Sunday School and Church? Anyway they sang.

The girls spent the night at various homes in the community. They returned Sunday evening about five o'clock.

HONORS AWARDED

The faculty voted upon the girls considered for the honors for this year. They took into consideration not only the academic and teaching grades, but also each girl's participation in school activities. The decision was a close one, but the honors were awarded to Alice Lee Rumbough and Dorothy Askew of the Second Professional Class and to Elizabeth Moring and Mary Nichols of the Fourth Professional Class.

Miss Moring will render the Valedictory, and Miss Rumbough the Salutatory address at commencement, as the first honor girls of the graduation classes.

We certainly are proud of all of the girls and wish to congratulate them most heartily.

ALUMNAE

Haven't you enjoyed this message from your Alma Mater? Wouldn't you like to hear from her regularly each week? It will cost you only $2.00 per year. Send in your subscription today and get the paper all next year with copies from now until the end of the session thrown in free.

Obey the impulse! Send your name, address, and check to—

CHRISTINE ARMSTRONG, Business Manager.

MAY QUEEN ELECTED

Miss Elizabeth Moring has been chosen as the May Queen for the coming May Festival which will be held on the afternoon of May 9. She will have as her maids, Misses Anna Belle Treake, Ford Eubank, Pauline Timberlake and Elizabeth Williams.

IMPORTANT BUSINESS TO BE TRANSACTED BY THE ALUMNAE JUNE NINTH

The president of the Alumnae Association wishes to bring to the attention of the Alumnae the following important work which will be taken up at the biennial meeting on June ninth:

First—At the last biennial meeting, the association decided that the constitution needs revision. The president has appointed a committee which is at work now revising the Constitution. This Committee will report at the June meeting. Will not each alumnae give her thought to this important item of business and come prepared to help in forming a strong constitution under which the work of the alumnae will continue to grow?

Second—The time is at hand when we must have the services of a paid alumnae secretary. As a result of our participation in a big unifying piece of work—the raising of the Student Building Fund, our association is more closely united now than it has been for years. If we continue to grow in our united strength, we must have some one to keep us in touch with one another and with the school. In the past the work of the association has been carried on by people who are obligated to other work and who have done the work of the association in spare moments. It has grown to such an extent that this policy can no longer be followed if we really want to enter the almost unlimited field of power and usefulness which is before us.

Third—We need to adopt some plan for financing the association with an active membership of over twenty-five hundred and an associate membership of about four thousand, it should be quite easy to put the association upon a solid financial basis. A small annual membership due will be the means of doing this, if we can have these dues paid regularly.

Fourth—In order to handle funds, to carry on the business which will come to us as we strengthen our organization, it is necessary for us to take steps to have the association incorporated under the laws of the State of Virginia. This matter should receive attention at the forthcoming meeting.

Fifth—Our association has been invited to become affiliated with the Southern Women's Educational Alliance. We should take some action on this invitation at this time.

Sixth—The question of adopting the practice of holding annual meetings instead of the plan of holding biennial meetings as in the past will be submitted to the association. In connection with this, plans for class reunions will be discussed.

Apparently, the government has decided that the way to make sugar cheap and plentiful is to raise coin.

A LETTER FROM DR. JARMAN

To the Alumnae:

It is a great pleasure to me to have the opportunity, through the pages of the ROTUNDA, to extend a very cordial invitation to the Alumnae to return to your Alma Mater for the biennial meeting of the Association on June ninth.

No institution really lives if it does not live in the hearts of its Alumnae and I feel justified in saying that nowhere in this country can there be found more loyal and loving Alumnae than ours, and through them the institution renders an invaluable service to society and the State.

And while we glory in this loyalty of our graduates, I wish to say to them that their Alma Mater is as loyal to them as they are to her and that she looks forward with genuine and heartfelt pleasure to the biennial home-coming of her daughters.

We are anxious to have every one who can possibly come; we not only want to give you the pleasure of a visit to your Alma Mater and an opportunity of seeing again your old friends and classmates, but we ourselves want and need the inspiration of your presence. We want to be assured that your interest in the School is vital enough to make you want to come.

Trusting that we shall have the pleasure of welcoming the largest number that has ever returned for an Alumnae meeting, I am

Cordially yours,

J. L. Jarman.

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

THE ROTUNDA invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer, and these will not be published if the writer objects to the publications.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matters should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of their copies of THE ROTUNDA will be appreciated.

Often when the idea of a reunion suggests itself, our thoughts turn to the great love and loyalty of returning soldiers as in the recent gathering of the Confederate Veterans in New Orleans. And so let us think of our returning alumnae as soldiers, in a certain sense. They have fought in the fight against ignorance, against prejudice, against injustice. They have, with the other teachers of the state, planned a campaign in a great cause, and they have already seen some of the fruits of victory. Now they are coming back to inspire one another and the two hundred recruits who join their ranks this year.

In another sense we think of our returning alumnae as loving members of a big family coming together after long separation. Such a homecoming brings with it so many good things—the joy of renewed friendship, heart-warming companionship, the stimulus of contact with minds quickened by great tasks, the reassurance and help and inspiration that come from mutual love and work in a common cause.

Our Alma Mater stands ready and eager to welcome the returning Alumnae, proud of their achievements, of their victories, firm in her faith in them and in their work.

WHAT DO YOU THINK OF THE ROTUNDA?

Everybody knows our school paper is not what it should be! Of course,—that's easy!—but do you know why? Now just think a minute and I'm sure you will recall Dr. Jarman's by-word as a clue to the situation. Do you believe in making one person do all the work? I don't believe you really ever thought that you had anything to do with the ROTUNDA at all—but you have. However, we know you're just beginners, so we're going to give you something real simple at first. You know, "it's lots easier to say a thing than it is to do it," so we're going to let you do the talking. Next week we're going to put a box in the Reception Hall, right where "Joan" can see how many girls think enough of old S. N. S. to take a few spare moments to write down at least one suggestion for a better ROTUNDA, and see what happens.

We wish all the Alumnae could be here to take part in the game, but I'll tell you what—they can sit down and write us a chatty note about some of the things that made the ROTUNDA interesting in their day.

ALUMNAE NOTES

Miss Elizabeth Rowe, after graduation from Farmville Normal School in 1916, attended William and Mary College, where she made a splendid record and received a B. A. degree. Later, she became a graduate of the Richmond School of Social Work and Public Health, and is the first Southern girl to be awarded a research fellowship in Simmons College, Boston. According to a letter received from Miss Lucille Eaves, head of the Woman's Union in Boston, Miss Rowe has done excellent work, and paved the way for the appointment of other Southern women.

The Phi Beta Kappa fraternity has just installed the Ashland section of Delta chapter at Randolph-Macon College. Two of the alumni elected to membership are Dr. B. W. Arnold, professor of history, Randolph-Macon Woman's College, formerly a member of the faculty here, and Dr. William R. Snithey, professor of secondary education, University of Virginia, a nephew of Miss Estelle Smithy.

Miss Ethel Brown, a former missionary to Brazil, spoke of conditions in Latin America at the Virginia Woman's Missionary Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, held in Petersburg in April.

Miss Daphne Gilliam is spending this year in mission work in Camajuan, Cuba, and writes most interestingly of the people and life there.

Miss Lily L. Fox, of the class of 1892, died at her home in Walkers, Virginia of pneumonia.

Gillespie—Gray

Friends in Farmville and Graham were very much surprised to learn that Miss Sallie May Gray and Mr. Robert Gillespie, of Graham, had been married on April 19, in Bluefield, West Virginia. In its account of the wedding, the Bluefield Telegraph says: The bride came to Graham last fall to accept a position as teacher in the Graham school. She at once became a social favorite, and soon after her arrival in Graham met her future husband. The groom holds a responsible position with the Eclipse Milling Company as road salesman. He is a graduate of the Graham High School, and later attended college. The bride has agreed to remain in the school until the end of the term.

One of our new College Juniors for next session will be Miss Francisca Rodriguez of Porto Rico.

Miss Rodriguez is a graduate of a four-year high school and of a Normal School as well and will take her Degree with us.

MOTHERS' DAY

On May 13, we, as a nation pay tribute to the motherhood of the world. Governor E. Lee Trinkle last week issued a proclamation which officially provides that the second Sunday in May be Mothers' Day. This official recognition grew out of a popular observance of a day for mothers.

Mothers' Day was inaugurated just before the World War, when first one state and then another recognized it. Now the nation with a proclamation from President Harding, worships at the shrine of our mothers. And so, we, who have our mothers with us wear a red flower, and you who are bereft wear a white one. We of the red roses sympathize with you wearing the white, yet let us both "lift up our eyes unto the hills" and render thanks for mothers.

ALUMNAE CHAPTER NEWS

The Amelia County Chapter is planning to call its widely scattered members together for a meeting before June 9, and will send representatives to the biennial reunion on that date. A good many of the alumnae greeted the Normal School Glee Club girls who gave a concert at Amelia Saturday night.

A message has come from the Bristol Chapter: The Mountaineer Chapter of the Farmville Alumnae Association is yet of such tender age that it hesitates to make a public appearance. We are trying to make our chapter the home chapter for the scattered alumnae of the southwest, and we are asking all those who have not the privilege of a home chapter to affiliate with us. Our representative at the biennial meeting will make a full report.

The Farmville Chapter with the cooperation of most of the school organizations gave a circus in the Armory Saturday night, April 21, for the benefit of the Student Building. It was a success from the standpoint of interest and financial returns. In spite of a severe storm, approximately $160 was turned over to Dr. Jarman.

Dr. Jarman was the principal speaker at a meeting of the Lions' Club of Lynchburg, Thursday evening, May 3, and received a warm welcome from the Lynchburg Alumnae Chapter, which provided the supper, served cabaret style, and the entertainment, consisting of "stunts" given during the progress of the banquet. A considerable sum for the Student Building was realized. The president, Miss Gladys Owen, and several members of the Chapter expect to be in Farmville June 9.

The Norfolk Chapter should have an active membership of one hundred or more, but the actual number is much less, the reason being that many of the girls are working at the time when the meetings have to be held. However, the Chapter is growing. The president, Miss Christine MacKan, writes, "Before scattering for the summer we expect to hold a card party and probably a luncheon to which we shall invite Dr. Jarman. We are sure to gain enthusiasm from him, and will work harder than ever on the Student Building Fund after we have heard Dr. Jarman talk."

An interesting report of the Petersburg Chapter is sent in by Miss Carolyn Coghill, president: The Petersburg chapter of the Farmville Alumnae Association reorganized this year with a membership of thirty-eight. To carry out its purpose, which is to raise money for the Normal League and Student Building; a very successful rummage sale was held and the proceeds sent to the school on Founders' Day, March 17. The Chapter is planning to have a picnic supper as a feature of its last meeting for the year, and every effort is being put forth to secure a hundred per cent attendance. There is such a bond existing among Farmville girls that our meetings have been a joy and an inspiration, and some of the members have expressed a desire to continue the meetings throughout the summer. The chapter sends best wishes for continued success in the work of the Association.

The Richmond Chapter has been preparing for the repetition of an enterprise which proved very profitable last year. A letter from the president, Miss Minnie K. Lewis, describes the plan: On the fifth of May an excursion will be run to Williamsburg by the Richmond Chapter of the Alumnae Association in conjunction with the Extension Division of William and Mary College. Trips by automobile are planned for those who wish to visit historical Jamestown and Yorktown. Lunch will be sold for the benefit of the association. The venture last year was a success financially as well as from the viewpoint of pleasure. It was a wonderful spring day, such as those we are having now, and everyone was in a picnicing mood. It is well worth the small sum charged for the round trip.

The Roanoke-Salem Chapter, Miss Katherine Cook president, contributes the following items of news:

Miss Nellie Smithey, member of the committee on the revision of the course of study for State High Schools, will deliver a paper at the Principals' Conference which will be held May 3-5 in Charlottesville, Virginia.

Announcement was made recently of the engagement of Miss Maynard Barbee to Mr. Emmett Seville. The wedding will take place in the early fall.

Mrs. W. F. Morehead (Miss Kate Ferguson) has been serving for some time as Chairman of Salem School Board. Mrs. Morehead is also president of the Woman's Club.

Miss Sallie Page Obenshain, who has been teaching in Starkey, Virginia, since January, has been the week-end guest, frequently, of Miss Thelma Yost.

Mrs. Garland Stokes (Miss Sallie Jackson) is receiving congratulations on the arrival of her young daughter, Katherine Willson Stokes.

Misses Delma Van Sickler and Thelma Yost have been chosen to represent the Roanoke-Salem Chapter at the biennial meeting June 9.

An attractive candy sale, managed by Miss Delma Van Sickler, was held by the alumnae of Roanoke on May Day. Each bag was decorated with a dainty cutwork basket. The alumnae cleared over twenty dollars.

Announcement was made in February of the marriage of Miss Flora Clingenpeel to Mr. Leslie Patterson. Mr. and Mrs. Patterson are making their home in Roanoke.

Miss Katherine Cook will sail on the America, June 30 for a European tour of several months. She has been employed as conductor by the Taggart Tours of Norristown, Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Charles Rucker (Miss Lily Percival) has returned to Lawrenceville after an extended visit to her sister, Mrs. R. Lee Lynn, of Roanoke.

FIRST PROFS TOO SPEEDY FOR SECOND PROFS.

When the First and Second Professional classes met Saturday every one expected a fast and airtight game to be played by both teams. They expected the ex-champs to come out in great form and the First Profs. to come to their usual standard. Sutherland pitched a fast and heady game for the Juniors and received excellent support in both the in and out fields. Shotwell did not come up to her usual form in holding the box for the Seniors. Her balls were speedy but she couldn't locate the plate. Her support, too, was very poor and Senior errors allowed the Junior runners to score.

Tuesday—June twelfth.

11:00 A. M. Graduating Exercises of Second and Fourth Professional Classes.

COMMENCEMENT SPEAKERS

Miss Rachel Gregg who will be the Alumnae speaker June 9, is interested in teachers in general, but more particularly in the very persons before whom she will appear. As that member of the Virginia State Board of Education whose office is the certification of teachers, she is known personally to many of the audience who will greet her, and to these she stands in the position of a friend through her sympathetic understanding of teacher's problems. In spite of the routine and constructive work she carries on the Department of Public Instruction, Miss Gregg finds time to be an officer in the Virginia Council of Administrative Women in Education and she is also a prominent member of the Southern Women's Educational Alliance.

Rev. Maxwell Robeson, of Lynchburg, will address the graduating class on Commencement morning. He is unique among Farmville Commencement speakers in that he is a product of the school, having been the first boy to finish the course in the Training School before entering the Farmville High School. This occasion will therefore afford him the opportunity of meeting again any of his former instructors who may be attending the alumnae meeting. Mr. Robeson continued his education at Hampden-Sidney College, and was one of the youngest graduates ever sent out from that institution. He next studied for the ministry at the Episcopal Theological Seminary, and held charges in Virginia and North Carolina until he entered the U. S. Army as Division Chaplain, serving in France, where he was wounded, and receiving the rank of major. Upon the historic occasion of the laying of the corner-stone of the Memorial Gateway at Hampden-Sidney in honor of the Alumni who answered their country's call in the World War, when representatives of the governments of England and the United States brought tributes of speeches and flowers, Mr. Robeson was selected to recount Hampden-Sidney's part in the great wars of this country. Then, through his connection with the town, this school, and Hampden-Sidney College, there will be a peculiar pleasure in having Mr. Robeson participate in the closing exercises of the session of 1922-1923.

FARMVILLE NEXT STOP!

BY KUIZ:

AT THE EAGO THEATRE

Week May 14th-19th.

Mon.—Richard Dix and Betty Compson in "The Bonded Woman." Here's vivacious Betty in her greatest picture since "The Miracle Man." A love drama of the exotic South Seas. With the most spectacular shipwreck ever filmed. This is a colorful South Seas romance that is one long, delicious thrill. Also Pathe News.

Tue.—May McAvoy and a fine cast in the Paramount Picture "The Top of New York." The big-hearted love story of a pretty girl and a great city's temptations. Lavishly and appealingly picturized. Real folks—real thrills—real heart-throbs. A brand new side of New York life. You'll enjoy every minute. Also Good Comedy.

Wed.—Norma Talmadge and Eugene O'Brien in a picture we have shown here before. "Her Only Way" is the name of this picture, that is one of Norma's finest pictures. In reviving these Norma Talmadge pictures, which are being shown everywhere in the large theatres, only the best pictures are selected, so you may feel assured that this is a good one. Also Aesop's Fable.

Thu. & Fri.—Gloria Swanson, Harrison Ford, David Powell, Walter Heirs and a fine supporting cast in the big special Paramount Picture "Her Gilded Cage." A love-drama that reveals the sensational secrets of a Paris dancer. Lavishly produced by the man who made "Beyond the Rocks." In this you will see Gloria as a Parisian dancer who wins fame and love after many temptations. More lavish in gowns and settings than "Beyond the Rocks." You will see glittering Gloria in 50 eye-filling gowns. It is a romance that will carry you through Gilded Paris Cabarets and New York society revels. Fox News Thursday and a Good Comedy Friday. Admission to Normal students 25 cents.

Sat.—Here's another big special production "The Loves of Pharaoh." This is the type of story that amazes and thrills all classes of screen lovers. It is a glowing, heart-appealing romance that weaves into its story all the exotic color and passions of the mysterious East. With a ravishing new screen beauty as the heroine and the finest cast of real actors ever assembled. Also 13th episode of the serial.

Admission to S. N. S. when tickets are purchased at school, 20 cents for each night except Thursday and Friday.

GLEE CLUB GIRLS GO TO WORSHAM

A group of the Glee Club, under the direction of Miss Ruth Bartholamew, went to Worsham, May 4, and gave an entertainment. They were greeted by a large and appreciative audience. An interesting program was rendered, which consisted of solos, trios, quartettes, choruses, and readings.

After the first half of the program, intermission was announced—Wonder of Wonders—Aladdin's Lamp had been found! The girls were ushered into one of the rooms, and there spread out before them was the most appetizing layout of ice cream and cake—

(Quiet please!)

After having refreshed themselves, the girls went back into the Auditorium. The last half of the program was devoted to popular song, the most popular being "The Old Normal School," which concluded the program.

TRAINING COUNCIL AT WESTHAMPTON

Lois Williams Acts as Executive.

On May 4-6 forty-eight Y. W. C. A. delegates from the larger Colleges of Virginia—Randolph-Macon, Hollins, William and Mary, Fredericksburg Normal, Westhampton and Farmville Normal—met together at Westhampton for the annual cabinet training council. The theme of the meeting was "Students in the Kingdom of God." Discussions led by Miss Bryson, Miss Sumplin, and Y. W. C. A. Secretaries, technical study in groups, and social hours all did their part in making the council a source of real help and inspiration to everyone.

Lois Williams was the executive of the council and the Farmville girls were proud of the splendid way in which she planned the program and presided over the council. Enthusiastic praise was heard from everyone present, proving that her work was a success.

Those who attended from Farmville were: Miss London, Lois Williams, Marion Camper, Mary Nichols, Nancy Lyne, Elizabeth Paylor, Dorothy Askew, Elizabeth Cogbill, Virginia Christopher, Margaret Phipps, Linnie Blankenship, Agnes McDuffey, Daisy Mitchell, Ethel Warthen, Kitty Morgan, Frances Sanders and Claudia Gilchrist. Mary Finch, an S. N. S. Alumna, was also present and led one of the technical groups.

PHOENIX ENTERTAINED BY GLEE CLUB GIRLS

A group from the Glee Club under the direction of Ruth Bartholomew gave a program at Phoenix last Thursday evening for the benefit of the Phoenix High School Library. They were welcomed by a large and appreciative audience. The program might best be called miscellaneous: It included classical numbers, popular and school songs, and negro spirituals. The violin numbers by Olive Smith and the solos by Jane Potter were especially liked.

Miss Stubbs who chaperoned the group made an interesting talk on "The Value of the School Library." Miss Mary Jackson of Farmville gave several humorous readings.

The people of Phoenix certainly proved their ability to entertain and the only regret of the girls is that their visit was too short.

The cabinet was very sorry that on account of illness, our President, Lucie Farrar, was unable to attend the Y. W. C. A. Cabinet Training Council held at Westhampton, May 4-6.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT INSTALLATION

New Committee Takes Charge.

The new officers and representatives of the Student Government were installed Monday night, May 7. After a short talk Margaret Shackelford, the retiring president, turned over the meeting to the new president, Helen Miller. The new officers and representatives then took the oath.

The ceremony was concluded with a duet by Anna Belle Treake and Evelyn Barnes.

OUT OF TOWN FOR THE WEEK-END

DEBATE ATTRACTS MUCH INTEREST

Philippines Question Argued.

The third formal debate given by Miss Russell's debating class took place Thursday, May 9. It was attended, not only by members of the class, but also by high school classes in English. The high school classes are manifesting much interest in the debates given in this course.

The question for debate was "Resolved: That the United States should grant the Philippines immediate independence." The question selected by the debaters is one which occupies a large place in the public mind of today, and one upon which public opinion seems to be fairly evenly divided. Misses Virginia Venable and Virginia Bondurant argued for the affirmative and Misses Emily Calcott and Catherine Kemp for the negative. Miss Harriet Munoz acted as chairman and Miss Mamie Sexton as time keeper. The question was argued from the moral, political and economic standpoints. All of the speakers put their arguments before the audience with clearness, force, and vigor. The members of the class acting as judges decided in favor of the negative. Miss Catherine Kemp was unanimously voted the best individual speaker.

LETTER OF COMPLAINT

The Editor of the ROTUNDA,

Dear Madam:

Your last issue of the ROTUNDA announced that you desired suggestions for means of bettering the paper. I herewith suggest a Complaint Department and desire to open it with a complaint of my own.

Madam Editor, I am long suffering, I am patient, I am slow to anger, but at this writing I have received stimulation enough to cause a wall-eyed rabbit to chew the hind foot off a grizzly bear. I am annoyed, enraged, angered and peevish. The cause of my temper is Pie Beds. For six consecutive nights I have stumped my ingrowing toenail against a tucked up sheet. I ask you, is this a Keystone Comedy, that we should deal in pies? I wouldn't recognize my own bed if it were not filled with cracker crumbs or salt. I haven't had a good night's sleep in so long that I wouldn't recognize it if it ran into me in the hall. In attacks of fruitless rage I have completely devoured eight door knobs. I am unable to continue for anger. But this I will say, if somebody doesn't stop making up my bed for me, I'm going home or stop my subscription to the ROTUNDA, or something.

Yours wrathfully,

Lydia Anguish.

SPRING SONGS

Oh, Muse! Breathe upon us with thy melody of song and inspire us in this our most touchingly sweet hour, so that, as the merry month of June draws nigh we may e'en outdo our predecessors in harmonious melody! Thus do our thoughts turn to our commencement class songs, these most worthy children of our brain and heart created thru such toil and trial, such heavy hours of struggle and combat, as we strive to fit verse to tune and search unceasingly for rhyming words. But who would count the cost when at length, our task done, we assemble in the auditorium of this noble temple of learning to sing our farewell songs to each other? Then indeed are our labors rewarded! For who can forget these touching ballads once heard! We laugh, (when we can no longer control ourselves) we cry, (in spite of our complexions) our hearts are torn with sweet misery as we listen to melodious harmony! (?) Farewell to the Seniors! We lift our voices in praise of our Alma Mater, the faculty, ourselves—always ourselves. It is the one time of the year when we may sing to our heart's content, secure in the knowledge it must be endured. At no other time does such music as this strike the ear—never are we more responsive, more sweetly sympathetic than now! How strongly moved are we as the plaintive echoes of farewell float from Junior to Senior! Our voices are choked with emotion when the Seniors file out and give up their beloved chapel seats to the Juniors. And then, when it's all over, we heave a deep sigh and—ah, me, indeed 'tis strange how we ever live thru it all!!

MY PECULIARITY

I have a peculiarity. It is that I cannot bear to look into a magnifying glass. The very thought of one appalls me and makes cold chills run up and down my back. To look through an ordinary microscope I can, by sheer force of will, manage to endure when absolutely necessary; but to look through any very powerful instrument of this kind strikes me with dumb terror. But the most unbearable thing of all to me is a magnifying looking glass. Nothing is more horrible to me than to behold my own countenance enlarged beyond normal size. It is indescribable. I do not know whence this feeling comes, but I am very much aware of its presence.

I shall never forget the first time I became aware of my strange peculiarity. It was when I was about eight or nine years old. We were visiting the home of my aunt at the time and I was immensely interested in the room of my nineteen-year-old cousin Gerald, partly because almost the entire wall space was covered with base ball and prize fighting pictures, and partly because of the variety of interesting articles my young cousin had collected to adorn his bed chamber. On this occasion I waited until I was sure of my cousin's absence and then silently made my way to his room to feast my eyes upon this veritable museum. Almost immediately an oval shaped ivory mirror standing on the mantle attracted my attention, so I stepped up on a stool to view it at closer range, thus bringing my face directly in front of the mirror. What I saw I shall never forget. It was merely my own face magnified several times, but to me it was the most terrifying sight I had ever beheld. I stood rooted to the spot, unable to move my gaze from the fascinating terror. I felt suddenly cold and as though a million tiny needles were sticking every part of me. In truth, "I halted, my hair stood on ends, and my voice clung in my throat," that is, for an eternity of about six seconds. Then I gave forth one shrill scream and down came the stool, mirror and I. Immediately the entire household rushed in to find out whether I had been attacked by a wasp, a rat or a burglar. Much to the consternation and disgust of all it was found that I had merely been attacked by my own reflection. I was soundly reproved for prowling and meddling, as well as for frightening every one for nothing. I tried to explain. They could not understand. No one ever does. I am merely laughed at. But I have continued to be the possessor of this strange and uncanny antipathy for magnifying glasses of all varieties.

SPLENDID RECORD FOR FIELD DAY

Juniors Win Cup.

The Annual Field Day was held May 9, on the Athletic Field, and throughout the entire program the scoring was close and a spirit of good sportsmanship was shown. Up until the very last events the score was so close that it was hard to pick the winning side. The total number of points made by the Juniors was 68, by the Seniors 53, and by the Third Professionals 3. Miss Mildred Hall is the winner of the medal given to the individual scoring the highest number of points. We also wish to announce that she came within 2/5 of a second of breaking the American hurdling record for women.

The following is a comparison of the American Records, last year's record and this year's record:

Baseball Throw	217 ft. 3 in.	161 ft.	177 ft. 8 in.	Helen Sutherland—Junior
Basketball Throw	88 ft. 10 in.	71 ft. 4 in.	67 ft. 3 in.	Elsie Shawen—Senior

Other events of the day were the Flag Relay won by the Seniors, Suit Case Race won by the Third Professionals, Relay Race won by the Seniors, the Chariot Race won by the Juniors, and the Gymnastic Drill which was won by the Seniors. Each member of the class which won the drill was presented with an all day sucker.

We must not fail to mention the faithfulness of Ecicetera, the water boy.

We wish to announce also that we beat the 1923 record of Winthrop College (the only Southern College to produce an Olympic victor) in four events: the running broad jump, the standing broad jump, the javelin throw, and the base ball throw, and equaled their record in the 50 yard dash. We beat the Sweet Briar College 1923 record in three events: the running broad jump, the hop-step-jump, and the base ball throw, and we equaled their record in the 50 yard dash and the 60 yard hurdles. Both of these colleges proved themselves on their work in athletics.

OVER THE PLATE

Bill Jones had the speed of a cannon ball; He could loosen a brick from a three foot wall. When he shot one across, it would hustle by Too swift for even the surest eye. No one could hit him when he was right. As no eye could follow the ball's quick flight. Bill should have starred in a big league role. But he stuck to the "minors"—he lacked control.

Jack Smith had a curve like a loop-the-loop. It would start for your head with a sudden swoop. And break to your knees with a zig zag wave; And the Leagues' best batters would roar and rave;

At the jump it took a sudden swerve. Shade of the boomerang, "what a curve," But Jack's still doomed to a "bush league fate—" He couldn't get it across the plate.

Tom Brown had both the speed and curve, A combination which jarred the nerves. He could steam 'em by till they looked like peas, They'd take a jump from your neck to your knees.

From the best to the worst in the league, by jing! He had them all on the phantom swing. But he missed the mark of the truly great, Poor Tom—he couldn't locate the plate.

How is it with you, if I may ask?
Have you got control of your daily task?
Have you got control of your appetite?
Of your temper and tongue in the bitter fight?

Have you "got control" of your brawn and brain?
Or are you laboring all in vain?
It matters not what your daily roll.
Have you got control? Have you got CONTROL?

It counts not what you may "have" my friend,
When the story is told at the game's far end.
The greatest and the noblest brain
The world has known may be yours in vain,
The man with "control" is the man who mounts.
And how to use "what you've got" that counts.
Have you got the head? Are you aiming Straight?

How much of your effort "goes over the plate?"

POPEJUKE

Little blue globes
Of sardines
Under the flame daubed sea
Swim and laugh gleefully.
Saturday night I weep
And my tears make
Cloying sweet apple pies.
Oh Joy!
Little rabbits climb
The cliffs and leap into the air
And crashing to earth burst.
Oh, sorrows of humanity!
Squigle!

ALUMNAE NOTES

Mrs. Effie Louise Morris, of Henderson, N. C., has announced the approaching marriage of her daughter, Miss Parke Morris, to Mr. John Edward Wells, of Richmond. The wedding will take place in the early summer, after which Mr. and Mrs. Wells will make their home in Richmond.

The students of the Richmond Normal School gave a musical entertainment, "In Ye Olden Time," in the auditorium of R. E. Lee School, Richmond, May 4. The program presented amusing and realistic incidents of plantation life in the Old South, showing scenes in the "quarters" as well as in the "big house." The melody and grace of the plantation song and dance were skillfully reproduced by the students, directed by Miss Marcella Barnes, teacher of music in the Normal School. The auditorium was filled with an enthusiastic audience, and the students have been asked to repeat the entertainment.

A poem by Miss Josephine Johnson is reproduced here by permission of The Lyric:

CLAY.

Mine is that clay, oh Lord, which cried in anguish
What time the turning lathe would mould and shape.
Until in pity for so dull a weakling
Here in the sun you let me find escape.

And now I harden—useless and misshapen:
Oh God, forgive! Before it is too late,
Bind me once more upon the wheel, nor free me
Save as a vessel fit and dedicate!

TRAVELERS' CLUB MEETS

Catherine Smith Talks on Her Trip to Mexico.

On Thursday afternoon, May 3, a meeting of the Travelers' Club was held at which Catherine Smith gave an interesting account of her trip to Mexico last summer.

We usually think of Mexico as being almost an uncivilized country with most disagreeable climate and far from being inviting, but in Mexico City where Catherine Smith visited, she said that even in the summer months the climate was delightful. We learned, too, of the customs of the Mexicans, and, although 75% of the population is very poor and uneducated, the remaining 25% is very rich and well educated and their customs, while very different from ours, are far from being uncivilized. Sunday is a day of gaiety among the Mexicans. Catherine Smith, too, very forcibly impressed us with one of the leading characteristics of the Mexicans—waiting until the last minute in everything. Among several interesting and amusing incidents, was the account of a typical wedding of the rich Mexicans, which she attended.

As the people crowded in the church only a few minutes before the ceremony it was noticed that most of the church was beautifully decorated but that the rear was still to be decorated! However, in a few seconds the decoration was complete and the effect was very beautiful.

Then, just at the last minute there came a man in with a huge duster dusting off the walls and the woodwork of the church. Just then the bridal party came in the vestibule, and suddenly there was an explosion in the rear of the church. The American visitor thought the revolutionists were at work, but, no, it was only a photographer taking a flashlight picture of the bridal party. Before the party reached the altar there rushed down the aisle five photographers who perched themselves up on pews, the altar, or wherever a good picture might be taken. When the ceremony was three-fourths over, there came in a maid with a flower girl by each hand. She led them down the aisle and stood them beside the bride, after which she calmly found a seat. After a lengthy ceremony the couple left the church in a carriage for two driven by two pure white horses harnessed in white. What would we breathless Americans think of these proceedings!

The Travelers' Club meets monthly and everybody is invited to attend.

PICNIC AT PICKETT'S SPRINGS

Faculty Entertains Teaching Seniors.

The Faculty entertained the Teaching Seniors at Pickett's Springs Friday evening, May 11.

The Faculty and the girls left for Pickett's Springs in trucks and automobiles about four o'clock. Having arrived there they viewed the wonders of nature and tasted the water. They then decided upon a game of ball. It developed that there were some real stars among the Faculty. Babe Ruth will have to leave the country if Miss Spear and Mr. Lear decide to compete against him. Mr. Lear threw the balls so hard that it is expected that he will be the world's champion shot put before the year is over.

The girls and the Faculty were then called to supper. Without a doubt they did not neglect the food before them. There were weenies, hot coffee, rolls, sandwiches and ice cream.

After supper there was music and some went riding on the lake.

The picknickers returned about eight o'clock.

BLUE RIDGE

Listen! Clear and distinct rings the clarion notes of the bugle—the Voice of Blue Ridge. The call comes to you, to me and everybody to come up to the Hills of God and keep a tryst with Him.

As the voice of Blue Ridge floats out over the country eager hearts vibrate to its call, hearts that have heard the call and have answered it before and those who have heard it but have never answered. Yet there are still some who are hearing the bugle's voice for the first time and are wondering what is its meaning—why the notes are so full of joy, song and power.

Hark! the melody has changed from a clarion call to a medley and the notes seem to dance out of the bugle ringing with laughter, good cheer and happiness. These tell us of the gathering together of girls from all parts of the Southland, the greetings that pass back and forth, the laughter and good cheer that is intermingled in this big group of girls. The notes seem to shout out to the world, the wonderful good times—hikes, parties, swimming matches, tennis, base ball and many other play times, that are waiting for us up in those mountains.

All seem to merge into one—a song of praise and happiness. For now out from the bugle pours forth the soul of Blue Ridge—the call of worship and fellowship with God.

Miss Mary White Cox entertained the old and new committees in the Senior Parlor after the Installation Services Monday night.

The old student Committee entertained Margaret Shackelford, the retiring president, in the Tea Room Tuesday night.

Dr. Burrell, Pastor of the First Baptist Church of Monroe, North Carolina, and brother to Mr. Burrell of Farmville, spoke at Chapel Friday morning, May 11.

Dr. Burrell was accompanied by his singer, Mr. Hines, who sang, "Tomorrow Comes the Song."

OWEN—STEELE

Miss Margaret Steele, daughter of Mrs. Hume R. Steele, Nashville, Tennessee, became the bride of Richard Owen, Saturday, May 5.

COLLEGE CUT OUTS

Open-Air Theatre Dedicated.

The New Open-Air Theatre at the Fredricksburg Normal was dedicated on May 11. Governor Trinkle, Superintendent of Public Education Harris Hart, Senator C. O'Connor, Goolick and President Chandler addressed the largest assembly of citizens ever gathered at the school during its history. In the evening a program, consisting of the operetta "Hansel and Gretel" was presented by the Dramatic Club of the school under the direction of the English, Physical Education and Art Departments.

Mr. Cottrell is planning for the old and new Y. M. C. A. cabinets at V. P. I. to take two days outing the last Saturday and Sunday in May. The object of the projected trip to Mountain Lake, Virginia, is to hold a conference for the formulation and perfection of their plans for next year. The retiring cabinet will have a splendid opportunity for passing on their experience to the new members, so the next session's work should be the most successful in the history of the school.

Field Day at R. M. W. C.

The recent Field Day at Randolph-Macon Woman's College was very successful, since several college records were broken. Margaret Haase broke the discus throw (88 ft., 3½ in.) and Hop-Step-Jump (30 ft.) records. Ruth Alexander ran the 75 yard dash in 9 1/5 seconds and the 65 yard hurdles in 10 1/5 seconds. Mary Louise Bradford broke the basket-ball throw record with a distance of 79 ft., 6 in. The Senior relay team made three hundred yards in 40 3/5 seconds. Elizabeth Chesterman established the javelin throw record with a distance of 88 ft., 3 inches.

"R. M.'s" were given to record breakers and girls who made fifty per cent of the possible points in the three events they were allowed to enter.

OFFICERS ELECTED

At a meeting of the Rural Club held recently the following officers were elected for next year: President—Mary Vaughan; Vice-President—Christine Armstrong; Corresponding Secretary—Mary Maupin; Recording Secretary—Nellie Hill; Treasurer—Frances Ware; Reporter—Dorothy Askew.

AT THE EACO THEATRE

Week May 21st-27th.

Mon. and Tue.—William De Mille's powerful new Paramount production, "Nice People." With a most excellent special cast in which is included Wallace Reid, Bebe Daniels and Conrad Nagel. This is the sensational jazz-drama that broke Broadway records. "The hand that rocks the cocktail rules the world." Is this true of our modern jazz mad young people? See this picture that exposes their wild life in a glittering, sensational manner. Girls, if you like to see lavish gowns, then don't miss this picture. Pathe News Monday and a complete Sherlock Holmes story Tuesday. Admission to Normal students 25 cents. Matinee at 4 o'clock.

Wed.—Constance Talmadge in "Happiness A LaMode," with Harrison Ford as her leading man. This picture has been shown in Farmville before but as it is such a good picture, we are showing this new revival of it. Also Aesop Fable.

Thu. and Fri.—Rodolph Valentino in the big special Paramount production "Blood and Sand." Here's the real screen sensation of the season! Rodolph Valentino as a hot-blooded toreador, the dashing idol of Spain, hero of many loves, in a story by Blasco Ibanez, author of "The Four Horsemen." You'll see Valentino risking his life in the most spectacular sport known to man—bull-fighting. You'll see him lured by the maddening beauty of a Spanish title temptress. You'll see all the romance, the fiery passions of Spain in a picture a thousand times bigger than "The Sheik." Produced in lavish splendor. The greatest Valentino triumph ever known. Fox News Thursday and a good comedy Friday. Admission to Normal Students 35 cents.

Sat.—Eugene O'Brien in "Chivalrous Charley." A mile a minute melodrama with a million laughs. There is not a dull moment in this entire picture. It is the snappy tale of the adventures in New York of "Charles Reilly," late from the west, and nephew of a political boss and millionaire. Also 14th episode of the serial.

Wednesday's and Saturday's admissions to Normal Students will be 20 cents.

FACULTY WINS

Third Profs. Defeated in Hard Fought Game.

Down into the Valley of Despair rode the Faculty.
Up from the Valley came the victorious Faculty!

Down in the Valley lay the defeated Third Profs.

Thus the story of a baseball game ends and begins. But to satisfy the rules of the game it will be necessary to relate a few details. The game opened with Kemp and Baptist as batteries for the Third Profs. and Mr. Lee of the Faculty "at bat." He was followed by Mr. Lear and then by Coach Buford who punched out very prettily. The Faculty in spite of this blow scored five runs. The Third Profs. were unable to connect with Mr. Lee's speedy balls and retired with no runs to their credit. But they came back strong and with the excellent catching of Baptist and infield work of Treacle, Kemp, Irving and Calcott, not to mention the unaccountable outfielding of Moore and Shields, held the Faculty to scattered hits and runs which brought the score to a tie in the fourth inning. The baseball tactics of the Faculty was big league stuff. Miss Buford did a sitting broad jump for an infield fly which landed other than where she did. Mr. Lear aesthetically stole second, and Mr. Fattig chimpanzeed a steal to third. The fence acted as a stopping board for Miss Dietrich's dash to first base.

The tie was broken because and by the Faculty Ladies becoming weary and the Faculty then resorting to pinch hitters—these being the heavy hitting quartette, Messrs. Lee, Lear, McCorkle, and Fattig. But even at that the Third Profs. held them down to a small score of 14 to 12.

FOURTH YEAR ENTERTAINED

On last Friday evening at eight o'clock in the Kindergarten room the fourth year High School Class was delightfully entertained at an informal reception, given by the third year High School Class. The Kindergarten was attractively decorated with spring flowers. Dancing, rook and group games were enjoyed by all. Delicious refreshments, carrying out the color scheme of purple and white, were served. The guests took their departures at ten o'clock after having expressed themselves as having had a most enjoyable time.

SELF-REPORTING SYSTEM INSTALLED

President Hopes for Absolute Honor System.

A Student Body meeting was held May 15, at 6:30 P. M. in the auditorium. This was the first meeting since Miss Helen Miller's installation.

Miss Miller explained and discussed what the Student Committee expects the students to do and not to do. The Committee, has installed the Self-Reporting system, the first step toward a more absolute honor system.

NEWS TOPICS

Mr. Muslow, of New York, will deliver an address on Interior Decoration in the Auditorium Tuesday night, May 22, at 8 P. M.

A benefit picture was given at the Eaco Theatre, May 15, for the Student Building.

Louise Glenn, who was hit with a baseball bat Thursday is reported to be improving.

The Industrial Arts Exhibit will be held next Wednesday and Thursday nights after supper. The hand made rugs are to be sold to the highest bidder.

Dr. Johnson of Charlottesville, Virginia, was here in search of teachers this week.

Miss Mary White Cox went to Richmond this week to get ready for Commencement.

Miss Mary Clay Hiner is spending the weekend at Clifton Forge.

Miss Coulling is in Richmond for the weekend.

The High School Honors have been awarded by the Faculty. The second honor goes to Miss Evelyn Beckon and the first to Miss Louise Nunn.

JUNIORS ENTERTAIN SENIORS

The course one Juniors gave the course one Seniors a picnic at a spring a short distance from Farmville, Friday evening, May 18.

The rain did not bother the girls, they enjoyed themselves just the same. After much merriment and song they had supper—weenies, bacon, and such things.

They returned about seven-thirty.

MAY DAY EXERCISES

Attended by Large Number of People.

The Annual May Festival was held Monday evening, May 15, at 5:30 P. M. on the Athletic Field; the ivy covered buildings and the tender green of the spring foliage made an effective back ground. The Queen and her attendants made their way from the building and under the over hanging trees. As usual, a large number of the people of Farmville and the surrounding country were present.

The May Queen this year, Elizabeth Moring of Farmville, Virginia, is a most lovely young woman, with dark hair and eyes and exquisite profile. Her Maids of Honor, Elizabeth Williams, Ford Eubank, Anna Bell Treacle and Pauline Timberlake, advanced one by one to the throne. Last of all came Miss Moring preceded by flower girls and Anne Harris of the Kindergarten bearing the crown on a satin pillow. The Queen wore an elaborate gown of white satin. Her train was carried by two small boys also of the Kindergarten. The Maids wore dresses and hats of orchid and rose organdies.

The Queen and the "Ladies of the Court" were preceded by the "Dance of Spring" by Lucile Upton. The arrival of the May Day revelers and the procession of the court followed this dance.

The entertainment in honor of the Queen included dances by the several grades of the Training and High School. The Fairies' Revel was danced by the flower girls, members of the fourth grade, after which the First Professionals as courtiers in colonial costumes gave the beautiful minuet. The little children of the kindergarten delighted the Queen and the audience by a very attractive dance.

The "Big Brass Band" given by Grade One was awarded the first prize for the best dance.

The Highland Schottische was given by the Sixth and Seventh grades, and several others by the Second, Third and Fourth Grades. The Sword Dance, the Swedish Code Dance, and the Merry Hay Makers was presented by High School and grades Six, Seven, Eight, and Nine. Following the Vineyard dance by the Fifth Grade the familiar old Virginia Reel was given by the High School. The May pole dance also by the High School, gaily and effectively concluded the program.

The masked knight, and a prancing steed and the clown gave to the Festival a merry tone, which greatly added to the occasion.

Miss Mary Barlowe was in charge of the program. She was assisted by the Supervisors of the Training School and the School Girls.

The Normal School Orchestra furnished the music for the Festival. The orchestra was invisible, the music issuing forth from a mass of pines and cedars.

WHAT IS STUDENT GOVERNMENT?

What is Student Government? Is it not simply self-government—the government of yourself by yourself? Do you realize the responsibility that such a government places upon you—the responsibility of keeping the rules and helping others to keep them? Are you living up to your responsibility or are you trying to shift it onto others' shoulders, for instance your Student Council in order to have the chance to criticize? But you forget that the criticism is for you and not for your Student Government officials, because the Student Government is yours not theirs. If it is a success, congratulate yourself, if it is a failure, blame yourself.

If Student Government means self-government, does it not have to be based on honor? Does it not have to depend on your honor to keep the rules and if you forget yourself so far as to break one (because we are not all infallible) is it not up to you alone to report yourself? When you elected the Student Council, you did not relinquish your governing power or your responsibility. Have you not still your duty to do and if you see others not doing theirs, is it better to talk about it behind their backs or is it better to go tell them? The student Council is to help you and is it not up to you who elected the members of it to stand back of them and to make their task as easy as possible because it surely is not an easy one?

Do you want your Student Government to be one of which you will be justly proud? Then it is you who can make it so remembering always that when you criticize, it is you yourself who you are criticizing as it is your Student Government—Government of yourself, by yourself.

NORMAL LEAGUE REPORTS

Students Invited to Join.

The report of the Normal League was given in chapel, Friday morning, May 18. Miss Coulling, the president was in charge of the meeting.

The secretary, Lelia Burrow read the minutes of the last meeting. Marrie Sutton gave the report of the treasury. Miss Smithley told of the girls that the Normal League had aided. In the twenty-five years that it has been organized, one hundred and twelve girls have been helped. Miss Rice, told of the troubles they had with finances. It always appeared however that when the fund became very low that by some means more money came in.

Dr. Jarman then presided at the election of officers. They are as follows:

President—Mr. Grainger.
Vice-President—Miss Coulling.
Secretary—Frances Evans.
Treasurer—Agnes Baptist.

Those of us who have never been to Blue Ridge feel that we have a better idea of what the life there really is since seeing "A day at Blue Ridge" presented to us in the stunt given Saturday night, May 12. This stunt was got up by the Conference and Convention Committee assisted by the Service and Membership Committees.

A special program was given at morning watch on Mother's Day, May 13. Marion Camper made the leader's talk after which there was special music.

The Y. W. C. A. Committees held their regular monthly meetings on Thursday evening, May 17. These committees have a large membership of splendid girls and we anticipate for them success in their work.

GONE BUT NOT FORGOTTEN

As we walked in the dining room,
A strange sight met the eye,
We spied some strawberry shortcake there,
And 'twas not even the day for pie.
Then shrieks and shouts and happiness,
That night did reign supreme,
For before we tasted the gorgeous food,
We thought 'twas but a dream.
But our vision did not trick us,
What we saw was not a fake
So we ate and ate until there was,
No more of that short cake.

CLEF COLUMN

The ROTUNDA staff takes great pleasure in announcing the re-establishment of the "Clef Column" at the desire of the student body. The editor heard Louise Scott sing the following so divinely that she asked her to share the words with the gentle readers.

Foolish Questions.

You've heard of foolish questions,
And no doubt you've wondered why
A person who would ask them
Could expect a sane reply.
Did you ever take a girl
A box of candy after tea,
And notice how she grabs it
And says, "Is this for me?"
A foolish question—
You should answer when you can,
"No, the candy's for your mother
Or your sister or your brother,
Or for John, the hired man.
I just wanted you to see it,
Now I'll take it all away."
Now there's a question that
You hear most every day.

And then most every morning,
There is some one around the place,
Who sees you take a shaving-brush,
And lather up your face.
And as you give the razor

A preliminary wave
This one will always ask you,
"Are you going to take a shave?"
A foolish question—

And your answer is, I hope,
"No, I'm really not prepared for shaving,
But I just like the taste of soap.
I love to take the shaving brush,
And lather up this way."
Now there's a question, that
You hear most every day.

Suppose the elevator boy
Forgets to close the doors,
And you go tumbling down the shaft
Past twenty-seven floors,
And when you've reached the bottom,
And are lying there inert,
The first one that approaches,
Will exclaim, "Oh! Are you hurt?"

A foolish question—
And your dying words are "No,
I was in an awful hurry
And this elevator runs so very slow.
I have found I save a lot of time,
By coming down this way."
Now there's a question that
You hear most every day.

THE TEACHING OF AMERICAN HISTORY IN THE GRAMMAR GRADES

By Mary E. Peck.

Reviewed by Dr. William F. Tidyman.

To many pupils and teachers history is as dry as dust, and equally as sterile. It is inseparably associated with long lists of names, dates, and meaningless facts—a lifeless skeleton. To such persons Miss Peck's The Teaching of American History in the Grammar Grades will be a revelation. She shows why history has been bare and lifeless, and what is more valuable, how it can be made real and vital to children. After setting forth clearly the functions and value of history, the author discusses briefly and pointedly certain practical problems which the teacher of history will recognize at once as fundamental. These are: selection and use of textbooks, interpretation and reorganization of subject matter, methods of teaching history, teaching children how to study history, how to conduct a recitation, questioning, and how to supplement the text. The discussion is made concrete and practical throughout by the use of apt illustrations.

One of the most helpful sections of the bulletin deals with detailed outlines and plans for typical projects. These are presented in such detail that any teacher can use them with little modification. Detailed outlines are provided for the following: dramatization of the Discovery of America; Colonizing Virginia; the Declaration of Independence; and Virginia, the Mother of States; and also the development of the problems "What we have received from the Ancient and Medieval Past," and "How we are governed under the Constitution."

The bulletin is fundamentally sound and sanely progressive in its point of view and method. It offers a summary of sound principles with concrete practical illustrations that are not readily available elsewhere, and that would require a great deal of time and energy to duplicate. It should be in the hands of every teacher of history.

Miss Peck's Bulletin

The latest bulletin published by the Normal Institute "The Teaching of American History in the Grammar Grades," by Miss Mary Peck has been very favorably received by the educational public.

The following extracts have been taken from letters received in regard to the bulletin:

"All that the bulletin contains is excellent, and should be directly helpful to public school teachers."

Dr. F. G. Bonser,

Teachers College of Columbia University.

"I am exceedingly glad that you and Farmville are working along such lines."

Dr. Wm. H. Kilpatrick,

Teachers College of Columbia University.

"I am sufficiently impressed with the merits of this work to recommend to our board that for the coming session one copy of this bulletin be placed in the hands of each teacher of this system who gives instruction in Grammar Grade History."

Supt. E. A. Painter,
Botetourt County.

"I wish I had had your bulletin earlier. I shall take advantage of it the next time I cover this part of my work."

Dr. A. Gordon Melvin,
Head of Department of Education,
Olivet College,
Olivet, Michigan.

We congratulate Miss Peck upon her splendid success.

(Editor's Note: This bulletin may be purchased from the Book Room, State Normal School, Farmville, Virginia. Price 35c.)

Serious trouble might be avoided many times, if the second thought were to come before the first.

COLLEGE CUT OUTS

W. F. C. Wins over Baylor College.

Representatives of Wake Forest and Baylor Colleges met in the chapel at Meredith College, on May 4, in the annual intercollegiate debate. The affirmative side of the question was defended by H. T. Wright and P. O. Purals of Wake Forest, with G. W. Blount as alternate, and the negative side was supported by Carl Vance and John G. Dickson of Baylor, with W. R. Poage as alternate. Both Tar Heels and Texans stood their ground well, but the decision was unanimous in favor of Wake Forest.

A recent description in "The Twig" of the hilarious swimming party recently enjoyed by the girls of Meredith College, reminds us that we will soon be able to write up some aquarian events on our own account.

May 15, V. M. I. observed the anniversary known as Market Day. The anniversary commemorates the battle of New Market, fought on May 15, 1864, in which the battalion of V. M. I. cadets gallantly came to the aid of their Southland. On this occasion they joined the Confederate Army in a brilliant charge in which were lost one-fifth of their number.

On the 10-ton granite boulder unveiled at Northwestern University, Thursday afternoon, as a memorial to Davis Thomas Hanson, medical graduate of 1908, is the unusual epitaph: "He played four years on the scrubs—he never quit."

The courage and persistence of Hanson, who was killed in France while attempting to carry a comrade to safety, is typified by the fact that he played four years on the scrub football team, undiscouraged by the fact that he reaped none of the recognition and honors which go only to the varsity.

MEMORIAL DAY

About three years after the close of the strife in '65, an order was issued, setting aside a day as the National Memorial Day. It is a legal holiday throughout the land and everyone pays tribute to the men who laid down their lives in '61. Impressive ceremonies are held everywhere, and the school children, permitted to have a part in the observance, and the veterans, who still remain with us, show us that Memorial Day is a day for all ages.

Decoration Day throughout the country is observed by fitting exercises, a military and naval parade, by eminent speakers, prayers by eloquent clergymen and wreaths placed on monuments and on graves.

Therefore, on that one day, at least, May 30, known as Memorial Day, we shall "render honor" to whom honor is due.

Cut Flowers for Every Occasion

"Does your fiancé know much about automobiles?"

"Heavens, no; she asked me if I cooled my car by stripping the gears."

Lampoon.

"Boy, take these flowers up to Miss Dolly Footlites, Room 12."

"Gracious! You're the fourth man to send her flowers today."

"Eh! What's that? Who sent the others?" "Oh, they didn't send up any names. They just said: 'She'll know who they came from.'"

"Well, here, take my card and tell her these are from the same one that sent her the other three boxes."—Boston Transcript.

A young minister was expostulating with a landlord who had raised the poor parishioners' rent over a hundred per cent.

"If I want to hear you preach," said the landlord angrily, "I'll come to church where you should do your preaching."

"If you were where you should be," retorted the young minister, "you would have that privilege next Sunday. I'm going to preach at the penitentiary."

"Remember," said the serious friend, "your country is calling you."

"I know that," replied Senator Sorghum; "but different parts of the country are calling me different things."—Washington Star.

When you motor picks up with a vim
But the man worth while
Is the man who can smile
When he has to come in on a rim.

Lee D. Williams, Merkel, Tex.

The Boston Transcript says that a business man who is a large advertiser received a letter not long ago from the manager of a religious weekly, soliciting advertising on the ground that the weekly had not only a large circulation, but a very "credulous class of readers."

George (standing before mirror): "It is going, it is going, it is going—"

Marie: "Why, George, you're repeating the Cote formula. Do you believe in it?"

George: "It is certainly true when applied to my hair."—Boston Transcript.

Appel: "Wait a minute, I want to stop in this store and order a set of encyclopedias."

Matty: "What in the world do you want with a lot of books like that?"

Appel: "I like to have something to read while I am waiting for my wife to get ready when we go out."—Youngstown Telegram.

"Do I understand," said the irate parent, "that there is some idiotic affair between you and that impecunious young Dedbroke?"

"Not very much, papa," replied his daughter sweetly, "only you."

Maid: "A motor truck smashed the baby carriage to smithereens, mum."

Mother: "Horrors! Was the baby hurt?"

Maid: "You're mighty lucky, mum. He was kidnapped only five minutes before."—Life.

Hopeful Poet: "Don't you think there's a world of hidden meaning in my poem?"

Editor: "Yes, indeed, and well hidden too."

DID STOPPERS FOLLOW DOOR KNOBS?

The Editor of the ROTUNDA,

Dear Madam,

In your last issue of the ROTUNDA you published a letter of complaint by Lydia Anguish. I can sympathize with Miss Anguish and do, however I really think she lacks the spirit of charity. Simply because some of her friends consider it funny to make pie-beds for her pleasure is no reason for her to take her spite out on innocent people. I can't think of anything worse than to be without a door knob—and she consumed eight. Now, it is very probable that I would never have called this to your attention but one of my door knobs happens to have been one of the eight that she so heartlessly ate. You can't imagine the hardship of having only one door knob. Suppose, for instance, that you happen to be late going down to dinner and the one knob is on the outside. Of course, the winds have blown the door shut. Well if you think it easy to climb thru the transom and get down to the dining room in the time left from five minutes, after having used part of it to comb your hair, you are mistaken.

I wouldn't be a bit surprised if all this trouble we have had with stoppers for the tubs isn't due to some such cause. A stop should be put to the consuming, by any individual, of the general utility objects around the school and I expect you to do something about it, immediately.

Innocence Abused.

SCORES KING TUT STYLE

Urges Americans to Patronize Americans.

Mr. Leon Winslow in his speech on "Interior Decoration" in the auditorium May 22, said that he thought it disgusting the way women have followed out in their dress the designs discovered in the tomb of King Tut. He also stated that this was started by people desirous of making money, and that America could produce designs of far more beauty and of better technique.

Americans will not patronize the American designers. When the designers of America receive as much money as the laborers who carelessly place the design on the object to be sold, then will America get ahead in the Art line.

Fashion magazines, published at about the same time the King Tut styles, and style taken from the western part of the United States. The style of an Egyptian who lived thousands of years ago survived while that designed after the "American Cow Boy" perished in America. In Paris, they wear the designs taken from America, while we go to Egypt for ours.

Let America be American. If fashion requires variation, why not resort to the American Indian—these would be more fitting and beautiful than the designs taken from dead mummies.

STUDENT BUILDING CARRIES SECOND GRADE UNANIMOUSLY

Children Prove That Great Buildings from Little Brickslets Grow.

The Second Grade of the Training School, ably assisted by its supervisor, Mrs. Lear, gave a Circus on Tuesday, May 22. The first ring-side performance began at 2:45 and the second at 3:45. A varied program was given by the second grade, and we predict a glorious stage career for some of them. The First Grade Band played between performances. Of course there was a zoo, a baby show, a merry-go-round, a puppet show, and a booth where one could have his picture taken. Ice cream and candy were sold, and all who came went away satisfied that the children of Farmville are able producers.

The children of the Second Grade brought the money to school Wednesday morning and gave it to Dr. Jarman. Each child brought a brick in which was a portion of the money.

Dabney Goodwin (when asked where Leah was): "I don't know, I said I'd meet her in front of school and when I got there, neither of us were there!"

A WELL DESERVED HONOR FOR OUR BELOVED PRESIDENT

Some years ago, Thomas Nelson Page was asked what he considered the highest honor in the literary world, and he unhesitatingly replied: "Membership in Phi Beta Kappa."

President J. L. Jarman has recently been elected to membership in Beta (University of Virginia) Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa.

This honor comes as a recognition on the part of his Alma Mater of the wonderful service he has rendered to the cause of education in Virginia during the years of his administration here and we who know him, realize how well he deserves such recognition and offer him our warm congratulations.

What's the matter with Jarman?

He's all right!

What's the matter with Jarman?

For him we'll fight!

We're very fond of the Faculty,

But J. L. J. is the man for me—

What's the matter with Jarman?

HE'S ALL RIGHT!

INDUSTRIAL ARTS EXHIBIT

Money Raised for Student Building.

The Industrial Arts Exhibit was held in the west wing, from May 22 to 25. Miss Hazel B. Millican, head of the department of Industrial Arts, was in charge.

The exhibit consisted of basketry, carpentry and handiwork. Some woodwork and two hand-made rugs were sold for the benefit of the Student Building. Each girl in the department of Industrial Arts gave two hours of her time toward the making of these objects.

Miss Millican and the girls of her department should be congratulated on the useful, varied and interesting display of their work.

Mary: "What makes Henrietta so popular?"

Jane: "When a fellow calls, she asks him a riddle, then she keeps him in the dark all evening."

PRIZE OFFERED TO WINNER OF DEBATE

College Club Seeks to Promote Interest in Degree Work.

At a meeting last week of the College Club and Faculty Committee, decision was made to inaugurate a campaign this week. The campaign is to consist of speeches, news articles, and a canvas for new members.

Speeches were given at Chapel this week on the subject of getting a degree. The purpose was not to stress the advantages of coming back but to try to answer some of the questions and doubts in the girls' minds.

The first of the series of talks was given by Mary Nichols, "The Purpose and Organization of the College Club." On the same morning Elizabeth Moring spoke on "The General Advantages of a College Education." Wednesday morning, Lennie Blankenship gave "The Educational Advantages of a College Education." Thursday, Dorothy Askew told of the "Ways and Means" that a college education could be secured. Friday morning, Olive Smith gave her reasons as a Freshman for returning. Dr. Jarman is to talk Tuesday morning on the financial side of the question.

To carry out the idea of securing a degree letters have been written to all the country superintendents of the State to find out the difference in the salary of a teacher who has a degree and one who has not.

A five dollar prize will be given to the person who wins the debate next Saturday night on the subject "What a Degree Will Mean to Me."

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

THE ROTUNDA invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer, and these will not be published if the writer objects to the publications.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matters should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of their copies of THE ROTUNDA will be appreciated.

The flowers that bloom in the spring tra la have nothing to do with college life, but just the same the assembled multitude of floral specimens seems to shout in no uncertain tone that vacation will soon be a reality. There'll be no more going to chapel and hearing that we've "put something in bank every day this year," no more student body meetings with warm discussions of how to provide "one stopper for every bathroom," no more bacon bats to Willis Mountain or Pickett's Spring, no, in a few days they will all be a jumble of memories with the "snows of yester year." And in leaving, we wish for you three months of great happiness as well worth while as the months we've been in school together. And to those who will not be with us again we wish you good luck and need-less to say a hearty welcome awaits you when-ever you return to your Alma Mater.

The Staff received such stimulation through the following that it felt constrained to publish it:

Permit me dear new Editor
To say a word before I go;
I've enjoyed our college paper,
And wish my gratitude to show.

Though my tiny contributions
Have been few and far between,
I've tried to be a faithful booster,
And my interest has been keen:

How I'll keep this interest going
Through next year out in the state,
Is a simple easy method,
Which now briefly I'll relate.

Here are two shining dollars,
My subscription please renew.
I'll keep in touch with Alma Mater
Through next year—but now, adieu!

ALUMNAE NOTES

Miss Mary Du Puy, whose home it at Hampden-Sidney, has been a recent visitor to the Normal School. She is now a rural supervisor with headquarters at Smith, Harlan County, Kentucky, in the country made famous by John Fox. The work is unusual and interesting, and is under the direction of the home mission board of the Northern Presbyterian Church.

The Richmond Times-Dispatch of May 20 contained a picture of the Richmond Normal School students who appeared in the play, "In Ye Olden Days" which was written and directed by Miss Marcella Barnes, instructor in Music. The first appearance was such a success that the play was repeated by popular request. The songs reflected much credit upon the music department. The old Southern Melodies reaching a climax in "Dixie" were full of the harmony and sweetness characteristic of plantation music.

The Newport News Chapter had a Food Sale on Saturday, May 26, for the benefit of the Student Building.

As May 30 was a holiday, the Norfolk Chapter took advantage of it to have a subscription card party followed by an alumnae luncheon. Miss Mary White Cox was the guest of honor at the luncheon, which was a most enjoyable affair.

The formation of an Alumnae Chapter at Crewe is being planned. There is material for a strong organization in that town.

To many generations of Normal School girls the news of the death of Mrs. Portia L. Morrison will bring a feeling of personal loss. Mrs. Morrison was for years Head of the Home, and her friendly interest and sympathetic care have been treasured memories with those who had the privilege of knowing her. She was buried at Hampden-Sidney on Wednesday, May 23, near her son, Dr. Alfred J. Morrison, whose death occurred only a short time ago.

WHY SHOULD STUDENTS REMAIN FOR A DEGREE?

The degree work at Farmville is given to prepare students to teach in the high schools of the state. Every student who intends teaching in a high school needs the entire four year course. The state demands it. To be sure, your normal professional certificate allows you to teach in the first two years of a high school, but what teacher wants to admit that she is unable to teach a course throughout all four years? Few school boards will appoint teachers without degrees in accredited high schools. Every year the boards adhere more closely to this rule. That means that every year the teacher without a degree will find it harder and harder to secure a desirable position.

Some girls argue that it is better to go out and teach a year or two and then return for a degree. It is true that the experience of teaching gives you a different point of view and a different attitude toward your studies. However, the girls who use this argument do not realize how hard it is to break away and return to studying when once you have begun to teach. It is much easier to continue while you are at

it. How many girls who say that they will return in a year or two really do return? Very few. The thing to do is to stick to your work while you are at it.

It is hard to come back after a lapse of several years and resume your place as a student. You lose time in adjusting yourself to new conditions. You have to make new friends. You are out of touch with school life and you have to begin all over again.

It is much better to have your work continuous if possible. You are accustomed to studying. At the end of two years you have reached a place where your influence can be felt in school. If large upper classes are built up, an even greater spirit of loyalty can be created in the school and student standards can be raised even higher, for a school generation would then last four years instead of two. By staying here four years you benefit yourselves intellectually, professionally, and financially, and at the same time help your Alma Mater.

CLEF COLUMN

Here is one of Olive Smith's:

JOHNNY SANDS.

There was a man named Johnny Sands
Who married Betty Hague,
And though she brought him gold and lands
She proved a terrible plague.

For oh, she was a scolding wife
Full of caprice and whim,
He said that he was tired of life
And she was tired of him.

Said he, "Then I will drown myself,
The river runs below."
Said she, "Pray do, you silly elf,
I wished it long ago."

Said he, "Upon the brink I'll stand
Do you run down the hill,
And push me in with all your might."
Said she, "My love, I will."

"For fear that I should courage lack
And try to save my life,
Pray tie my hands behind my back."
"I will," replied his wife.

She tied them fast, as you may think
And when securely done,
"Now stand," said she, "upon the brink
And I'll prepare to run."

All down the hill his loving wife,
Now ran with all her force,
To push him in, he stepped aside
And she fell in of course.

Now splashing, dashing like a fish,
"O save me, Johnny Sands!"
"I can't my dear, though much I wish,
For you have tied my hands."

The other members of the committee are: Miss Buford, Miss Draper, Mrs. Bell, Miss Mary Clay Hiner, and Miss Bierbower.

TAKES TRIP TO FLORIDA

Willie Bellamy Conducts Interesting Tour.

On Thursday afternoon, May 24, the Travelers' Club met and Willie Bellamy gave some very interesting descriptions of Florida, her home state.

She said that, although Florida is usually thought of as being flat and hot, it is really a table land and not extremely hot. She gave a description of the city of St. Augustine, the Fountain of Youth and the Everglades. Of special interest was the description of an orange grove and of many of the products of Florida. This was made more interesting because of specimens of several of these which she had with her.

Her talk left all with the impression that Florida is a state of beauty and of many attractions.

THE WOMAN OF TO-MORROW

(In a recent test in Mr. Bell's class in the Psychology of Adolescence one question was: "Write upon any topic suggested by the course which particularly interests you." The following was the answer made by Miss Willie London, taken verbatim from the test paper.)

"The adolescent girls of to-day will be the women of to-morrow. The big question is: What kind of women will they be?"

When I sit in chapel and look into the happy or unhappy, eager or listless, satisfied or dissatisfied faces of our women of to-morrow, I wish I could have them all take me into their confidences and pour out to me the joys, sorrows, hopes, or disappointments in their lives, that I might help them to get a right balance and sense of values. At no age do girls need sane, wholesome, sympathetic friendship more.

The coming to womanhood means many things, but always these—dreaming, longing, loving. The girl is a dreamer of many dreams, not selfish ones. Now she is feeling a new power, the power of the group—her dreams and air castles include others. And who can say that many of the first thoughts and ideals have not come as a result of castle building. A sympathetic imagination is one of life's most valuable assets.

If girls long only for their own pleasure and happiness, if the dreamings and longings are selfish, the girls are not the ones to blame, but the older persons who have been molding their lives.

It is natural at this age for girls to want to do something really worth while—to do something for some one else. I have seen this desire for service find expression in visiting and singing to the aged; in making scrap books for the sick, and in many other ways. If this desire for self-expression does not find a wholesome channel into which to flow, it will undoubtedly find other avenues of escape, for express herself the girl of today must.

The same is true of loving—the girl at this age must love somebody or something, and fortunate is the girl who lavishes this great gift upon the right kind of person, or better still, the right kind of persons. The intimate and lasting friendships of this age are among the most precious possessions of later years.

Here, too, the social or gregarious instinct shows itself to a marked degree in the formation of clubs, sororities, etc. Admiration for the group and pride in its achievements are stronger than the self love that was characteristic of earlier life.

To help the adolescent girl grow into the well rounded, socially minded woman of to-morrow, confident of her own strength, with complete possession of herself, and with perfect control of herself is the greatest privilege one can have.

Bill: "Look at the coat he gave me!"

Orange Peel.

Mary: "Maud claims she's a fine singer. Do you think she ought to see a vocal teacher?"

Helen: "No, a claim adjuster."

Teacher: "Now, I am going to give each of you three buttons. You must think of the first as representing life, the second liberty and the third happiness. In three days I want you to produce those buttons and tell me what they stand for."

On appointed day—"I ain't got 'em all," Bobby sobbed, "here's life and liberty but me mother went and sewed happiness on me trousers."

Miss Jones (Primary Methods): "Girls, you may think this a personal matter but I must tell you, that you mustn't bring gum to your chewing class."

Mary: "What is the best qualification for a modern chick, Louise?"

Louise: "Oh, he needs lots of sand."

AT THE EACO THEATRE

Week June 4th-9th.

Mon.—"Above All Law." A Paramount picture enacted by a special cast. The flaming romance of an American's love for a beautiful daughter of the Rajahs. Filled with breathless thrills and adventure. Filmed in jewelled palace and secret royal boudoir. With settings of gorgeous splendor. Also Pathe News.

Tue.—Constance Talmadge, Harrison Ford and Monte Blue in "Romance and Arabella." A new revival of one of her former successes. Those who are fond of love stories that are filled with humor, will find this production particularly to their liking. Also a Sherlock Holmes detective story.

Wed.—Owen Moore in "Love is an Awful Thing." This is said to be the most riotously funny screen farce in years. "You can't get too much of a good thing" is one little saying that doesn't hold good the "good thing" happens to be love. You'll believe this after you have seen "Love is an Awful Thing." Also Aesop Fable.

Thu. & Fri.—"The Old Homestead." A big super special Paramount picture, with a fine casting, including Theodore Roberts, Harrison Ford, T. Roy Barnes and many others. The greatest of all emotional dramas—the play that has drawn laughs and tears from a million American hearts—at last given in a production worthy of its name. A story made of the sorrows and joys of plain folks and a great love that weathered adversity. Reaching its climax in a mighty cyclone scene that dwarfs any storm on the screen before. For your heart's sake, come! You know or should know that "The Old Homestead" is the best loved of all American plays. The greatest heart picture ever made. Fox News Thursday and a good comedy Friday. Admission to S. N. S. girls 35 cents.

Sat.—Ethel Clayton in "If I Were Queen." An exquisite story of adventure and love in which a beautiful, dashing American girl is held prisoner by a Prince Charming who loves her—naturally she revolted. She tried to escape but he barred her way—she literally was a prisoner of love—and then the climax so exquisitely romantic it leaves you completely overwhelmed. This is a special picture, and should appeal to all. Also 2nd episode of "The Timber Queen." Matinee at 4 o'clock.

Admission each night except Thursday and Friday 20 cents.

Oh, say can you see? Not so well since long skirts came into vogue.

RECORD BREAKING ENROLLMENT AT FARMVILLE

Registration Expected to Reach 800 Mark.

The 1923-4 session of the State Normal School at Farmville is a witness of its continued growth. The freshman class, the largest that has ever entered the school numbers almost 400. The other classes are proportionately larger, the Senior Class containing about thirty. All available space is being used for class rooms and dormitories. The Student Building which is rapidly nearing completion is the largest edition to the equipment of the school. The expansion of the faculty necessitated by this increase in students brings in a new principal for the training school including the high school department, and additional teachers in the department of English, Hygiene and Writing, and a new supervisor for the demonstration school recently established at Prospect.

GET ACQUAINTED PARTY

Hardy Athletes Compete in Mock Field Day Contest

The campus was the scene of brilliant colors, happy faces, and much pleasure when on the afternoon of Friday Sept. 20 the Y. W. C. A. gave a "get together party" for the students and faculty.

Games and stunts were organized to make the occasion a pleasant one. The first game was a means of getting acquainted. The crowd was divided into three large circles and several from each circle were told to take their places in the center. Each was to face some one in the circle and count ten before that person could call the names of her neighbors.

The second number was a Mock Field Day conducted by Miss Graham, of the Department of Biology. Contestants were divided into teams which entered contests requiring the greatest of courage and perseverance. Cheer after cheer on the part of the audience gave tribute to the pluck and daring of the hardy athletes and, when after a hair raising struggle, Virginia Vincent downed a brute of a soda cracker the welken was almost split. After a dogged conflict Team Three managed to wrest the victory from its sisters.

The athletes and others were being resuscitated with ice-cream when suddenly rain began to fall. All fifty-seven varieties of rain-cats and dogs, pitchforks, vi-o-lets, daff-o-dils and the kind that comes like sixty. But it was a gorgeous party while it lasted and the Y. W. C. A. is to be congratulated upon the originality and ease with which the program was managed.

COLLEGE JUNIORS ORGANIZE

Thirty-Three Answer First Roll Call.

The first meeting of the College Junior Class was held in the Student Committee room Thursday, Sept. 20, 1923. After each member of the class signed the Student Government pledge, officers for the coming year were elected. They are:

President—Kathleen Morgan.
Vice-President—Dorothy Askew.
Secretary and Treasurer—Flementine Peirce.
Reporter—Margaret Moore.

INTRODUCING MR. WARREN BOWMAN, B. A., M. A.

I was born at Dayton, Virginia, on a certain anniversary of Lee's surrender at Appomattox. I was the second of three boys, the most undiplomatic position that anyone can occupy in a family, and in my early training the rod was not spared.

When I became old enough I attended the poorest school in the State, continuing my education there for several months each year along with my increasing duties as a farmer, until such school ceased to exist. Some may say that I had no small share in bringing on the disaster that resulted in the closing of that school, and if this be true I count it my greatest contribution to education.

After donning long trousers I felt that the country school was too small a place for such a man as I had become, so I entered Bridgewater High School where I received my secondary school training. Being possessed with all the arrogance of youth, and aspiring to become a doctor, lawyer, minister, President of the United States, or something else (you can all see that I have become something else). I later entered Bridgewater College as green a freshman as ever enrolled in that institution. As I walked up to matriculate one of the seniors looked me over and said: "If Bridgewater College ever makes anything out of that bird she'll sure win a reputation." In spite of my initial impression I managed to secure my degree from that institution in 1920.

After graduation from college I took up teaching and was principal of McGeheysville High School, McGeheysville, Va., session 1920-21. In the fall of 1921 I entered upon graduate work in the Department of Education, University of Chicago, receiving the Master's degree in September, 1922. I continued my graduate studies in education at Chicago, for a year longer, working toward the Ph.D. degree. During the Summer Quarter, 1923, I was a member of the faculty of George Peabody College for Teachers, Nashville, Tennessee.

Having a natural longing for my native State, I welcomed the opportunity to come to Farmville, and permit me to say now—I'm glad I'm here. I like the town better as I see more of it and my first impression of the school was good. As for the girls, it appears that the flower of Virginia's womanhood is blossoming here.

WARREN BOWMAN.

HONOR ESSENCE OF THIS YEAR'S STUDENT GOVERNMENT

Student Body Takes Pledge

Our Student Government is Self Government. It is up to each girl in this school to realize that the responsibility of her honor rests on her own shoulder. It is personal honor that counts and that which builds up a school.

What is put in the first of life is put into the whole of life. That which we put in our college days determines the height of our standards in the years to come. Let Student Self-Government help you to make your start right so that the development of a character will be your chief aim as a young woman. To get the most out of life, always keep your conscience clear, then you can look the world in the face and possess that honor upon which Student Government is based. Character is a development which may be either upward toward infinite worth, downward toward infinite worthlessness, or outward toward infinite service, but the highest type of character demands personal honor. The Student Government is for the good of every member in helping to plant in the growing character of the young women of the school, those qualities which make womanhood all that it should be.

This year each girl in the Normal is expected to sign the following Pledge of the Student Government Association:

Ihaving a clear understanding of the basis and spirit of the Honor System whereby our college life is governed, pledge myself to abide by the regulations of student government, to uphold in every phase of college life the highest standard of personal honor, and to accept my responsibility for helping others to live up to such a standard.

The signing of this Pledge is your straight forward statement to accept the high standards of the School and it is up to each one, individually, to hold her standard to that of her Alma Mater. Every girl, when taking this pledge, should give serious consideration as to its meaning and worth, and should feel on her honor to live up to it and to see that her schoolmates do likewise. Any one would be insulted if accused of having no sense of honor, yet, if a girl does not keep this pledge she, herself, is making a statement to that effect to the world.

SUMMER SCHOOL SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

Besides the many hours of class work, the State Normal School offered the usual number of social functions, which were the following:

A "get-acquainted party" on the lawn under the auspices of the Y. W. C. A. made each girl feel that she was a member of one big family circle. Community singing and out-of-door games added to the pleasure of the occasion, ice cream being furnished by the Y. W. C. A.

A puppet show, gotten up by the students in the Language Methods class and given on the campus was an entertainment showing great originality. The children of the first and second grades had been organized into a band and gave several selections. An informal program on the campus followed, the main feature of which was student body singing. Miss Evelyn Barnes, assistant in music led the singing and also sang several solos.

A most enjoyable concert was given for the benefit of the Student Building by Miss Virginia Fore, pianist, and Miss Audrey Myers, vocalist. Miss Fore, daughter of Mrs. Sallie V. Fore of the home department, was formerly a student at this institution, and attends at present Peabody Conservatory of Music, Baltimore. Her interpretation was delightful. Miss Myers, of Lynchburg and New York, possesses a wonderfully clear soprano voice.

Another musicale was furnished chiefly by school talent. It included the following artists: Miss Mary Rieves Richardson, student in violin at Cornell College, Iowa; Mrs. Dorothy Bishop, pianist; Miss Olivia Pettaway, Episcopal soloist in Norfolk; and Miss Evelyn Barnes, vocalist.

Misses Lila and Wilhelmina London delightfully entertained the faculty at a lawn party at their home on Second Avenue.

Dr. and Mrs. J. L. Jarman entertained the faculty at a garden party. Refreshments consisting of watermelon and grapes were served on the beautiful grounds and in the pergola.

Last but not least should be mentioned the two baseball games between faculty and second year girls, the students winning after a hard fought game. The admission fee was used for the benefit of the Student Building.

INSPIRATIONS OF AN IMAGINATION

'Twas midnight and the rising sun
Stood sinking in the west,
The moon its shining had begun,
A star fell from its nest.

The morning dew was falling fast,
The evening primrose shed
Its salty tears upon the grass,
Where lollipops lay dead.

Amid the silent village hum,
The church's spire arose,
And perched thereon a spider spun
Its web—and nearly froze.

And from the hills a captain watched
This insect with delight
The eye of battle had been notched,
The soldier full of (r)r-right.

And from thenceon he learned that war
Was nothing less than play.
He sacked his troops and started home
And won the fight that day.

And from the highest stately pine
The nightin-gale did blow
The lightning thundered overhead,
It then began to snow.

And then to sleet, and then to freeze,
The rivers roared in play,
Volcanoes burst lava poured
And wiped the scene away.

SUMMER SCHOOL STUDENT GOVERNMENT

First Attempt at Self Rule Success.

A Student Government Association was organized at the Farmville Summer School for the first time. The officers were as follows:

Miss Olivia Pettaway—Pres.—Norfolk, Virginia.
Miss Louise Scarborough—Vice-Pres.—Carson, Virginia.
Miss Mildred West—Sec. and Treas.—Holland, Virginia.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASSES ORGANIZED

Enrollment Disappointingly Small.

The usual Sunday school rally for Normal School girls was held Saturday evening at 6:45 in order to organize the regular classes. Ministers, superintendents and teachers of various denominations met with the girls and outlined briefly the Bible courses to be given. The number enrolled in the different Sunday Schools was approximately as follows:

Methodist—175.
Baptist—106.
Presbyterian—65.
Episcopal—55.

Although this shows a very small number to enroll the first Sunday, it is hoped that the enrollment will become larger as the work is more fully organized.

CHIMES FROM THE SIX O'CLOCK BELL

Yes, we have no gym
We have no gym today!
We have beds and dressers and mirrors
But no gym have we!
We have Graham and Kendrick and Buford
But no gym have we!
We have Kemp and Pink and Fat Sister
But no gym today!
We fall in and fall out
But no gym have we!
We roll and jump and front dress
But no gym have we!
YES! We have no gym
But pray that we have rain.

THE IDEAL ROOMMATE

Does not snore—knows lots of men and is generous about it. Does not rave about the "one and only." Wears her own clothes. Is the same size as I am. Lends her clothes willingly. Uses only half of the dresser and a quarter of the closet. Is good for a new story every day. Takes our courses. Is better in them than we are ourselves. Does not turn on the light when she comes in late. Can find her own bed when she does come in. Wears her own shoes, and furnishes shoe polish.—Tiger.

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer, and these will not be published if the writer objects to the publications.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matters should come to the Editor in Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of their copies of The Rotunda will be appreciated.

The Rotunda has taken another step in its enlargement program. Besides minor technical changes, the paper has advanced to regular college size and type, thereby admitting more printed matter. The staff has taken this step anticipating that the support of the student body will be greater than the feeble interest in contributing displayed last year. The staff will, of course, do its best; it was elected to edit the school paper, and edit the school paper it will, but if the support and encouragement of the students remains at as low ebb as has formerly been the custom, a representative college paper in fullest sense of the word will be impossible.

Greetings! We are glad to have this opportunity of extending to you our hearty welcome. It is, however, to the new girls especially that we wish to extend a hand of welcome and friendship. The first few weeks of school are often the most important in the life of a student. The first sight of such a number of girls is surely overwhelming, and one feels that any individuality one may have possessed must be totally eclipsed, but this is not true. You lose yourself to find yourself a self which is far finer, broader, and bigger than that other self if you choose to take advantage of the innumerable opportunities of school life. Just think! you are at a home where you come in contact with eight hundred different personalities, each one of which is a volume within herself. But in reading these volumes, do not forget the real object and purpose of school. Some of us are apt to devote our entire time to class work while others are too prone to play all the time. But do you not think that the girl who gives part of her time to work, part to play, and part to school activities is the girl who will get the most out of her school life? Are you not going to be that type of girl? Your Alma Mater needs such girls. Will you not supply her needs?

FACULTY NOTES

The girl across the hall says she had a letter from a boy the other day who said that he was passing through town and would like to give her a ring, but that her mother wouldn't allow her to accept jewelry from men, so what was she to do?

AT THE EAGO THEATRE

Week October 1st-6th.

Show Will Start Each Night at 7:45.

MONDAY—HOOT GIBSON, in "THE GENTLEMAN FROM AMER-ICA." Here is a picture that is a mixture of comedy, drama and farce. The farce is very entertaining and the action is fast all the way through. It is the type of picture that will please all who see it. Also Pathe News.

TUESDAY—"ARE YOU A FAILURE?" A Special production enacted by an ALL Star cast headed by MADGE BELLAMY and LLOYD HUGHES. A comedy drama of youth, love and struggle. Three minds with but a single thought and the girl had to decide which two should beat as one.
Girls, you will just love this picture. Also 6th episode of the serial.

WEDNESDAY—"HERO." A picturization of Gilbert Emery's celebrated play. Portrayed by GASTON GLASS, BARBARA LaMAR and a most excellent cast. A slice of throbbing life, simple but dramatic. A story of peace heroes. A tale of valor and sacrifice performed far from the field of battle.
Heroism without the heroics. An exceptionally GOOD PICTURE. Also AESOP FABLE.

THURSDAY—THOMAS MEIGHAN, THEODORE ROBERTS, GLO-RIA SWANSON, LILA LEE, WESLEY BARRY and a host of other stars in THE BIG CECIL B. De MILLE PARAMOUNT SPECIAL PRO-DUCTION, "MALE AND FEMALE." This picture has been shown here before, but it is such a good production that we are bringing it back. BE SURE TO SEE IT. IT IS ONE OF THE BEST PICTURES EVER MADE. Also Fox News.

FRIDAY—"BEHOLD MY WIFE." Here is another BIG SPECIAL De MILLE PARAMOUNT PRODUCTION enacted by a very select cast of noted stars. Milton Sills heads the cast. This picture has also been shown here before. We consider it one of the best productions we have ever shown.
TAKE OUR WORD FOR IT, IT IS ONE OF THE BEST PICTURES
YOU HAVE EVER HAD THE PLEASURE OF SEEING. Also A GOOD COMEDY.

SATURDAY—"THORNS AND ORANGE BLOSSOMS." Another big special production portrayed by KENNETH HARLAN, and a fine supporting cast. It is known as the beauty picture. This is a picturization of Bertha
M. Clay's immortal story of smiles and tears. IT IS THE KIND OF A STORY THAT WILL APPEAL TO EVERY GIRL. Also episode 5 of THE JUNGLE GODDESS.

PERSONALS

Announcement is made of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Margaret Shackelford of Orange to Mr. Francis A. Walker, president of Woodberry Forest.

On August twenty-seventh Miss Lily Thornhill of Lynchburg was married to Mr. Clarence Reaves also of Lynchburg at Rockbridge, Maryland.

The Rotunda staff announces that Miss Cornelia Dickinson has been elected staff typist to fill the unexpired term of Miss Leona Lauck who did not return.

We notice with pleasure that Cousin Tommy, apparently in excellent health, is back on the job.

Miss Louise Scull, '23, visited her Alma Mater for the week end.

Miss Stuffy Wall, who attended Holins last year has returned to the Normal, expects to graduate with her class next year.

SPORTS

It will soon be time for the basket ball season to open once more. It will be interesting to know that of the thirteen members of last year's varsity squad ten members are back this year. They are: Misses Anna Belle Treake, "Teence" Bell, Mildred Hall, Julia Reid, Maude Bailey, Olive Smith, Celeste Whaley, Rosabelle Walton, Etta Sawyer, and Henrietta Hall. Of those who are not back this year Miss Mamie Sexton is teaching at Blackstone, Virginia, Miss Margaret Mathews is teaching at Portlock, Virginia, and Miss Elmer Stringfellow is attending Randolph-Macon College.

For the benefit of the new members of our student body we wish to say that when candidates are called for the various teams

Don't be bashful, and don't be shy. But put on your bloomers and have a try.

CLEF COLUMN

If you have songs prepare to shed one now or if you want to have one printed, drop your request in the slot of the door marked Rotunda.

For the tune of the following apply to Evelyn Barnes.

The Lilac Tree.

A little boy and a little girl in an ecstasy of bliss,
Said the little boy to the little girl,
"Pray give me just one kiss."
The girl drew back in great surprise
"You're a stranger sir" said she
"And I will give you just one kiss when the apples grow on a lilac tree."

The boy felt very sad at heart,
She was the only one;
The girl felt quite remorseful,
At the terrible wrong she had done.
So bright and early on the very next morn,

He was quite surprised to see
His little sweetheart standing in the garden
Tying apples on a lilac tree.

First successful attempt to make a stove in this country was at Lynn, Mass., in 1642, when the first blast furnace erected in America turned out a small round-bottomed kettle with a cover.

Something like 20,000,000 artificial roses were sold for charity on the occasion of the recent Alexandria Day observance in London. The custom of celebrating the day owes its origin to a Danish parson who aroused the charitable instincts of his flock by collecting dafodils from them and selling the flowers back so much a blossom.

There were some questions in geography required in the preliminary examinations for law students who aspired to admission to the bar. Among them was: "Name ten animals that live in the Arctic Zone?" "One young man wrote: "Five Polar bears and five Seals."

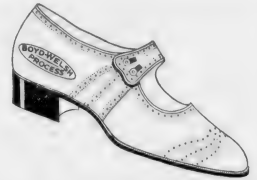

"What can I preach about next Sunday that will please the entire congregation?" asked the new minister.

"Preach about the evil of riches," replied the old deacon. "There isn't a member of the congregation that is worth over $2,000."

FABLE!

Once upon a time there was a lecturer who did not tell an audience of students that they were the leaders of the future.

Who did not say that their campus was the most beautiful and inspiring of any he had yet visited.

Who did not say "That reminds me of a story," etc., etc.

Who was satisfied with the press reports of his address.

CURIOSITY.

Most men think it a huge joke when they proclaim the greatness of woman's curiosity. A great number of us, we suspect, consider this claim a slam. We have argued with brothers, sweethearts, and fathers about it; but down in our hearts we have felt that, maybe, it was true, and we have resented it. A foreigner visiting in our country announces his intention of going with a party next year to make his third attempt to climb Mount Everest, the highest peak in the world. This is an extraordinary undertaking. No living being has ever looked down from that towering monument of Nature. It takes thirty-five days of walking over bare stone and earth to reach the foot of this mountain and the preparations for an ascent must equal those made for a military campaign. There are no levels and shelters on the mountain side. The cold is so bitter that men must wear electrically heated clothing; the wind is so terrific that all garments must be wind-proof; the air is so thin that oxygen must be inhaled to have life; so we read. Does any woman have greater curiosity than these men when they desire to reach the highest spot in the world?

Instead of criticising these men we praise them for trying to find out something new. This curiosity is progress. It leads women as well as men into new paths. It adds spice, thrills, and adventure to life. There is nothing wrong with this interest in nature and its welfare to people. So the next time you hear that women are more curious than men be thankful; your sex has been complimented.

Professor: "What is an oyster?"

Student: "An oyster is a fish built like a nut!"—Hurr.

Thunder-fish, inhabitants of the River Nile, give a sharp electric shock.

"Ah hah!" shrieked the monkey, as he clutched the most distant point of his tail, "this is the beginning of the end."

"Where are the officers' quarters?" asked the sweet young thing as she was being shown the barracks in Fort Howard. "In my pocket," answered the lieutenant as he rose from his knees and put his dice away.

Wife—Do you know it was 3 o'clock when you got in this morning?

Husband (half intoxicated)—It was 1 o'clock, because I heard the clock strike one three times, and I was positive it was 1 o'clock.

She—"I wouldn't marry you if you were the only man in the world!"

"Of course you wouldn't; you'd get killed in the rush!"

He: "Do you think that you could learn to love me?"

She: "I'm afraid not."

He: "Tis as I feared, too old to learn."—Jack o' Lantern.

He: "Don't you think the vote would make the women masculine?"

She: "Well, it hasn't had that effect on you."—Atlanta Constitution.

Mrs. B. and little daughter, on their way to butcher shop, witnessed the death of a little dog which had stopped to scratch himself. A car passed over him and killed him instantly.

"Now, dear," said Mrs. B., "you see what carelessness will do."

"But, mother," said little Alice, "I haven't any flees."—Atlanta Constitution.

Voice in the dark: Oh, Harold, dear, why did you turn out the light?

Harold: I wanted to see if my pipe was still lit.—Jester.

"I suppose your wife misses you a great deal?" inquired a lady of a commercial traveler.

"Well, no; for a woman, she has a remarkably straight aim," was the reply.

An inquisitive old lady was always waylaying the young minister in the street to ask him questions. One day she buttonholed him and said: "Mr. Brown, would you please tell me the difference between Cherubim and Seraphim?"

The minister thought wildly for a minute or two. Then he replied, with an inspiration: "Well, they did have a difference, I believe, but they have now made it up."—Pathfinder.

The following letter was received at one of the large grocery houses:

"Six weeks ago I started eating your corn syrup. After eating five cans I find my corns are no better."

"Colonel Brown seems to be very literary," remarked a visitor of the Brown household to the negro maid, glancing at a pile of magazines lying on the floor. "Yes, ma'am," replied the ebony-faced girl, "Yes, ma'am, he sholey am literary. He jes' nat'ally littahs things all over dis hyar house."

"Do you know why we call our language the mother tongue?"

"Because father never has a chance to use it."

He Picks Him.

Judge (to defendant)—Do you want to challenge any member of the jury? Ex-Prizefighter—Ah ain't feelin' jes' right, Judge, but ah don't mind goin' a couple o' roun's with that fat gem-mum in the co'ner.

SOPHISTICATED FRESHMEN ATTRACT NOTICE

Upper Classmen Indignant at Lack of Reverence.

Where are the grandeur that were the chief assets of the upper classmen? Echo answers—"Where?"

The cause for the question is our Freshmen class. In the first place, it is so large. Rumor has it that there are about four hundred registrants. What chance has Senior Dignity against such an army? Moreover, the new arrivals refuse to look recent. From the first they have assumed a nonchalant, blasé air which makes it impossible to regard them with the sympathy supposed to be due to shy, coddled maidens who are far away from mama's protecting arms for the first time.

Before leaving home we refreshed our memories with traditions and incidents for the entertainment of our future charges. School anecdotes were lost upon such sophisticated young women who look with a bored eye at Joan and refuse to be animated by an account of the Student Building or by the fact that Dr. Jarman is the possessor of a simonpure, perfectly genuine Phi Beta Kappa key.

As for the sisterly attitude which we were prepared to show, it is about as much appreciated as another boil would have been by Job. We came prepared to utter such comforting words as, "Now, dear, you will be all right in a day or two (patting the homesick child on the back). All of us feel badly at first. No, don't telegraph home. Your mother and father want you to stick." Instead, we thump on a door, and in a caustic voice seeking to squelch, demand, "What do you think this is—a contest for hyenas? Please stop this unseemly mirth long enough for us to sleep." Any one can have our friendly shoulders to weep upon, but we protest when the objects of our intended sympathy not only refuse to appear verdant but parade an air of tolerance and super-sophistication before us.

We are not complaining merely because we want to be looked up to, but because we were once scared and green and take pride in our former state. The traditions of our school demand that there be an appearance of newness about the newcomers. Let that tradition be upheld!

In this desert of nonchalance at least one oasis has been found. An inoffensive individual sidled into the home office, modestly approached a Sophomore seated there and inquired, "Is this where we sign up to go down town, and please, do we have to sign up when we come back, too?" The little dear was not quite smothered by the enthusiastic embrace bestowed upon her.

NOTICE

The College Junior Class isn't dead, merely dormant. Vesuvius slept for many years, so watch out for us in weeks to come.

Greatly to the chagrin of upper classmen, who felt that their coaching had gone for nothing, no Freshmen threw their laundry bags over the rotunda.

It is rumored that Bessie Meade Riddle stood before the notice "Please close the door" inside the Library for fifteen minutes one day figuring how she could follow instructions and at the same time get out.

Miss Mamie Sexton, who is visiting her Alma Mater, announced to an interested audience that she is in love.

INITIAL HIGH SCHOOL ASSEMBLY BEGINS CEMENTATION WORK

On Monday, October 1, the High School held the first assembly at which all grades were present, thus beginning the unifying work for the department which is one of the projects of the Principal of the Training School for the coming year. After devotional exercises, Mr. Bowman spoke to the students about self-organization in classes and athletics, stressing the need for class spirit and above all for High School spirit. Assembly is to be held every Monday at 10:15 at which the classes will alternate in taking charge.

GLEE CLUB ENTERTAINS

Dr. Myers and Quartette Guests of Honor.

The Glee Club entertained as their guests in the Tea Room Thursday, September 27, Dr. Myers, of the First Presbyterian Church, Greensboro, N. C., Mrs. Caldwell, Mrs. Clements, Miss Gohegan, Mr. Barnes and Mr. Troxhill, also of that church.

After supper, the group went to the auditorium where prayers were held. Following a reading and prayer, by Dr. Myers, the quartette, accompanied by Miss Gohegan, sang several selections. The quartette remained after prayers and sang some secular music. These received much applause, especially the duet by Mrs. Caldwell and Mr. Barnes. The singers showed the finish of their training both in vocal technique and in selecting the numbers.

SOPHS START NEW YEAR WITH OLD OFFICERS

Lyne, Bugg and Smith Re-elected.

At the first meeting of the Sophomore Class, on Tuesday, the twenty-fifth, class officers were elected and plans for the coming year discussed. The Sophs decided upon Tuesday as their meeting night and a motion, providing for the placing of placards announcing the meetings, was unanimously carried. The class officers are looking forward to a record year from the standpoint of attendance and achievement.

The following officers were elected: Miss Nancy Lyne—President.

Miss Elizabeth Bugg—Vice-President.

Miss Olive Smith—Treasurer.

Miss Anne Robertson—Secretary.

Miss Bessie Smith—Reporter.

The election of cheer leaders will not take place until after representatives for the Athletic Association have been chosen.

HYGIENE TEST CREATES SENSATION

Answers Reveal Strange and Wonderful Construction of Body.

To the great disgust and agony of her hygiene classes, Miss Graham gave an initial test the other day. The results were amusing. Some of the prize answers are given below.

1. What is the diaphragm?
 - a. The diaphragm is the sounding board in the ear.
 - b. The diaphragm is in the stomach.
 - c. The diaphragm is a skin partition in the body.
 - d. The diaphragm is a frame that contains the chest, lungs, ribs, etc.
2. Describe inspiration and expiration.
 - a. Inspiration is when you are inspired to do a thing and expiration is exactly opposite.
 - b. Inspiration starts in the mind.
3. What are tonsils?
 - a. Tonsils are poisonous sacks in the throat.
4. How many bones are contained in the spinal column?
 - a. The backbone has 183 bones.

CLEF COLUMN

You've probably heard this old one scores of times, but if you haven't, and want the tune, just ask Olive Smith. On second thought, we just remember that the tune is "Auld Lang Syne," so you needn't bother Olive.

STUDENT BODY MEETING

President Stresses Personal Responsibility.

The regular monthly meeting of the Student Body was held Monday night, September 24, after supper, in the Auditorium. The President spoke of a number of things which the Student Body has been lax in carrying out. Each girl is urged to carefully observe all rules and regulations of the Student Self-Government Association and begin at once to learn the lesson of co-operation with all that it means to the Normal.

MISS FORBES SPEAKS

Tuesday, September twenty-fifth, the girls who are especially interested in the teaching of geography in the upper grades, had a rare treat.

Miss Forbes, who is sent out by Grim and Company to the larger schools of the country, gave an interesting talk in chapel. Throughout she showed the value of the regional method in teaching geography.

This lecture was followed by two practical demonstrations in which Miss Forbes used the children of the sixth and seventh grades to illustrate how this regional method may be put in practice.

The girls who were able to attend these meetings felt the time had been very profitably spent.

Foreigners in New Orleans spent $180,000 last year to become naturalized Americans. There were 3000 of them and the various legal fees averaged $60 each. Under the new regulations, this expense will be reduced one-third.

ANNUAL METHODIST RECEPTION

College Girls and Faculty Enjoy Methodist Hospitality.

On Friday, Sept. 28, at 8 P. M. the Methodist Church and Sunday School entertained the faculty and Methodist students of the Normal School, at an informal reception in the Sunday School rooms.

The girls naturally were very prompt and arrived exactly at 8. Dr. Spooner, Mrs. Spooner and other members of the Sunday School received them. Finally they were all seated in the Sunday School room, the class rooms and in the balcony.

A delightful musical program was rendered, after which everybody proceeded to meet everybody else. If you don't believe it's easy to get acquainted in the Methodist Church ask Mae Parker, she'll tell you.

Refreshments were served, which we know all of the Normal girls, at least, enjoyed.

Everyone had a good time and looks forward to the next invitation.

A High School Dormitory?

As soon as we finish our Student Building we shall be confronted with another project which has already begun to impose itself upon our attention—a dormitory for the high school. Both college dormitory and cottages are now crowded to the fullest with a jumble of high school and college students. Necessarily, this crowding and mixing imposes certain restrictions upon the lower classmen which, while not unfair under the conditions, keeps them from getting from school life the most they have the right to expect. They have in no less a degree than college students the right to live with their classmates instead of being sandwiched in wherever they fit, the right to have opportunities and privileges.

"Live and Let Live."

Once upon time there lived in a certain hen house a hen that was very proud of herself. The other hens and roosters of the yard had all told her how very beautiful her feathers were. But as she was straightening her feathers one day, unfortunately, one of them dropped to the ground. A neighbor, noticing this, exclaimed, "Oh, you've lost one of your pretty feathers!" Now, the young hen was very vain since she had been admired so much by the entire barnyard, and she said, "Ah, that is all right, I am just as beautiful if not more so." As the days passed, the hen became more and more popular and she told her friends that it was because she had plucked a feather from her body, thereby making herself lovelier than before.

Her enemies—and friends too—began to talk about her. "The idea of plucking out one's feathers to gain the admiration of the roosters!" By and by the story reached another barnyard and the chickens there gathered in groups to talk of the vain hen who had plucked six feathers from her body in order to be more beautiful. Finally the story was carried to still another yard and this time the tale ran that a hen had picked nearly all her feathers in order to become more beautiful in the eyes of the men of the barnyard. On went the story to the ears of another yard where hens met together to exclaim over the marvelous story of two hens who had deliberately sat up and picked out all their feathers and who had frozen to death, paying the penalty of vanity!

At last the story came back to the little hen who had started the whole thing and when she heard the story as it was now stated, the shock was so great she died.

A silly little story, in a way, perhaps, but it is quite true in its moral. Exaggeration is one of the worst evils that infect the Normal. We hear a story about a girl, one of us repeats it, enlarging upon it. She in turn repeats it to another who, in passing it on again (confidentially of course) puts on more frills and furbelows. On it goes until the shock is truly great to the girl who is the unwilling and unknowing, yet principal character in the story.

Let us be reminded of this little verse before we tell another "what we know about her."

"If I am tempted to reveal
A tale some one has told
About another, let it pass
Before I speak, three gates of gold.

Three narrow gates:

First, "Is it true?"
Then, "Is it needful?"
In my mind
Give truthful answer, and the next
Is last and narrowest, "Is it kind?"

And if to reach my lips at last
It passes thru these gateways three
Then I may tell the tale nor fear
What the results of speech may be."

Y. W. C. A. NEWS

The membership committee of the Young Women's Christian Association assisted by members of the cabinet during the week of October 1 conducted a membership campaign. The program at prayers for the week was as follows:

Monday, October 1—"The Spirit of the Association"—Miss London.
Tuesday, October 2—"Our Y. W. C. A. Work in School"—Agnes McDuffie.

Wednesday, October 3—"What the Y. W. C. A. Means to a Member"—Flemtine Pierce.

Thursday, October 4—"The Responsibility of a Y. W. C. A. Member"—Julia Alexander.

Friday, October 5—Y. W. C. A. Pageant.

Owing to the fact that Miss Frances Saunders did not return to school this season, Miss Julia Alexander was elected to fill the vacancy of secretary.

AT THE EACO THEATRE

Week October 8th-13th.

MONDAY AND TUESDAY—GLORIA SWANSON and an excellent supporting cast is the SPECIAL PARAMOUNT PICTURE, "MY AMERICAN WIFE." A love drama set in a tropical land where passion and politics are the favorite sports. With Gloria in all her shimmering beauty, the center of it all, and handsome Antonio Moreno as her hot blooded Spanish lover. A breezy American girl winning love and happiness mid hot Spanish passion and intrigue—that's Glorious Gloria in this silken romance. Never was the star so wonderfully gowned, so warmly alluring. THERE WILL BE A SPECIAL MATINEE on this picture, Monday at 4 o'clock. Pathe News Monday and 7th episode of serial Tuesday.

WEDNESDAY—CORRINE GRIFFITH in "A VIRGIN'S SACRIFICE." This is a story that is stronger than the average picture story. It has to do with the sacrifice made by a daughter to save her mother from disgrace. Also one of those good AESOP FABLES.

THURSDAY AND FRIDAY—"YOUR BEST FRIEND." A special picture with a fine cast headed by Vera Gordon. A dramatic film classic containing humor, pathos and romance interwoven in a stirring conflict between a mother and her daughter-in-law. "YOUR BEST FRIEND" reveals a very precious pearl of palship—a palship that is thrown into the maelstrom of two socially ambitious adventuresses who endeavor to destroy the beauty of eternal love. And thereby hangs the tale of this soul-stirring attraction. IT IS A PICTURE THAT WILL APPEAL TO THE HEART OF EVERY GIRL, because it is a delightful and engrossing picture of parental love. Fox News Thursday and a GOOD comedy Friday.

SATURDAY—FRANK MAYO, supported by a distinguished cast in "THE BOLTED DOOR." IN HER OWN HOME THERE WAS ONE ROOM SHE MUST NOT ENTER—anything else that she wanted, anything that money or social position could buy, she could have! But since their wedding day, that door had been bolted. What was hidden behind it? What would happen if that door were opened? And then it did open—and in the twinkling of an eye the whole course of their lives was changed! An emotional story that exerts a powerful appeal! See it! Also 6th episode of THE JUNGLE GODDESS and SPECIAL MUSIC. Matinee at 4 o'clock.

Admission to Normal Students, who purchase tickets at school 20 cents to each show.

MISS DAVIS.

Miss S. Elizabeth Davis, of Mississippi, has been added to the faculty. In personality, in training, in experience, Miss Davis is unusually well adapted to the role of an English teacher in a normal college. She holds an M. A. degree from George Peabody College for Teachers. She has had a rich and varied experience in teachers' colleges, having been identified with such institutions in Alabama, in South Carolina, and in Texas. She has also been a member of the English department of George Peabody College for Teachers during the summer terms. Miss Davis is well known in academic circles as an unusually successful teacher of composition and a rare interpreter of literature.

MISS GRAHAM.

Some years ago, the last member of the Graham family was born at Orient Heights, a suburb of Boston, Massachusetts.

My brother and I finished the same year at the Blackington Grammar School where we had completed the nine years' course. We both decided to be pals and so decided to take up Manual Training as our profession.

A poem about the Algebra teacher changed my plans, so I changed over to the Business Course. I became captain of my class Basket Ball Team and also of the Winthrop Independent Girls' Basket Ball Team.

My High School Principal decided that I would possibly be interested in Physical Education. After graduating from the High School I entered the Sargent Normal School.

While at Sargent, I was a member of the Varsity Basket Ball Squad and Team, Captain and Coach of my Class Basket Ball Team which defeated Varsity, Captain of Second Soccer, Captain of Cross Ball Team, a member of the Hockey, Baseball, Cricket and La Crosse Teams, rowed on the Second Crew, and broke the Sargent record in Hop, Step and Jump. I was a member of the Cotillion Club, Treasurer of the Commuters' Club and Vice-President of the Athletic Association which was the highest office in that association an underclassman could hold.

With my diploma safely stored away with the rest of the family treasures, I felt capable of conquering new worlds. I started out by teaching on the playgrounds at Winthrop, Mass. for two summers. Then I went to Nawassing, N. Y., and served as Supervisor of Physical Education in 38 schools. I coached basket ball and taught general gymnastics at the Morgan Memorial, Boston, and then served as Head Councillor at the Cunningham Girls' Camp.

Then I went West. For three years I ate beans fourteen times a week, and acted as supervisor of Physical Education in the schools of Bloomington, Indiana. This past summer I had charge of a Playroom Vacation School among the foreigners at East Boston.

I then decided to right about-face from Indiana, column-right and come to the State Normal School for Women. I have enjoyed the work immensely ever since I came and hope that my first impression will be a lasting one.

GIRLS 'N ME.

Some girls are evermore attractive,
They are always peppy an' gay,
But me,—I just sit an' wonder,
How they think of the things they say.

I admit I sometimes feel jealous,
But onward each blithely goes
And little does she care what I think
Of all the powder she puts on her nose.

This girl is always busy
And merry and witty all the time,
But as for me I just warn't made that way,

I haven't got the wit of a dime.

I sure do admire a pious flirt
I wish I could be that way,
But I'm gettin' more 'n more serious
Every day in every way.

There's another type of girl that's attractive

And it's all on account of her looks,
'Cause she can sit still and look pretty,
And her face'll tell you more'n would books.

She puts in a word every now'n then,
And she has a slow sorta "line,"
And they all fall for it right away,
Gee, I wish they'd fall for mine.

I sure do admire a goodlooking girl,
I wish I could be that way,
But I'm gettin' more'n more ugly
Every day in every way.

I wish I could be sorta pretty
Or else peppy an' gay an' carefree
But instead,—well I ain't nobody,
'Cept just plain ol' commonplace me.

"THE DAY" IN NEAR FUTURE

Student Building Nears Completion.

Hol on the horizon there looms a new edifice, which we, of the Normal School, call our Student Building.

On returning in September, we were mightily disappointed to find that its completion was merely in sight. However, the progress made in its construction since we left it in its foundation stage makes us realize that "the day" is not far off. The wonder of wonders to behold is the new, shining, roof which fairly dazzles us. Were it not for the bits of red paint daubed against the glitter, we would think that that structure had a heavenly halo around it. Or is it roofed with gold? We can not tell. We do know that it is a living thing, for the spirit of loyalty dwells there. Where there is spirit there is life. Who can deny that our building lacks the spirit of loyalty? And certainly the Student Building is for us, because it was built by us, thru Dr. Jarman without whom there would be no Student Building.

In the meanwhile, its future dormitory occupants are stowed away in the erstwhile gymnasium, with a beautiful gilt mirror that surely could grace a drawing room.

Everybody is interested in the Student Building; money not only comes in, it flows in; not in spurts and dashes but in a steady stream. It was happily and contentedly stated that, since January 1, there had not been a day when some contribution, cash or check had not made its appearance. Dr. Jarman is proud of such a record, and since we are proud when he is proud, and happy when he is happy, we all have smiling faces when "J. L. J." announces another gift.

Now we school ourselves to patience and await that long-looked for November 1, when the Student Building will be open and ready for use. School life looks bright for us.

Contributions to the Student Building Fund to date are:

Mr. Cofin Stokes.....	$7.50
Mr. Frank Walker	2.00
Mr. J. B. Wall.....	25.00
Mr. Frank Blanton.....	5.00
Cash	4.00

Y. W. C. A. COMMITTEES TRAINED

A training course for the committee members of the Y. W. C. A. was conducted during the week of October 8 for the purpose of better informing all committee members of both the work of the National Association and the Student Association, special emphasis being laid upon the particular work of the several committees.

GETTING BACK TO NATURE

Girls Worst Barb-Wire in Severe Combats.

A large number of the Freshman class is at present occupied in the pleasant pastime of "getting back to nature." Fat girls, skinny girls, tall girls and short girls have deserted the popular loading spots of the school such as the monument, the campus and Gilliam's, and if you want to find them you will have to tramp down the railroad track or over to the meadow or along Narrow Gauge. Why the unusual energy and exertion put forth so suddenly, do you ask? Well, with such a leader and instructor as Miss Stubbs, we would be willing to tramp to Willis Mountain for specimens. Then, too, those walks are real fun. You know, a great many city girls, and even some from the country have never known before what wonderfully interesting things Mother Nature has given us, and we are just waking up to the charm of the fields covered with goldenrod, the slopes clouded with many-colored asters, and above all the trees just beginning to change their green frocks for the gay-hued fall ones. Even though we have to scramble over fences, jump ditches and perform the most daring acrobatic feats, we comfort ourselves with the thought that the fat girls will get thin, the thin ones fat and thus the whole course gradually evolve into things of beauty and joys forever.

JUNIOR CLASS HOLDS REGULAR MEETING

McCorkle Elected Honorary Member.

Pep, mirth, and good humor were running rife at the Junior Class meeting on Tuesday night. But with all the merriment much work was accomplished.

The all important necessity of electing a "man" was taken up, and Mr. McCorkle was elected to hold the much honored position of the Junior Man.

The class has grown to such proportions that it is entitled to two more representatives on the Student Council. Eight girls were nominated, four of which will be sent back by the Council to the class for the election of the two representatives.

Miss Erna Shotwell was unanimously elected representative to the Athletic Council. We feel sure that the Council will enjoy her presence and benefit by her good work. Ahem! Tuesday night was selected as the regular meeting night.

MOORE FOR ATHLETIC COUNCIL

Miss Janie Washington Moore has been elected Senior representative to the Athletic Council.

Miss Marian Thomas is at home in Cumberland.

DR. TRALLE LECTURES AT COLLEGE

Gives Series of Inspiring Talks At Chapel Exercises.

Dr. Henry Edward Tralle delivered a series of lectures at chapel, October 2, 3 and 4. He was the principal speaker at the Sunday School and B. Y. P. U. Institute held at the Farmville Baptist Church this week.

Dr. Tralle has written several standard text books on the subject of Sunday School pedagogy. He also has written some poetry.

Dr. Tralle's first lecture, "An Attractive Personality" was enjoyed most by the Student Body. In this lecture Dr. Tralle gave ten characteristics of a good teacher's personality. The points he made were: sincerity, scholarship, appearance, vitality, address, reserve, fairness, enthusiasm, optimism, and sympathy.

Wednesday morning Dr. Tralle spoke on "Genius." A quotation from a poem that he gave during his lecture gives the gist of his speech, "Not from the clouds, but from the crowds."

The third morning Dr. Tralle took for his subject, "Is Life Worth Living?" In this speech he made the statement that "whether or not life is worth living depends on the liver."

While in Farmville Dr. Tralle visited the Training School and several of the professional classes. Dr. Tralle left Friday morning for New Jersey.

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer, and these will not be published if the writer objects to the publications.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matters should come to the Editor in Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of their copies of The Rotunda will be appreciated.

Why Not Observe the Point System?

We are supposed to have a point system whereby no monopoly of offices by a dozen or so girls is allowed. Some think this regulation unreasonable because some girls seem best suited to fill important positions and should therefore have them. But is this fair to either the girl who does the work or to the student body?

First, consider the girl. If she holds too many offices, she is going to neglect her school work or her outside work or have the severe case of nervous prostration which an office-hog deserves. No normal girl can endure the strain of being the big dog in every line of activity. She should refuse to outdo her capacity and by so doing allow others the privilege of helping in our life here. Some other girl can do it just as well even if it is a blow to the vanity to think so.

An unequal distribution of labor is not fair to the whole student body. Frequently this is caused by the willingness on the part of the majority to shift all burdens on the shoulders of a few who are well known as active workers, not bothering to find out the good qualities of more diffident but just as capable girls. This certainly should not be the case. Everybody can do something and should have some outside work to do for which she is responsible. As teachers, it is good training which will help later on.

We suggest that the ancient and honorable officer, the recorder of the point system, should get on the job again as soon as possible.

"Silence is Golden"

These three hackneyed words, "Silence is Golden" have no better application than to our attitude during the religious services in our daily school life. Surely they are few enough for us to lay aside our other interests during those few minutes spent with God, to be silent, in order that whether we feel in a worshipful mood or not we may not hinder others in their contact with Him, so necessary for all of us in these days of hurry and confusion.

Let us remember then, Silence in the reading of His Word, Silence during a prayer, that is the reverent attitude. Then, instead of applauding so heartily and vigorously when sacred music is rendered, can't we show as much appreciation and enjoyment by a silence so complete that Our Father may know that we are honoring Him with our hearts?

BASKETBALL SEASON OPENS

200 Freshmen Expected to Answer Summons.

Basketball, always popular at the Farmville Normal will again be the chief topic of conversation when Miss Buford, Athletic director, calls out the Freshman squad. The call will go forth this week and two hundred Freshmen are expected to answer the summons. Miss Buford will divide these into squads and with the assistance of Dr. Fraser and of the other members of the department of physical education and also of the three year varsity players, will work them into shape in order to select the Freshman squad. Class games promise to be most exciting as there is enough material in each class for a team.

The prospect for intercollegiate basketball seems excellent. The varsity squad of 1923 lost only three of its members; and of the ten remaining players, which will form the 1924 squad, seven are monogram players.

The Athletic Council, the Varsity, Monogram Club, and the Athletic director welcome most heartily players from high schools and likewise players from other colleges. May they get the school spirit and give to Farmville the best of their efforts.

HISTORY RECORDED AT INFIRMARY

Miss Tucker isn't the only person in the school who knows ancient history. Just let us refer you to Dr. Field for any information that you may wish to know about the ancient, medieval, modern or future history of any of our young, unsophisticated, Freshmen.

Also, if your curiosity is "running wild", ask the innocent Freshmen the methods by which Dr. Field secured this all important information, and her feelings on the subject.

As one of our schoolmates said, after returning from the Infirmary, "Oh, I'm so relieved, there's nothing wrong except my teeth have got to be fixed, I'm slightly deaf in one ear, flat-footed, and my scapulae stick out too far! Hurrah!"

But just wait until you reach the years of discretion and become a Junior or Senior and it falls your lot to

AT THE EACO THEATRE

Week October 15th-20th.

MONDAY—"THE INSIDE OF THE CUP"—A Cosmopolitan Production, from the world famous novel by Winston Churchill. A story that turns the dregs of life to the sparkling wine of happiness. This picture bares the truth about our frivolous young folks and our fashionable old folks. One of the strongest pictures ever filmed. For the benefit of THE LADIES' AID SOCIETY OF THE BAPTIST CHURCH. Also PATHE NEWS. Matinee at 4 o'clock.

TUESDAY—WILLIAM DUNCAN and EDITH JOHNSON in "THE FIGHTING GUIDE." A picture with three big punches—whirlwind action, magnificent scenery, and exquisite comedy. Beautifully photographed in a scenic paradise, and with a thrill or a laugh in every foot. He-man stuff, from the borderland of things, where emotion runs deep. Also 8th episode of serial.

WEDNESDAY—"THE POWER OF A LIE." Enacted by an all star cast. "You are not the woman you say you are! Admit to this court that you have lied to save the man you love!" Who was this mysterious, beautiful woman who had burst in upon the trial in an attempt to exonerate the prisoner? And why had she waited until the very last moment? DON'T MISS THIS. Also AESOP FABLE.

THURSDAY AND FRIDAY—"RICH MEN'S WIVES"—A society drama of power that will tug at your heart strings. It is a SPECIAL PRODUCTION enacted by a fine cast, in which is included HOUSE PETERS, CLAIRE WINDSOR, ROSEMARY THEBY, GASTON GLASS and many others. This is a play of TODAY—the story of a social butterfly, whose wings are broken on the wheel of jealousy, revelry and intrigue. BIG IN THEME—THRILLING IN DRAMATIC ACTION—CHARMING IN EMOTIONAL APPEAL. This is one of the best pictures that has been at the Eaco Theatre in a long time. It is the kind of a picture that every girl will enjoy. Fox News Thursday and a GOOD COMEDY Friday.

SATURDAY—HOOT GIBSON in "KINDLED COURAGE"—The story of a hero who has an inborn timidity, which amounts almost to cowardice. After a sequence of logical happenings, however, he conquers his fear, and becomes as valiant as the next man. IT IS A GOOD PICTURE and one that should win any audience's sympathetic interest. Also 7th episode of "THE JUNGLE GODDESS."

Admission to Normal Students, 20 cents to each show.

help Dr. Field. Did you know that there were so many grunts, groans, aches, or pains in the whole school?

And some people don't ever have any particular birthday, month or day. Just the year 1904 or 1903 is enough for them. They celebrate the event just any old time.

Why in the world should you rack your brain to remember what your ancestors died with, or when you had the chickenpox, or were vaccinated?

While taking these records one has a very good chance to study expressions and voices.

The door opens a crack, and "a wee sma' voice" says, "Do—I—come—in here?" And then after being assured that she does she sits down like she's sitting on pins or eggs. The examination commences.

When Dr. Field begins examining the spine anybody would think that a record Japanese earthquake was in progress, from the way that the young victim shivers and shakes.

But "expectation is half of realization" and even if you do feel like a shorn lamb during the process it's soon over and you have something exciting to inflict on your friends for a few days to come, and then it's forgotten until the next September.

EXPRESSIONS INSPIRE REPORTER

The breakfast bell, the dinner bell, the supper bell—which is most welcome? Each is followed with a rush pell-mell for the dining room. But with what different expressions the girls enter and go to their respective tables! To be the first one in the dining room and see each one pass in, certainly affords a good opportunity for the study of human nature.

Here comes the most common type of all. Hurrying faster and faster, with a look of starvation on her face—eager for anything even if it is pink mule. Next comes that slow, weary type, who doesn't care whether there is anything to eat or not, just drifting in with the crowd, not casting her eyes to right or left to see what the menu is, simply walking aimlessly forward, with a far away dreamy look in her eyes and an "I don't care what I get, you can't please me", look in her face.

Still they come. This one looks anxiously at the first table, her eyes almost popping to see what we have for dinner. Up goes her nose, down comes the corners of her mouth. What an expression! You can dimly guess she's disgusted with beans.

Here is the worn out student who looks as though she can hardly drag. The corners of her mouth droop, her eyes are heavy, so on the whole her expression is one that calls for sympathy.

The last arrivals now hurry in. Here the new girls may easily be told from the old. The former are out of breath, and one look into their eyes tells you they were frightened almost to death, by the fear of being locked out. The latter walk serenely in looking calm and at ease, not at all hurried, in fact rather tickled that they have been the last in and have not had to stand about waiting.

Note (The reporter would have liked to describe the eating expressions of the students but the terrific rattle of chairs being pulled back and the merry thunder of girlish voices so confused him that he felt incapable of further mental effort.)

A notable society event of the summer in Lynchburg was the marriage, on June 27, of Miss Langhorne Dabney Lewis to Mr. Herbert Stanley Kellam, of Norfolk.

ALUMNAE NOTES

During the summer, many Farmville graduates deserted the ranks of teachers to enter "the holy state of matrimony." On June 21 a pretty wedding was solemnized at "Woodland", Phillips, Virginia, when Miss Fannie Lee Bugg became the bride of Mr. J. Floyd Leonard of Richmond. Their home at present is on the Hopkins Road, Richmond.

Miss Madeline Warburton and Rev. Mr. Carswell were married in Williamsburg June 26. Mrs. Carswell was for five years principal of the Cartersville High School and Mr. Carswell has been pastor of Presbyterian Church there for three years.

Miss Julia Jones is teaching in Charlottesville this session. Misses Mary Forbes and Grace Bailey are located in Holland, and Miss Hettie Richardson is at Cluster Springs. Miss Katherine Watkins has returned to Fairmont, West Virginia, for the winter. Miss Emily Clark is studying in the New England Conservatory of Music, Boston.

Miss Margaret Finch taught in the Episcopal School at Nora, Virginia, for six weeks during the summer.

Dr. Mary Evelyn Brydon, formerly resident physician here, now director of the Bureau of Child Welfare of the Virginia State Board of Health, will represent this State at the first annual meeting of the American Child Health Association, to be held in Detroit in October. Dr. Brydon will be one of more than 600 delegates representing all sections of the United States and some foreign countries, and she is expected to take an active part in the discussions, which will embrace all phases of child health.

Misses Frances Baskerville, Clara Mohaupt, and Cora Gill are visiting in Worham.

"Slinkers"

Flappers have cancelled flapping and are slinking.

They are wearing long mummy skirts, rubber heels and noiseless lip rouge.

BUBBLES FROM THE AQUARIUM

Why the following question should be asked I do not know, anyway it is enough that it was asked.

"What do you give babies when they cry?"

Pink, rising slowly from the depths of undisturbed? (only occupants of the Gym can appreciate the question mark) slumber came forth with the dull answer, "Arsenic."

Anna Branch: "Hello, Doris, how are you this morning?"

Doris is the proctor in the "Aquarium" and is supposed to make the rest of the fish, I won't call them gold fish because things made of gold are usually good, walk, or at least swim in the straight and narrow path.

Doris: "Why how do you do, Anna Branch?"

Anna Branch: "As I please mostly, thank you."

Kemp: "These almonds surely are good, let's get another jar."

Giraffe: "They'll kill you for water."

Kemp: "They needn't do that, I'll give them a drink."

Speaking of the conscience—why none of you have such a conscience as this.

Miss Hodgkin informed us the other night that she was going to take a pencil and paper to bed every night so that she could write her name down and report herself.

Slinkers wear flat-footed shoes and shuffle along like turtles. This new fashion comes from Paris where anything is all right if it is wrong.

Last year flappers wore short skirts and stepped out like track inspectors. This season they are all tied up in bundles of long dresses and take two inch slinks.

Looks like next spring they will be wearing strait-jackets and marking time.

High Street is parade grounds for slinkers who are spreading their feet out like fans.

For three nights the family had been much harassed by the noises produced by the new roomer. As a result of the steady vibrations coming from his room, much of the plastering had fallen, a handsome vase had been knocked to the floor and shattered, and Mother was a nervous wreck. Father felt the necessity of remonstrating. "See here," he growled one evening on meeting the roomer descending the steps, "there's no sense in all the fuss you kick up every night." "Oh, sir, I weesh it were posseble that I stop, but as you see"—and with a shrug of the shoulders he drew from his pocket a bottle on whose label was written "Take two night running and skip a night."

TRAVELERS CLUB EXPECTS TO WANDER FAR

Original Purpose of Organization Strictly Maintained.

The need for the Travelers Club was seen by students two years ago who felt that they wanted to know more about the life and customs in other countries than they could learn from geography classes.

These instrumental in beginning this club—whom we might call charter members—were Misses Rice, Dietrich, Carrie Spradlin and Lennie Blankenship. They thought it wise to have such an organization in which the members pay nothing.

The first year excellent programs which were enjoyed by all were given. There was a talk on a Trip to China given by a little boy from the Training School who had been to China. Among other programs was a Trip to Washington, D. C.

The second year, various girls and members of the faculty were asked to give accounts of their travels. Some of the programs consisted of talks by: Miss Barlow on her trip to Europe; Miss Edwards—Constantinople; Miss Norris—California; Helen Miller—Canada; Kitty Redford—Porto Rico; Katherine Smith—Mexico.

The programs for some meetings are advertised; some are surprises.

This year we are anticipating a talk by Miss Everett, a member of the faculty, who has been to the Philippines. This will be our first program followed by many other interesting talks.

These meetings are open to anyone interested. Announcements will be made before all meetings. The large attendance has shown appreciation and interest, so you are assured of an enjoyable experience.

Y. W. HOLDS RECOGNITION SERVICE

Lighting Candle Symbolizes Desire for Fellowship and Service.

One of the most beautiful and impressive services of the Y. W. C. A., the recognition service, was held Tuesday, October 9 in the Auditorium, at which time new members were formally received into the Association. The Auditorium was lighted only with candles. The cabinet, with lighted candles, and the committee members formed the procession, singing "Onward Christian Soldiers." After words of welcome by the president, each new member came forward and lighted her candle from one held by a member of the cabinet. After a prayer by the vice-president, all filed out. The girls in pure white, the soft light and the music converted the scene into a real prayer; a prayer that each member keep burning in her heart as brightly as the candle in her hand the desire for Christian fellowship and service.

FRESHMEN DISPLAY INGENUITY

Intelligence Test Shows Inventiveness if Nothing Else.

Interesting facts gleaned from the Freshman intelligence test held October 2, by Mr. Grainger:

Mussolini: Famous artist; British musician; foreign minister of U. S.; a famous Irishman.

Carburetor: An important part of a Ford engine.

Bolshevist: One who is neither a Republican nor a Democrat.

Rhur: New kind of Russian money.

Ku Klux: An organization to keep peace in the members' families.

Robert and Perkin Garrett: Athletes; inventors; escaped convicts.

Hiram Johnson: U. S. minister to France; Prohibition figure; "Pussy-foot"; Governor of New York.

Hiram and Magnus Johnson: Poets; athletes; text-book writers; brothers; famous ball players; murderers of Richmond man, named Robinson.

Corfu: Went under the sea in Japanese disaster; newly discovered island in Pacific Ocean.

Stanley Baldwin or "Standard Baldwin": President of college; President of France; maker of pianos; author; biologist; noted naval officer; baseball star; head of detective agency; discoverer of Asia; "Stanley Baldwin is a merchant in Farmville and he might be also a discoverer."

Five International Events of summer:

1. Harding died.
2. Coolidge made president.
3. Harding Memorial Stamp made.
4. Great earthquake "Over There."
5. Marines have sham battle at Augusta Military Academy, August.

JAPANESE GARDEN FEATURE OF FLOWER SHOW

Many Enjoy Instrumental and Vocal Program.

The third annual Flower Show was held at the Farmville Armory Oct. 11 and 12.

The Armory was attractively decorated in green and gold, with booths formed of arches. These booths sold candies, flowers and needle work. In the rear of the exhibit there was arranged a Japanese garden with Japanese umbrellas and lanterns. Delightful suppers were served here to a number of town people and Normal school girls. A concert of instrumental and vocal music added charm to the pleasures of the evening. Many prizes were awarded to the people of Farmville and the surrounding community. The proceeds from the show go to the associate charities; they are used where most needed to relieve suffering.

Did you ever wonder
If all the girls know,
That every time we see
Them going into a drug store
And purchasing a
Hairnet
That we know just what They know?
—Jack o'Lantern.

MYSTERY OF OVER-NIGHT MUTE SOLVED

Victim Gives Explanation and Moans of Self Pity.

By dint of much persuasion our reporter finally extracted the following statement from a certain member of the Senior class whose mysterious and suddenly acquired inability to speak puzzled the students of this institution for some days. At the end of that time the victim's voice returned and she was able between gusts of enthusiastic disgust to give the interview which we have the honor of printing and to which we have the exclusive rights.

"I am long suffering and meek to a fault, but consider that the experience was yours! When I have finished, I want you to tell me quite frankly if the awfulness of the situation wasn't great enough to cause a saint to dash around in small circles emitting shrill cries of grief and horror.

Have you ever awaked one morning with the sun shining in your face and with the feeling that "all's right with the world?" The night before you had an inspiration and had studied each lesson with great intensity, perhaps that was the reason of such an exultant feeling. You go through your toilet with more care than usual and no one bothers you to borrow a pin (safety, straight, or hair) or a hair net.

You start down to breakfast; on the way you are detained by a friend who has some questions to ask. You frame your mouth for the answer, you open your mouth to utter the answer—no sound comes. Then follows a fit of coughing and clearing of throat. Again you attempt to make a sound and fail. A black cloud of despair covers you and all you can think of is, "I have lost my voice."

Ah! These cruel, kind friends who are so sympathetic and insist on asking you a thousand questions as to how you caught such a cold, when you lost your voice, did you ever lose it before, will it come back, and so on until you feel as if you will scream from sheer insanity. There are also those kind, kind friends who prescribe for your cold. And not one of the many prescriptions would you dare even think of, let alone take.

You go to class and hear your name called. You cough, you sneeze, you clear your throat, all in an attempt to answer "present." Finally you wave your arm madly in the air and punch the girl next you in the ribs so she will answer for you. She answers, but instead of saying "Present," she says, "Miss - - is here, but she has lost her voice and can't speak." The lady wearily drags by and all of those lessons so carefully prepared go unanswered.

The speaker choked on a sob, and the reporter, too overcome to listen to more, staggered out into the night.

He—"Why do you give me the cold shoulder these days?"
She—"Well, now, Billy it's your fault that it's cold."

—Froth.

KERNS CONCERT COMPANY AT NORMAL

First Lyceum Number Largely Attended.

On Wednesday evening, October 10, the first number of the Lyceum Course was given in the auditorium of the State Normal School. The Kerns Concert Company rendered an evening of pleasure for the music lovers of the town and school. The company consists of Miss Grace Kerns, lyric soprano, Miss Alma La Palme, violin-cello, and Mr. Edward C. Harris, pianist.

Miss Kerns is nationally known as one of America's leading concert sopranos. Like most young singers it was her hope to appear in opera, but such few opportunities afforded for appearances in opera caused her to abandon the idea and devote herself to concert work.

Miss La Palme has attained the reputation of being the leading woman cellist in the New England States. She played with impeccable technique and a warm rich tone that arouses her hearers to enthusiasm.

One of the most important factors in a concert is the accompanist. Mr. Harris is indeed all that one should be. He is rapidly becoming known as a composer and Miss Kerns presented some of his most beautiful songs last evening.

DRAMATIC CLUB PREPARES FOR GOOD YEAR

New Girls Soon to Be Given Try-Out.

At a recent meeting of the Dramatic Club, the following officers were elected: Mary Friend, President; Roberta Hodgin, Vice-president; Anne Smith and Mabel Mays, Property men.

These girls interested in this organization will be given an opportunity to reveal any histrionic ability they may possess at the annual try-out for new members next week.

We understand that Miss Spear is negotiating for a very interesting royalty play. If, as the little bird whispered, it is really and truly a Barrie play, we'll have difficulty controlling our impatience until the great event takes place in November.

STUDENT VOLUNTEER COUNCIL MEETS

The Council of the Virginia Union of the Student Volunteer Movement met in this institution October 12 through 14, for the purpose of discussing questions of interest to the Union, and especially issues to be brought up at the annual Conference to be held at Randolph-Macon Woman's College in February.

Prof: "You seem very sleepy, were you out last night?"

Wormwood: "I had to sit up with the baby, sir."

Prof: "Oh, I see. How old was the baby?"

WOMAN'S CLUB ENTERTAINED BY MRS. JARMAN

Mrs. Emma Speed Sampson Speaker for the Occasion.

On Wednesday afternoon Mrs. J. L. Jarman, wife of President J. L. Jarman of the State Normal School, entertained the Woman's Club at her home on High Street, this being the first meeting of the Club this season.

Members of the Club were privileged to invite a limited number of guests. Members of the Normal School faculty were also included. The meeting was held out-of-doors on the beautiful grounds in the pergola. Mrs. Jarman with well chosen words introduced the speaker of the occasion, Mrs. Emma Speed Sampson, a member of the State Board of Censors of the Motion Pictures. In her introduction Mrs. Jarman briefly told the audience a few of the many interesting facts concerning Mrs. Sampson's influence in the State and her work as an author.

Mrs. Sampson spoke in a most interesting manner upon the subject "Movie Censorship." At the special request of her audience she closed the program by reading from her latest book, "Miss Minerva and the Old Plantation."

In order that the Club might be of greater service in the community, it was reorganized last spring on the departmental plan. Mrs. E. R. Booker is chairman of the department of Social Welfare, the aim of its work this year being for "better homes."

Miss Mary Clay Hiner, A. M., an associate teacher of English in the State Normal School, is chairman of the literary department, current fiction being the subject of study for the year. Mrs. C. F. Rankin, is chairman of the music department. Miss Martha W. Coulling, L. L., head of the department of drawing in the State Normal School, is chairman of the art department. The Club is anticipating both instruction and pleasure to be gained from future programs. At the close of the literary part of the program on Wednesday, members of the Club enjoyed meeting Mrs. Sampson and the renewal of social ties after the summer's vacation.

NO GAY DRESS FOR POLICE-WOMEN

Mere man has again ordered what women shall and shall not wear. Washington's 20 policemen must hereafter wear "plain dark colored tailor-made cloth suits, hats of simple lines (no trimmings) black, gray or brown shoes with low, flat heels; black, brown or gray stockings, and plain shirt waists. How long the women can stand it is a question.

The girl across the hall says that since shoes have become so expensive, she is seriously considering turning freebooter.

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer, and these will not be published if the writer objects to the publications.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matters should come to the Editor in Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of their copies of The Rotunda will be appreciated.

"Teachers' College" By All Means!

If popular sentiment at Farmville Normal is any indication of the trend of opinion in official circles, it will not be long before our teacher-training schools are rechristened "Teachers' Colleges."

Since these institutions have been elevated to the ranks of those conferring degrees, why not give them their proper name? Walter H. Parker, in a current issue of the Virginia Journal of Education, most aptly remarks: "As long as there are teacher training schools of secondary rank, there will be sufficient provocation for prating against low standards in 'the profession.'"

Our normal schools are not of secondary rank, and the sooner the Legislature gives official recognition of this fact, the less trouble the State Board of Education will have in securing credit in other states for work done in our normals.

How to Use the Library.

How to use the library? There are several phases to this question, which it would help others as well as ourselves to consider. But the phase, dealing with the process of finding what one wants, seems to be that from which arises the most pressing and immediate need of the students; therefore shall we not try to alleviate it?

What do you do if you wish to find on what page a certain subject is in a book? Do you not look in the index? The same thing holds true in a library. The card catalogue is the index to the library. The cards are in drawers, arranged alphabetically from front to back; and the drawers are labeled to show between what letters their contents run.

There are three kinds of cards in the catalogue; author card, title card, and subject card. The author card has as the heading the name of the author and then the title of the book; the title card has as the heading the title of the book and next the name of the author; the subject card has the subject of which the book treats, the name of the author, and then the title of the book. In using the card catalogue, therefore, look for the name of the author, the title of the book, or the subject in its alphabetical place.

All these cards have in the upper left hand corner a "call number," by means of which you can find the book in the library. This call number consists of two parts. The first part stands for the subject of the book, and is called the "class number." The second part stands for the author's name, and is called the "author number." Books are arranged on the shelves from left to right first by their class number; and then books with the same class number are arranged by their author numbers. There is listed above the catalogue the rooms in which the different classes of books are placed. For instance, all literature is in class Y; thus all books marked Y are on the shelves on the right side of the main library as you enter the door. To find a book, therefore, get its call number from the catalogue, then, look on the shelves, first for the class number and next, for the author's name in its alphabetical order.

Perhaps you are asking the question, "Why should I know all of this, since the librarian will find the book for me?" If you are a broad minded person, which, of course, you are, you will quickly realize that it is an impossibility for one or two persons to find all the books which eight hundred girls are constantly demanding; and besides, do you want to be so dependent on one person that you are not able to find a book for yourself? If we wish to get the most out of the library, then, shall we not try to learn these few technicalities?

FINANCE CAMPAIGN

For the benefit of some who may not fully understand the significance of our Y. W. C. A. membership and finance campaign, it might be well to say that membership and finance are two different phases of our association work. To become a member of our association it is not necessary to pledge any regular fee. It is not our purpose to merely get money from our membership, but to get active members. Thus, we have put on our membership campaign, in order to interest and inform our student body of the work and spirit of our Association. But, like other organizations and associations, the mechanism can not go on without financial support. This financial support we propose to get by a free-will offering from our membership. That our Association members may fully understand to what use their money is being employed we have put on a finance campaign, in which it is our purpose to present the budget for the approval of the membership and to appeal for the support we need.

The program of our finance campaign this year is printed above. Here we have attempted to show the great good that is done with the money used in our Association. It is now the duty and responsibility of each of us as members to thoughtfully consider how much we are able to pledge to our Y. W. C. A.; to pledge as much as we are fully capable of paying; and when we have made our pledge, as our privilege and responsibility, to pay what we have promised. Practically, and thoughtfully and sincerely let us contribute our part to the financial support of our Y. W. C. A.

AT THE EACO THEATRE—Week Oct. 22nd-27th.

Monday, Oct. 22nd, Tuesday, Oct. 23rd and Wednesday, Oct. 24th—Ovette's Oriental Novelty Company and an all star Vaudeville attraction, will be at the Eaco Theatre each of these nights. Fun for everybody. See Ovette, the man whose dexterity and skill has baffled the world. New tricks, mystifying illusions, mind reading; spiritualistic phenomena. Mar-Jah-Yogi—Astrologist—answers all questions. Elaborate costumes—special scenery. Also Willie Kaiaama's original troupe in series of Honolulu selections, and beautiful Lei LeHua in her famous sacred Hula dance—direct from Paradise of Pacific. We'll chase away the blues. The show with a reputation. Endorsed by the press, public and pulpit, everywhere shown. This is a clean moral and refined show, for ladies, gentlemen and children. Show will start each night at 8 o'clock. Admission 55 cents to all, at the door.

Thursday and Friday—Gaston Glass, Ethel Shannon, Miriam Cooper, Stuart Holmes and a fine cast in the Special Picture, "Daughters of the Rich." A powerful picturization of Edgar Saltus' famous novel. Telling a story of young blood, American dollars and French folly. If you had a million dollars—you could buy a duke and the duke could buy a lady and the lady could buy a house. If you had a billion dollars—you couldn't buy the man you loved—not if he was worth loving. This is a peach of a picture and it is one that all young people will enjoy to the limit. Fox News Thursday and a Good Comedy Friday.

Saturday—Earle Williams and a select cast in "You Never Know." There's plenty of love in this picture with drama and thrills and mystery. It will keep you guessing until the end. Is there such a thing as love at first sight? Do you like exciting chases in high powered motor boats? See this picture and you will enjoy it. Also 8th episode of the "Jungle Goddess." Matinee at 4 o'clock.

Admission to pictures, 20 cents to Normal students, who purchase tickets at the School.

SOCIAL NEWS

Pi Alpha Entertains.

On Friday evening, October 12th, Pi Alpha Club entertained at a delightful Japanese party in the Tea Room. The room was effectively decorated in Japanese lanterns, umbrellas and a lattice work festooned with ivy and ornamented with bright colored butterflies.

The club colors were successfully carried out by the use of white roses and yellow candles on the tables. For favors attractive Japanese pompoms and fans were given.

Zeta Tau Gives Hallowe'en Party.

The Zeta Tau Club gave a Hallowe'en dinner party in the Tea Room October 10. Witches, black cats, owls, pumpkins and shaded lights gave a weird glow to the party. The favors consisted of balloons caps and horns. After the supper the entire party went to the Kerns Concert.

Mu Omega Hay Ride and Party.

The Mu Omega hay ride on Saturday afternoon, October 6, was an enjoyable feature of the week. The girls were carried out to Farmville Lake in automobiles and trucks. The first part of the afternoon was spent in dancing in the new pavilion. After the dancing had ceased, refreshments consisting of hot dog sandwiches, bacon cooked over a bonfire, deviled eggs, sandwiches, pickles, coca-cola, fruit and marshmallows were served. The favors were red and blue horns and balls with the Greek letters of the society on them.

On Thursday night, October 11, the Mu Omega Club gave their second rush party. The girls assembled in the Kindergarten room of the Training School, which had been beautifully decorated for the occasion. The members were dressed as Pierrots and the rushes as Pierrettes. As favors, tambourines, horns and attractive boxes of candy were given. At seven o'clock, all went to the Tea Room where supper was served.

JUNIOR AUXILIARY PLANS WORK FOR YEAR

Membership Open to All Denominations.

The Junior Auxiliary, an organization under the auspices of the Episcopal Church, met with Miss Von Schilling Thursday afternoon.

As the Junior Auxiliary is under the supervision of Miss Von Schilling, she explained the purpose of this organization for the benefit of the new members present. She also gave an account of the work accomplished last year. Officers were then elected: Pres.—Clara Thompson; Vice-president—Dorothy Askew; Sec.—Edna May Wilkison; Treas.—Margaret Daniel. Miss Von Schilling made suggestions for the work this year. These suggestions met with enthusiasm by the members.

The members had such an enjoyable time that Miss Von Schilling gave a standing invitation to have the meetings at her home hereafter. The second Saturday was chosen as the date of each meeting. Members of all denominations are cordially invited.

MISS JONES ELECTED TO ADVISORY BOARD

Miss Mary P. Jones was elected to the Advisory Board of the Y. W. C. A. to fill the vacancy of Miss Helen Draper, former advisor of the Bible Study Committee, who did not return this session.

PI KAPPA OMEGA GOES A-"BATTING"

Accidents at Beginning of Outing Add to Fun.

Of course everybody knew something horrible was bound to happen when thirteen girls signed up for the P. K. O. picnic last Saturday—and it did. With the first chug of the motor, which indicated that we were at last on our way, there arose the unearthly cries of a damsel in distress. The girls on the campus who were enviously watching the departure, thought that the Friday night comedy had at last driven them to hallucinations, for there was Olive Smith running along behind the truck, looking for all the world like Ben Turpin in pursuit of a runaway Ford. You'd think that was starter enough for any party, wouldn't you—but not at all, Christine Armstrong came to the rescue, putting life into the party and her foot in the box of macaroons at the same time. When the laughter subsided, behold!—"Pickett Springs—Absolutely No Admittance"—they really meant it, too, because there was an iron gate with a lock 'everything. Here's where P. K. O. resourcefulness came to the rescue! There was a four inch opening under the barbed-wire fence, and one by one the picnickers were pushed under.

Pink soon had a red-hot fire a-roaring from the "logs." Miss Hiner made us drag across the lake, but had to threaten to roast Elizabeth Paylor before she would stop apostrophizing her as "the spirit of fire" and metaphorizing her flame colored hair. After devouring the usual number of "pups," pickles, etc., the party was ready to tackle anything—which means they actually ate some sandwiches of a kind hitherto unknown, the formula having been discovered at midnight last week by three zealous originality seekers. Then, of course, there were the sardines, macaroons and marshmallows. By this time the fire had died down enough for Elizabeth to have lost her fear of roasting, so she propounded a question in her most "Socratic" manner, "Why can you eat so many more marshmallows after they're roasted?" "Everybody was too busy murdering Alphonso and hunting for 'finger bowls' to notice her, fortunately. Some heartless wretch disturbed a poor lizard while trying to wash her hands, and actually had the audacity to scream.

We sang all the unwritten songs and then listened breathlessly to Peggy Moore's recital of "The Song That Haunted," after which we could only think of one song—anyway, it was time to start back.

Frank—Charlie boasts that no living man could forge his name successfully to a check and get it cashed. Has he such a very peculiar signature?

George—No; but he hasn't any money in the bank.

CLEF COLUMN

In response to the frenzied appeal of the public for the famous song "Hinky Dee," we take great pleasure in reprinting it. For the further benefit of the public, we announce sadly and with repressed tears that his dotting parent has seen nought of the noble red Krazy Kat leaving the same name as the aforementioned song since he was so foully abducted at Radford last year.

Hinky Dee.

I had a little dog, his name was Ned.
He had some fleas on the top of his head,
Every time his tail went wiggley wag
All the little fleas started playing tag!

Chorus: Was that dog named Hinky Dee?

Did you say 'twas—Hinky Dee?
Are you sure 'twas—Hinky Dee?
Now we all know 'twas Hinky Dee.

A horse and a flea and three blind mice
Sittin' in the corner shooting dice
The horse sat down on top of the flea
And the flea said, "That's a horse on me!"

My grandfather had false teeth
Took 'em out one day last week
He put 'em in his pocket before he went to town,
And he bit himself when he sat down!

There was a little dog as thin as a rail
He had some fleas on the tip of his tail
Every time his tail went flippy flop
All the fleas changed from the bottom to the top!

I thought I would sit in the ashes
And weep over my broken idol.
But the wind has blown my ashes all away
And some of them got in My eyes, and while I was getting them out
I lost the idol.

JOKES

"Ohhh! Lennel, vat you tink? I vas arrested for speedink today."
"Vat, you? Vy, you half no car, half you?"
"No, not that. Speedink on the sidewalk."

"That couple going there dance like a Chinese opium den."
"Whadday mean?"
"Full of hops."

A man bought a parrot that would not talk. He determined to teach it at least one word. Going over to the bird he said, "Hello! Hello! Hello!" for several minutes. At the end of the lesson the parrot opened one eye and drowsily answered, "Line's busy."—Capper's Weekly Papa, what do you do all day long at the office?" inquired the inquisitive young daughter.

"Oh, nothing," replied her father, deeply absorbed in the evening newspaper.

"Well, then," pursued the little girl, "how do you know when you are through?"—Savings Journal.

A Chicago teacher gave a pupil a sum for home study which in substance, How long would it take a certain number of men working ten 10 hours a day to complete a stated job?

The next morning one pupil handed the teacher a note written by the boy's father, saying: "Dear Sir, I refuse to let my son James do this sum you gave him last night as it looks to me like a stir on the 8-hour system. Any sum not more than 8 hours he is welcome to do, but not more."—Boston Transcript.

MUST BOBBED HAIR GROW?

Curls to Oust Short Locks is Prediction.

The pendulum swings all right, all right. Last year a girl no sooner matriculated than whack! and off came her "crowning glory." "Off with her hair!" was the cry everywhere. And now just look. "We hope a grasshopper may kick our brains out if every new girl's head doesn't look like a pile of planings from the Student Building," our reporter remarked when she had carried nine or ten girls up to their rooms the first day of school. Blonde curls! Black Curls! Red Curls! And so many waves inbetween that it makes you think you are taking your beach vacation all over again. Just when we were having such a good time discussing the utter foolishness and lackadaisicalness (we invented that word and are proud of it) wasn't it cruel for all these Freshmen to come along and disturb our flow of thought by introducing an entirely new brand of coiffure? It was. And why did they, do you suppose? Can it be that they have mistaken the purpose of this institution and think that they are attending a prep school for movie actresses? Perhaps so as not to disappoint them we can arrange to have classes in "How to Cry Without Onions" or "The Expressiveness of Non-Expression" or "Flirting With (1) Cross Farmers Possessing Bloodthirsty Dogs. (2) Well Known and Justly Famous Tired Business Men. (3) Other Lesser Varieties." Don't mind what we say, Mary Pickfords, we like curls.

INNOVATIONS SOUGHT

Since the thought is the mother of the deed, we give expression to some of the longings of our comfort loving souls, hoping that in some Utopian future they may be realized.

Note: They are no more far-fetched than some of the "brain" children which have materialized in the past decade.

1. Steam heated chapel seats.
2. Elevators in all parts of the building.
3. Covered and heated conveyance to the Training School.
4. Orchestra and dancing in the reception hall each night.
5. Bobbed hair wig for Joan.
6. Free permanent wave parlor in room G.
7. Mail served on silver trays.
8. Tea room menu in dining room.
9. Laundry chute on each hall.
10. Silken draped chaise lounges in all class rooms.

RUMMAGE SALE

The Senior Class expects to have a rummage sale November 3 for the benefit of the Student Building. If any one is willing to part with clothes of any description for the cause, she will please mention the fact to some member of the Class.

"COME AND SEE'S" FEATURE OF FINANCE CAMPAIGN

Cleverness and Originality Shown in Staging Playlets.

During the finance campaign held by the Y. W. C. A. during the week of October 15-20, several attractive features were staged in the auditorium each night. The Social and Service committees combined and gave a most enjoyable representation entitled "She Comes Up Smiling," in which Miss Y. W. C. A. was revived from her apparent lifelessness by the Budget. The Conference and Conventions committee featured the departure of a group of delegates for a conference. The World Fellowship committee presented a beautiful tableau representing our American Y. W. with the nations who derive benefit from our support.

In addition to the "Come And See's," interesting talks were given in chapel and at prayers by members of the faculty and student body. Interest ran high and the attendance was gratifyingly large.

BENEFIT GARDEN PARTY

The Alumnae of Farmville gave a garden party at the home of Mrs. J. L. Jarman Tuesday afternoon between the hours of three and six o'clock for the benefit of the Student Building.

Mrs. George Baker and Miss Mary Jackson, both dressed as gypsies, were the fortune tellers. Miss Mary E. Peck, a member of the faculty, read characters from handwriting. Tennis was played by those who are fond of sports. On the west lawn, sandwiches and ice cream were served. From a table near the entrance, candies were sold, while in the pergola, punch was served.

The colors of the fall flowers harmonized with the changing foliage of furnished the refreshments, which were served by the girls of the Normal School. The Glee Club sang several selections.

LEGAL CLASH ENDS IN VERDICT FOR DEFENDANT

"Not Guilty" for Miss Y. W. Budget Applauded by Enthusiastic Audience.

Friday, October 19, marked the culmination of one of history's most famous legal battles when the case of Student Body vs. Budget was heard in the State Normal School Court, Judge J. Merritt Lear presiding. The prosecuting attorney was the renowned Agnes McDuffie, while the equally well-known Jane Washington Moore acted as lawyer for the defense.

The defendant was sworn in. She took the stand and pleaded not guilty. The jury was called and the case proceeded with judicial solemnity.

Both lawyers showed remarkable shrewdness in cross examining the witnesses. Lawyer McDuffie inspired the admiration of the spectators by her curt and businesslike air, but the assurance and calmness of Lawyer Moore remained unshaken. Throughout the trial the fortitude and blandness of the defendant was remarkable. So secure was she in her innocence that no troubled look ever disturbed her countenance. Her composure was much admired and remarked upon. All evidence having been given, the jury retired and after a remarkably short session returned the verdict "Not Guilty." The spectators acclaimed the decision with enthusiasm. Judge Lear then called for order in the court room and announced that the case was dismissed. The court adjourned.

BAPTIST "VIRGINIAN" EDITOR

The four chief officers of the annual staff have been elected. They are as follows:

Editor-in-Chief—Agnes Baptist.
Art Editor—Julia Alexander.
Business Manager—Elizabeth Bugg.
Literary Editor—Ann Robertson.

Assistants are to be appointed immediately from suggestions offered by the graduating classes. The "Virginian" will be better than ever this year, judging by the enthusiastic plans already being made and it is not necessary to urge every girl to subscribe when the opportunity is given her.

GIFT SHOP TO OPEN

Under the auspices of the "Rotunda" Staff, a gift shop, similar to the one held last year will be opened on or about November 12. Work in wax, paper and other Dennison manufactures will be taught by a representative of that company. In addition to this, a large assortment of cards, seals, favors and novelties suitable for Christmas gifts will be sold. The "Rotunda" office will serve as a shop and will remain open until Christmas.

Over one billion dollars is spent on advertising every year in the United States.

FIRST SETTLEMENT IN MOVIES

History to Be Taught Painlessly to Public.

The Yale University Press, Inc., has accomplished what it believes to be a wonderful thing. It has put into films the settlement of Jamestown in 1607.

This is a very subtle way of influencing our movie-mad public to seek good, wholesome pictures. It has been truthfully stated that no other agency has ever attracted or influenced a group of people as does a movie. This statement rather tends to make one believe that Dr. H. Lichtner was a scoring point when he accused the modern generations of possessing a "vaudeville mind."

The scenes are very carefully laid and directed and the completed picture is to be released by Pathe, Inc. This is an excellent way to teach history—in fact, what we need is more films like "The Settlement of Jamestown."

DRAMATIC CLUB

The new members of the Dramatic Club are as follows: Catherine Weller, Marshall Greathead, Virginia Cowherd, Elizabeth Hopkins, Margaret Moore, Lila Colonna, Madeline McMurdo, Dodie Schafner, Elizabeth Jarman, Irene Piggot, Doris Crocker, Ella Gregg Stella Presson, Mary Mount, Lucy Haile Overby, Dorothy Pugh, Elizabeth Westbrook.

COLLEGE CUT OUTS

Among the students of the University of Wisconsin pets are all the rage. Dogs, among them collies, German police, air- dales, and bulldogs, predominate. To lend a little variety, there is seen now and then a coyote or a badger.

Dog fights have become a great diversion on the campus. A coyote is reputed to have licked a German police dog in a fair scrap.

The Princeton upper classes have the Unlimited Cut System. Sophomores maintaining first or second group standing in Freshman years, and Juniors and Seniors maintaining third group standing in their preceding year, are excused from compulsory attendance at class exercises. The purpose of the system is to give the student more independence in pursuing his studies.

The University of Virginia expects to open its new gymnasium in time for the coming basketball season. It will be called the Memorial Gymnasium, in honor of alumni killed in the World War.

All enthusiasts of the Chess and Checker Club are urged to attend its first meeting Monday after school in Room III. Officers will be elected and an interscholastic meet will be discussed.

The Chess and Checker Club is open to girls as well as boys. All its members will have a chance to try out for the team.—Tuley Weekly Review.

THE STATE COURSE OF STUDY

A new manual, "The State Course of Study" has appeared to help the teachers of Virginia. It is the fruit of the earnest labors of a committee composed of educational leaders from all parts of the State, who have studied and know many of the problems arising in the schoolroom.

The manual is in the form of a suggestive outline for the instructional aspects of school work. Each teacher should have a copy for study and daily use. The State Department of Education provides one, which is to be returned at the end of the school year. They may be purchased, however, by applying to the Department of Education.

The first part of the copy is a veritable Bible for the teacher. It anticipates manifold questions in regard to out-lining and conducting lessons, and answers them. It even broaches the subject of the teacher's dress for the classroom.

The course is a storehouse of pedagogical principles and suggestions. It is a poor teacher, indeed, who cannot take an outline, as given by this manual and work from it an interesting lesson which will awaken the pupil's enthusiasm for the subject under discussion. With the aid of this manual our teachers will become more competent, our classes more interesting, our schools more efficient; all of which will mark a new epoch in the constant progress of education in Virginia.

A Father's advice to a son, before leaving for college:

Don't smoke, my boy, it's bad for the lungs.
Don't drink, it's bad for the heart,
And staying out late, is the best way to make
Your collar soon after you start.
Dancing, my son, is bad for the feet.
Football may injure your sides
You've always been weak, so why take a chance?
Never skate, for fear you might slide.
Study hard, my boy, and you're sure to succeed
Tell the women to jump in the lake
And if anyone asks you to join them in "craps"
Tell them you haven't a stake.
Here the pater's eyes twinkled, as behind the staircase
A rustle was heard, like the swish of a dress.
"Ma asked me to lecture," he whispered so low
That the words were unheard by mother, I know.
"But there's one thing I do want."
This, when mother was gone,
"And that is a real-blooded man, my son."
"If you come back from college, a stuck-up snob Remember the woodshed? I've not forgot."
—Parraquet.

Miss Bierbower (assigning rooms)
—"Julia, you're to go to the gym."
Julia Reid—"Miss Bierbower, I'm no dumb-bell."

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer, and these will not be published if the writer objects to the publications.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matters should come to the Editor in Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of their copies of The Rotunda will be appreciated.

Why Not Mail Boxes?

The bell on the Home Table is tapped and the dining room is hushed. Announcements are read but seldom heard because the suspense is great. Uppermost in every girl's mind and on many lips are such questions as, "Shall I get a letter?" "From whom?" "Where?"

After what seems like hours the maid arrives with the mail (usually for the absent members). Next, you must force your way out through the crowds of those who were fortunate enough to get a letter and insist upon reading it while creeping from the dining room.

Now comes the question, "Why not mail boxes?" A pigeon hole for each student could be built in the side of the Bookroom facing the Association room. Mail could then be addressed to Box 1, 2, 3, etcetera. As mail was received at the Post Office, it could be dropped into these boxes. Package slips, too, could be placed here. Mail could be called for at any time, and since this would also be true of packages, the time worn practice of standing in "package line" would be eliminated. All old methods must give way eventually to new and more efficient ones, so again we ask, "Why not mail boxes?"

SOME LOW-BROWED AMERICANS

It seems strange to normal men and women that there should be persons so irreverent and callous that it has become necessary to build a fence around the tomb of the unknown soldier at Arlington. Here is a monument that is a shrine. It would seem that every man who has been a soldier would come to attention and render a humble and unostentatious salute, and it is very likely that every soldier and ex-soldier does pay these simple duties. It would seem that everybody who had a son, brother or husband in the great war, whether he fell or came back, would on coming to this tomb offer up a prayer, and many persons do this.

But great numbers of people, principally strangers and tourists, rest their feet on the tomb or make a seat of it. Some strike matches on it. Smoke goes merrily up and groups of people laugh and chatter. Attention of the war department was called to this state of things by the cemetery officers several weeks ago, and it was proposed to set around the tomb a barrier in harmony with it and to mount a guard there.

It is possible that this plan will be carried out, but for the immediate protection of the tomb a wooden picket fence has been built around it.—Washington Star.

Every day since the Albertsons had started housekeeping the blushing bride had given the poor man the same kind of breakfast food. Finally he mustered up courage to make a gentle inquiry. "How does it happen that we have this every morning?" he asked.

"Oh, George!" she exclaimed, "they give blue coupons with each package, and for 100 coupons you can get the loveliest rocking-chair! You have only to eat 90 more packages!"

A man walked into a shoe store, accompanied by his wife and 10 children, and said to the clerk, "I want to git the hull lot of 'em fitted up in shoes."

After two hours of hard work, the clerk succeeded in getting each one fitted, and was beginning to make up the bill. "Oh! don't bother about that," said the man. "I don't want to buy the shoes. I just want to get the sizes so's I can order from Sears, Roebuck & Co.—Forbes.

Approves New Money Design. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon approved the new designs for paper money and many brand new bills of distinctive marking will soon be in circulation. Faces of the new bills will carry portraits of well-known figures in American history, mostly presidents. The $1 bills will bear the portrait of Washington, the fives that of Lincoln, the 10's Jackson, 20's Cleveland, 50's Gen. Grant and 100's Benjamin Franklin.

"Why have I never married?" The confirmed bachelor repeated a leading question. "Well, once upon a time in a crowd I trod on a lady's gown. She turned, furiously, beginning: 'You clumsy brute!' Then she smiled sweetly, and said, 'Oh, I beg your pardon, I thought you were my husband. No, it really doesn't matter in the least.' "And when I came to think it over I decided I'd better let marriage alone."—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

A WEEK OF SPECIALS AT THE EACO THEATRE October 29th-November 3rd.

Monday and Tuesday—"Monte Christo," with John Gilbert. From the immortal romance by Alexander Dumas. The editor of the Denver Times, after seeing this picture, said: "See 'Monte Christo' if you have to mortgage your home. An exceptionally good story, exceptionally well told." A story that treats of the three strongest passions known in a lifetime—Love! Hate! Revenge! This is a big special production that it cost a half million dollars to produce. It is considered one of the best pictures that has been produced in recent years. We cannot too strongly urge you to see this picture, and to miss seeing it is your loss. It is enacted by a very select cast of stars. Matinee Monday at 4 o'clock. Admission to Normal Students, 25 cents. To the public, 35 cents.

Wednesday—William Russell in "Good-Bye Girls." He thought he had a thousand aches, but he had only one—a headache. This picture contains every element of satisfactory entertainment. Dramatic tensely surrounds pulsing action; bright humor is interwoven with an interesting love theme, and all are presented in excellent photographic settings. Also Aesop Fable.

Thursday and Friday—"Poor Men's Wives." A special preferred picture with a great cast. It is the story of a wife's dreams of wealth and a husband's realities. A play of Riches, Poverty and the Green Eyed Monster. A companion picture of "Rich Men's Wives." It is a play of wreckage on the rocks of wealth; a picture of iron courage and frail greed. It will thrill sweethearts, warn wives and make men think. This is a wonderful production and a beautiful picture in every respect. It has all the elements of popular appeal and interest. Please remember that this is a special picture at regular admission prices. Fox News Thursday and a good comedy Friday.

Saturday—"The Fast Mail." A sensational speed drama which delighted all New York. The wonder melodrama of love and thrills. It starts off with a rush—runs into romance—and ends with a succession of thrills. A stage triumph of twenty years ago made into the most thrilling melodrama ever produced upon the screen. Take our word for it and see this picture, and if you can say that you did not enjoy it, we will refund your money. Also 9th episode of "The Jungle Goddess." Matinee at 4 o'clock.

Admission to Normal students, 20 cents for each show, except Monday and Tuesday.

CONTROL YOUR RESOURCES

This is the first of a series of articles that the Rotunda will publish on how to use the Library.

There are two ways of making profitable use of the library. The first of these is to browse, that is, pick up the books that attract your attention, read them as long as you are interested, drop them when your curiosity is satisfied. This, however, is a leisure-time method, by means of which you will gradually find the things that belong to you.

But few of us have time here at S. N. S. to make this delightful use of our library. Most of us are on business bent, and with us the library must be a business asset. We cannot give such free play to our tastes and impulses, but must subordinate personal inclination to impersonal system. In short, we must be able to control our resources.

It has been found, through long experience, that there is one best way to master a library, and this you must learn if you would be able to make the best use of the wealth of material that is undoubtedly at hand.

The greatest aid in gaining this control is the alphabetically indexed card catalogue, which combines author and subject in a system rigidly alphabetical. The Reader's Guide will direct you in your search through current literature, while the encyclopedias give reliable information on almost any subject, with reference to some of our best authorities in that particular field.

These are the chief mechanical devices which will aid you in making the best use of your library. Without a working knowledge of these devices you can never hope to be able to get from a collection of books all the material they may offer on a given subject.

But even the best of mechanical devices cannot guarantee that the library will be of its greatest potential aid to those who use it, particularly when it is so crowded as ours is.

We are crowded, and various remedies for the situation, from rubber-tipped chairs to a new and separate library building, suggest themselves as we consider the problem. However practical these suggestions may be, it would seem that the immediate remedy must lie within the power of the individuals who make use of the library. As a chain is only so strong as its weakest link, so is a library only as quiet as its noisiest inhabitant.

Let us, then, consider our library, not as a study hall or as a social mecca, but as a mine of valuable material, a place of business where each must procure, with quickness and dispatch, those things which she herself wants, in order that the library may be of the most good to the greatest number. If each girl will but accept her share of the responsibility, will put the problem on her heart, and face the challenge squarely, then surely the time will be at hand when there shall be no "library situation."

CLAXTON FOR OKLAHOMA

The people of Tulsa, Oklahoma, have recognized the importance of securing the best educational advantages for their children and have been successful in securing Dr. P. P. Claxton, former commissioner of education and for the past two years provost of the University of Alabama, as superintendent of schools. He will receive $13,500, the highest salary paid any superintendent in this country.

CLEF COLUMN

Ann Robertson said she couldn't describe the tune exactly, but if anybody wanted to know it, she would be charmed to demonstrate.

DARLING WILLIE

You could tell our boy was dying
By the color of his breath
And the flowers that were drooping in the mud
And the doctors all agreed
That to save our darling's life
We must stop the circulation of the blood.

So we gently dipped his head
In a pot of melted lead
And we laid him down upon his couch to rest,
But the burglars came at night
And they came without a light
And they stole the mustard plaster off his chest.

Oh-no more, on the mat
Will he tease the pussy cat
Nor gently use his teeth to pinch her tail
Nor fondly rub her nose
On the red hot kitchen stove
For now our darling Willie's kicked the pail.

'Twas the thirty-third of May
When our darling passed away
After doing all we could his life to save.
I am off to the Barber Shop
To grant his last request
And to plant a bunch of whiskers on his grave.

Berta (annoyed): I'm going to kill about fifty of these people around here if they don't leave me alone.

Lib (taking Biblical English): Going to do it with the jawbone of an ass, Berta?

Dot: Sure, she's going to talk them to death.

Miss B: Take what Buford?

Miss Mary Clay Hiner said in class one day that "Little Men" never did interest her much. She may have meant the book but it sounds a little ambiguous, doesn't it?

If the Sophomores hang a red and white banner over the Rotunda to give notice of a class meeting, wouldn't it be proper for the Seniors to put a cap and gown on Joan to advertise the same?

Southerners have often been accused of using "you-all" in the singular, but at least they have never been confronted with using the plural noun in a like case as Mr. Fattig did the other day.

Girls galore had been coming to the Lab. to make up work all the afternoon and to each group Mr. Fattig had patiently called "Come." At last a step was heard on the sill. A gentle rap followed. "Come in girls," was the greeting; and looking up Mr. Fattig beheld Miss Taliaferro!

The girl across the hall says she would like to go to the Philippines, but Kipling says the "dawn comes up like thunder" in the East and she just can't get up that early.

"How far is it from the end of a cat's nose to the end of his tail?"
"It's all fur."

The salesman found a servant barring his road. He suspected that the woman of the house was within hearing. He raised his voice. "I am in search of a lady whose name I have forgotten, but who can easily be described. She has soft lovely hair, complexion of a peach, a graceful manner, and a heart—"

"Mary," cried a voice upstairs, "tell the gentleman to come in. I'll be down at once."

"Why are you crying so, my little man?"
"My sister's cat died today."
"How sweet! And did you love your sister's cat so dearly?"
"Naw, but paw gimme a lickin' for throwing it in the well."

Small Edwin: "Mamma, what is the meaning of heredity?"

Mamma: "It is something you get from your pa or ma."

Small Edwin: "Oh, you mean a spanking."

Private: "Could I get out of the drilling, sir? I am rather small."

Captain: "Put him in the infantry."

"Does her fiance approve of her going into the movies?"

"Not with another fellow every afternoon."

The oldest good story is the one about the boy who left the farm and got a job in the city. He wrote a letter to his brother, who had chosen to stick by the farm, telling of the joys of the city life, in which he said:

"Thursday we auto'd out to the country club, where we golfed until dark. Then we motored to the beach and Fridayed there."

The brother wrote back:

"Yesterday we buggied to town and base balled all afternoon. Then we went to — and pokered till morning. Today we muled out to the cornfield and geehawed until sundown. Then we suppered and then we piped for awhile. After that we staircased up to our room and we bedstedded until the clock fived."

Where can a man buy a cap for his knee?

Or a key to lock of his hair?
Could one's eyes be called an academy?
Because there are pupils there?

In the crown of your head what jewels are found?

Who crosses the bridge of your nose?
Could you use in shingling the roof of your mouth
The nails in the end of your toes?

Could the crook in your elbow be sent to jail?

For anything it might do?
How can you sharpen your shoulder blades?

I'll be darned if I know, do you?

Could you sit in the shade of the palm of your hand?

Or beat on the drum of your ear?
Do the calves of your legs eat the corn on your toes?

Then why not grow corn on the ear?

Gee, girls, just look at that there man! Knock 'em cold? I'll say he can! Ain't he the little cat's meow?
I'd like to date with one like him—
Somebody tell me how.

Gaze on them there snow white teeth,
They sure do take the holly wreath!
And rest yer lamps on the shiek hair;
He's too good lookin'—it isn't fair.

His Grecian nose's the bee's own knees
And he looks Apollo; if you please;
Oh, boy, that smile could win a saint—but—
They're not made like him—I'll say they ain't.

"ROTUNDA" HOLDS GET-TOGETHER MEETING

Audience, Though Small, Gives Valuable Suggestions.

The campaign to arouse the interest of the school in the "Rotunda" began with a talk in chapel Wednesday by Catherine Kemp on the general lack of interest in the "Rotunda." The speaker showed wherein the students had erred and pointed out the right path. Mr. Grainger also made a plea for a more general contribution to the paper in order that it might be a true picture of the Normal's best life. On Thursday Virginia Cowherd appealed to her classmates, the Freshmen, to take an interest in and contribute to the "Rotunda." She called for the literary talent of the Freshman Four Hundred to present itself.

At the surprisingly small get-together meeting Thursday, Mr. Grainger, as chairman of the Faculty committee on school publications, presided. Under the heading of general discussion came the question of means of electing the Staff, the purpose of the paper and the question of Faculty censorship. Specific criticisms were the staleness of the news printed and the light character of the paper. Suggestion was made that prizes be offered to stimulate competition and that membership to the Staff be placed on a competitive basis. Another suggestion gave birth to the "Joan Speaks" column. The Staff will welcome any further help or suggestions from faculty or student body.

CAMPUS NOTES

Miss Helen Miller, representing the Farmville student body visited Richmond, Thursday, October 25 to meet with the committee on the Near East Relief.

The Ministerial Group at Hampden-Sidney entertained the Student Volunteer Band, the Y. W. Cabinet and a few other Farmville students at a most enjoyable party at the Kappa Sigma House Friday evening October 26.

The girls who attended the Garrett trial feel that they have been cheated. The News-Leader reporter took their pictures while they were there, promising that they should be printed on the first page as "important witnesses in the trial." The aforementioned girls have scanned the also aforementioned paper every day. It has thus far been innocent of their pictures and they cannot but feel there is a mistake somewhere.

The Junior Auxiliary went on a bacon bat Saturday October 27.

Miss Dietrich entertained the Y. W. Membership Committee at her home on High Street Saturday afternoon.

Among those who visited the Normal last week end are: Misses Sarah Moore,

FIRST OPEN CABINET MEETING

Plans for Year Further Improved.

The Y. W. C. A. held an open cabinet meeting Saturday morning October 27 in the Association room. This meeting was attended by Y. W. C. A. cabinet, the Advisory Board and the committee members. At this time the reports of the several committees for the month of October were read. It is of interest to note that practically all of the committees are already busily at work and it is hoped that much may be accomplished this year.

The first regular business meeting of the Y. W. C. A. will be held Wednesday November 7, immediately after supper in the auditorium. Several important questions will be discussed at this meeting.

SOCIAL NEWS

Delta Sigma Chi Banquet.

The Delta Sigma Chi Sorority gave its annual rush banquet Saturday, October 27, in the Tea Room. Green and white, the color scheme, was carried out consistently, the most prominent features being the ivy-covered lattice background and the looped ribbons connecting the candlesticks on the table. Green balloons and costumed lip-sticks were the favors.

Garland Hallowe'en Party.

Friday evening, October 26, the girls of Garland Cottage gave a Hallowe'en party in the basement of the building. Half the girls were "boys" and the other half were little girls with short frocks, bows and socks. The guests danced and played games until nine o'clock when refreshments were served. The girls feel that a great deal of their pleasure was due to the kindness of Mrs. Fore and to Margaret Portlock who had charge of the entertainment.

Hawkins-Wilson.

A wedding of interest to students of the Normal School was celebrated Saturday evening October 20 in Washington, D. C. when Miss Annette Wilson, daughter of Major and Mrs. Hampden Wilson was married to Dr. William Aldham Hawkins of Danville, the Reverend Gore Griffith Johnson D. D. of Immanuel Baptist Church officiating. Before the ceremony, Miss Evelyn Barnes of Amelia sang "I Love You Truly" and "Because." The ceremony was followed by a reception, after which Dr. and Mrs. Hawkins left for an automobile trip through the White Mountains.

Shuff-Greathhead.

Announcement has been received of the marriage of Miss Eleanor Greathhead, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Newton Greathhead, of Norfolk, to Mr. Harold Mathews Shuff. The ceremony was performed Saturday November 3 at Knox Presbyterian Church, Norfolk.

DR. JARMAN ATTENDS CONFERENCE

Return Celebrated by Specially Composed Song.

Wednesday, October 3, Dr. Jarman returned from Ashland where he attended the Virginia Methodist Conference. As evidence of the fact that he was missed by "his girls," this song, composed by Miss Jennie Tabb, was sung by them in chapel Wednesday morning.

(Tune: "Smile, Smile, Smile.")

"When our president's returning from a long, long stay,
We smile, smile, smile.
If he has been absent but a single day
We simply love to smile.
Forgotten is all our worrying,
We think it's not worth while.
When J. L. J.'s returning, when he's coming home

HOW TO STUDY

Question Finally Solved Ingeniously.

Excitement prevailed on third floor Tacky Alley several days ago. The cause—oh nothing more than a trunk, a chair, and the usual amount of paper crammed in the cracks of the door.

"Who rooms there? Wonder—who has it? Hope we don't get it. I reckon the rest of them are staying in the Infirmary at night." These were a few of the remarks made by the interested passers-by. The rumor was soon passed around, generally, that the dreaded plague had once more made its appearance.

"What! why there are the girls who room in No.—on Tacky Alley," was the astounding exclamation made by one of two of the interested passers-by at supper that night.

"Wonder how that happened? I'm going to ask one of them about it."

"All right let's do," chimed in the other.

So with one accord they meandered over to where the girls of No.—were standing, apparently enjoying themselves. "Say who had—in your room, we saw the room all fixed up this afternoon like it had just been fumigated," asked the curious one.

"Oh, no one. We couldn't study for visitors, so we just tried this plan and it worked wonders." was the indifferent reply of the girls of room No.—.

FRESHMEN START PRACTICE

Class Divided Into Squads.

As the result of a week's hard practice the Freshman basketball players have been divided into three squads. They are the Red, White, and Blue Squads respectively. In about a week it is hoped that the three squads will be in such good condition that inter-squad games can be started. And then the fun begins. But remember, the Freshman class isn't the only class in school and the day is coming when the other classes will be called upon to go forth into battle. There is enough material in each class for a good team to be formed and we are hoping that the members of each class will show their sportsmanship and help to push their class to victory.

"THE CRICKET ON THE HEARTH"

Glee Club Hard at Work on Approaching Operetta

The Glee Club is working hard over the coming operetta, "The Cricket On The Hearth," to be given November 9 for the benefit of the Student Building. The girls taking the principal parts are: Christine Armstrong, Catherine Kemp, A. B. Treacle, Helen Miller, Ruth Bartholomew and Kitty Morgan. The play will be given in thorough old English style. Many attractive songs added to woodland fairies, crickets and the "baby" will be features.

TRAINING SCHOOL NEWS

The third grade of the training school gave a Hallowe'en entertainment Friday afternoon October 26, in the assembly room.

The children gave a very attractive program.

The decorations consisted of jack-o-lanterns, black paper cats, bats and ghosts. The children were dressed as witches and goblins. After the entertainment, refreshments were sold. The proceeds from this will pay for many bricks in the Student Building.

The organization of an athletic Association for the Training School is under way. There is much interest and ample material both of boys and girls for such an organization.

The Training School's play ground has been cleared and the children expect to keep it this way.

The High School is planning to give a play in the near future for the Student Building. The cast has been assigned and has started work with great interest and enthusiasm.

PRESIDENT ISSUES PROCLAMATION

National Education Week to Be Observed Throughout United States.

President Coolidge has issued a proclamation calling for the observance of National Educational Week, beginning November 18.

The observance of the week is a product of the growth of our educational system. The policy of the United States from the very beginning has been educational: as the duties and privileges of its citizens have increased, the need for education has also increased, consequently the whole country is dotted with schools of all degrees of advancement. But in order that our democracy may be sustained, the fusion of more and further reaching knowledge is imperative.

The purposes of the observance of National Education Week are to review in our minds the national spirit which we are inclined to neglect in the many interests of the day, and to try to "put over" to the people in general the great necessity for mass education.

We, as students, cannot think of conditions as they are because we have not had the experience, but we can read about lives that are lost thru disease, accident and murder, of sufferings caused by poor economic conditions, and of the great waste of the nation due in part, at least to lack of education in some line—of health, of morality, of vocation, or of recreation. The program is as follows:

Sunday, November 18—For God and Country.

Monday, November 19—American Constitution Day.

Tuesday, November 20—Patriotism Day.

Wednesday, November 21—School and Teacher Day.

Thursday, November 22—Illiteracy Day.

Friday, November 23—Community Day.

Saturday, November 24—Physical Education Day.

TO MIKE

"He was certainly no Christian, but allowing for essential dog, he was very much of a gentleman. In him, at all events there was no pettiness, no meanness and no cruelty, and though he fell below his ideal at times, this never altered the fine look in his eyes, nor the simple loyalty in his soul. No stone stands over where he lies. It is on our hearts that his life is engraved."

The prosecuting attorney was examining a negro witness.

"Now, Mose," he said, "tell us what you know about this fight."

"Well, boss," began Mose, "I think—I don't want to know what you think. Tell us what you know."

"I think—"

"I told you not to tell what you think."

"But, boss," said Mose, apologetically, "I ain't no lawyer. I can't talk without thinking."—Judge.

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer, and these will not be published if the writer objects to the publications.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matters should come to the Editor in Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of their copies of The Rotunda will be appreciated.

If genius is "one-fourth inspiration and three-fourths perspiration" we ought to have a wonderful Freshman basketball team, judging from Saturday's maneuvers.

If talk changed to jewels now as it did in the fairy tale, we could put up half a dozen Student Buildings simply by listening to the hub-bub at dinner one day.

But on the contrary, if silence is golden, a person would have to apply elsewhere instead of trying to collect such wealth from the Library.

A question with which we shall soon be confronted is that of cheers and yells for the basketball season. So in addition to putting your throat in training with cough drops, give a few of your pet cheers to Ye Cheer Leader.

JOAN SPEAKS

This column, so long as there is need for it, will be the open forum for all school discussions. Articles must be signed, but the name will not be published.

Joan Asks Embarrassing Questions.

Dear Rotunda,

I was so very sorry that my present condition and habitat prevented me from attending your Staff and Faculty Advisors' meeting on Thursday night. I understood it was to be a student body meeting and felt sure that I would hear all about it from the enthusiastic discussions that would wax hot around my pedestal.

You know the result—and now I have some questions to ask.

What is the slogan of our beloved school?

Co-operation!

Well-then-where were our so called Representative Girls?

Where were the Student Government officers?

Those who preach, but do not practice!

Where were the Y. W. C. A. officers?

The pathmakers of the school?

Where were the P. K. O.-s?

The selected brains-the leaders of our School life!
Where were the Presidents of our classes?

The one chosen of many!

Where were the Sorority girls?

The self chosen elites! Why couldn't they have rushed their rushees to the meeting?

Where were the Knockers?

The destructive critics of our Rotunda! Answer me these questions—oh you, School Leaders!

The Rotunda is the chief representative of our school abroad, how did you so called representative girls answer the S. O. S. call of your paper.

Yours in disgust,
Joan

In Alaska they get oil from shark livers, but you never get oil from a shark's oil well.

Professor to student—"Mr. Blank, tell us something of the occurrence of calcium carbonate in nature."

Student (unprepared)—"Well, sir, it is very rare—"

Professor—"Very good, sir, for a guess. But you failed to mention that the Appalachian mountains are composed quite largely of this rare substance."—Science and Invention.

Those who "thirst" for knowledge don't get it by the use of corkscrews.

Martha Wells, Tillie Waddell, Mamie Sexton, Burton Moir, Elizabeth Lewis, Sarah Von Schilling and Ruth Shockley, who returned for the Delta Sigma Chi banquet.

Miss Blanche Graham and Mr. P. W. Fattig, who were severely burned last week with nitric acid while conducting an experiment are recovering as rapidly as can be expected.

Miss Pauline Timberlake, '24 now a student at George Washington University, Washington, is spending a week at the Normal School.

A series of bacon bats are being given the school by the Student Council. Venerable with Miss Louise Jones, as president of the cottage had theirs at the Meadow, while Duval with Miss Olive Smith as chaperone went to Serpell Heights, last Friday.

Nancy Lewis said she thought some folks were bringing in a celebrity on their shoulders last Saturday, but when she looked again it was only Polly Timberlake towering above the enthusiastic delegation that went to meet her.

Evelyn Barnes is becoming more and more absent minded. Last Monday when she started to brush her teeth, she discovered that she had brought along a spoon instead of the regulation toothbrush.

AT THE EACO THEATRE ---WEEK OF NOV. 5-10

Monday and Tuesday—"Silver Wings" A special production, with Mary Carr. The picture that won New York's heart in its Broadway season's run. This is a play about Father—Mother—Sister—Brother and for them! The story of a humble, American home and an American mother—but what a story! What a tenderly beautiful story! What a superb and heartstirring climax. It has its joys and sorrows, its laughter and dramatic thrills. It is a story of motherhood that will appeal to every man, woman and child. The proceeds from this picture on Monday are for the benefit of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Presbyterian Church. Pathe News Monday and 11th episode of serial Tuesday. Matinee Monday at 4 o'clock.

Wednesday—William Farnum in "Brass Commandments" supported by Wanda Hawley and a most excellent cast. Why do human beings want to break rules, to step outside the bounds of convention? This seems to have been the practice ever since the commandments were first given out. This is a strongly dramatic play which we believe you will enjoy thoroughly. Also Aesop Fable.

Thursday and Friday—Cecil B. Demille's super special paramount production "Adam's Rib" with a cast in which is included Milton Sills, Elliot Dexter, Theodore Kosloff, Anna Q. Nilsson and many others. A glowing story of human passions, human frailties. Clothed in lavish splendor. Stirring scenes include the Natural History Museum and the Chicago Board of Trade. "The modern girl is all right. It's her parents who need watching." There are 500 scenes in this picture. A picture with glowing love scenes, tense excitement, beautiful gowns and woman, and a spectacular novelty that you will remember for years. This is one of the finest pictures ever produced. Fox News. Thursday and a good comedy Friday. Admission to Normal Students 35c, to the public 50c.

Saturday—"Lights of New York" another special production enacted by an all star cast. A drama of life in a big city. Folly and laughter, glitter and glare, delirium of city nights. The pace that kills, the tempters snare—under New York lights. Remember this is a special production and we can assure you that it is exceptionally good. Also 10th episode of The Jungle Goddess. Admission to each show except "Adam's Rib" 20c. to Normal Students.

CLEF COLUMN

Just to vary the monotony, we have a folk-song for the edification of our readers this time. This particular one happens to be from the "ould country" (pardon, our Irish accent has been obtained from jokes exclusively) and Edna Mae Wilkinson will be delighted to furnish the tune.

Me name is Pat McGuire,
I came from Sweet Marie.
I fell in love with an Irish girl
Her name was Kitty Magee.
When I went to court her
One sweet day in May,
As I was nearing the door,
These words her mother did say.

Chorus

O Barney get up from the fire,
Don't you hear me spake?
For here comes Mr. McGuire
To court your sister Kate,
You know he owns a little farm
A few miles out of town.
Get up out o' that you little rat
And let Mr. McGuire sit down.

I met Kate at the door
And gave her an Irish hug
She returned the compliment
With a box across the mug
"Now, Patsy, you be aisy,
Me Mither's a watching you,
And if the old lady sees you
She'll kick up a hula-ba-loo."

Now we are married
The honeymoon is o'er.
There ne'er was a happier couple
E'er dived on Ireland shore.
We have a son and daughter
To increase our joy,
I'll never forget you Barney
You rollicking Irish boy.

OTHER COLLEGES

Sir Christopher Wren Day was celebrated at William and Mary College on October 20. The Main Building of this college has the distinction of being the only building in America designed by the great English architect.

The new extension building at V. P. I. will be ready in May. This building will contain twenty offices, a large storage room, a bulletin and filing room and a large auditorium.

Highly encouraging reports continue to come in from the whole state of South Carolina, concerning the campaign to raise a half million dollar fund for Furman University.

Greenville Woman's College is holding a campaign for the enlargement of its library.

Louisiana College is offering a fine course in commercial work this year.

Freshman at Agnes Scott are not getting off very light this year. They are forced by the Sophomores to appear at breakfast with slicked-back hair and pig-tails, rouged noses, and lip sticked eye brows. They must skip into the dining room, balancing an umbrella in one hand.

A Girls Glee Club has been organized at Elon College.

Members of the Health Commission of the League of Nations recently visited Radford Normal.

AN EASY WAY OUT

64=number of feet library is in length
22=number of feet library is in width
 $64 \times 22 \times 1$ square foot=1408 square feet=area of floor space in the library
806=number of girls in school
 1406 square feet $\div 806 = 1.74$ square feet=amount of floor space allotted to each girl.

What does this simple problem in Arithmetic show to the reader? Instantly you answer, "The crowded condition of the library, but really, dear editor, your little sum was entirely unnecessary to make us realize that condition, for one has only to spend a few minutes there to see for one's self what congestion exists."

Yes, all of us are well aware of the state of affairs, but in thinking of a solution, we are prone to have visions of a spacious building with lofty ceilings, carpeted floors and book-lined walls—quite a pleasant picture but one that plays no important part in whether we do all that reference work that Miss X or Mr. Z has assigned for tomorrow's lesson.

Our need is immediate, and must be met, for the present, by each student in school. Each of us has only to take the question seriously and face the problem squarely. It will then be remarkable how many of the inconveniences will fade away, leaving no shadow of themselves. Right here is where every Normal School girl can come to the front in making the best of one of the infirmities of her Alma Mater. She must make out a neat little list of resolutions and write them in large letters on her heart and mind. Perhaps they will read something like the ones we chance to discover a day or so ago. They were as follows:

1. I will go to the library with a serious purpose in mind and not with the idea of having some fun, laughing and talking.

2. I will give serious thought to the system employed and learn to use it intelligently.

3. I will speak only necessary words, and those in a low whisper (even if the librarian isn't within hearing distance).

4. I will use every minute of my time in the library to advantage, and neither allow myself to loiter nor to day-dream, for no doubt some one is waiting for the book I am reading.

5. I will not selfishly take possession of several books when I can use only one at a time.

6. I will put the books I use back in their places in order to help the librarians just a little.

7. I will leave the library when I have finished that some other girl may have my share of space.

You can learn something day and night, but you must stay awake at night to do it.

Miss Munoz (in Glee Club): Hold that "While I count the weary hours."

Anna Branch: Have you seen "Monte Cristo?"

Spot: Why, no. I don't even know him.

The girl across the hall says she read recently of a man of eighty who married a woman of seventy-nine and she thinks that is a case where love is not only blind, but deaf and toothless as well.

We stood outside the door the other day and heard the Glee Club ask each other "Who is Sylvia?" for fifteen minutes straight. If anybody knows, for goodness sake tell 'em.

Registration Officer (to spinster)—"Your name, please?"

Spinster—"Matilda Brown."

Officer—"Age?"

Spinster—"Have the Misses Hill, who live next door, given you their ages?"

Officer—"No."

Spinster—"Well, then, I'm the same age as they."

Officer—"That will do." (Proceeding to fill in particulars, he murmurs: "Miss Brown, as old as the hills.")

Mrs. Asker (in restaurant)—"Who is that dowdy looking woman over there who has her elbows on the table and is making such a noise eating her celery?"

Mrs. Nayber—"Why, don't you know? That's Annie More Hokum, the author of that best-selling book on etiquette."

A MOSQUITO.

And five eighths appetite.
And fifteen eighths or so is buzz,
And nineteen eighths is bite.

First Boy: "My dad is a banker and he gets a salary of $10,000."

Second Boy: "That ain't nothing. My dad is a railroad man and his salary is $20,000."

Preacher's Boy: "Hum! That ain't nothing. It takes ten men to collect my dad's salary, and then he don't get all of it."

SCHOLASTIC MIRTH.

Johnny: "I think it was his last battle." —Boy's World.

Freddie—"Say, dad, why are there no marriages in heaven?"

Henpecked—"Because it's heaven." —Dallas News.

She was complaining of his meanness, and instance the unsatisfactory quality of her engagement ring.

"You wouldn't notice these things if you really cared for me," he told her. "I always thought love was blind."

She smiled wanly. "Yes, darling," she replied, "but not stone blind." —Kansas City Star.

"Ah," said Johnson to a friend, "so you are married at last. Allow me to congratulate you, for I hear you have an excellent and accomplished wife."

"I have indeed," was the reply; "she is highly accomplished. She is perfectly at home in literature; at home in art; at home in science—in short, at home everywhere—except—"

"Except where?"

"Except at home."

SIGN IN A RURAL POSTOFFICE.

"Positively no letters will be delivered til received. If you don't get your letter the day you expect it, have the postmaster look through all the boxes, and in the cellar also, it ought to be there somewhere, and he likes to look for it just to please you. If your friends don't write course the postmaster he is to blame. If he tells you there is no mail for you, put on a greaved expression and say there ought to be some, he is probably hiding your mail for the pleasure of having you call for it six or seven times a day and after every freight or hand car. Ask him to look again."

Timothy Hay—"Did you ever read the Congressional Record?"

Al Falfa—"I tried to do it one year, but I didn't like it."

Tim—"What was the matter? Was it too prosy?"

Al—"No; it didn't have any advertisements in it."

A school teacher was very much annoyed by the continued mischievousness of one of her boys. At last she exclaimed in exasperation: "I wish I could be your mother for just about one week. I would rid you of your naughty disposition."

"Very well. I will speak to father about it," responded the youngster coolly.—Boston Transcript.

ALUMNAE

Are You Going to Shirk Your Responsibility?

Dear Alumnae:

The Rotunda Staff has generously given a large part of the space of this issue to news that should interest us especially, and in addition has helped to make it possible to send a copy to every member of the Association whose address is known. We wish each one of you to realize that this letter is meant for you, personally and individually—for you whose name is on the wrapper is this paper.

Dr. Jarman has told us in his letter how matters stand in regard to the Student Building and of his faith in our ability and our desire to see this work finished. A third of the Alumnae have pledged one half of the $50,000 that we made ourselves responsible for at the June meeting of 1921. Since we wish the building to be in the truest sense an alumnae gift, we hope that you who have not yet made a pledge or contribution will send in either one or the other, no matter how small it is. One of the most prized gifts that has been made was a one-dollar gift. We should like the pledge or the gift to be made not as a debt due the school but as a service rendered to the present and future students, and we should like every one who has ever attended the

WE BUILD

JENNIE MASTERS TABB

We build for the past—
Our school-girl past—
With its memories tender and sweet;
There is never a doubt
With the past left out
That life would be incomplete.

We build for the present—
The splendid today—
With its April smiles and tears;
For the lesson of truth
Instilled in our youth
Will last through the coming years.

We build for the future
And all it may hold—
For the girls of the years to come;
To give us a share
In the pleasure rare
That will grace their dear school-home.

We build for the School—
Alma Mater, so fair,—
Thy daughters are loyal and true;
With zeal in each heart
They're doing their part
To show their devotion to you!

And so we build on,
Just a brick at a time—
Until our fair building shall rise
A monument sweet
To our love, and replete
With the spirit of sacrifice.

For as we build on
We're doing our best
To give of ourselves as we can;
By earnest endeavor
(Our faith flagging never)
Completing our beautiful plan!

SENIORS HOLD INSTALLATION SERVICE

Largest Degree Class in History of School Formally Recognized.

One of the most impressive and beautiful services of the year was held in the school auditorium at seven o'clock Tuesday evening, October 30.

The services began when the Seniors, each with her Junior escort marched solemnly down the aisle. The Seniors wore their gowns while the Junior girls, dressed in white, carried the caps.

After the address concerning their responsibilities as teachers and public servants Dr. Jarman placed the cap on the head of each Senior.

This class has been growing in members each year until this session the number is the greatest in the history of the institution.

SORORITY PLEDGES

Alpha chapter of Tri-Sigma announces the following pledges: Misses Virginia Vincent, Mobley Brown, Dodie Schaffner, Mary Lynn Petty and Elizabeth Crute.

Gamma Theta announces as pledges: Misses Rebecca Burgess, Ruth Creevy, Virginia Cowherd and Lucille Franklin. Delta Sigma Chi announces the following pledges: Misses Martha Hinch, Agnes Teel and Ellis Nowlin.

ARTISTS GROUP

A concert was given by the Artist Group in the Auditorium Wednesday evening, October 31. The company was composed of Jesus Souronna, solo pianist; Raymond Simonds, tenor; and Miss Marguerite Sherlock, reader.

Mr. Jesus Sanronna pianist, is a native of Porto Rica. At a very early age he showed marked musical ability. Mr. Raymond Simonds, tenor, has recently appeared in the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Miss Marguerite Sherlock, reader, is a graduate of Wellesley College and has studied under the leading teachers of Boston.

The selections given by Mr. Sanronna showed that he had acquired skill and technique. Mr. Simonds' selections were adapted to his audience; they consisted chiefly of folk songs. Miss Sherlock gave readings that fitted her voice and personality.

THE LIBRARY PROBLEM

Many years ago when I was but a freshman, I took my loneliness and went exploring. My search was without excitement until I reached a certain part of the corner of the building, and there—well, I thought a picnic was in progress. Thrilled with expectancy I approached the sound, and opening the door peered cautiously

MISS EVERETT ADDRESSES TRAVELERS' CLUB

Philippines Subject of an Interesting and Educational Talk.

The Travelers' Club held its first meeting of the year, Thursday, October 25. A most interesting talk was given by Miss Everett on her trip to the Philippines last year. Much was learned of the people of the Philippines, of their customs, and of the geography of the Philippines. The Filipinos, we were told, commercialized by America, are a wild, very gracious, and very religious people. However, they are superstitious, imitative, and lack executive ability. Dancing is their chief recreation.

Something was told of the beautiful architecture in the Philippines, their churches being especially beautiful. Manila was described as being the "City of Sunsets," and a vivid account was given of a visit to a Japanese restaurant in the Philippines.

CHANGES IN THE CONSTITUTION OF THE ALUMNAE ASSOCIATION

In one of the May issues of the Rotunda the president of the Alumnae Association called attention to certain phases of work to be taken up at the biennial meeting in June, one of which was the revision of the Constitution. The following changes made at that meeting should be noted.

First—Students who have completed three quarters of professional work leading to a diploma or degree are eligible to associate membership. Some of the local chapters have already enrolled all of these former loyal students and all others are asked to extend a like invitation to such alumnae in their communities.

Second—The general management of the Association shall be in an Executive Board consisting of the officers of the association—president, first vice-president, second vice-president, alumnae secretary, and two directors, all elected by the association except the alumnae secretary, who is to be appointed by the Board. The President of the Normal School shall be a member of the Executive Board.

Third—The Association shall meet annually instead of biennially on Saturday before commencement day. It is hoped that a plan for class reunions may be worked out for these annual meetings.

Fourth—The annual dues shall be one dollar instead of fifty cents. All local chapters are urged to collect the dues for 1923-24 as soon as possible and send to the Secretary-Treasurer, Miss C. B. Taliaferro, Farmville, Virginia, as the Association is in need of funds for carrying on its work.

Another matter of interest decided upon at the June meeting was the incorporation of the Association under the laws of Virginia.

The Association of Alumnae of the State Normal School for Women at Farmville is now our legal name.

A CHALLENGE

From Your Alma Mater Through Her President.

November 10, 1923.

To the Members of Our Alumnae Association:

I know from experience that all of you are enough interested in our Student Building to want to know just how matters stand today.

We have gone ahead, having faith in our alumnae, and practically completed the fourth floor and gymnasium floor, and have let the contract for the plastering of the first and second floors. When this is completed the whole building will be finished with the exception of floors, trimming and painting for the first and second floors.

We have let contracts amounting to a little over a hundred thousand dollars; the building when completed will cost a hundred and thirty thousand. We are expecting an appropriation from the State amounting to fifty thousand; from the faculty, home department, and other friends for approximately seven thousand dollars. I can reasonably count on eight thousand dollars from other sources—leaving only fifty thousand for the alumnae to raise. About half of this amount is already pledged.

In view of the fact that I have borrowed fifty thousand dollars it will be readily seen that as pledges are paid up I can reduce this loan and save interest. I therefore earnestly urge all who have made pledges to pay them up as rapidly as possible. There are seventeen hundred of the alumnae who, up to this time have made no pledge. There may be some who have scruples against making a pledge; to those I would say, whenever you can send in a cash contribution (even though small) do so.

This building will be paid for by small contributions from a large number of people. What I ask is that you get the Student Building on your heart and keep it in your mind. If you will do this, contributions will steadily flow in and our faith in you will be more than justified.

With best wishes for each and every one of you, I am

Cordially yours,

J. L. JARMAN.

HAPPY AND INDEPENDENT BACHELORS OF FARMVILLE

have formed a club, to which, in spite of their happiness and independence they have not been able to give a name. It is therefore necessary to call the enemy into camp. The girl offering the best name for this organization will be given a prize of $10. Come! Let us help our weaker brothers. Donate a brain child. All suggestions are to be sent to "The Club, care of Farmville Herald."

She: Who is that man wearing a black robe, a chimney sweep?

He: Naw, that's a Ku Klux from Pittsburg. Malteaser.

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer, and these will not be published if the writer objects to the publications.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matters should come to the Editor in Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of their copies of The Rotunda will be appreciated.

Do unto the Rotunda as you would it should do unto you. Suppose the Rotunda made cutting remarks about you. You could assault the Editor. But the Rotunda has no recourse.

By this we don't mean criticism. We court criticism. We crave advice. Criticism by all means, but constructively.

"There's a time and space for all things," some one said. But there's not space for more than a half dozen pairs of normal earrings in one normal classroom.

It's a good thing that earrings weigh just the same. Otherwise some of us would go around with our heads twisted away from sideways from the terrific weight.

As it is, it's a case of the earring wagging the head instead of the head wagging the earring.

TRAINING SCHOOL NEWS

In a normal school of this size, so often the activities of the Training School are overlooked and are considered but a minor feature of the total school activities. But the pupils of the Training School are just as much a part of the total organization as any normal school class, and are clamoring for recognition and a place on the map. Just listen, and we will tell you a few things we have done and are going to do.

In the first place, we believe that strong healthy bodies, a sportsmanlike spirit, and school pep, are essential to any high school organization. Acting upon this assumption, a high school athletic association was organized on Monday afternoon, Oct. 29, with the following officers:

Pres.—Floise Warriner.
Vice-Pres.—Evelyn Burger.
Sec.—Ruth Paulette.
Treas.—Margaret Hubbard.

Under the leadership of these officers the association expects to put out a real peppy basket ball team, and to have not only inter-class but inter-scholastic games.

On Monday morning, Oct. 30, following chapel exercises, the students of the Training High School organized an honor association. The following officers were elected:

Pres.—Virginia Uptike.
Vice-Pres.—Evelyn Burger.
Sec.—May Frances Tuttle.
Treas.—Grace Underwood.

One of the special features of recent date was a Halloween Party given by the Third Grade on the evening of Oct. 26. An attractive program was rendered, consisting of games, songs, recitations, etc., after which all who desired had their fortune told by a real Egyptian fortune teller. A fee of ten cents was charged. The climax of this party came during chapel exercises on the morning of Oct. 31, when the entire grade, in masked costumes, marched down the long aisle and presented President Jarman with a large pumpkin containing $30.00, compliments of the Third Grade to the Student Building.

Are we interested in the Student Building? Let us prove to you further of our zeal and desire to assist in this worthy undertaking. The Training High School itself is engaged at this time in getting up a play, consisting of the best available talent, the proceeds of which are to go to the Student Building.

But this is not all that we are undertaking, for even Blue Beard himself will appear on the evening of November 24, at the Normal School Auditorium in a play bearing his name. The play is a comedy containing many amusing features, songs, dances, etc. It will be preceded by a pageant of the year in which fairies, butterflies, bees, flowers, and leaves appear. The play is to be given by the class in Games V, First Professional, assisted by children of the grades.

school to have a part in this first gift of the Alumnae to Alma Mater. Some of the Alumnae who have not been able to give $10 or even $5 a year have pledged themselves to raise this amount, and have been successful in finding friends who have been glad of an opportunity to give to a fund that means increased facilities for the development of teachers.

So will you not, if you have not already done so, let us know that you are interested in the work? Write Dr. Jarman the letter you have been intending to write. The Alumnae Association elected him treasurer of our Student Building Fund, and he is thus carrying a heavy financial load for us. Just think of assuming a debt of $50,000—fifty thousand—yes—that is just what Dr. Jarman has done in order to make his idea of a Student Building materialize. How many of us would be willing to shoulder even a small part of a like burden on faith? "Well," you may say to yourself, "he had security, hadn't he?" Yes, but security in a somewhat intangible form—merely that given him by his confidence, trust, and faith in the Alumnae, faculty, home department, student body, and friends of our Alma Mater. Surely our thanks are due him for the work he has so gladly done. So be sure to write that long-delayed letter this week, enclosing a pledge or check that it may be on record when the formal opening of the gymnasium takes place this month. May not a single one of us fail to have at least a small share in this Student Building!

Sincerely yours,

MARY CLAY HINER,
KATHERINE COOK,
ADA BIERBOWER,
CARRIE TALIAFERRO,
MARY WHITE COX.

Executive Committee.

AT THE EACO THEATRE—Nov. 12th-17th

Monday—JAGK HOLT and WANDA HAWLEY and a BIG cast in THE PARAMOUNT PICTURE "NOBODY'S MONEY." The stage play that had all Broadway laughing. Made into Jack Holt's jolliest picture. A swift love comedy as bright and sparkling as a new gold-piece. Come cash in on your share of laughs. Also Pathe News.

Tuesday—ALICE CALHOUN in "ONE STOLEN NIGHT." Today is gone, Tomorrow is not yet here. We still have tonight. Thus the Arab spoke to ALICE CALHOUN in "One Stolen Night." A story of desert love and drama. A story of brave deeds, strong loves, mystery and daring feats of horsemanship. Also 12th episode of the serial.

Wednesday—CHARLES JONES in "SNOWDRIFT" from the famous novel by James B. Hendryx. A drama of flaming hearts in the frozen North. A story of a glorious fight for life in the Yukon Gold Fields. The story of a mining engineer and his love for "Snowdrift," a white waif who had been brought up by the Indians. Also Aesop Fable.

Thursday and Friday—BETTY COMPTON and a BIG SELECT CAST in THE PARAMOUNT PICTURE "THE WHITE FLOWER." Betty as a glowing creature of fire and romance—half Hawaiian, half American. In a story of love and mystery actually filmed in Hawaii. Warm-eyed, fiery passion—half Hawaiian, half American. When this blonde American girl started calmly to steal her man from her, who could blame her for fighting back, forgetting honor, civilization, everything? It is the story of a great love and a greater sacrifice. It is the perfect romance in the perfect romantic setting. IT IS THE KIND OF PICTURE ALL GIRLS LOVE. Fox News Thursday and a GOOD COMEDY Friday.

Saturday—"WHO ARE MY PARENTS" A BIG SPECIAL PRODUCTION, enacted by a BIG select cast. A picture that we can recommend to any one. The story is so human and appealing that it does not need the name of any well known star. The efforts of the father to prevent his daughter from marrying the man she loves starts a series of emotional complications that are brought up to a powerful climax. Humorous incidents of child life relieve the dramatic tension of the serious scenes. Also 11th episode of THE JUNGLE GODDESS. Admission to Normal Students 20 cents to each show.

JOAN SPEAKS

Dear "Rotunda,"

I have a sad tale to tell. Many years ago there lived in this school four literary societies. They were well, happy and prosperous. The world meant a lot to them and they in turn meant something to the world in which they lived. And the good times they had! They really would give each other big receptions; they had rushing parties for the new girls, then parties for the new members and always a party for the departing Seniors. Can you believe it?

Membership was closed and there was a regular "bid night." Work started in the fall with a "bang"—excellent work and much of it was done to prove themselves worthy of the new girls. Open programs were given by each in the auditorium every month. Beautiful posters advertised the meetings. They had literary programs, musical numbers, plays and debates. Stranger still they had pins, pennants, pillows and paper for each society.

Now where have these things gone? If the Literary Societies are dead won't some kind person give them a decent burial for the sake of their glorious deeds of the past? Don't let their memory be dishonored! But aren't there some courageous people in school with initiative enough to recreate these dear relics of the past? My advice is to restore them to old ways—close them, limit them, keep out all new members until they are functioning again. Next, give Tuesday night immediately after supper as a time for open programs in the auditorium. Provide competition. Award a cup for the largest number of points based on literary and debating merit. Why, if I could open this old pouch by my side, I would give a handsome gold cup.

Yours in literary woe,

Joan.

ALUMNAE CHAPTER REPORTS

After the recess of the summer months, the chapters are resuming their activities. Only a few sent letters for this paper, preferring to report through their representatives at the Thanksgiving banquet.

On November 1, the Portsmouth Chapter met for a banquet and a business meeting at which time officers were elected for 1923-24: President, Miss Shannon Morton; Secretary-treasurer, Miss Annie Tignor; Reporter, Miss Elizabeth Downey; First Vice-president, Miss Lois Williams; Second Vice-president, Miss Florence Haynie. Plans were made to have a table at the Christmas Gift Shop for the sale of fancy articles and candy, the proceeds to be devoted to the Student Building fund. Last year $100 was raised in this way.

The Farmville Alumnae Chapter is very proud to report through its secretary, Mrs. E. R. Booker, the money they raised by constant effort the past year. The first sum was $32 realized last October from the sale of Lyceum Course tickets. Then came $60.50 collected from dues of the Normal League members. Next was the benefit card party at Mrs. Jarman's in January netting $27. Next we raised $65 in pledges at a meeting on January 11. From January 1 to March 7 we met weekly and served for the Normal School Home Department. On March 7, Founders' Day, Miss Bugg, our treasurer, presented to Dr. Jarman $190 for the Student Building Fund. Several benefit pictures were given, and another subscription card party in the spring added greatly to our already neat sum. We realized more than $200 from the Circus given with great zeal and success by the whole school.

Many plans are on the table at present to carry on the good work for this year. In October we assisted with a most delightful garden party held upon the spacious lawn of Dr. Jarman's home. Nature added to the already beautiful scene and the whole affair was one long to be remembered. Nearly $60 was cleared from this entertainment. It was so successful we have already planned a second garden party for the same place in the merry month of May.

The Petersburg Chapter of the Farmville Alumnae Association has held only one meeting this year, but at that meeting a large number of former members pledged anew their support to the chapter and two new members were reported. Plans for reorganization and for raising a contribution for the Student Building Fund are now under way. Letters to the members of the State Advisory Budget Committee have been written at the request of our president, Miss Mary Clay Hiner.

The Petersburg Chapter extends best wishes to the Association and hopes for a large representation at the annual Thanksgiving meeting in Richmond.

Carolyn Coghill,

President Petersburg Chapter.

The Roanoke-Salem chapter of the Farmville Alumnae held at the Roanoke Hotel Saturday night one of the most interesting and enjoyable banquets that has ever been put on by the local association.

Miss Lula O. Andrews, formerly head of the English Department at Farmville; Miss Mary Hiner, president of the State Association, and Miss Lila London, of Farmville, were the honor guests.

The places of those present at the banquet were marked with hand painted

Hallowe'en cards, and during the banquet the following program was carried out:

Greetings—Sallie Barksdale, toast-mistress.

Toast to Guests—Myra Howard.

Toast to New Members—Helen Cocke.

Address—Miss L. O. Andrews.

Toast to Married Members—Lois Moffett.

Response—Mrs. W. H. Horn.

Greetings from State Association—Miss Mary Hiner.

Toast to Normal School—Mrs. W. H. Barksdale.

During the evening several "stunts" which caused much amusement took place.

The program was brought to a close by the singing of the school song, "My Alma Mater," written by Miss Jennie Tabb, who is not only an alumna but has for many years been registrar at the Farmville Normal.

Farmville, Va.,

Nov. 3, 1923.

Dear Alumna,

The Y. W. C. A. is making quite an effort to keep in touch with each former member, believing that those who did such splendid work in the Association while in school, would like to continue their connection with this Association. Last year we had a small Alumnae membership in our Y. W. C. A. We hope to enlarge our membership this year.

The Alumnae Committee is therefore taking this opportunity to extend to you, as a former member of this Y. W. C. A. a most cordial invitation to become a member of the Alumnae Association. As such you will be on the mailing list of this Association and from time to time will be sent news of the work being done.

We need the inspiration and help you can give us, and we feel that you will be glad to join us in the common purpose of extending the Kingdom of Christ throughout the world.

If you wish to become a member write to me. I shall be only too glad to enroll you.

Sincerely yours,

Claudia Gilchrist

Chairman of Alumnae Membership Committee.

Gamma Theta Banquet.

Gamma Theta held its annual fall banquet in the Tea Room, Friday evening, November 2.

The colors of the sorority were effectively carried out by the use of azure blue and white tulle which extended from the lights to the center of the table, which was banked with ferns and greens.

The favors were beautifully jewelled bracelets.

The alumnae present were: Miss Florence Buford, Louise Parsons, Mrs. Coyner, Carrie Golusha, Kathryn Thompson, and Pauline Timberlake.

Tri-Sigma Banquet.

The Alpha chapter of Tri-Sigma gave its annual rush banquet Saturday, November 3, in the Tea Room. The tables were arranged in the shape of a triangle, in the center of which was a triangular arch covered with vines and wisteria, carrying out the purple and white color scheme. In the arch was an immense violet from which streamers of wisteria extended to each place. Clusters of wisteria hung from the lights which were shaded with lavender, giving a soft glow over all. Sorority emblems and colors were further carried out in the dinner which followed.

Out of town guests were: Misses Sarah George, Nancy Huyett, Susie Craft, Mary Lydia Quarles, Rena Luck, Eliza Davis, Mary Burwell and Page Trent of Charlottesville; Lois Williams of Portsmouth; Cabell Gilmer and Ethel Warthen of Lynchburg; Katherine Allen of Kingston, N. C.; Kate Trent of Richmond; and Kitty Cole of Roanoke.

Delta Sigma Chi Cabaret.

The Delta Sigma Chi Sorority gave its second rush party of the season in the Tea Room Thursday, November 1. The guests were seated at small tables between which they danced. Entertainment consisting of stunts and fortune telling was provided to complete the idea of the cabaret style. Small vanity cases were given as favors.

within. I stopped in wonder, for the noise came from the library.

To my unsophisticated eyes everything was action. People walked, chairs scraped, leaves turned, and tongues clacked. "Why don't they have a traffic cop," I murmured weakly, as a banana peel, and a summons to "Shut the door" skidded by my ear.

My thoughts immediately reverted to that scene when the subject of "Improvements in the Library" or "The Library Problem" was suggested, and I wondered if a Maxim silencer for every student would be too expensive. However, without going to all that expense, I think there really are some ways of eliminating such intense congestion. The doors of the reading and reference rooms might be left open to avoid the passing of the entire clientele through the main room. If necessary the girls could sign a pledge before entering to be quiet and to abduct no literature. Rubber caps could be put on the chairs to still their unseemly lament. At the beginning of the term a more comprehensive course might be given to freshmen concerning the use of the filing cabinet, thus lessening their plaintive wails to the librarian.

Who knows but some day we may really be able to study in the library?

THE NORMAL SCHOOL WEEKLY.

VOLUME IV. No. 8

FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA

NOVEMBER 17, 1923

DR. JOSEPH L. JARMAN

Dr. Joseph L. Jarman, fourth President of the State Normal School, was born in Charlottesville, Virginia, on the 19th day of November, 1867. His father, William Dabney Jarman, served in the Confederate Army, and his mother was Catherine Goodloe Lindsay, of the well-known Lindsay family of Albemarle County.

His early education was obtained in the public schools of Charlottesville, and at the age of fourteen (having been left an orphan) he was sent to the Miller Manual Training School, where he remained from 1881 to 1886. In the competitive examination, he won the Miller Scholarship at the University of Virginia, where he was a student from 1886 to 1889, devoting himself especially to the Natural and Physical Sciences.

Upon completion of the course at the University, he returned to Miller School as a member of the faculty, but remained there only one year as, at the end of that time, he was called to the chair of Natural Science at Emory and Henry College. He filled this position for twelve years, and left it in 1902, to take up work at Farmville.

During his stay at Emory and Henry College the degree of A. B. was conferred upon him by that institution, and since he has been in Farmville, Hampden-Sidney College has honored him with the L. L. D. degree. Within the past year Dr. Jarman has been elected to Phi Beta Kappa by the University of Virginia Chapter, an honor that comes to alumni only after a prolonged period of distinguished service.

Dr. Jarman has been a member of many state and national organizations and he has held responsible offices in these organizations. However, his greatest contribution has been made in connection with education in Virginia, and particularly in connection with the State Normal School at Farmville. The history of the educational renaissance in Virginia which has taken place in the last thirty years is the history of the work of wise and courageous leaders, among whom Dr. Jarman ranks near the top.

The State Normal School at Farmville, which is both a result and a cause of the movement for better education in the state, has had a conspicuous part in the development of education in Virginia. A good foundation was laid when Dr. Jarman became president in 1902, but it was only a beginning. From a relatively small school doing high grade secondary-school work in the main, it has become a modern teachers college, with strictly professional courses, covering four years' work, with diversified types of work fitting students for many types of service in the state, and an enrollment of over 700 students. It has been ranked by competent judges among the best normal schools of the country. This growth in the large is due to the foresight, careful planning, and energy of Dr. Jarman.

But an institution is more than buildings, courses, faculty, and students. Mere numbers and comparative statistics do not begin to describe the State Normal School, or the work of Dr. Jarman.

DR. JOSEPH L. JARMAN.

A BIRTHDAY WISH

(For our President, from his girls)

For you, whose life is as a torch held high, to guide us on our way, we, your girls, would ask the boon of just these simple blessings: may your eyes be always clear to see the things that the years should bring; may you have an unflinching faith that will lead you to your goal; may each morning find you with courage and strength to face the task before you; and each day's close bestow upon you the joy of unselfish service rendered, and the peace of work well done.

ALUMNAE NOTES

Cards have been received announcing the marriage of Miss Lucy Matilda Mac-lin to Mr. Wilson Edward Somers. Mr. and Mrs. Somers are now at home at 2806 Westhampton Avenue, Richmond, Virginia.

Miss Ethel Gildersleeve has moved from Newport News to Hampton.

A pretty marriage took place in the Crawford Methodist Church near Dinwiddie C. H., Saturday evening, November 10, when Miss Sallie Eppes Hargrave of Dinwiddie, became the bride of Mr. Earl Brouddus Short, of Petersburg. Preceding the ceremony, Miss Mary Gray Hargrave sang "At dawning." Miss Virginia Hargrave, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and the bridesmaids, also sisters of the bride, were Misses Musa, Katherine, Adelaide and Cecil Hargrave. After a trip through the mountains of Virginia

Mr. and Mrs. Short will make their home in Petersburg.

The Richmond Chapter of the Alumnae Association met Friday afternoon, November 9 at "The Walford" for the purpose of electing new officers. The president and vice-president of last year are now living elsewhere.

The Farmville Alumnae Chapter at a meeting November 8, laid plans for a bazaar to be held in the new gymnasium early in December. The faculty and students will cooperate, and the proceeds will be for the benefit of the Student Building.

LITERARY SOCIETIES MAKE LAST FRENZIED RALLY

Almost Extinct Organizations Plan for Re-creation

At a called meeting Saturday, November 10, the remnants of six once prosperous and wide-awake literary societies met to discuss plans for rejuvenation, Mr. Grainger presiding. The need for literary societies in school was admitted, but equally frank was the admission that the present attitude regarding them was all wrong.

Beginning with Miss Conway's remark that "the ghosts of the old girls would come back to haunt us" if they knew of the present state of dilapidation of their beloved societies, the meeting progressed with animation. Miss Buford spoke, warmly advocating the return to the "closed" organization and "rushing" as means of winning new members. She also stated that in her opinion the fact that time which lawfully belonged to literary societies had been usurped by other organizations was one of the reasons for the decadence of the former, and that a definite time for meeting must be decided upon if the work was to amount to anything. Dr. Jarman here made a short talk, telling of the systems of conducting literary societies at other schools and emphasizing their need here.

Those present voted to have a committee interview the proper authorities to find a suitable time at which a meeting for all societies could be called without fear of interference. They also voted as one of the initial steps of re-creation to have a small pageant as one of the events of National Education Week.

A committee was elected to see to this. Pending the reports of the committees, the meeting adjourned.

"LOVE AND FRIENDSHIP"

Love and Friendship—Jane Austen. This little volume, containing some early works of the satirical Jane, has been printed only recently from the original manuscript. In it are two novelettes, told in a series of letters, a short History of England, by a "partial, ignorant, and prejudiced historian," as she says, a collection of letters and scraps.

This work is naturally rather crude compared with her more mature productions. However, we can easily see the budding genius, the traces of that inimitable, ironical humor which makes "Pride and Prejudice" an enjoyable novel, of first rank. Even at this early stage, she seems to delight in using the conventions, the foibles and silly sentimentality of her age, as objects of her satire. For example—"My life, my soul!" exclaimed the former. "My adorable angel!" replied the latter as they flew into each other's arms. It was too pathetic for the feelings of Sophia and myself—we fainted alternately on the sofa.

JONES FRESHMAN PRESIDENT

Class Organizes with Splendid Show of Enthusiasm.

Judging from the noise in the Auditorium last Thursday after Chapel anyone would have thought there was a free-for-all fight going on, but after close investigation it proved that it was merely a Freshman meeting for the election of officers. It seems that this class is a spirited bunch after all, for they squabbled over the officers one and all. Of course, the size of the class, about four hundred, had something to do with these dissensions for there seemed to be varied opinions about who was the "best girl" for the place.

Finally after much talking, arguing, counting and recounting Miss Louise Jones was elected President. Of course, Louise is just the girl for this office. She was here all last year and naturally "knows the ropes." She is a natural leader and a good mixer but best of all she has the interest of the Freshman Class at heart, realizing, however, that this class is not a unit by itself but only a very important part of the famous Farmville State Normal School.

Miss Virginia Vincent was elected Vice-president. If spirit is needed she ought to make a good one, for "pep" is Virginia's middle name.

Miss Lucy Overby has the office of Secretary. Judging from her remarks and past experience the class certainly has chosen the right girl.

The important matters of finance were put in the hands of Miss Sue Roper. Maybe under Sue's capable leadership the class will be able to add something to the Student Building Fund.

Bessie Meade Riddle was made reporter.

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer, and these will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matters should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of their copies of The Rotunda will be appreciated.

If the saying "A little knowledge is a dangerous thing," applies to knowledge acquired thru literary societies, most of us will be practically immune for life.

It's a small thing in itself, but it becomes decidedly irritating after awhile, and we have often wondered why girls can't remember to raise their chapel seats when they get up.

One of these days somebody is going to the Infirmary with a dislocated knee as a result of another kind somebody's failure to raise her chapel seat when leaving.

If there's a vulnerable spot those seats will find it. We firmly believe that Achilles would have passed away before the Siege had the school he attended been provided with chapel seats and students similar to ours.

We fully expect to have a repetition of the "Terrible Tempered Mr. Bangs" some day with the resultant bill in the Business Office for half a dozen chapel seats that some long suffering student has torn up by the roots and cast aside.

"CRICKET ON THE HEARTH"

Large Audience Attends First Glee Club Play.

The Glee Club under the direction of Miss Christine E. Munoz, presented Charles Dickens' story "The Cricket on the Hearth," in the Auditorium, Friday evening, November 9.

The characters were well represented and effectively portrayed. John, in direct contrast to the hard and grasping Tackleton showed his noble nature in love for his wife Dot, while she in turn made the bachelors feel that they would not mind being married if they could secure such a dear, sweet, obedient little wife as she. Caleb proved to the audience that one never grows too old to dance and be merry when he galloped across the stage with the audience to send forth many peals of uproarious laughter. Bertha caused the audience to start; wasn't she beautiful and is she really blind? May was a demure little bride with her curly locks and flowing gown. Some of the girls present said that they could love Edward themselves, that he was so handsome. The Cricket with her graceful movements and cherry "chirrup" charmed the audience. The daintiness of the Household Fairies and their quaint actions were wondrous to behold.

The songs of the Glee Club between acts gave charm and variety to the program, lending to it the note that made it one of the most successful entertainments ever given in the school.

man in developing the Normal School. The biggest thing in S. N. S. after all is its peculiar and distinctive spirit. It cannot be described in words. It can be felt only. Students here gain more than a knowledge of the textbooks and training in teaching. There is an indefinable atmosphere about the school that affects in a marked way the character and personality of Farmville folks. This intangible, stimulating, and character-forming force is probably the greatest thing about the school. This force, emanating from and passing to faculty and students alike, finds its source in the spirit and attitude of Dr. Jarman.

In spite of his constructive educational work, his contribution to the educational development of the state, honors received at home and in various parts of the country, the greatest thing about Dr. Jarman is his loving, sympathetic personality.

"The greatest mistake you can make in this life is to be continually fearing you will make one."

Many Happy Returns!

NEAR EAST RELIEF CONFERENCE

Misses Helen Miller and Janie Moore left Sunday, November 11 to attend the Near East Relief Conference at Richmond as representatives of the Normal School. Eleven Colleges of this State were represented there and plans were discussed broadening and improving the student phase of Near East Relief.

AT THE EACO THEATRE—Week November 19th-24th

Monday and Tuesday—"NERO" HERE IS A GREAT BIG SUPERSPECIAL PRODUCTION; THE BIGGEST THING OF ITS KIND EVER SHOWN IN FARMVILLE. It is a magnificent spectacle. "The grandeur that was Rome's" is reflected again from the screen in "NERO." We see the palace of the Emperors with its thousands of officials and their attendants, the beauties of the court, the Roman citizens and the slaves, captives of other lands. We see Nero abroad in his chariot, gatherings in the amphitheatre, sports of the people, tragic and dramatic episodes. "William Fox," says the New York Sun, "has excavated around the seven hills of ancient Rome and brought forth a magnificent and thrilling film. Concerned with none other than that superb scoundrel of all ages—NERO, who had, perhaps, the most famous set of weaknesses in all the world." NOT ONLY IS THIS A WONDERFUL ENTERTAINMENT, BUT IT SHOULD BE SEEN TOO FOR ITS GREAT EDUCATIONAL VALUE. PATHE NEWS Monday and 13 episode of serial Tuesday. MATINEE Monday at 3:30. ADMISSION TO NORMAL STUDENTS 25c.

Wednesday—DUSTIN FARNUM in "THE BUSTER." A story of a thrilling lover for lovers of thrills. He was a rough, handsome Westerner, she, a beautiful, but temperamental, society belle of the East. And the twain met. SHE CAME, SHE SAW, AND SHE CONQUERED. Also AESOP FABLE.

Thursday and Friday—AGNES AYRES, RICHARD DIX, THEODORE ROBERTS and a fine supporting cast in the BIG PARAMOUNT PICTURE "RACING HEARTS." You'll see a brand-new Agnes Ayres—bobbed hair, sparkling eyes—full o' pep. In a rollicking racing romance. By the author of Wally Reid's auto successes. She'll whizz right into your heart. Agnes Ayres lovelier than ever, Theodore Roberts and his cigar, handsome Richard Dix and a racing car—what a combination for whirlwind entertainment. THIS IS THE KIND OF PICTURE THAT ALL YOUNG PEOPLE WILL ENJOY TO THE LIMIT. FOX NEWS Thursday and a GOOD COMEDY Friday. ADMISSION TO NORMAL STUDENTS 20c.

Saturday—"A FOOL THERE WAS" A BIG SPECIAL PICTURE inspired by Rudyard Kipling's poem "THE VAMPIRE." Enacted by a fine selected cast. WE NEED NOT TELL YOU WHAT A FINE PICTURE THIS IS. It is chock full of dramatic situations. They follow each other with lightning rapidity. IT IS THE KIND OF PICTURE THAT WILL APPEAL TO EVERY GIRL AND WOMAN. Also 12th episode of JUNGLE GODDESS.

Admission to Normal Students 25 cents Monday and Tuesday and 20 cents for the other days.

JOAN SPEAKS

Dear Rotunda,

I hear a great deal of talk about degrees, especially on Friday mornings, when the caps and gowns of the Seniors are so much in evidence. The B. S. degree seems to be the topic of conversation. Of course I spent my school days many years ago, and don't understand the principles underlying the conferring of degrees: but I've heard that Dr. Jarman has an L.L. D. from Hampden-Sidney, and I'd like for him to have a B. S. from the State Normal School. I do not know what the two letters mean ordinarily, but they made a very good Latinized sounding abbreviation for Student Building, and since he has made the erection of the Student Building a vital part of his life's work, I'm sure he would like to have some suggestion of it in his name. J. L. Jarman, B. S., sounds well to me; B. S. is a title that our president well deserves.

TWENTY-TWO YEARS OF CHANGES

The other night, after a strenuous day, topped off by helping to dispatch a box which some kind friend had received, I dropped off to sleep and soon found myself at a place called the "State Normal School" in the year 1902. On trying to enter I found my way blocked by a formidable picket fence and after penetrating this I walked across a bare looking building. My consternation grew. No colonnades! No White House Hall! No West Wing! No shrubbery! No Student Building! No porches! I passed within the portals into a small reception hall, pictureless, unfurnished save for an unsympathetic settle. A single stair case reared itself at the back of the hall. Was I mad? Wildly I sought out the spots which I had admired and loved. How forbidding the sitting room looked without its cheerful draperies which seemed to enmesh the sunlight! How unattractive was the Senior parlor without its rose and gray color scheme, its exquisite lights! I sought the library and found it in —Room J. Where was the reading room? Could a school exist without one? In terror, I fled for comfort to the tea room but, alas, I came only to a damp dark cellar. Amazed I searched for other familiar spots only to find them either missing or unattractive. I didn't recognize the Rotunda Office and the Y. W. C. A. social room and the cabinet room, and the Student Association Room, just simply didn't exist. I started to go and then was amazed to find myself in bed with my roommate shaking me and saying, "Will you please stop shrieking 'I am going to take the next train home' long enough for me to rest?" I sighed and went to sleep again and had another dream but this one I won't relate. You, too, can have it. Walk by the Episcopal Church and down the front walk, looking around you. Enter the reception hall and visit all your favorite haunts. Then go down the hall toward the Auditorium until you smell an excellent cigar. Gaze into the room from which the aroma emanates and you will see the man under whose administration all this has taken place, to whose efforts most of these things are due, in short you will see our beloved Dr. Jarman.

The pessimist is a man, who, when he feels ill, orders an asbestos lined coffin.

EDUCATION WEEK TO BE OBSERVED HERE

In compliance with the proclamation of the President of the United States published several weeks ago, the Normal School will observe American Education Week from November 18 to 24. Part of the services in the churches on Sunday, Nov. 18, will be directed toward the subject of religious education. The opening program in the Normal School will be given by representatives of classes in the Department of Education on Tuesday morning at Chapel. On Wednesday afternoon a program on the part played by the County, State, and Federal Governments in American education will be given by the Fourth Year High School class in Social Problems under the direction of Miss Agnes Baptist. This will occur in the Auditorium and all students and patrons of the school are invited. On Thursday morning at Chapel the American ideal for physical education will be demonstrated and on Thursday evening at seven o'clock a pageant showing the part played by books in American education will be given under the auspices of the Literary Societies. Friday will be college education day. A program showing the importance of higher education especially for the American teacher will be presented by the College Club.

SOCIAL NEWS

In Honor of Miss Pettaway.

Miss Mary White Cox entertained the members of the Student Council November 10 at tea in honor of Miss Olivia Pettaway, president of the Summer School Council and her hostess, Miss Ruth Abel. Refreshments were served in the Senior parlor.

Birthday Party.

Miss Florence Buford was the guest of honor at a tacky party given by last year's Varsity, November 5. The Tea Room was gorgeously decorated with emblems of every known feast day from Christmas to St. Patrick's Day. Place cards consisted of strips of brown paper on which were written the names of the guests in pencil. The costumes of those who attended were as nearly in keeping as possible with the general effect. A delicious supper was the only jarring note in the whole bizarre affair.

Y. W. C. A. Reception.

A number of the Glee Club and student body were guests of the annual Y. W. C. A. reception given at Hampden-Sidney the evening of November 10. The guests were entertained in the gymnasium which was attractively decorated with strings of popcorn, apples and peanuts. After the program, refreshments were served and games played.

Hallowe'en Party.

Friday, November 2, Williams Cottage gave a Hallowe'en party. The house was decorated with red crepe paper and autumn leaves and the guests with gym suits. Games, tricks, a terrible ghost scare and shadow pictures provided entertainment. Prizes consisting of stick candy and lemons and refreshments further added to the evening of enjoyment.

Tri-Sigma Party.

Alpha Chapter of Tri-Sigma gave a most delightful "sun-bonnet" party, Tuesday night, October the thirteenth, in the Tea Room. The room was attractively decorated with ivy and morning glories, in the center of which was a table on which stood a little farmer boy and sun-bonnet girl, playing in a sand pile. Each rushee wore a lavender gingham dress and sun-bonnet to carry out the color-scheme. The old girls wore overalls and big sun-hats. The Place-cards were in triangular shape with a celluloid doll, dressed in lavender gingham and bonnet, standing in the center. A miniature hoe, spade and shovel, was placed beside the plate of each rushee.

MRS. PATTIE MASTERS TABB

Mrs. Tabb, mother of Miss Jennie Tabb, the Registrar of the Normal, died at her home last Thursday morning in her 78th year. The next day the interment took place at the old Colonial Episcopal Church at Grubb Hill in Amelia County, where the ancestors of Mrs. Tabb for a century and a half have been buried. The services were attended by a large number of the faculty, vestry of Johns Memorial Church, and friends from the town.

Mrs. Tabb was a representative of the womanhood of Virginia of Antebellum days; her grace and dignity and genial reserve of manner bespoke the culture that flowered in brave men and noble women.

Miss Tabb has the sympathy of the entire student body.

CHILDREN'S BOOK WEEK

The fifth annual Children's Book Week is to be observed November 11-17, 1923. It was instituted under the auspices of the American Library Association in 1919. The object of the Association is to interest the public in the selection of suitable literature for children and to encourage children in the use of library facilities. November has been selected because this is the time when many people are buying Christmas gifts. Those who wish to present children with books will find the lists prepared by the Association an invaluable aid, and it is hoped that parents and friends will avail themselves of the opportunity offered.

Relative to this occasion, one of our current magazines remarks:

"It is to be considered a time in which inventory of progress, mental conditions and the attitude of juveniles towards books as a part of their daily environment can be made the field in which the library may do its work most effectively, because purposefully done."

THE FIRE

The fire which completely destroyed the dining-room wing and put out of commission the heating connections to the main building was first discovered about 4:30 Saturday A. M. in room 152 at the end of the hall, third floor over the dining-room. This room was occupied at the time by Miss Louise Rothrock and Miss Alice Carter, the latter spending the night with Miss Rothrock in her sister's absence. The girls were awakened by the flames and gave the alarm.

Mrs. Emma Blanton, night matron, responded. By the time she reached the room these girls were in the hall, with a half dozen or more girls from the adjoining rooms. As soon as Mrs. Blanton opened the door of 152, she realized the situation and telling the girls to arouse all the students on that hall she turned in the fire alarm, and notified Miss Mary White Cox. All the women of the Home Department who roomed in the main building were immediately on the scene of action. The girls on both floors of the burned wing, were told to put on their long coats or heavy bath robes and leave without waiting to dress. Then people were stationed at the doors leading to those halls to see that no one returned, and the girls on the other halls were told to dress themselves, pack their trunks and leave the building by the side stairways, avoiding the Rotunda. Before this could be done the fire department and scores of men of the town were in the building. Some fought the fire while others moved trunks from the dormitory halls, and furniture, druggets and pictures from the parlors, sitting-rooms and offices on the lower floor. In an incredibly short time every girl was out of the building. Most of them dressed and with trunks packed. Others, who roomed near the fire, had hastily dumped the contents of bureau drawers and closets into sheets and thus saved many things.

Almost by the time the girls were out of the building the two churches immediately across the street were opened and fires built. Here the girls who had been forced to leave without dressing found refuge.

When the firemen first reached the scene they worked from the plug in the rear of the building, playing their hose on the south wing, but they soon found that the fire was making its way toward the main building, so they changed their position, bringing their engine around to the front campus and carrying their hose up through the Rotunda, thus concentrating their efforts in preventing the fire from reaching the main building. As those of you who are familiar with the building know, this wing on all three floors leads to the Rotunda, and had the fire once reached this point the entire building would have been doomed. The arch way on each floor is burned, the oil painting in the dome of the Rotunda is blackened, the backs of the dining-room doors almost charcoal. So you can see how narrow was the escape. For a while even the most hopeful of us lost hope. All the records from Miss Tabb's office and the business office were removed. Dr. Jarman's office alone on the lower floor was untouched, but the windows

DR. JARMAN'S LETTER

My dear Alumnae:

Other articles in this issue of the Rotunda will tell you of the disaster that has come to your Alma Mater. We have suffered a great loss and we have a gigantic task ahead of us, but with every student unharmed and only one wing of the building gone, we have so much more to rejoice over than to grieve over that there is no room in my heart for any emotion but gratitude and thanksgiving.

As you know, we have lost the entire dining-room, kitchen, pantries, cold storage, and dormitories for about a hundred girls.

The loss of the dining-room and kitchen and the breaking up of all heat connections to the main building are the immediately unsurmountable difficulties, but for these temporary arrangements are being rushed.

Fortunately, the gymnasium of our Student Building is practically completed and will be used for a dining-room; in the rear of the Student Building we are putting up temporary quarters for kitchen, etc., which we hope to have ready for the girls by December 3rd. All equipment for dining-room and kitchen has been ordered.

I am delighted to say that our Dutch oven was not injured and therefore, Philip will continue to make bread at his old stand; all that was destroyed in the bake shop and oven was the roof and we are putting on a temporary one now. As this building is about two hundred yards from the temporary kitchen we will rig up a cable to send the rolls over hot—the first time in the history of the school that we have had a "bread line."

Beds and mattresses, etc., for the dormitories have been ordered and the Student Building will again "come in handy," as I am planning to finish the other two floors and use them as temporary dormitories.

This Building has been our salvation, and I want to send my heartfelt thanks to every one of you who has helped to make it a reality.

Plans are already in the process of making for a larger and more beautiful dining-room and a kitchen equipped with the most modern outfit.

This is a time to take heart and hope for ultimate good as a result of our recent disaster.

Loyally,

J. L. JARMAN.

were opened and men were ready to remove the contents of this office had the flames reached the Rotunda.

The firemen, aided by men of the town and the faculty, fought with the strength of desperation and about 7:30 it seemed that their efforts were crowned with success. By 8 o'clock most of the girls had been taken into the homes of the town for breakfast, the others were being cared for in some of the churches; hot coffee was being served on the campus for the firemen and other workers. The military company had been ordered out and stood guard over the baggage strewn campus, and the general feeling of relief pervaded the atmosphere, although, of course, the fire was burning—but it was under control.

The fire companies from Lynchburg and from Petersburg had been summoned and were on their way on special trains furnished by the N. & W. However when it was found the fire was under control, those were turned back, one from Pamplin and the other from Burkeville.

Dr. Jarman, who was in Richmond at the time attending a meeting of the budget committee, was called over by telephone and reached Farmville just as the fire was under control, having made the trip in an hour and forty-five minutes. It is easy to imagine what that hour and forty-five minutes was to him, and his relief as he came in sight, for from the front very little of the damage showed.

Governor E. Lee Trinkle, Mrs. Trinkle, and Colonel Leroy Hodges, chairman of the budget committee, arrived in less than an hour after Dr. Jarman's arrival.

The meeting in the Auditorium which followed—the student body eight hundred strong, the faculty and Home Department, Dr. and Mrs. Jarman, Gov. and Mrs. Trinkle and hosts of friends from the town—was one that will long live in the memory of those present.

The entire south wing with contents was lost. This means about forty beds, rooms, the dining-room, kitchen, pantry, servants' dining-room, store rooms, cold storage and carpenter's shop with all the furniture, equipment and machinery of these branches of the institution, including china, silver, table linen, and all the food supplies on hand.

So many of the people in town offered to open their homes to the girls that it would have been perfectly possible to have kept all the students in town and to have continued school had it not been for the question of heat, but while the heating plant proper was not damaged the connection with the main building was under the dining-room wing and until this can be established none of the class rooms can be heated, so the girls were sent home until notified to return. It is hoped that regular work will be resumed December 3.

It makes one rejoice to think of the faithfulness and loyalty of the servants of S. N. S. exhibited during the recent fire. Men and women, old and young, came to the rescue and did all that could be done. Since then they have rendered valuable service in cleaning up debris, thus getting the school home in order. Many thanks are due them for their great help.

THE HEART OF FARMVILLE

If ever the heart of a town went out in the performance of a great deal, the heart of Farmville went out that Saturday morning in saving the Normal School.

That part of the building which still stands will bear mute testimony as long as it continues to stand to the fact that it was saved from complete destruction by the almost superhuman efforts of the citizens of Farmville.

From the time the firemen and those who worked with them reached the building until the fire was under control men and women worked with an energy born of desperation. They worked as men work to defend their own. It was not just state property they were saving; it was "The School,"—Farmville's school—the institution that had grown up in their midst and become a part of their town.

Not only in saving the building from flames but in every way in which the human heart can respond to another's need, the big heart of Farmville responded to the need of the school and girls that day.

To mention those to whom thanks would be due, would be practically to call the roll of the citizens of the town. Some fought the fire; others moved furniture; some wired to neighboring towns for help; others opened and heated the churches. Enough breakfasts were prepared in Farmville that morning to have fed a student body of double the size. Later, when it was known that the ladies were preparing dinner at the Presbyterian Church, the merchants vied with one another in donating supplies. The men in charge of the pump house saw to it that the water supply was sufficient; the Home Guard for days and nights protected the property. Before it was known that the girls were going home, all of the churches had offered their Sunday School rooms, and homes were being thrown open to the girls faster than they could be received and listed. The hotels offered their services to full capacity. The telephone and telegraph people worked at unusual speed and for unusual stretches of time, and in spite of fatigue were always patient and accommodating. And so it went. No list of the deeds done could be complete, and even if such were possible, it would still fall short for the spirit that prompted the deeds—the heart of Farmville—was the big and beautiful thing.

LILA LONDON.

All homes in Farmville were thrown open to the school girls as we know and fully appreciate but who knows of the hospitality of the Lone Campus Guard—the Confederate Soldier? He, too, shared his domicile with another hero. At his feet leaned the tired Howard Brown. He had no cause to worry, he was under the protection of this old hero of many battles and properly tagged, "Property of Helen Miller."

THE SPIRIT THE BEST INSURANCE.

State officials and the executive of the institution met with promptness the situation created this morning by the fire at the Farmville Normal School. Within three hours the girls knew what to expect, and before this edition reaches Farmville, most of them will have started for home. But the best assurance that they will meet with courage whatever inconvenience may come when they return at Thanksgiving is the spirit of the school. Nowhere in Virginia is there greater loyalty or a finer esprit de corps. Farmville would still be a great school if its pupils had to use a tobacco warehouse for a dormitory.—The News Leader, Saturday, November 17, 1923.

THE NORMAL FIRE

An emergency reveals character, for in a time of surprise a people's true self comes to the front. An emergency shows the stuff of which a people is made. It reveals resourcefulness. Accordingly an emergency furnishes the proper time to take a correct inventory of spiritual values. The Normal fire was such a revealing experience, and it was, in that respect a most gratifying one. It revealed a splendid spirit on the part of every one concerned. The unhurried promptness and the calm decisiveness with which the authorities took hold of the situation, and took steps to relieve it; the admirable self-control of the girls, singing their favorite songs while fleeing from the flames, showed the pure gold of a fine spirit. The words of an editorial in the News Leader are well chosen: "Nowhere in Virginia is there greater loyalty or a finer school esprit de corps. Farmville would still be a fine school if its pupils had to use a tobacco warehouse for a dormitory."

The same splendid spirit was revealed by the citizens of the town. The firemen, who to save the main building, fought the raging flames in the South wing and beat them back, gave a fine exhibition of heroic and efficient work. The people who opened their homes to the students and supplied them with clothing and food and shelter showed the spirit of which worthy men and women are made. Such a revelation is of inestimable value, for it is the best assurance that both the Normal and the town have that spirit which is able to take care of an emergency. Such a spirit a fire can never destroy.

The fire, however, did more than reveal a fine spirit. It makes possible the erection of a larger and better South wing. That wing now will be built at once on a scale large enough and complete enough to meet all requirements for years to come. In the mean time the inconvenience caused by the fire will be borne with a smile and patience fortified by courage, because brave spirits will know that out of the disaster will come a bigger and finer Normal. For thus the spirit ever builds more stately structures.—The Farmville Herald, Friday, November 23, 1923.

THE SPIRIT OF SATURDAY'S ASSEMBLY.

Never has the spirit we love to think of as belonging to our school been more manifest than at the chapel exercises following the fire Saturday morning. The students, eight hundred strong, and undaunted, assembled in the auditorium. In reply to the question, "Is there a student here who has not had breakfast?" not a hand went up, thus mutely attesting the generosity and the thoughtfulness of the citizens of Farmville. Later some girl said, "I had ten invitations to breakfast."

While waiting for Dr. Jarman and Miss Mary White Cox, Miss Munez started the girls singing, "The Old Normal School" and "Alma Mater." As Dr. Jarman appeared at the top of the steps, "What's the matter with Jarman?" rang forth as if from one throat. All the suppressed emotion of the morning seemed to be released in the singing of this song. They sang, they clapped, they swayed; with all their love and devotion they greeted the one upon whose shoulders rested most heavily this catastrophe.

Rev. Mr. Diehl of the Episcopal Church then led the devotional exercises selecting a passage that brought out the idea "God is our refuge and strength, the very present help in trouble." Pouring forth thanks in a fervent prayer, he committed all present to the care of God, the Heavenly Father.

Dr. Jarman, who had been in Richmond attending a meeting of the budget committee, had been called by phone after the fire was discovered and had reached Farmville just as the fire was considered under control.

He now told the girls that his first question when told "The school is on fire" had been, "Are all the girls safe?" and that upon receiving this assurance, he breathed a prayer of thanksgiving, and standing here before them now he wanted to repeat this prayer and thank God from the bottom of his heart that they were all unhurt and unharmed. "Gratitude is so uppermost in my heart there is no room for any other feeling," he added. He then thanked the firemen and those who helped them for their almost superhuman effort, the people of the town for their ready response in time of need, and expressed his appreciation of the conduct of the students themselves but added that there was one difficulty unsurmountable in the way of building was cut off. "Therefore," he said, "the only thing to do is to let you girls go home until after Thanksgiving."

While the necessary details concerning trains, financial arrangements, and such matters were being attended to by Miss Cox and her assistants Governor Trinkle and his party entered the auditorium having come by car from Richmond as soon as he heard of the fire. Like Dr. Jarman he was surprised and grateful to find the damage no worse than it was, and congratulated the students upon their safety and conduct. He assured them in the name of Virginia that they should have a new dining-room more beautiful than the old.

At this point a man entered the auditorium asking for his daughter. Dr. Jarman repeated her name and a student came forward. Father greeted daughter, both deeply moved. Gov. Trinkle then suggested that a telegram be sent to the associated press to distribute the news all over the State that all students were safe. Mr. Robert Brook, Secretary-Auditor of the Board left immediately to attend to this, for telegrams were already coming from anxious parents.

Before leaving the auditorium Dr. Jarman announced that the ladies of the Presbyterian Church were preparing dinner for all the students not leaving on the noon train.

The students then sang for Gov. Trinkle, "Carry Me Back To Old Virginny," and marched out to music in the usual order. No words can better express the spirit of their meeting, so filled with optimism and gratitude than "The Lord reigneth, let the earth rejoice."

Afterwards when speaking of the ordeal through which he had passed Dr. Jarman said, "I jumped into my car and said to Dabney, 'Keep your foot on the gas.' I reached Farmville in an hour and forty-five minutes. When I came over the hill by Serpell Heights and saw the Student Building unharmed a cry of gratitude went up. When the Infirmary and auditorium came into view a second cry of gratitude escaped me; and when the car stopped in front of the main entrance, and I saw the whole of the front intact, a burden no man knows how great rolled from my shoulders."

MINNIE V. RICE.

JOAN OF ARC

JOAN SPEAKS

Dear Girls,

Here I am back in my old spot, and I want to welcome you once again to our dear old school—dearer now than ever. When the first alarm aroused me from my pleasant dreams, my first thought was about the safety of my girls. I sent my heart out to each of you, and you answered my call, as I knew you would. Soon you came running by me, and my heart rejoiced to see you as you did; brave, wonderful children you were. But how could you be otherwise, when all around you the spirit of Farmville Normal School, the spirit and love of Dr. Jarman (although he in person was in Richmond), was watching over you. Through the smoke I could see his cheering smile, and above the confusion I could hear him saying, "Steady, girls, steady, girls!" It was his spirit that led you all to safety—his spirit of co-operation drove back the hungry flames as they tried to eat their way into his heart—the center of his beloved school.

To aid in the work of fighting I asked some one to move me from my natural habitat. They wanted to carry me out, to safety, they said, but I absolutely refused to go. I had to stay with my school until the end. They placed me in the Faculty Room, and here I watched the wonderful fight go on, the inspired fight which won! After the fire I remained in the Faculty Room near Dr. Jarman, and saw the great work of reconstruction begun, inspired and directed by the spirit of the school—Dr. Jarman—his great love and faith in us as a school making his task a joyous undertaking.

As I led my children of France to victory, so shall he lead you to a greater school, greater service, and, if possible, greater love.

Yours always, through fire and smoke,
JOAN.

There might not have been any Farmville Guards.

THE STAIRS SPEAK

We have played an important part in the life of the school for many years and have never demanded much praise or care. We have been the witnesses of more of the life of our college than one would think. Untold are the deeds of heroism we have done. Innumerable are the foot-steps that have echoed on our landings. But—we pause to protest.

Imagine if you can the scene on that memorable Saturday morning when the cry of "Fire" echoed through the halls. The person who raised that alarm traveled over us. And then havoc. Hundreds of girls in every stage of dress and undress scamped over us. We trembled beneath the tread of heroic soldiers and others who were doing rescue work. We witnessed exhibitions of superhuman strength and bravery. We flinched in pain as cumbersome trunks were dragged to our landings, given a savage kick and swallowed up by the darkness, their coming heralded by yells of "Look out below." We saw our cherished newel posts and polished surfaces despoiled of carving and glass as chunks of wood were hacked off by the descending trunks and we quailed not.

Now, we have echoed under many steps. We have trembled with the love-sick maiden as she tripped down to the reception hall to meet Him. We have bristled with importance as visiting dignitaries honored us with firm tread. We have thrilled with pride at our Seniors in their caps and gowns descended with stately step. We have felt the laggard feet of those who were called to the Student Association room. We have sustained the scurrying feet of those who hurried to breakfast and we wished ourselves escalator that we might speed them on their way. But we have been submitted to an indignity. They used us as a trunk chute and we raised not a creak of protest.

Suppose we had. Suppose we had given away. Therefore we ask but a word of commendation. Take no whit of glory from the courageous firemen but—oh, when you "reminisce" about the fire think a kind thought of the stairs.

ATHLETICS

The fire did not extinguish, nor the smoke blacken, nor the water drown our Athletic interest and basket ball enthusiasm. The annual basket ball game between the "Juniors and Seniors" will be played in the Town Armory Friday night Dec. 14th.

The Athletic Council will meet at once to arrange for the other games to be played probably the first of January.

Last year was a great Varsity success, but this year will be a still greater year for the Farmville, Varsity. Through the courtesy and kindness of the Farmville people we will play our games in the Town Armory as in the past. The 1924 schedule is being arranged and the following games have been scheduled:

February 22—Fredericksburg—Home.
March 1—Harrisonburg—Home.
March 7—Fredericksburg—Fredericksburg.
March 21—Bridgewater College—Bridgewater.
March 22—Harrisonburg—Harrisonburg.

COOPERATION

We have smiled many a time at the word cooperation as it has been used by our President, but even a casual observer of the events of the last few days would admit that somehow it has come to characterize the spirit of our school.

By cooperation Saturday morning the records from the offices and the furnishings from the lower floor were saved almost undamaged, and by cooperation Monday they were put back in place.

The Training School opened Wednesday and is being run by cooperation of the supervisors, other members of the faculty, and students still in town. Others have offered their services to Miss Mary White Cox to hem table linen or to do anything else needed. The men of the faculty are working with Mr. Moring on the new temporary kitchen.

By cooperation the Tea Room is serving meals to those here. By cooperation this issue of the Rotunda is being made possible. Anybody is working anywhere that there is work that he or she can do.

With this spirit and the one who inspired it to lead us, what may we not accomplish by cooperation?

Long live the spirit of cooperation!

LOST AND FOUND

There was in times gone by, Before the Fire, a room in the east wing where echoes of the ages chatted with each other, and where Mr. Lear discoursed on "causes that affect the life of society." It is no more! The proverbial Man from Mars would undoubtedly decide that Mr. Lear has changed his profession, and now runs a pawn shop For Ladies Only; for hanging on the walls are more than thirty dresses of all varieties for all occasions; the seats are loaded with blankets, bathrobes, shoes, sweaters and laundry; in the table drawers, waiting to gladden many eyes are jewelry and fountain pens; and on the floor and table a heterogeneous mass of everything that belongs to girls defies classification—kodaks, ukeleles, watermelon pickle, umbrellas, etc.

Forlornly mashed between some tat chestnuts and a bottle of olives lies a kodak picture of two lads clasping hands, entitled "Aby and Izzy," through fire and brimstone—the latter refers mildly to the trunks thrown down the stairs—they had come, veritable Damon and Pythias. Leaning gracefully against one lonesome evening slipper is a photograph under which one reads "Yours to Eternity."

The Y. W. C. A. girls will distribute the identified property as soon as the School resumes its regular work. Announcement as to the manner of distribution of the unidentified property will be made later by Mr. Lear.

What's wrong with this picture—Miss Mary going from room to room after the return of the girls saying, "Girls, you must dress fully. Don't lose your heads and go about partially attired."

Wanted by M. W. C.—: One pair of stockings.

That one courageous firefighter entered the room of a sleeping damsel and on awaking her was greeted with, "Get out of here, you brute. I'll report you to Dr. Jarman."

FARMVILLE GIRLS TO ATTEND CONFERENCE

Indianapolis Convention, With Noted Teachers and Speakers, Expects Record Attendance.

Misses Agnes McDuffie and Mary Maupin have been elected delegates to the ninth International Student Volunteer Convention to be held at Indianapolis December 28-January 1. It will be the largest and finest convention of its kind ever planned at which will be present the foremost leaders and teachers of that sort of work. The following interesting facts concerning two of the principal speakers we quote:

"The Rev. H. Hatanaka, of Kobe College, possesses a dual personality. As an American College man he is almost as typical in his language, manner and attitude as if he were a native born son of the U. S. A.; on the other hand he is thoroughly and loyally Japanese with a rich and varied experience in civil life, the army and the university world. As an orator, writer, student of American-Japanese relations he is one of the three or four best equipped men in the Island Empire.

From the Gold Coast of Africa with an education secured in the colleges and graduate schools of England and America, J. E. K. Aggrey comes to Indianapolis to present the facts of recent development in Africa and among Africans around the world. As a graduate student in this country, Mr. Aggrey has come into wide knowledge of the problem of contacts between the black and white races. This gifted orator interprets the life and aspirations of his race with rare skill and power."

The special train for the Virginia delegates to the Convention will leave Thursday, December 27th.

VANITY FAIR FOR THE VIRGINIAN ELECTED

The following are those elected by the two graduating classes for the Vanity Fair Section of the Annual:

- Most Popular—Nancy Lyne.
- Most Talented—Olive Smith.
- Best-All-Round—Janie Moore.
- Most Stylish—Anna Belle Treagle.
- Best Dancer—Mary Friend.
- Most Attractive—Christine Armstrong.
- Best Athlete—Mildred Hall.
- Prettiest—Ford Eubank.

MISS HINER INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Miss Mary Clay Hiner was slightly injured, when Miss Brock, in an attempt to pass two cars on the Hampden-Sidney road, ran headlong into Miss Lila London's Ford. Miss London's car was badly damaged in the smash-up—the fender was bent, the radius rod broken, and one of the wheels lost.

GIFTS FOR YOUNG AND OLD

Elaborate Sale Given by Kindergartners to Purchase Additional Equipment.

Perhaps one of the loveliest and most elaborate affairs of the year was the sale given by the mothers and teachers of the Kindergarten last Wednesday and Thursday. The room was never more beautiful than with its background of green and the dull glow of candlelight. The entire room was a perfect bower of evergreens and lovely gifts of every variety added much to the atmosphere of the room.

This affair was well attended by both young and old. There were toys for children and things of every variety for adults. The proceeds are to be used to purchase new equipment and to meet some present expenses.

WHAT IS IT?

Administration Suspected of Plotting Christmas Surprise.

There is something going to happen. What it is we know not, but any way we know that the Faculty and Home Department have something up their sleeves. When you question them about Christmas, watch them, an expression comes on their faces as it used to long ago come on the faces of our parents when we began to question about mysterious packages.

All we have learned is that something exciting is going to happen Christmas Eve night and Christmas day. We asked, but the only reply received was that we would sing Christmas Carols the night before Christmas. But they would look awfully wise and a twinkle would come in their eyes as we used to think only Santa Claus had.

Dr. Jarman was asked for Christmas News. He first smiled (grinned to be exact), then looked solemn and said that perhaps he would have some news New Year.

What do you guess they are going to do? Is it going to be announced in Chapel "Girls hang up your stockings on the night of the twenty-fourth," or are they going to buy us a ton of fire crackers, sky rockets and the like and let us send them off on the campus?

The faculty think that they are going to put something over on us. The way things point now they will, but any way we will have the fun of expecting it. You may bet we can hardly wait for Christmas to get here. The suspense is as great as pulling things out of your stocking early Christmas morning. What will be next? What will it be?

Miss Stuffy Wall, of the Senior Class had the misfortune to break her leg while practicing basketball last week. She will be confined to her home for several weeks.

DR. NEWELL DWIGHT HILLIS TALKS TO LARGE AUDIENCE

Famous Brooklyn Preacher Speaks on Ruskin, the Reformer.

Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, successor of Henry Ward Beecher in Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, N. Y., delivered a lecture in the Auditorium, Thursday evening, December 13.

Preceding the lecture two violin solos were played by Mrs. Somerson, of Lynchburg.

Dr. Hillis chose for his subject "Ruskin's Influence Upon Higher Education." He interpreted to his audience John Ruskin's idea of an educated woman. Dr. Hillis showed Ruskin's influence along two distinct lines: As a social reformer; and as a teacher of the fine arts.

As a social reformer Ruskin was shown to have practised what he preached. Although he had much wealth he lived as a pauper. He spent his fortune on the laboring class in educating them and training them to see the beautiful. Ruskin influenced his students, rich men's sons, to follow in his steps. One of these students founded the first college settlement house—Toymbee Hall in London. This settlement inspired Jane Adams to found one in this country. Ruskin was the indirect founder of the Chautauqua system of America.

Dr. Hillis next showed that Ruskin revolutionized the whole civilized world in respect to the diffusion of the beautiful. He showed that every single fine art begins with vision power in copying the works of God. To Ruskin's influence we owe beautiful furniture, wall paper, table linen, cutlery, carpets and rugs.

In conclusion Dr. Hillis said "use your gifts, young women, in the way of service. You can change the atmosphere of the land toward the fine arts. As Cicero says, 'Make your riches splendid because they shine.'"

CHRISTMAS CALENDAR

Friday, December 21—Hanging of the Greens.

Saturday, December 22—Reading, "The Other Wise Man"—Miss Minnie Rice.

Monday, December 24—Carol Singing and Christmas Celebration. Carols Again at Night in Town.

Tuesday, December 25—Informal Singing of Carols and Story Telling in Reception Hall.

ENGLISH CLASSES DONATE FUNDS FOR NEW FICTION

Members of Miss Everett's English classes have each contributed a quarter to be used in purchasing fiction for the library. These books may be read by the general public after the students who bestowed them have used them for reference.

$350 CLEARED

All Have Good Time In Raising Money at Bazaar—Notable Illustration of Power of Co-Operation.

The Farmville Alumnae Chapter is well satisfied with the success of the Christmas Bazaar held in the Armory December 15. The receipts from the various booths together with cash contributions made by alumnae will amount to about $350.

The most popular spot was the fancy work booth which was made four times as large as originally planned in order to display the beautiful articles sent by alumnae and friends in all parts of Virginia and the United States. The chairman of this booth and a large corps of assistants experienced a real "bargain counter" rush for several hours.

The candy booth, Miss Elizabeth Moring, chairman, was emptied all too soon, and the customers had to be appeased by selling them the holly decorations. The refreshment booth in charge of Miss Cary Jeter, also could not satisfy the demand for doughnuts, sandwiches, chesscakes and tarts of all descriptions, while hot chocolate and coffee seemed to "strike the right spot" as the people came in from the out-of-doors.

A unique booth represented the Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe, the house being placed in an evergreen grove. The doll children, truly numerous, hung over the top, lay on the toe, sat on the ground around it and even climbed the trees. The booth was in charge of Mrs. Coyner, Mrs. Long and Mrs. Creyke. Mrs. Roundy found birds, frogs and other animate and inanimate objects on the branches of her Christmas tree grab bag. Mrs. Norris had a long line waiting for fortunes at the entrance to their booth, and the Three Bears in the puppet show given by Miss Irma Dickinson, played to a full house twice. Miss Agnes Baptist supplied enthusiastic school girls with class pennants and blue pencils stamped in white "State Normal School, Farmville."

The Bazaar, which was for the Student Building, was to have been held in the new gymnasium. After the fire this could not be arranged, and Mr. Waggoner kindly permitted the use of the Armory. The Farmville Chapter wishes to thank most sincerely and heartily the many friends who helped by either gifts or personal labors to make the occasion such a success. It was a notable illustration of the power of co-operation.

CHRISTMAS PLAY

The Dramatic Club will present "Why the Chimes Rang" during the Christmas Holiday. The one-act play is adapted from the story by Alden, which tells of the reward of love and charity and shows that it is the spirit of giving rather than the splendor of the gift which counts.

"VIRGINIAN" PROMISES TO BE BEST YET

Appointment of Staff Completed—New and Original Ideas for Features and Other Departments.

In spite of the set-back of the fire, the "Virginian" Staff has refused to become demoralized and continues serenely with its task of constructing a year book. Mysterious murmurings concerning "features," "pebbled finish," "zinc etchings" and "half tones" are heard upon all occasions from their lips, but upon closer questioning by the bewildered listener aforesaid lips force the famous dumb oyster to take the count. The price of the annual is $3.00 and copies may be reserved by forwarding that amount to Miss Elizabeth Bugg, Business Manager.

The appointment of the full staff has been completed. Those whose names have not already been published, are: Assistant Editor-in-Chief—Bessie Smith.

Assistant Business Managers—Ann Smith, Ruth Cleland.

Assistant Literary Editor—Frieda Crockin.

Assistant Art Editors—Lucile Walton, Katherine Smith.

POPULAR "BLACK BEAUTY" ENJOYS GOOD HEALTH

Widely Circulated Report of Death of Famous Institution "Grossly Exaggerated."

The sad information came to the ears of the staff that "Black Beauty," who records our "E" notes and such unpleasant things, had passed away. Although we couldn't afford to show our sorrow, we felt that it was our solemn duty to give an obituary notice of the decease of the young lady, so that her good works might be known.

But, when we asked Miss Tabb, the guardian angel of the dear departed for details, she looked at us with horrified amazement and said, "Black Beauty" dead! No indeed! She's alive and kicking right this minute. I'm giving her three E notes now. Don't you dare to try to kill my 'Black Beauty.' I'll jump on anybody who tries it!"

on your doorstep. Will you let it go without a name? When the happy and independent bachelors of Farmville formed a club they relied on the Normal School girls to name it. The fire interfered with whatever inspiration of that sort any one may have had, and the poor club is even at this late date of its existence unchristened. Remember! There is a prize of $10 offered. Address all suggestions to "The Club, Care Farmville Herald."

Christmas spirit this year will be school spirit.

There will be more Christmas belles in Farmville this year than ever before.

Who says go home Christmas! Great day! Would you give up a chance of seeing turkey in the dining room?

The Spirit of Christmas.

The spirit of Christmas should be that of happiness and giving. It is a time of joy and merry-making. On this particular Christmas of 1923, we, the student body have the peculiar privilege of being one of a very large family instead of one of a very intimate family. We have the opportunity which we have never had before of demonstrating in a genuine and heartfelt way the real true spirit of an ideal Christmas. We have the privilege of giving a happy smile and showing a happy face which is what will be needed at this time more than any other one thing. Make this Christmas of 1923 one long to be remembered and one spent in such a way that years from now you can relate with pride to your grandchildren how to live the happiest Christmas.

AT THE EACO THEATRE—December 24th-29th.

WE WISH YOU A MERRY CHRISTMAS.

MONDAY—JOHN GILBERT and ESTELLE TAYLOR in "A CALIFORNIA ROMANCE." He was handsome, rich, and played lilting love songs for her, but she was not satisfied with these things alone. This is a tale of sunshine, roses and courage. THIS IS A STORY YOU WILL LIKE. Also PATHE NEWS.

TUESDAY—"THE FACE ON THE BARROOM FLOOR," A SPECIAL ATTRACTION with a most excellent cast headed by HENRY B. WALT-HALL. We selected this picture for CHRISTMAS NIGHT because it is a picture that should please all. It is melodrama, vibrant, dynamic, powerful in its tense emotional appeal. A pulsating story of thrills and romance. Also SECOND EPISODE OF "HAUNTED VALLEY."

WEDNESDAY—JOHN GILBERT and a big cast in "TRUXTON KING" by George Barr McCutcheon. A drama of Graustark, weaving in the adventure, comedy and love affairs of an American who saves a throne. Little MICKEY MOORE is in the cast. Also AESOP FABLE. MATINEE AT 4 O'CLOCK. ALL CHILDREN UNDER 12 WILL BE ADMITTED FREE TO THIS MATINEE. BRING ONE WITH YOU.

THURSDAY AND FRIDAY—POLA NEGRI, CONWAY TEARLE, CONRAD NAGEL, LOIS WILSON and a host of others in the Super-Special Paramount Production "BELLA DONNA." This is the first American made picture Pola Negri has ever appeared in. You've never seen THIS POLA NEGRI! Still the gorgeous, tempestuous mistress of emotions—but now a strictly modern heroine, wearing fifty exquisite Paris gowns. Still the most fascinating love-actress on the screen—but her beauty and genius for the first time glorified a hundredfold by unsurpassing American direction, American lighting, American supporting cast. For "BELLA DONNA" is the throbbing story of love and passion without limit that brought Pola Negri to America. Fox News Thursday and a GOOD COMEDY. ADMISSION 25 cents to NORMAL STUDENTS.

SATURDAY—"THE VILLAGE BLACKSMITH," A SPECIAL PRODUCTION. A big human story based on the famous poem of Henry W. Longfellow, and enacted by a very large selected cast. A coward—without shame—attempted to fix the guilt of theft upon a blameless girl. How he failed is shown in a gripping climax in this great photodrama. A story that will be remembered as long as American literature is read. DO NOT MISS THIS. Also second episode of "PLUNDER." MATINEE AT 4 O'CLOCK.

Admission to Normal Students each show 20 cents, except Thursday and Friday.

JOAN SPEAKS

Dear Girls:

I am so glad you are back once again, and you brought such wonderful good news! Just think, I will have all my girls with me for Christmas! Isn't that enough to make me the happiest person in this whole school? Have you ever thought enough about me to realize how extremely lonely my Christmases have been? All my life I have sat here at this joyous time—all alone—not even one child left to hang my stocking up for me. This one Christmas—out of all your many happy times—you are going to be here with me. Of course, I am not glad of the circumstances that caused you to be here this year, but yet I am happy for my selfish sake. Remember girls—that this one great big sacrifice of not being at home will make you appreciate your future Christmases so much—and I just know your dear homefolks are going to find out what sweet children you are. And all those extra presents you are going to get. It is not going to be so bad. Give us a chance to make you happy, in spite of all your doubts. I am not going to tell you what we are going to do—but leave it to J. L. J. and me!

Now—listen girls—I have had enough of fire and smoke so I don't want any fussing. Then, again, you know I have had enough water so please don't cry—for my poor nervous sake—I can't stand any more moisture.

Yours in Christmas Peace and Joy,

JOAN.

CHRISTMAS STORY

Mary was a Normal student.
Christmas Eve
She hung up her stocking
Which was too bad
Ah, too very bad,
For when Santa Claus came
And filled that stocking
With candies
And nuts
And fruits
And raisins
And all the other Christmas goodies,
They fell out on the floor
And the rats
And the mice
Came and ate 'em up.
Ain't that awful!

Moral: Mend your hose!

BULLETINS

In a bulletin, sent out by the University of Virginia, containing suggestions for the observation of American Education week, the following members of our faculty were on the list of speakers available for county chairmen in arranging for the various meetings: Dr. W. F. Tidyman, Mr. L. E. Bell, Mr. J. M. Lear and Miss Florence H. Stubbs.

An account of the Latin play, given by the eighth grade students under the direction of Miss Rice and Miss Louise Stevenson, was sent to the Virginia Journal of Education by Dr. Tidyman and accepted for publication in the December number.

Dr. Tidyman was the author of two articles published in the November and December issues of the Virginia Journal of Education. The first was, "Reviews of Dickson's Mental Tests and the Classroom Teacher;" and the second, "Essentials of Language in the Elementary School."

SHRINERS' CHRISTMAS TREE

The Shriners will give a Christmas Tree to the poor children of Farmville on Christmas Eve. The Glee Club is to sing Christmas carols.

PERSONAL NOTES

Miss Haynes will spend her Christmas vacation in Newport News.

Miss Peck will spend the Christmas Holidays in Fincastle, Virginia.

Miss Sarah Von Schilling will spend several days with Miss Ilma Von Schilling, before leaving to spend the Christmas Holiday in Hampton.

The Ninth Grade girls are preparing a box of individual gifts for their president, Grace Underwood, who is at Blue Ridge Sanatorium.

Mrs. Somerson is considering a violin class in Farmville.

About six thousand Red Cross seals were sold by the children of the Training School.

Miss Coulling went to John Randolph School with Miss Bierbower, Friday, and made a lecture on "The Christ-Child and Art."

COLLEGE CUT OUTS

This year's enrollment of five hundred and ten students is the largest that Harrisonburg has ever had.

Mercer was recently the recipient of a gift of $100,000 from F. S. Ethridge.

The organization of a golf club at Georgia Tech has raised the number of sports there to ten.

The V. M. I. Corps has decided to give to all men who have been on a publication for two years miniature gold printing presses, as an emblem of the appreciation of the work being done by Student Newspapers.

The professor of Chinese at Columbia says that any intelligent person can gain a working knowledge of that language in three months.

We are a poor but happy family of 500 girls and please send us a case of smiles and sympathy. Bring us each a doll with vanilla-tasting white lead paint on it for little Inez to chew, a big sparkling diamond for each of us, and a floral wreath for the old South Wing with crepe on it and that says "Gone But Not Forgotten," and some extra buckets, so's we can take in more washes of dishes and please, hurry, if you give us this beautiful, big, unselfish Christmas—why, there will be so much fun watching the happy faces of the others enjoying their simple Christmas—that I won't ask anything for myself except a ticket to Norfolk and where they don't make you carry books—and has Keith's on Saturday nites.

"SMILE AND THE WORLD SMILES WITH YOU"

Students at Called Meeting at Chapel
Lecture Faculty on "Blues."

The student body decided that the faculty was getting more fun out of trying to cheer us up than we were getting ourselves. So the brainy members of our worthy organization held a conference. Now these scholars decided that it was a bad rule that would not work both ways. Therefore, it was decided that the students should try to cheer the faculty up. A special time was set aside to do this act, chapel, December 11. Members of the student body were selected to talk to members of the faculty and cheer 'em up. The talks consisted of things that the student body intends to do to keep the "spirits" of the faculty from sinking. We are to eat all the food off our plates so it won't be so much trouble to wash the dishes. Mr. Lear is to be relieved of his "Gift Shop" as soon as possible. We are to get our drawing outfits so Miss Coulling will be "cheered up." Faculty if you are feeling very "blue" around Christmas Eve drop into a box found at Joan's feet a note, telling what you want Santa to bring you and where you live. The Student Body will see him in person and tell him what you want and where to go to find you.

SANTA CLAUS WILL APPEAR FOR FRESHMEN

The Rotunda Staff has decided to spread peace and joy throughout the land this Christmas by erecting (strictly at its own expense) a gorgeous Christmas tree. This tree will be more beautiful than any other in the whole town because it will be seen only with the mental eye of the beholder. Below are listed a few of the gifts the Rotunda will distribute among its readers. For the benefit of the Freshman Class, Santa Claus will be at Garnet's from 3:30 to 6:00 every afternoon from now until Christmas. Any Freshman who is afraid to cross the street alone may be chaperoned by an upper classman free of charge.

1. To Stuffy Wall—A Distinguished Service Cross.
2. To the Home Table—A dishwasher.
3. To the Rolls in the Dining Room—A few nails (steel is a good conductor of heat).
4. To Miss Willie London—A toaster.
5. To the College Juniors—A basketball team.
6. To the Student Building—An elevator.
7. To Miss Grace Russell—A key to the Rotunda office.
8. To Miss Tucker—A pair of shoes that are mates.
9. To Janie Moore—A Blue Jay for her "soey toe."
10. To Joan—Wheels, so she can save herself in case of fire.
11. To Lover's Lane—A short circuit.
12. To Helen Miller—A "definite suggestion" for all questions.
13. To the Proctor—A night on which "Not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse."
14. Miss Maude Taliaferro—Two Victrola records (1) "The Waste and Inefficiency of Using One-Cent Stamps" (2) "Good Manners for All Occasions."
15. To Dr. Jarman—A Merry Christmas and love from his "girls."

CHRISTMAS GIVING

'Tis early Christmas morning and the family's aglee
To open all the packages a-hanging on the tree.

Just watch the happy faces as the seals and tinsel fall
As the eager hands go searching for the gifts from one and all.

But note the queer expressions! Is something not amiss?

Poor Mary has a table cloth desired by married Sis.

And father has some cigarettes—"With love from John to Dad"—

But—father only smokes cigars. Now say, ain't that too bad!

Carlotta has the dancing craze and wants a party gown

But gets a woolly sweater that inspires a fleeting frown—

Young Dick, who asks for Tarkington, discovers Henry James

Which John prefers to brilliant socks and ties as red as flames.

And married Sis, with some surprise, gets slipper buckles fine

Which Mary fingers jealously and thinks "They should be mine."

Poor Mother gets a phonograph (she did so want a coat)

But Ellen, who received that prize, of Mother's gift takes note.

They thank each other properly but all begin to see

That Santa must have mixed the gifts he left upon the tree

So Mother dear, who always knows the very thing to do

Suggests that if they trade the gifts, the crowd will feel less blue.

They act at once, the smiles appear, and gloom is all erased

For everyone has found a gift exactly to his taste—

And what is more, I'm sure another Christmas Day

Will prove they've learned to choose their gifts in the good old, old Christmas way.

FARMVILLE GIRLS TO ATTEND CONFERENCE

Indianapolis Convention, With Noted Teachers and Speakers, Expects Record Attendance.

Misses Agnes McDuffie and Mary Maupin have been elected delegates to the ninth International Student Volunteer Convention to be held at Indianapolis December 28-January 1. It will be the largest and finest convention of its kind ever planned at which will be present the foremost leaders and teachers of that sort of work. The following interesting facts concerning two of the principal speakers we quote:

"The Rev. H. Hatanaka, of Kobe College, possesses a dual personality. As an American College man he is almost as typical in his language, manner and attitude as if he were a native born son of the U. S. A.; on the other hand he is thoroughly and loyally Japanese with a rich and varied experience in civil life, the army and the university world. As an orator, writer, student of American-Japanese relations he is one of the three or four best equipped men in the Island Empire.

From the Gold Coast of Africa with an education secured in the colleges and graduate schools of England and America, J. E. K. Aggrey comes to Indianapolis to present the facts of recent development in Africa and among Africans around the world. As a graduate student in this country, Mr. Aggrey has come into wide knowledge of the problem of contacts between the black and white races. This gifted orator interprets the life and aspirations of his race with rare skill and power."

The special train for the Virginia delegates to the Convention will leave Thursday, December 27th.

VANITY FAIR FOR THE VIRGINIAN ELECTED

The following are those elected by the two graduating classes for the Vanity Fair Section of the Annual:

Most Popular—Nancy Lyne.
Most Talented—Olive Smith.
Best-All-Round—Janie Moore.
Most Stylish—Anna Belle Treagle.
Best Dancer—Mary Friend.
Most Attractive—Christine Armstrong.

Best Athlete—Mildred Hall.
Prettiest—Ford Eubank.

MISS HINER INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Miss Mary Clay Hiner was slightly injured, when Miss Brock, in an attempt to pass two cars on the Hampden-Sidney road, ran headlong into Miss Lila London's Ford. Miss London's car was badly damaged in the smash-up—the fender was bent, the radius rod broken, and one of the wheels lost.

GIFTS FOR YOUNG AND OLD

Elaborate Sale Given by Kindergartners to Purchase Additional Equipment.

Perhaps one of the loveliest and most elaborate affairs of the year was the sale given by the mothers and teachers of the Kindergarten last Wednesday and Thursday. The room was never more beautiful than with its background of green and the dull glow of candlelight. The entire room was a perfect bower of evergreens and lovely gifts of every variety added much to the atmosphere of the room.

This affair was well attended by both young and old. There were toys for children and things of every variety for adults. The proceeds are to be used to purchase new equipment and to meet some present expenses.

WHAT IS IT?

Administration Suspected of Plotting Christmas Surprise.

There is something going to happen. What it is we know not, but any way we know that the Faculty and Home Department have something up their sleeves. When you question them about Christmas, watch them, an expression comes on their faces as it used to long ago come on the faces of our parents when we began to question about mysterious packages.

All we have learned is that something exciting is going to happen Christmas Eve night and Christmas day. We asked, but the only reply received was that we would sing Christmas Carols the night before Christmas. But they would look awfully wise and a twinkle would come in their eyes as we used to think only Santa Claus had.

Dr. Jarman was asked for Christmas News. He first smiled (grinned to be exact), then looked solemn and said that perhaps he would have some news New Year.

What do you guess they are going to do? Is it going to be announced in Chapel "Girls hang up your stockings on the night of the twenty-fourth," or are they going to buy us a ton of fire crackers, sky rockets and the like and let us send them off on the campus?

The faculty think that they are going to put something over on us. The way things point now they will, but any way we will have the fun of expecting it. You may bet we can hardly wait for Christmas to get here. The suspense is as great as pulling things out of your stocking early Christmas morning. What will be next? What will it be?

Miss Stuffy Wall, of the Senior Class had the misfortune to break her leg while practicing basketball last week. She will be confined to her home for several weeks.

DR. NEWELL DWIGHT HILLIS TALKS TO LARGE AUDIENCE

Famous Brooklyn Preacher Speaks on Ruskin, the Reformer.

Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, successor of Henry Ward Beecher in Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, N. Y., delivered a lecture in the Auditorium, Thursday evening, December 13.

Preceding the lecture two violin solos were played by Mrs. Somerson, of Lynchburg.

Dr. Hillis chose for his subject "Ruskin's Influence Upon Higher Education." He interpreted to his audience John Ruskin's idea of an educated woman. Dr. Hillis showed Ruskin's influence along two distinct lines: As a social reformer; and as a teacher of the fine arts.

As a social reformer Ruskin was shown to have practised what he preached. Although he had much wealth he lived as a pauper. He spent his fortune on the laboring class in educating them and training them to see the beautiful. Ruskin influenced his students, rich men's sons, to follow in his steps. One of these students founded the first college settlement house—Toymbee Hall in London. This settlement inspired Jane Adams to found one in this country. Ruskin was the indirect founder of the Chautauqua system of America.

Dr. Hillis next showed that Ruskin revolutionized the whole civilized world in respect to the diffusion of the beautiful. He showed that every single fine art begins with vision power in copying the works of God. To Ruskin's influence we owe beautiful furniture, wall paper, table linen, cutlery, carpets and rugs.

In conclusion Dr. Hillis said "use your gifts, young women, in the way of service. You can change the atmosphere of the land toward the fine arts. As Cicero says, 'Make your riches splendid because they shine.'"

CHRISTMAS CALENDAR

Friday, December 21—Hanging of the Greens.

Saturday, December 22—Reading, "The Other Wise Man"—Miss Minnie Rice.

Monday, December 24—Carol Singing and Christmas Celebration. Carols Again at Night in Town.

Tuesday, December 25—Informal Singing of Carols and Story Telling in Reception Hall.

ENGLISH CLASSES DONATE FUNDS FOR NEW FICTION

Members of Miss Everett's English classes have each contributed a quarter to be used in purchasing fiction for the library. These books may be read by the general public after the students who bestowed them have used them for reference.

$350 CLEARED

All Have Good Time in Raising Money at Bazaar—Notable Illustration of Power of Co-Operation.

The Farmville Alumnae Chapter is well satisfied with the success of the Christmas Bazaar held in the Armory December 15. The receipts from the various booths together with cash contributions made by alumnae will amount to about $350.

The most popular spot was the fancy work booth which was made four times as large as originally planned in order to display the beautiful articles sent by alumnae and friends in all parts of Virginia and the United States. The chairman of this booth and a large corps of assistants experienced a real "bargain counter" rush for several hours.

The candy booth, Miss Elizabeth Moring, chairman, was emptied all too soon, and the customers had to be appeased by selling them the holy decorations. The refreshment booth in charge of Miss Cary Jeter, also could not satisfy the demand for doughnuts, sandwiches, chesscakes and tarts of all descriptions, while hot chocolate and coffee seemed to "strike the right spot" as the people came in from the out-of-doors.

A unique booth represented the Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe, the house being placed in an evergreen grove. The doll children, truly numerous, hung over the top, lay on the toe, sat on the ground around it and even climbed the trees. The booth was in charge of Mrs. Coyner, Mrs. Long and Mrs. Creyke. Mrs. Roundy found birds, frogs and other animate and inanimate objects on the branches of her Christmas tree grab bag. Mrs. Norris had a long line waiting for fortunes at the entrance to their booth, and the Three Bears in the puppet show given by Miss Irma Dickinson, played to a full house twice. Miss Agnes Baptist supplied enthusiastic school girls with class pennants and blue pencils stamped in white "State Normal School, Farmville."

The Bazaar, which was for the Student Building, was to have been held in the new gymnasium. After the fire this could not be arranged, and Mr. Waggoner kindly permitted the use of the Armory. The Farmville Chapter wishes to thank most sincerely and heartily the many friends who helped by either gifts or personal labors to make the occasion such a success. It was a notable illustration of the power of co-operation.

CHRISTMAS PLAY

The Dramatic Club will present "Why the Chimes Rang" during the Christmas Holiday. The one-act play is adapted from the story by Alden, which tells of the reward of love and charity and shows that it is the spirit of giving rather than the splendor of the gift which counts.

"VIRGINIAN" PROMISES TO BE BEST YET

Appointment of Staff Completed—New and Original Ideas for Features and Other Departments.

In spite of the set-back of the fire, the "Virginian" Staff has refused to become demoralized and continues serenely with its task of constructing a year book. Mysterious murmurings concerning "features," "pebbled finish," "zinc etchings" and "half tones" are heard upon all occasions from their lips, but upon closer questioning by the bewildered listener aforesaid lips force the famous dumb oyster to take the count. The price of the annual is $3.00 and copies may be reserved by forwarding that amount to Miss Elizabeth Bugg, Business Manager.

The appointment of the full staff has been completed. Those whose names have not already been published, are: Assistant Editor-in-Chief—Bessie Smith.

Assistant Business Managers—Ann Smith, Ruth Cleland.

Assistant Literary Editor—Frieda Crockin.

Assistant Art Editors—Lucile Walton, Katherine Smith.

POPULAR "BLACK BEAUTY" ENJOYS GOOD HEALTH

Widely Circulated Report of Death of Famous Institution "Grossly Exaggerated."

The sad information came to the ears of the staff that "Black Beauty," who records our "E" notes and such unpleasant things, had passed away. Although we couldn't afford to show our sorrow, we felt that it was our solemn duty to give an obituary notice of the decease of the young lady, so that her good works might be known.

But, when we asked Miss Tabb, the guardian angel of the dear departed for details, she looked at us with horrified amazement and said, "Black Beauty' dead! No indeed! She's alive and kicking right this minute. I'm giving her three E notes now. Don't you dare try to try to kill my 'Black Beauty.' I'll jump on anybody who tries it!"

on your doorstep. Will you let it go without a name? When the happy and independent bachelors of Farmville formed a club they relied on the Normal School girls to name it. The fire interfered with whatever inspiration of that sort any one may have had, and the poor club is even at this late date of its existence unchristened. Remember! There is a prize of $10 offered. Address all suggestions to "The Club, Care Farmville Herald."

Christmas spirit this year will be school spirit.

There will be more Christmas belles in Farmville this year than ever before.

Who says go home Christmas! Great day! Would you give up a chance of seeing turkey in the dining room?

The Spirit of Christmas.

The spirit of Christmas should be that of happiness and giving. It is a time of joy and merry-making. On this particular Christmas of 1923, we, the student body have the peculiar privilege of being one of a very large family instead of one of a very intimate family. We have the opportunity which we have never had before of demonstrating in a genuine and heartfelt way the real true spirit of an ideal Christmas. We have the privilege of giving a happy smile and showing a happy face which is what will be needed at this time more than any other one thing. Make this Christmas of 1923 one long to be remembered and one spent in such a way that years from now you can relate with pride to your grandchildren how to live the happiest Christmas.

AT THE EACO THEATRE—December 24th-29th.

WE WISH YOU A MERRY CHRISTMAS.

MONDAY—JOHN GILBERT and ESTELLE TAYLOR in "A CALIFORNIA ROMANCE." He was handsome, rich, and played lilting love songs for her, but she was not satisfied with these things alone. This is a tale of sunshine, roses and courage. THIS IS A STORY YOU WILL LIKE. Also PATHE NEWS.

TUESDAY—"THE FACE ON THE BARROOM FLOOR," A SPECIAL ATTRACTION with a most excellent cast headed by HENRY B. WALTHALL. We selected this picture for CHRISTMAS NIGHT because it is a picture that should please all. It is melodrama, vibrant, dynamic, powerful in its tense emotional appeal. A pulsating story of thrills and romance. Also SECOND EPISODE OF "HAUNTED VALLEY."

WEDNESDAY—JOHN GILBERT and a big cast in "TRUXTON KING" by George Barr McCutcheon. A drama of Graustark, weaving in the adventure, comedy and love affairs of an American who saves a throne. Little MICKEY MOORE is in the cast. Also AESOP FABLE. MATINEE AT 4 O'CLOCK. ALL CHILDREN UNDER 12 WILL BE ADMITTED FREE TO THIS MATINEE. BRING ONE WITH YOU.

THURSDAY AND FRIDAY—POLA NEGRI, CONWAY TEARLE, CONRAD NAGEL, LOIS WILSON and a host of others in the Super-Special Paramount Production "BELLA DONNA." This is the first American made picture Pola Negri has ever appeared in. You've never seen THIS POLA NEGRI! Still the gorgeous, tempestuous mistress of emotions—but now a strictly modern heroine, wearing fifty exquisite Paris gowns. Still the most fascinating love-actress on the screen—but her beauty and genius for the first time glorified a hundredfold by unsurpassing American direction, American lighting, American supporting cast. For "BELLA DONNA" is the throbbing story of love and passion without limit that brought Pola Negri to America. Fox News Thursday and a GOOD COMEDY. ADMISSION 25 cents to NORMAL STUDENTS.

SATURDAY—"THE VILLAGE BLACKSMITH," A SPECIAL PRODUCTION. A big human story based on the famous poem of Henry W. Longfellow, and enacted by a very large selected cast. A coward—without shame—attempted to fix the guilt of theft upon a blameless girl. How he failed is shown in a gripping climax in this great photodrama. A story that will be remembered as long as American literature is read. DO NOT MISS THIS. Also second episode of "PLUNDER." MATINEE AT 4 O'CLOCK.

Admission to Normal Students each show 20 cents, except Thursday and Friday.

JOAN SPEAKS

Dear Girls:

I am so glad you are back once again, and you brought such wonderful good news! Just think, I will have all my girls with me for Christmas! Isn't that enough to make me the happiest person in this whole school? Have you ever thought enough about me to realize how extremely lonely my Christmases have been? All my life I have sat here at this joyous time—all alone—not even one child left to hang my stocking up for me. This one Christmas—out of all your many happy times—you are going to be here with me. Of course, I am not glad of the circumstances that caused you to be here this year, but yet I am happy for my selfish sake. Remember girls—that this one great big sacrifice of not being at home will make you appreciate your future Christmases so much—and I just know your dear homefolks are going to find out what sweet children you are. And all those extra presents you are going to get. It is not going to be so bad. Give us a chance to make you happy, in spite of all your doubts. I am not going to tell you what we are going to do—but leave it to J. L. J. and me!

Now—listen girls—I have had enough of fire and smoke so I don't want any fussing. Then, again, you know I have had enough water so please don't cry—for my poor nervous sake—I can't stand any more moisture. Yours in Christmas Peace and Joy.

JOAN.

CHRISTMAS STORY

Mary was a Normal student. Christmas Eve She hung up her stocking Which was too bad Ah, too very bad, For when Santa Claus came And filled that stocking With candies And nuts And fruits And raisins And all the other Christmas goodies, They fell out on the floor And the rats And the mice Came and ate 'em up. Ain't that awful! Moral: Mend your hose!

BULLETINS

In a bulletin, sent out by the University of Virginia, containing suggestions for the observation of American Education week, the following members of our faculty were on the list of speakers available for county chairmen in arranging for the various meetings: Dr. W. F. Tidyman, Mr. L. E. Bell, Mr. J. M. Lear and Miss Florence H. Stubbs.

An account of the Latin play, given by the eighth grade students under the direction of Miss Rice and Miss Louise Stevenson, was sent to the Virginia Journal of Education by Dr. Tidyman and accepted for publication in the December number.

Dr. Tidyman was the author of two articles published in the November and December issues of the Virginia Journal of Education. The first was, "Reviews of Dickson's Mental Tests and the Classroom Teacher;" and the second, "Essentials of Language in the Elementary School."

SHRINERS' CHRISTMAS TREE

The Shriners will give a Christmas Tree to the poor children of Farmville on Christmas Eve. The Glee Club is to sing Christmas carols.

PERSONAL NOTES

Miss Haynes will spend her Christmas vacation in Newport News.

Miss Peck will spend the Christmas Holidays in Fincastle, Virginia.

Miss Sarah Von Schilling will spend several days with Miss Ilma Von Schilling, before leaving to spend the Christmas Holiday in Hampton.

The Ninth Grade girls are preparing a box of individual gifts for their president, Grace Underwood, who is at Blue Ridge Sanatorium.

Mrs. Somerson is considering a violin class in Farmville.

About six thousand Red Cross seals were sold by the children of the Training School.

Miss Coulling went to John Randolph School with Miss Bierbower, Friday, and made a lecture on "The Christ-Child and Art."

COLLEGE CUT OUTS

This year's enrollment of five hundred and ten students is the largest that Harrisonburg has ever had.

Mercer was recently the recipient of a gift of $100,000 from F. S. Ethridge.

The organization of a golf club at Georgia Tech has raised the number of sports there to ten.

The V. M. I. Corps has decided to give to all men who have been on a publication for two years miniature gold printing presses, as an emblem of the appreciation of the work being done by Student Newspapers.

We are a poor but happy family of 500 girls and please send us a case of smiles and sympathy. Bring us each a doll with vanilla-tasting white lead paint on it for little Inez to chew, a big sparkling diamond for each of us, and a floral wreath for the old South Wing with crepe on it and that says "Gone But Not Forgotten," and some extra buckets, so's we can take in more washes of dishes and please, hurrie, if you give us this beautiful, big, unselfish Christmas—why, there will be so much fun watching the happy faces of the others enjoying their simple Christmas—that I won't ask anything for myself except a ticket to Norfolk and where they don't make you carry books—and has Keith's on Saturday nites.

"SMILE AND THE WORLD SMILES WITH YOU"

Students at Called Meeting at Chapel
Lecture Faculty on "Blues."

The student body decided that the faculty was getting more fun out of trying to cheer us up than we were getting ourselves. So the brainy members of our worthy organization held a conference. Now these scholars decided that it was a bad rule that would not work both ways. Therefore, it was decided that the students should try to cheer the faculty up. A special time was set aside to do this act, chapel, December 11. Members of the student body were selected to talk to members of the faculty and cheer 'em up. The talks consisted of things that the student body intends to do to keep the "spirits" of the faculty from sinking. We are to eat all the food off our plates so it won't be so much trouble to wash the dishes. Mr. Lear is to be relieved of his "Gift Shop" as soon as possible. We are to get our drawing outfits so Miss Coulling will be "cheered up." Faculty if you are feeling very "blue" around Christmas Eve drop into a box found at Joan's feet a note, telling what you want Santa to bring you and where you live. The Student Body will see him in person and tell him what you want and where to go to find you.

SANTA CLAUS WILL APPEAR FOR FRESHMEN

The Rotunda Staff has decided to spread peace and joy throughout the land this Christmas by erecting (strictly at its own expense) a gorgeous Christmas tree. This tree will be more beautiful than any other in the whole town because it will be seen only with the mental eye of the beholder. Below are listed a few of the gifts the Rotunda will distribute among its readers. For the benefit of the Freshman Class, Santa Claus will be at Garnet's from 3:30 to 6:00 every afternoon from now until Christmas. Any Freshman who is afraid to cross the street alone may be chaperoned by an upper classman free of charge.

1. To Stuffy Wall—A Distinguished Service Cross.
2. To the Home Table—A dishwasher.
3. To the Rolls in the Dining Room—A few nails (steel is a good conductor of heat).
4. To Miss Willie London—A toaster.
5. To the College Juniors—A basketball team.
6. To the Student Building—An elevator.
7. To Miss Grace Russell—A key to the Rotunda office.
8. To Miss Tucker—A pair of shoes that are mates.
9. To Janie Moore—A Blue Jay for her "soey toe."
10. To Joan—Wheels, so she can save herself in case of fire.
11. To Lover's Lane—A short circuit.
12. To Helen Miller—A "definite suggestion" for all questions.
13. To the Proctor—A night on which "Not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse."
14. Miss Maude Taliaferro—Two Victrola records (1) "The Waste and Inefficiency of Using One-Cent Stamps" (2) "Good Manners for All Occasions."
15. To Dr. Jarman—A Merry Christmas and love from his "girls."

CHRISTMAS GIVING

'Tis early Christmas morning and the family's aglee
To open all the packages a-hanging on the tree.

Just watch the happy faces as the seals and tinsel fall
As the eager hands go searching for the gifts from one and all.

But note the queer expressions! Is something not amiss?

Poor Mary has a table cloth desired by married Sis.

And father has some cigarettes—"With love from John to Dad"—

But—father only smokes cigars. Now say, ain't that too bad!

Carlotta has the dancing craze and wants a party gown

But gets a woolly sweater that inspires a fleeting frown—

Young Dick, who asks for Tarkington, discovers Henry James

Which John prefers to brilliant socks and ties as red as flames.

And married Sis, with some surprise, gets slipper buckles fine

Which Mary fingers jealously and thinks "They should be mine."

Poor Mother gets a phonograph (she did so want a coat)

But Ellen, who received that prize, of Mother's gift takes note.

They thank each other properly but all begin to see

That Santa must have mixed the gifts he left upon the tree

So Mother dear, who always knows the very thing to do

Suggests that if they trade the gifts, the crowd will feel less blue.

They act at once, the smiles appear, and gloom is all erased

For everyone has found a gift exactly to his taste—

And what is more, I'm sure another Christmas Day

Will prove they've learned to choose their gifts in the good old, old Christmas way.

WITH COMPLIMENTS FROM HEADQUARTERS

Normal School Y. W. C. A. Cabinet Recipient of Cleverly Filled Christmas Stocking.

To brighten our spirits on Christmas day Miss Katherine Lumpkin and Miss Grace Bryson sent our association a big red stocking filled with all sorts of presents. It was with breathless excitement that we opened the stocking and found first of all a little mechanical arithmetic boy to help the training school children, whom Santa Claus had distracted, work their examples. But this was nothing to be compared with the others, a beautiful pair of eye glasses, the kind monkeys wear, for girls who were so unwise as to study too hard. The next thing we came to was a nest of blocks, supposedly to be corner stones for our beautiful student building,—but alas, all of them were a different size! By this time we had become so thrilled we could scarcely get a tiny box out. It was tied up in green and red ribbon and had a tag on it which read: "From Grace Bryson with the usual wish that it could be more." Now what do you reckon was inside? A beautiful copper penny to help Dr. Jarman with his Student Building Fund. Only one more gift was left, a little telephone connecting our association with 501 Hurt Building, Atlanta, Georgia. Now you know we're on the map when we get a Christmas stocking from headquarters!

GLIMPSES OF THE MOON

Among the pictures to appear at the Ecco next week is a dramatization of Edith Wharton's well known "The Glimpses of the Moon." The story follows: Two attractive but impetuous young people decide to marry and live on the proceeds of the wedding presents and loans of friends as long as these last. They also agree to dissolve the marriage if a more desirable matrimonial opportunity presents itself to either. Both have a decided taste for the good things of life so it proves rather a strain to keep up appearances in the wealthy set of which they are "hangers on." Soon diversities of opinion on ways and means of management cause them to separate, each determined to marry again for wealth. After the separation, both find that the bonds of matrimony are insoluble when two people love each other and have suffered together. They re-unite, resolved to see life through together, disregarding any sacrifices it may involve. Although we do not consider this novel unusual for either its literary or story value, it is interesting and readable, for it deals with an important social problem in an impartial, unprejudiced way. Miss Wharton's criticism is not bitter and is constructive rather than destructive. Unlike some modern novelists, she does not make use of asterisks or so-called "realistic" scenes which are quite a relief to the long suffering public.

CHRISTMAS REAL TEST Mystery of Why Men Forget Explained.

A number of students have been growing cynical concerning man's perfidy lately. Their ban lovers have "guy 'em the gate" for some reason or pretext. The following is from the "Farmville Herald" and may explain to some heart-broken maiden the cause of her lover's coldness at this season of mirth and gladness:

"Just at the time of the year when pedestrians on High Street draw their coat collars tightly around their necks and the farmers of Prince Edward County begin to find frost on their pumpkins—if they have any—why a curious change comes over the majority of young men.

"With the increasing coolness their memories grow strangely dull. Harry, who has been in constant attendance all summer on Mabel, experiences a distinct sense of disillusion when he recalls her charms. His calls and theatre dates gradually become punctuated by longer intervals, and may be said to be virtually extinct soon after December 1.

"And Conway, who appeared most devoted to a vivacious young blonde, feels a certain lassitude about his affection for her and becomes suddenly interested in literature. The interest becomes a prepossession, and he makes few social engagements of any kind, and none whatsoever with the blonde.

"At first she is puzzled by the seeming desertion until one day she happens to remember that Conway several months before, had promised her a beautiful lacquered set of Mah Jongg for a Christmas present. Of course, Conway happened to be in most unfortunate circumstances financially. But in general the late fall is a time of much forgetting and reconsecration to other ideals and interests.

"The younger girl is often puzzled and worries over the dropping away of friendships. She wonders wherein she has offended. But all the other girls know."

PERSONALS

Julia Reid was seen diligently applying hair tonic to her hair Thursday and Friday nights. When asked how her hair was coming she said, "Out."

Anna Branch Reems, Margaret Day, and Elizabeth Rainey have applied to a local garage for slides like those used to slide under machines so that they can slide under beds easier when visiting after light bell.

Evelyn Barnes would like a person to push beds around for her so that she can pull late visitors from under the beds with greater ease.

It is said that Little Fat Sister has perfected a system. When she has an article to write for Journalism, she simply borrows one from the Rotunda. It works; too, except when our News Editor misspells a word.

DREAM OF PERFECT ROOMMATE

Said Specimen Reported to Have Compensation.

There are roommates and roommates—and roommates! Sometimes when we have been handed a D or an E or a term paper has been inflicted on us or we have not received the letter we wanted we feel as if this particular branch of humanity were classified only by its own peculiar branch of "cussedness." This being the case the far famed fifty-seven varieties of Mr. Heinz are thrown far back into the umbrage. There are six hundred and fifty-eight kinds of roommates by actual count but we cannot set forth all of the various kinds. Some day we expect to write a collegiate encyclopedia and there will be found all species. Among the outstanding types are ones with chronic crushes, ones with habitual hysteria, ones who have personal animosity toward brooms, ones who are pillars of the institution and who make the sleeping chamber a committee room, ones who love onions, ones who have a perpetual guest and other varieties ad infinitum.

Men have pip dreams and conjure up images of the girls whom they would marry, but often in the class room, lulled by the voice of one of our excellent "profs," we have our dream of the perfect "roomie". Ah—vision rare! She sleeps peacefully and silently. Her garments require but one hook in the closet but they are numerous and just our size. She can spell any word in the dictionary—right off the bat. She uses but one tenth of the dresser. Her favorite indoor sport is cleaning up. She is an authority on all subjects upon which term papers are written. Her specialty is translating Latin or solving the elusive math problem. She has a wealth of book reviews at the tip of her tongue. She—but tears dim my vision and a lump fills my throat.

Still "roomies" as they are have their compensations. Without them on whom could we blame the untidiness of our respective cubicles? Whom could we find to take it out on when a blue day turns up? With whom could we weep when homesick? To whom could we rave over the handsomest man we've ever seen in our life? And last—over whom could we become sentimental in after years when time has healed all wounds?

LOST AND FOUND

Lost—A green brooch in the shape of a four leaf clover. Finder will please return to Emily Calcott and receive reward.

Russell Everett couldn't figure out what a snake dance was and when her roommate told her it was a solo hula hula that the tallest girl from the class winning a game was selected to perform—well, she wasn't quite so proud of her height.

CHRISTMAS MAIL

Department Makes Remarkable Record During Christmas Rush.

It may be of interest to the student body to know that from Monday morning, Dec. 17th, through Thursday, Dec. 27th, approximately 2500 packages were received, and delivered, and 1100 mailed and that approximately 7000 letters and 7000 cards were mailed during the same period.

Also, that all mail was up to date on Saturday morning, Christmas morning at 11 o'clock and Thursday morning—every piece of first class mail being in the dining room for breakfast Christmas morning and again for supper Wednesday night.

The Post Office Department of Station No. 1 wishes to take this opportunity to express to the student body, the Faculty, and the Home Department, its appreciation of the assistance given and offered, the cheerful patience with the delays and the consideration shown under all circumstances, which made the work so much lighter.

NATIONAL EMBLEM MAY BECOME EXTINCT

There is a possibility that we shall be without a living specimen of the American eagle, one of our national emblems.

Six years ago the Alaskan government passed a law paying a bounty of 50 cents for each eagle killed. This law was passed on the basis that the eagle is destructive to salmon in the spawning season. In reality, salmon die after this season and it is at this time eagles feed upon them, when many can be found along the banks of the streams.

Because of its strength, power, and freedom, our forefathers adopted the eagle as a national emblem, on June 20, 1762. Thus, for 140 years it has appeared as a national emblem on our money and on our arms. The question that is facing the American people is, is this national emblem to remain a living symbol? No American would dare insult the American flag, in any way, yet we permit the eagle to be shot by sportsmen and by bounty seekers. It is treated as a traitor with a bounty of 50 cents on its head. If we, as American citizens, cannot give a little protection to this living representative of our liberty and independence we should remove it from our money and arms and pull it down from above the flag. If we are going to keep it, we should give it our love and protection as a national emblem.

IN MEMORIAM

This is dedicated to those rare souls who took the ultimatum "There will be no Christmas holiday" literally.

To conquer our inclinations, to curb our angry feelings, to be moderate in the hour of victory; these exactions are of such a nature that he who does them can be compared with God himself.

SPARK PLUG MAY WEAR EARRINGS

Normal School Girls Expected to Decorate Themselves and Pets With Ear Plugs.

Yes, speaking of earrings, that is the fact it is a much discussed topic at Farmville Normal School. The ones seen often in classrooms, on campus, down town and in the dining room are patterned from those worn by the Egyptians during the sixth century. The "Encyclopedia Britannica" gives the description of the earrings worn in Egypt over four hundred years ago as a system of pendants or chains found hanging from metal or glass disks. We also learn from the encyclopedia that it is the custom among savage races to decorate or at any rate to modify the appearance of the ear to a practically universal degree. The people of Borneo wear wooden plugs in their ears. We are not a savage race, of course, and do not wish to modify our ears, our only desire is to be "all dolled up," but who knows, perhaps we shall soon see girls with the latest thing in carved ivory and bamboo ear plugs?

Reference to the first earrings we find in the book of Genesis, where it is stated that earrings were worn by both sexes. Imagine a group of Hamden-Sidney boys walking down Main Street with lovely jewelled Tut earrings on.

As one of the curiosities on the subject, it may be mentioned that Antonia, wife of Drusus, is said by Pliny to have attached a pair of earrings to her pet lamprey. Well,—this about caps the climax. We do not find the pet monkeys, cats, Spark Plugs, and other numerous pets at S. N. S. with earrings on. To say the least we are improving in this field, if in no other.

As there were no schools in the olden days, we have no record of the meaning of earrings to classes. But probably, somewhere, in the last few centuries, some famous princess wore them to her class.

EPISCOPALIANS ARE ENTER-TAINED

On Friday night, December 28, Dr. Diehl's and Miss Von Schilling's Sunday School classes were delightfully entertained from eight to ten o'clock, at the home of Mrs. Frank Baldwin on High Street.

The spacious living room was radiant with bright red colors suggestive of the holiday season. In one corner of the room a large Christmas tree, beautifully decorated held a prominent place, and at the side a huer fire place, seemed to speak the word, "welcome."

During the evening a delicious frozen fruit salad, saltines and hot coffee were served.

Brightly polished shoes are said to be cooler than dull or dusty shoes, because they throw off the sun's rays by reflection.

Mail Boxes Again.

Some time ago we expressed thru this column the opinion that our system of mail delivery is inadequate. That inadequacy has just been demonstrated. We have no desire to deflect honor from the magnificent work done by one local mail office during the tremendous Christmas rush of the past two weeks. Contrasting the size of the department with that of the mail, delivery has been remarkable. The fault lay in the system of delivery. Following the time-honored custom of this institution girls were forced to wait in line for packages at a specified time, thus necessitating hours of waiting. How much simpler had there been boxes into which the smaller packages and slips for larger ones could have been placed. They could then have been delivered throughout the day without the customary nerve-racking concentration. This waiting-in-line system may have been thoroughly satisfactory when our student body consisted of only a few hundred, but at present when it approximates nearly a thousand, it is worse than inefficient. While we are learning modern and competent methods in our classes, is it not rather ludicrous that we are at the same time confronted with a daily object lesson of inefficiency?

"Honor Where Honor Is Due."

The school is indebted to the Y. W. C. A. and Glee Club under the direction of Miss Willie London and Miss Munoz, for the beautiful Christmas tree and "good, old" time Christmas Eve. Miss Janie Moore did the honors as Santa Claus and impressed the audience most favorably. Miss Mary White Cox and Dr. Jarman took a great deal of interest in supplying the "cats." Nancy Lyne and Louise Jones made a trip to Richmond to buy the interesting gifts that were presented at the gathering around the tree. The work of preparation for the evening was done by the Y. W. C. A. Service Committee with the help of the Cabinet girls and others, under the direction of Lucile Farrar, President of the Y. W. C. A. Louise Stephenson had charge of the distribution of the baskets, which were quite attractive and well-planned.

The music for the evening consisted of Christmas Carols sung by the Glee Club and Professional Classes, under the direction of the music department. The whole event was very successful.

A morning Watch Service was held at 7:45 Christmas Morning in the Y. W. C. A. Room. The service, the subject of which was "Christmas Chimes," was led by Elizabeth Paylor.

Miss Marian Camper, our Y. W. C. A. President of last year, sent a charming Christmas box to the present cabinet, each member of which received a separate gift.

THE NORTHEASTER

The wind sweeps clean on the beach tonight,

The waves are a fury of foam.
The ships send by with their sails tucked close
Racing for harbor, and home.

2.

My little dog whines at the rain-drenched leaves

As they flatten against the pane,
But the little cat blinks at the fire in content

And purrs in tune with the rain.

3.

Ah, it's sheltered and safe by the hearth-side bright,

And it's there that I love to be,
But though my heart lives by the side of the fire,

My soul's on the wind-tossed sea!

JOAN SPEAKS

In direct contrast to our own calm manner of regarding the death of the literary societies comes this wail of remonstrance from an alumna. It makes one wonder if it meant all that to other girls, why couldn't it mean as much to us?

As Joan speaks, in the Rotunda—so Irma groans in the enclosed. Girls, don't let those societies stagnate—doubtless other things mean more to you now, but in years to come you will find as I have found already. For what a good live Literary Society will do for you—there is no substitute. Dr. Jarman meant much to me. The Normal School meant much to me. The faculty and home department meant much. The girls meant much. The buildings and grounds meant much. All the institutions meant much. But all these meant more through the Literary Societies. If the researches could make King Tut come to such active life after 3000 years, can't you dig 'em up and revivify the dear old things?

VIRGINIA DARE BIRTHPLACE TO BE DESIGNATED

Mark Site of "Cradle of Race," With Bronze Monument.

Manteo, N. C.—A movement has been started by a group of citizens to permanently mark historical spots, and one of the places to be designated by a monument, if the plans materialize, is the birthplace of Virginia Dare, the first white child born on American soil. The spot is on Roanoke Island, often referred to as "the cradle of the English race in America." There is some doubt as to the exact spot where Virginia Dare was born, but it is believed to be near Fort Raleigh, about three miles north of Manteo.

Mounds of earth forming the sides of a pentagon, at each angle of which is a stone post protruding about a foot from the ground, show the location of the old fort. In the center of the fort there is now an unpretentious stone marker on which is inscribed some of the historical records of the place. Unscrupulous relic collectors have marred the present stone marker, but its inscription still can be read.

The county, of which Roanoke Island is a part, is named Dare, in honor of the first English child born in America, and the seat of the county is named Manteo in honor of the Indian chief who was the first person to be baptized in the new land. Manteo enjoys the distinction of being the only county seat in the United States, with the single exception of Key West, Fla., located on an island.

The North Carolina State Department of Education and the State Historical Commission in order to present to the people the history of Roanoke Island in pictorial form, in 1921 had the settlement of the island enacted and photographed in 6,000 feet of motion picture film.

August 18, 1902, the first celebration in honor of the birth of Virginia Dare, was held at Fort Raleigh. Since then the celebrations have been repeated from time to time. It is said that on these occasions only has the flag of Queen Elizabeth—a red cross on a field of white—been displayed.

JOKES

Prof.—"Think of the progress of 1923! Look at the development in trains alone. Take the rise of automobiles, from litters to the luxury of the modern car. Then we have the wonder of the aeroplane, which is most astonishing. Pause for a moment and consider the towns that have become cities, the civil welfare all ahead. Why, where was the New York police force twenty-five years ago?"

Student—"In Ireland!"

They claim it was smoke which nearly overcame some firemen, when five hundred girls at S. N. S. came out in a hurry, one Saturday morning.

Simp: "What have you in your hand?"

Sap: "Fly paper."

Simp: "Oh deah! You don't mean to say that flies read."

—Gander.

"Breathes there a girl at S. N. S. so dead,

Who never to her date hath said:

When do we eat?"

Smith:—"So your daughter is at the Normal? How is she making it?"

Jones:—"She isn't. I am making it and she is spending it."

Bella—"Do you believe in love at first sight, dearie?"

Donna:—"I certainly don't. The first time I saw Jack he was in a swell limousine and I fell desperately in love with him. I found out later he had only hired the car."

Mary (From S. N. S.):—"We have a new dishwasher at school."

Mother:—"How so?"

Mary:—"You can tell by the different finger prints on the glasses."

He:—"How would you classify a telephone girl? Is hers a business or a profession?"

She:—"Neither. It's a calling."

At S. N. S.:—"Maid, this steak is so tough I can't cut it."

Maid:—"Very good, Miss. I'll bring you another knife, Miss."

The girl across the hall says that the old-fashioned girls used to pray for a man but the modern ones prey for them instead.

AT THE EACO THEATRE

A Week of Unusually Good Pictures.
Week January 7th-12th.

MONDAY—THOMAS MEIGHAN and LILA LEE in "HOMEWARD BOUND." A Special Paramount picture, based on Peter B. Kyne's story "The Light to Leeward." You'll have the most glorious adventure of your life, if you ship with Thomas Meighan on the "Nancy B." Through swirling seas and rousing rescues to the harbor of happiness at last. Tom Meighan is the stalwart skipper, and Lila Lee is the best mate, with a crew of favorites. A tingling tale of the world of ships, fresh as the foam of the sea. A PICTURE THAT WILL PLEASE EVERYBODY. Pathe News Monday, and the fourth episode of "HAUNTED VALLEY" Tuesday.

WEDNESDAY—WILLIAM DUNCAN and EDITH JOHNSON in "SMASHING BARRIERS." The most thrilling picture they ever made. This is the greatest stunt picture that has been produced. It has thrills that stop the breath and dare-devil life risking perils. The fastest action picture we have ever had at the Eaco Theatre. Also AESOP FABLE.

THURSDAY AND FRIDAY—BEBE DANIELS, NITA NADLI and a fine supporting cast in the SPECIAL PARAMOUNT PICTURE "THE GLIMPSES OF THE MOON." From the novel by Edith Wharton. Silken Bebe Daniels as the luxury loving society girl who agreed to marry a poor artist for a year only. Nita Naldi as her gorgeous rival, who couldn't read the "Hands Off" sign on husbands. Luxury, fashion, all that money can buy—and a love that seeks happiness in this world of tinsel. Edith Wharton's sensational novel in a million dollar setting, directed by the man who directed "Robin Hood." EVERY GIRL WILL JUST LOVE THIS PICTURE. Fox News Thursday and a GOOD COMEDY Friday. ADMISSION TO NORMAL STUDENTS 25 CENTS EACH NIGHT.

SATURDAY—"YOUTH TO YOUTH." A photoplay about a girl who didn't know she was bad. Played by a distinguished cast, headed by BILLIE DOVE. A fascinating drama of life in the theatre, showing the luxurious splendor of New York and the quiet simplicity of the country. A stage romance of love and youth and ambition. A PICTURE ALL WILL ENJOY. Also 4th episode of "PLUNDER." MATINEE AT 4 O'CLOCK.

Admission to S. N. S. Students, 20 cents to each show except Thursday and Friday.

HINTS TO THE HARD HIT

BY HERA HEARTSEASE

Dear Hera:

My brother from V. M. I. came to see me during the holidays, and every girl who came along the Rotunda stopped and looked over. Should I have blessed them out for being so curious and for embarrassing said dear brother to death?

A Homesick S. N. S. Girl.

Dear Homesick Normal Girl:

You would be very foolish to say anything to the girls. Besides losing many friends you would make a grievous mistake as probably the dears were simply trying to catch up with the running cedar hung around in the reception hall.

Dear Hera:

I went to a dance while I was home, and I met the most adorable boy from W. & L.; so collegiate and all. I had been studying so hard at school tho, I had almost forgotten how to dance. I stepped all over his feet. Do you think I should write and apologize?

"Unfortunate Prom Trotter."

Dear Unfortunate P. T.:

I don't think it would be wise to write the young man. You never can tell how far three inches on a printed page can go. However, the next time the young man calls suggest a game which you know you excel in, such as "Old Maids," "Mah Jong," "Rook" or whatnot. This will be all right until you have learned to watch your step.

Note: All questions thoughtlessly and carelessly answered. For a personal reply, call me on a party line.

SOME ROOSTERS

What is the value of education?

Ask Mr. Torcat, who arrives from Europe on the steamship Patria. Ask any one of the seventy roosters that he brought with him.

Uneducated, those roosters would be worth at most forty cents a pound, and their heads would soon be off. Forty cents a pound would be about $336 for the seventy if they were all fat and weighed twelve pounds each.

The seventy roosters came with their lives insured for $150,000, because they are educated. One rooster has been taught to skate, another rides the bicycle, some drill like soldiers, going through a sham battle, one instead of natural crowing sings. They are going into vaudeville.

Education increases their value and prolongs their lives. Education is the hope of men, as it is of roosters, and even mice. Educated mice have value—uneducated they are vermin.

INCREASE OF ILLITERACY IN U. S.

Ignorance Costs the Nation Millions of Dollars.

One-fourth of the population of the United States can neither read nor write. This is a declaration made by government authorities who are promoting Education Week.

The Bureau of Education and the War Department have made investigations, and they have become convinced that one out of every four adults in this country is unable to read in English.

The most exhaustive and reliable test was made during the mobilization of 4,000,000 men under the draft act. Officials were astounded and alarmed to find that 25 per cent of the men called to service were unable to read and understand the English language and also unable to write in that language, with the exception of their own names. These startling disclosures led to a government investigation of those not drafted, and the percentage was found to be practically the same, though higher in some communities.

Illiteracy is costing the nation millions of dollars. One-half of the accounts in factories, with a resultant loss of $50,000 per day to industries are due to ignorance of the language.

As 67 per cent of the illiterates are foreign born, the problems of Americanization and education are interallied. This illiteracy reacts upon the foreigners, not only mentally but physically. Many of our states are awakening to their obligations and this work of Americanization through educational activities is being greatly stressed. In addition to state activities in this direction, the American Legion, the Y. M. C. A., the Knights of Columbus, and many civic and industrial organizations have engaged extensively in this work.

President Coolidge, in his proclamation relative to Education Week, said: "Every American citizen is entitled to a liberal education. Without this there is no guarantee of the permanence of free institutions, no hope for perpetuating self-government. Despotism finds its chief support in ignorance. Knowledge and freedom go hand in hand. From the first, America has been dedicated to the cause of education. In our educational policy, we have observed evidence of a broadening vision. To insure the permanence and continuing of such an educational policy, there must be the fullest public realization of its absolute necessity."

What are we, as loyal American citizens, as teachers, going to do about it?

WESTBROOK CONCERT COMPANY

The Westbrook Concert Company, of Danville, Virginia, performed Saturday evening, January 5, in the Normal School auditorium. The proceeds of the entertainment went for the Student Building. The musicians were amateurs, but their selections were equal to those of a good many professionals we have heard here. The audience would have enjoyed the performance even more perhaps had the bearing of the performers been of a dignity consistent with the excellence of their music. The program is as follows:

Sam Sours—Pianist.
Richard Penn—Violinist.
Basil Browder—Baritone-Tenor.
John Westbrook, Jr.—Hawaiian Steel Guitarist.

Program.

Gavotte, Gluck-Brahms; Waltz, Chopin; Polonaise in A Flat, Chopin—Mr. Sours.

A Spirit Flower, Campbell-Tipton; For You Alone, Gehl—Mr. Browder. Romance in A, Lianure; Chanson Indoue, from "Sadko" Rimsky-Korsakov-Kreisler—Mr. Penn.

Mother Machree, Olcott-Ball; Miserere, Schubert—Mr. Westbrook.

In the Garden, Miles; Whispering Hope, Hawthorne—Messrs. Westbrook and Browder.

The World Is Waiting for the Sunrise, Seitz; A Dream, Bartlett—Mr. Browder.

The Last Rose of Summer, Moore; Melody of the Soul (Meditation), Richard Penn, John Westbrook, Jr.—Mr. Penn.

Song of Love, Schubert; The Rosary, Nevin—Mr. Westbrook.

Country Gardens, Grainger; Waltz in A, Sam Sours; Liebestraum, Liszt; Etude, Rubinstein—Mr. Sours.

Aloha Oe (Farewell to Thee), Her Majesty Queen Liliuokalani—Messrs. Westbrook, Browder, Penn, Sours.

PEGO' MY HEART

One of the pictures to be shown at the Eaco this week is "Peg O' My Heart," by J. Hartley Manners. As the name suggests, Peg is one to tug at the heart strings and make you laugh at her effervescent little Irish self even while you pity her.

Imagine being sent to a snobbish English home, the former home of your mother, who has been disinherited because she married your father, an Irishman, and treated as if you were a perfectly inanimate object to be made over completely. And then, just as you were thinking you could not stand it any longer, even for your father's sake, you meet him. The former burden becomes a joy and you try to improve, only to find out that he is an English lord—and of course an Irish girl would never consider an English lord!

How does Peg solve this question? She does it in a thoroughly satisfactory and truly Irish way. "Peg O' My Heart" is the kind of play that leaves a pleasant taste in your mouth, the kind that you like to see at the end of a hard day's work.

DOG DAYS

Canine Population Notable Feature of Normal School

The Normal School is unusually blessed in the size and variety of its canine population. Those pups are like the poor—ever with us. First, not because of his size, but because of his inestimable importance, comes Fritz. Is there one he has failed to greet upon entrance, solemnly stationed beside Joan, his wrinkled and wizened face wreathed in smiles of welcome? He is known far and wide for his unusual intelligence concerning the beauties of nature. Miss Stubbs admits that without him as an escort her Nature Study walks would be a hopeless, miserable failure.

What about that faithful friend of Mr. Toller? Can he help it that he was born optically askew? That dog has a notable pedigree. Almost any hour of the day or night Mr. Toller may be seen patrolling the campus and behind the unusually large man trots an unusually small dog. No better example of contrast can be afforded the student.

Normal School dogs are similar to Normal School students in that they possess a surprising degree of intelligence. Have you noticed the intellectual expression that Mr. Cox's dog assumes? He can shake hands and is well versed in canine courtesy. It matters little that the slumber of the just are broken off at unearthly hours of the night and morning by battle cries of quarrelsome cats and the mournful howl of stray dogs. Cats will fight, but the dogs won't bite so let's grin and bear it. Dogs will be dogs!

LOST AND FOUND

The Rotunda is willing to establish a Lost and Found Bureau. The Rotunda Office will be open for an hour after chapel each day with a responsible person in charge to whom articles may be given and from whom articles may be obtained with proper identification. A fee of 5 per cent of the value of the article will be charged to cover the expense of advertising.

Found—A tan coat. Owner may obtain same by identification at the Rotunda Office.

Lost—The front to the Gym, piano. Miss Buford is extremely anxious that it be returned.

CLASS ISSUES OF THE ROTUNDA

It has been the custom for several years for each class to issue one copy of the Rotunda during the year. This is truly a class issue. The members of the staff for this particular issue are elected from the class. This copy of the Rotunda attempts to give the reader an insight into the work, the origination power and the true spirit of the class. Each class becomes interested and strives to make her issue the best. Thus proper class rivalry is created and power of initiative is developed among the members.

Wake up girls! Here's your chance to put your class in the lime light.

S. N. S. IN 1924

The rooms are exceedingly small. The beds are so fixed that they can be converted into book shelves, closets, dressers and the like in the day. The table may be raised to the ceiling by a series of pulleys when it is time to study. The rooms are cleaned by sections and ventilated by introducing chemicals. Each girl receives her breakfast in bed. It is placed on carriers in the kitchen and is sent through a slide from third floor Main to the Training School so that the teaching seniors will have time to collect their thoughts before the day's classes. The use of the stairs is entirely prohibited, as they are kept as relics of the fire of 1923. Elevators run at all times to all floors.

The rule book reads that:

"Girls are prohibited from going riding in airships unless accompanied by a member of the Home Department."

"A girl must not talk to the same boy down town, more than one hour at the time. (Note: 'Give the other girls a chance.')"

"The girls will be allowed to dance in Hubbard's until one o'clock each night except Friday and then until three."

Everyone is required to take a course called "Matrimony." The state passed this law as it was overflowing with teachers, and had no children for them to teach.

All the classes are conducted by radio and motion picture. Some of the faculty reside in Berlin, Paris, New York, and such places.

ARGUS ELECTION

The following were elected officers of the Argus Literary Society for the coming term:

Frances Baskerville—President.
Catherine Kemp—Recording Secretary.
Etta Sawyer—Corresponding Secretary.
Olive Smith—Treasurer.

It strikes us that a lot of argument is being wasted over the proposal to sell some war materials to the Mexicans, when they never require more in that line than three whoops and a regiment of generals.

FRESHMAN NOTICE

Dire Punishment Will Be Inflicted For Infringement of Ultimatum.

Before January 26, the date of the first home game of basketball, all Freshmen will be required to learn the words of the song printed below. It is highly probable that members of the Monogram Club will try out the first year girls to see if they have followed instructions. Freshmen who cannot sing will be required to learn the words anyway.

(Tune: "Hampton-Sidney Tigers")
"Rah! Rah! Farmville rah!
Rah rah for Farmville! Farmville rah!
We'll fight for Farmville glory
Until our heads be hoary
All hail the Farmville team of S. N. S."

OUR OWN STATISTICS

585 girls in school have read "Flaming Youth." The rest are on the waiting list.

Approximately 500,313,999,057, flowing locks are laundered at S. N. S. weekly.

157 girls have headaches on Saturday at 7:30 A. M.

87.5 per cent of our hobbled heads are now "shengled;" the rest are unshingled on account of parental threats and laths.

The number of diamond rings in school has doubled since Christmas. This probably explains the gymnastic finger exercises that have been remarked upon of late.

The 65 steps leading to the dormitory in the Student Building have led to the loss of 2.9 pounds per inmate.

Farmville residents average three roosters and one dog per family. Each rooster averages 10 crows between 4 and 6 daily. The wives of these respective roosters averaged three eggs per diem a piece ten years ago (judging from breakfast of late).

Y. W. C. A.

The opening meeting of the Y. W. C. A. cabinet was held Saturday morning, January 5, 1924.

The regular monthly business meeting of the Y. W. C. A. was held Wednesday night, January 9, 1923.

The mission study classes began Tuesday night, January 8, 1924. These classes will last six weeks. The subjects to be discussed are as follows: International Relations—By Mr. White.

Race Relationship—By Miss Willie London.

More Christian Industrial Order—By Mr. Lear.

Russia, according to one friendly observer, represents just the added touch of democracy that the world needs. Meaning, we suppose, the "T" in Tchitcherine.

The case of the Balkans rather factually disposes of the ancient fallacy that lightning never strikes twice in the same place twice.

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer, and these will not be published if the writer objects to the publications.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matters should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of their copies of The Rotunda will be appreciated.

It doesn't matter who wins the game tonight. What does matter is how you accept the results of the game.

A La Mud Turtle.

During the recent rainy spell it was our pleasure to cross the space between the Normal and Training Schools several times a day. Once we slipped. When we arose our complexion rivalled the ruddy features of Lo, the poor Indian. When we had dry-cleaned ourselves we returned to gloat over the mud turtle antics of similar unfortunates. Some fell outright, some merely skidded and muddled their shoes, but all acknowledged in some way acquaintanceship to a slippery, sloping clay walk. We advocate a cement, or at least a gravelled walk, for this portion of the campus. The mire is annoying to say the least. Surely it is but in keeping with the appearance of our well kept grounds that one short path be made similarly beautiful—and safe.

HINTS TO THE HARD-HIT

Hera Heartsease's Counsel.

Dearest Hera,

I am a young lady with blue eyes about twenty-seven years old. I have been desperately in love for about a week, and although I have read seven books of poetry, I'm still undecided as to what answer I should give my lover. My parents think I am too young to marry just yet, but yesterday I saw a sign over the bakery which said, "eventually—why not now?" Do you think I should consider this an omen and do as the sign said or wait until Alphonso finishes High School?

Hectically yours,

Vena Cava.

My dear Vena,

You must never believe in signs as superstition is an indication of ignorance, moreover everything comes to him who waits. Furthermore robbing the cradle is a sign of unhappiness. You know, dear, you'd be perfectly miserable if your friends said Alphonso married you for money.

H. H.

Miss Hera Heartsease:

Dear lady,

I am my grandmother's favorite granddaughter, but somehow I do not feel I have a right to seek her counsel on this question. I have read your column for the past twenty years, and have often admired the sane judgments you have passed upon other enamoured episodes, and so feel that you are just the person to help me in my time of trouble. Last week as I was returning from a visit to a sick friend, a very neat looking young gentleman grabbed my hand and kissed it exclaiming, "My darling Aunt!" The organ grinder hit him over the head with the money and the poor young man has been unconscious ever since. I am depressed to death, for how can I explain to the young man that I am not his aunt?

Respectfully,
Lydia L. Lumpkin.

Dear Miss Lumpkin:

Don't worry, because the you could infer the circumstances. Do not worry any more. Time will tell.

H. H.

Dear Miss Heartsease,

Two years ago next January one day I was passing a drug store and saw a handsome young man selling an elderly red-haired lady with silver locks two pounds of flax seed. I walked into the drug store and asked the young man for a cake of lemon soap. He said, "I'm sorry but my boss has gone to dinner." Now Miss Heartsease I have been pondering over this ever since and have finally reached the conclusion that he must have meant something by this remark. What can I do to show him that I love him in spite of my silence?

Hydrophobically,

K. Nine.

Dear "K",

I do not think this young man deserves your friendship and would continue to treat him with silent contempt.

The news of the day again reminds us that the Hollywood colony is composed to a large extent of high-livers and low-lifers.

Senate and House today reconvene and announce themselves ready for business. To which an impatient country may well reply, "We heard you the first time."

"Coolidge Shakes Hands With 4,000 Persons," says a headline. Which is no light undertaking for a man who has his fingers crossed.

As a political year, 1924 started off in brilliant form—dry enough to suit the dries and wet enough to please the wets.

THE IDEAL COLLEGE PAPER

True Test is in General Spirit it Portrays.

The subject, The Ideal College Paper, is broad, but is receiving the hopeful thought of numbers of students in college here and elsewhere. These students are concerned with the problem, how to make their college paper better and more representative of the school life. The fact is, however, that there are too few students concerned over this problem.

It is difficult to define what constitutes an ideal college paper, for there seems to be in such a publication an abstract quality—one that is difficult to express. It seems to me that there are three phases of the subject which we might discuss with profit; the material used in the paper, the organization, and the general spirit reflected therein.

In discussing the material for the paper, we first think of the scope. Is it broad enough to include the various activities of the school? Will it make a paper that will be in after days a true picture of the best life of the college as we shall love to remember that life? Certainly this material should include the school news,—what has happened of general interest. Then, too, there are the editorials. Do they freely express the thought of the students? Are they of real value? All college students, practically, are interested in athletics. They want their victories, and defeats, too, written up in their school paper, so that in after days on re-reading the paper, they will have pleasant memories of the spirit shown by their Alma Mater. Can you imagine a school paper without jokes? Certainly not! Jokes should not be 1 skimp and should give a distinctive flavor to the school paper. It should be a matter of pride that this flavor be delicate rather than coarse, for the quality of humor one enjoys is a very sure index of refinement, or its lack. All of the material should, of course, be written in a vivid and pleasing manner—the ideal college paper is worthy of being kept.

A few words, only, are necessary as to the organization of the school paper. As a rule, the paper should have certain sections in it devoted to particular kinds of material; viz., articles of general interest on the front page, special columns rigidly reserved for the news notes, alumnae interests, athletics, jokes, etc., respectively. When this plan is carried into execution, the readers become accustomed to looking to a certain part of the paper for particular news, and their college paper becomes doubly endeared to them through its familiar aspect.

The true test of a college paper lies in the general spirit it portrays. A college is judged by its paper—by the spirit shown therein. How may a school have an ideal paper without having the help of every student? In this respect, a school paper should be democratic—everybody's paper. It is often said that the staff has to do most of the editing. This is true in many instances. A school cannot hope to have an ideal paper unless it has the co-operation of every student. If it fails in this, the paper cannot possibly reflect the spirit of the school. If the paper is to be a true story of school life, then everyone must do her bit—must support the staff, must make the staff's cause her own, must make the cause an ideal supreme.

"It's not the individual
Nor the school as a whole,
But the everlasting team work,
Of every single soul."

—(Adapted from Rudyard Kipling.)

COLLEGE CUT OUTS

"Where there's a will there's a way." Several Chinese students at Columbia University have been making their expenses by teaching "Mah Jongg."

A number of colleges, including Smith and the University of California, have installed a community chest. This is a sum of money raised by subscription among the students and faculty which will meet all the claims of charity that may arise.

Thirty-one per cent of the students at Johns-Hopkins are actively engaged in fall athletics. Lacrosse is the most popular sport, football ranks second and track third.

Harvard has a 15-year-old student while Princeton has a 12-year-old entrant. Columbia wins with an 11-year-old prodigy who speaks 12 languages.

An average of seventy-five is required of all students at West Virginia for graduation, according to a new faculty ruling. Seventy is the passing mark, but the average must be seventy-five for the four years.

JOAN SPEAKS

Dear Rotunda:

Since a teacher is a model for the pupils whom she teaches.

Don't you think she'd find it suitable to practice what she preaches?

For to guide them in such matters as the noble art of dress.

She should show by her example on what points to fix the stress.

Of the world of latest fashion she should claim to have some knowledge.

But she couldn't gain an audience by dressing as in college.

For the earrings that she dangles from her rosy little ears.

Do not suit the Indian sweater that the student teacher wears.

All the advertisements rave about the schoolgirl's fair complexion.

But the girl herself is struggling hard to keep it from detection;

For she smudges dabs of orange rouge beneath each pencilled eye.

With a disregard of Nature's laws That makes poor Nature sigh.

Now I ask you, dear Rotunda, if you have an explanation.

My temperament is French, you know, and boils with aggravation.

To see the combinations that these silly students try.

Such is ignorance of every rule of art and harmony.

Can it be they know no better? Have they never learned before.

That the way a person dresses is becoming more and more.

An index to the public that person's smart-logic?

Or is it dear Rotunda that these students do not care?

Joan.

MONDAY AND TUESDAY—MAE MURRAY in "FASCINATION," A BIG SUPER SPECIAL PRODUCTION. The story of what happened to DoLores De Lisa—a girl who dared display her beauty in the most dangerous resort of Madrid. An intriguing romance of Yankee pep and Spanish passion, showing how a young girl sought freedom and found adventure. THIS IS A GREAT PICTURE with stunning sets, gorgeous gowns, exciting experiences, with a love story of languorous Spain. In Spain they play the game of love for keeps. "Fascination" concerns what happened to a girl who didn't fully realize that. REMEMBER THIS IS A BIG SPECIAL PRODUCTION. MATINEE MONDAY AT 4 O'CLOCK. Pathe News Monday and 5th episode of HAUNTED VALLEY, TUESDAY.

WEDNESDAY—CHARLES JONES in "SECOND HAND LOVE." This is a small town romance. The story of a girl in a small town, about whose past nothing is known, and for this reason the gossips get busy. The town's richest man attempts to make her marry him, but the hero spoils his game. A picture that will entertain all. Also AESOP FABLE.

THURSDAY AND FRIDAY—WILLIAM DEMILLE'S SPECIAL PARAMOUNT PICTURE "ONLY 38." With MAY McAVOY, LOIS WILSON, ELLIOTT DEXTER and many others in the cast. Behind her twenty years of suppressed youth. Then at thirty-eight—the prime of life—she breaks the chains that held happiness a prisoner, and lives the youthful life of her dreams. A bright comedy of character, with moments of exquisite tenderness. William DeMille is at his best in this story of a mother whose youthful gaiety shocked her only children. A PICTURE THAT WILL APPEAL TO ALL. Fox News and a GOOD COMEDY Friday.

SATURDAY—LAURETTE TAYLOR in "PEG O' MY HEART." From J. Hartley Manner's play, which has been performed in the theatres of the world more than 15,000 times. The most beloved play of a generation, starring the actress who made Peg famous. A bit of a miss, a bit of a brogue, and a bit of the sunshine of Ireland. A PHOTOPLAY OF JOY AND YOUTH AND LOVE. ALSO 5th episode of "PLUNDER." MATINEE AT FOUR O'CLOCK.

Admission to Normal students 20 cents to each show, two of which are big special pictures.

RECONSTRUCTION WORK HAS BEGUN

Look Not On the Past but On the Future.

Little was it thought a few months ago that the year 1924 would be ushered in with a new problem on the shoulders of those interested in the welfare and development of S. N. S. Much to our delight this burden is being lifted by degrees so to speak and we are on the way to recovery.

The work on the dome has been started and the reception hall will soon resemble the olden days. At present, may be seen peeping from behind the sooty walls, the beautiful bright colors which have been hidden from our sight for so long a time. In a short time the whole of the dome will be washed and then, it will be ready for the touches of paint by which it will be restored to its former beauty.

Already the workmen are tearing down the burned part of the building and soon we will see the new edifice being built in great splendor. The new dining room will not be so limited to accommodate only six hundred students, but will hold approximately one thousand. It is rumored that beneath the dining hall there is to be built and equipped a hall for receptions and dances to entertain the girls during their leisure moments.

THE WIZARD OF OZ

Will Soon Be Presented by Glee Club.

The Glee Club, under the direction of Miss Munoz, will soon present a comic opera called The Wizard of Oz. The opera is founded on the book for children by L. Frank Baum.

Miss Annie Miller Almond will take the part of the Wizard of Oz. Other characters that will be greatly enjoyed are Janie Moore, as the "Tin-Woodman", and Agnes McDuffie, as the "Cowardly Lion".

We are all glad to know that Jane Hunt Martin will be in the opera again this winter. She will take the part of "Dorothy", a little girl caught by a cyclone in Kansas and whirled into the land of Oz.

The play will not only be humorous but very beautiful and spectacular.

FRESHMEN WINNERS SCORE 33 TO 22

The Freshman-Sophomore Basketball series were tied Friday night when the Freshmen won the second game by the score of 33 to 22. The game was very fast and thrilling, the Freshmen getting ahead in the first quarter and keeping the lead throughout the game. The Sophomores played a hard fighting game—the pass work in last quarter deserving special mention. The passing and team work of the Freshmen forwards were excellent, showing real varsity material. Etta Sawyer, Sophomore forward, played an excellent fighting game, making 15 of the 22 points scored by her side. Her work this entire season from every standpoint has been excellent. Every member of both teams played a stellar brand of basketball and Coach Buford won't just have one Varsity this year, but two!

Summary and line-up:

Freshmen	Pos.	Sophomores

"KNIGHTS OF THE GOLDEN FLEECE"

Anyone passing room "A" on last Tuesday would have witnessed the first meeting of the "Knights of the Golden Fleece". The President of the club was interviewed by the Rotunda reporter, but refused to give any statement as to the purpose and cause of the organization. It is a very secretive and select order. However, it must have a worthy purpose. At any rate it serves as a good ad for "Golden Glint".

STUFFY HAS US GUESSING

We wish to commend the foresight or philanthropy of Miss Virginia Wall, who returned to school with two wheel-chairs. When consulted concerning the function of the other chair she maintained a sphinx-like silence. Our conjectures are: (1) that she expects to rival the proverbial mustard seed in growth; (2) that she may be insuring herself against loss by a future fire; (3) that she wishes to relieve the fatigue of the faculty, after the stress of the fall term. We are inclined to accept the last statement, since we beheld our most excellent Miss Spear propelled by Kemp, as chair-boy, a la Atlantic City along our Board-walk.

"TRY-OUT" FOR ROTUNDA STAFF

Applicant Who Makes Greatest Number of Good Write-Ups to be Considered Eligible for Membership.

It has been customary for the members of the Rotunda Staff who were not placed in office by popular vote to be elected by those who were assisted by the outgoing staff. This method is precarious as the ability of the new girls cannot be thoroughly tested before they are made members of the staff. The Rotunda has therefore decided upon the "try-out" system.

News in school divided into types—athletic write-ups, dramatic criticisms, feature articles, jokes, club activities and personals. At a certain time will be notified through this column or otherwise, concerning the place they are to meet for instructions and the news they are to cover. She who makes the best write-up will be considered eligible. Let it be understood that there is no stigma of egoism attached to the applicant. There is no more conceit displayed in trying out for the Rotunda than for the Glee Club. If you think you can do it, come, and if you don't think you can, come any way. We will judge your ability.

NOTICE TO DRAMATIC CLUB GIRLS

The Dramatic Club this year, for the first time in its history, has selected a D. C. Pin for those members desiring to buy one.

Dramatic Club girls, if you haven't ordered one and desire to do so, see Miss Roberta Hodgkins and leave your order with her.

PASSING THE BUCK

How many consciences should hurt at the mere mention of these three words, "Passing the Buck." Every student knows that she waits eagerly for the Rotunda and when it comes she does not hesitate to make criticisms, both good and bad. These bad ones can be stopped!

"How?" Stop them yourself. Get to work and write with a willing heart; whenever you are asked to do so.

How many times have you heard a girl on the staff vainly pleading with some student to write an article? Of course each student always has so much to do that she is nearly dead, and couldn't write an article if her life depended on it. If it is true that all the girls have a great deal of work to do the staff girls are not exceptions to the rule, and it is not fair that we should treat them as if they were wholly and solely responsible for writing everything in the Rotunda.

Remember that it is your paper, and that it is up to you to make it a success.

ARE LITERARY SOCIETIES DYING?

Literary Societies are slowly but surely dying is the attitude this school has had for several years, but especially so this year. For some time interest has been decreasing until the time has come when the societies must live or die; they can no longer go on with the little interest that has been shown.

A short time before the fire members of each of the six Literary Societies in school met with Mr. Grainger and Dr. Jarman to decide the fate of the Literary Societies. After careful thought and discussion it was decided that these old organizations should not end but should take on new life, start all over again. Then came the Fire! (Something else blamed on the poor fire.) Again the Literary Societies seemed to have been forgotten, but in reality many plans were being made.

Many of the Freshmen didn't know that there was such a thing as a Literary Society in school but during the past week their eyes have been opened to the fact that the Farmville Normal School does possess Literary Societies and in a great number according to the many announcements that are being made at all meals as well as in chapel.

The majority of colleges have Literary Societies and Farmville is not going to be one of the minority for the Societies have started out to make good and they are going to prove to the school that they are not dying organizations but living; not only living but progressing.

Last year open membership was tried but proved to be unsuccessful, so Societies have gone back to the old basis and will now have closed forum. Each Society is making plans for the rest of the year. Definite courses of study will be carried through the year and it is believed that there will be revived interests.

Dr. Jarman has promised homes for the Literary Societies in the Student Building and as he says, "Only the best can go into the Student Building", our Literary Societies are going to prove that they are the best.

LITERARY SOCIETY NEWS

At a recent meeting of the Athenian Literary Society the following new officers were elected:

Margaret Davis—President.
Daisy Mitchell—Vice-President.
Elsie Bell—Recording Secretary.
Mabel Cathey—Corresponding Secretary.

Mabel Edwards—Treasurer.

Doris Fletcher—Reporter.

Miss Florence Buford, an ex-president of the society, was present. Among the plans suggested concerning the work of the society are a definite course of study, a closed society, competition with other societies and a regular time for meeting. The prospects for the Athenians are getting brighter.

It requires greater virtues to support good than bad fortune.

INDIANAPOLIS CONVENTION

How the World Seems to Youth.

The seven thousand students and young missionaries who convened at Indianapolis had an opportunity that youth almost never before obtained. They came not for a sport contest or a fraternity gathering but for a religious conference. There would have been nothing to condemn if they had come for either of the first named purposes but the fact that they came for the latter demonstrates the fallacy of the idea that there is a religious decline in American educational institutions. The Student Volunteer Movement designed to forward missionary effort in behalf of Christianity, would not have attracted young men and women if such were the case. Religion to them is moving and vital, something not only to be talked about but something to be applied to existence. These students could express to the world the opinions of a great group of thinking people who average less than 25 years of age. They proposed to declare some opinions of their own and did so. Their speaking their collective minds upon things they set first in public concern will carry us beyond all precedent in English speaking countries.

The topics before the convention offered at least all needful space for youthful liberty of flight. "International problems and the Christian way of life" holds more opportunity to say things than 7,000 students could ever exhaust. The topic of "Racial Relations" permits almost as much to be said. That of "Economic problems as related to the Christian ideal", has filled libraries. All these matters may seem stale to the tired heads of thirty and forty years and upward, but youth, coming freshly upon them finds them as new as the sixty-eighth Congress, pungent and the radio—and as thrilling.

The fourth topic, which relates to youth itself and its part in a renaissance of the world, strikes, not only the young people but many old ones, as new. We have had word of what these students, the nation's incoming human re-enforcement or part of it, feel, believe and want. These opinions may startle the rest of us in some respects—it will deserve heed as a keen set of first impressions. In individual life we guard against first impressions to some degree, but we do not ignore them. Society has long ignored its collective first impressions, though formed, perhaps soon to be abandoned, by that youthful, ever-changing fringe of the great family just as it begins to reflect. When we can once say "Youth thinks thus!" we can give that important fact its place in the making up of the general mind.

The trap-door spider constructs a trap-door which closes by gravitation, the edge being especially weighted to close the door automatically when the spider goes in or out.

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer, and these will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matters should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of their copies of The Rotunda will be appreciated.

Profitable Use of Leisure Time.

Frequently we are asked to give our opinions on certain world discussed problems. Frequently we answer that we have no such opinions on the subject for we never get time to read the newspapers or even take any outdoor exercise because there are always so many lessons to prepare. Do we stop to think how much leisure time we do have?

What a number of us spend hours in parading up and down Main Street, thronging the soda fountains, having "hanging-out" places so to speak. On-lookers could justly say that we seem to have no purpose in life but to show ourselves off to the public. Even the most frivolous minded would resent such an accusation. Yet, do you realize you are ruining your own reputation as well as the reputation of your school?

Just think of the many beneficial things we might do instead of wasting our time in such a fashion. Of course, there is a time for everything, recreation as well as work. However, the time available for recreation might be spent in many profitable ways. Why not make a new-term resolution to spend a certain amount of our time in reading newspapers and current magazines every day, and a certain amount for hiking or some other form of outdoor exercise instead of loafing downtown. We should then work with an ultimate aim in view—that of becoming better fitted for the career which we are to follow. Will any lasting good result from the time spent "loafing" downtown? It is not likely. So let's turn over a new leaf as we begin our new term and try to cultivate a more serious attitude towards our life here in school.

Have You the Best System of Election?

Is the Student Council more important than the Y. W. C. A.? And the Y. W. of greater benefit to the school than the Rotunda? That seems to be the opinion of those powers who arrange elections, at any rate. Our present system is as follows: officers for the Student Council are nominated and elected; officers for the Cabinet are nominated and elected; members of the Rotunda Staff are nominated and elected; officers for the Athletic Council are nominated and elected.

Our system is poor. In the first place, the interest of the student body wanes with such a concentrated rush of elections. Practically the whole student body comes to the first, approximately half to the second, and possibly a quarter to the third and fourth. Is this popular elections? In the second place, there is a possibility that a girl needed for a major office not included in the first election may be taken for one of the initial minor offices simply because she is "a good girl."

We propose a change in our manner of election. Why not have one ticket for our first election on which is printed the names of two contestants for each of the major offices—Student Council president, Y. W. president, Rotunda editor and Athletic Council president. After that would come the election (on one ticket) of the sub-officers of the organizations. Our present method is fair to neither students nor to officers. Change it!

Dear Somebody:

Kindly call your student body's attention, by printing this letter in your paper, to the fact that the Carolina Boll Weevil is to publish a girl's number, known as the "Feminine Fantasy Number."

Contributions, both art and literature, will be accepted only from girls attending southern girls' schools and colleges. All art work should be done in India ink on regular drawing paper. Cover should also be done in black and white only. The literary work can be of any nature, poetry, prose, short jokes, very short stories, etc. All material must be in our hands by February 10th.

Prizes awarded will be as follows: To the girl's school having the greatest amount of work published, the Boll Weevil will award a silver loving cup; to the girl submitting the best piece of art work, and to the girl submitting the best piece of literary work, the Boll Weevil will give sold gold Boll Weevil charms.

We thank you for any publicity you can give this, and remain,

Sincerely yours,

The Carolina Boll Weevil, Inc.

AT THE EACO THEATRE

Week—January 21st-26th.

MONDAY AND TUESDAY—LEATRICE JOY, NITA NALDI and a special supporting cast in the EXQUISITE NEW PARAMOUNT SPECIAL PRODUCTION, "YOU CAN'T FOOL YOUR WIFE." No, Sir! It simply can't be done! Here's a whizzbang of a picture. With a story clipped from the Pages of Life—amazingly human, vigorously truthful—and, above all, abundantly entertaining. ONE OF THE REALLY BIG PICTURES OF THE YEAR. Produced lavishly by the man who made "The Sheik." With one of the greatest casts ever assembled. You can't fool yourself by seeing this magnificent production. It is the last word in matrimonial pictures. MATINEE MONDAY AT 4.15. PATHE NEWS MONDAY, AND 6TH EPISODE OF HAUNTED VALLEY TUESDAY. HERE IS A CHANCE TO SEE A SUPER SPECIAL AT REGULAR ADMISSION PRICES.

WEDNESDAY—TOM MIX in "STEPPING FAST." Here is a melodrama that will sure please you, if you like thrilling action that is fast all the way through. The hero's part in this picture is such as will delight the average picturegoer, particularly the admirers of Tom Mix. THIS IS AN UNUSUALLY GOOD Mix picture. Also AESOP FABLE.

THURSDAY AND FRIDAY—"THE EXITERS" with BEBE DANIELS and ANTONIO MORENO, another special PARAMOUNT PRODUCTION. Clear the way! Bebe's coming! Scouting for thrills—raising the very Dickens—breaking all records for speed and daring! Here's melodrama on flying wings. Scorching land, and sea and sky with its teaming thrills and rapid romance. Bebe Daniels and Tony Moreno as a pair of thrill seekers—flashing through breathless adventure to each other's arms. It's a swift melodrama that will keep you on edge from first to last. Admission to S. N. S. girls, 25 cents.

SATURDAY—"TRIFLING WOMEN," ANOTHER BIG SUPER SPECIAL PRODUCTION, enacted by a wonderful cast. The production of this picture is superb and practically faultless. A photoplay of rare beauty and dramatic force, written, adapted and directed by the maker of "The Four Horsemen." An enchanting siren in a terrific tale of love, hate and revenge. DO NOT FAIL TO SEE THIS PICTURE. Also 6th episode of PLUNDER. MATINEE AT 4 O'CLOCK.

Admission to each show except Thursday and Friday, 20 cents.

MOVING PICTURE BENEFIT FOR STUDENT BUILDING

To motion picture theatregoers who have seen "The Sheik," "Burning Sands," "Ebb Tide" and "Java Head"—all George Melford productions for Paramount—the announcement that Mr. Melford has another delightful picture production to his credit, will be a source of pleasure. This is "You Can't Fool Your Wife" in which Leatrice Joy, Lewis Stone, Nita Naldi and Pauline Garon are the featured players. A great story, superbly directed by a master craftsman, ably portrayed by picked screen artists, splendidly mounted and photographed, "You Can't Fool Your Wife" is an attraction that will enthrall motion picture fans.

Dr. Whitaker is generously giving the proceeds of the matinee and evening performances on Tuesday, January 22, to the Farmville Alumnae Chapter for their Student Building Fund. The tickets are 25 cents for students, and will be sold in the Business Office.

THE MYSTERY IS SOLVED

Everybody wants to know why our Joan has been moved from her spot in the center of the Reception Hall, and why that spot has been roped off. A reporter of the Rotunda staff was finally successful in inveigling an authoritative person into confessing that there is a cat fight scheduled for a Saturday night in the very near future. However, the contestants have yet to be chosen. Anyone who has a pet feline and thinks it can "lick" every other cat is earnestly requested to notify the Home Department.

ODDS AND ENDS

THE EASY ROAD

Hendrik Willem Van Loon took a very dry subject, history, and wrote about it so interestingly that in two years the American people have paid one and a half million dollars to read his books.

Van Loon thinks his books are popular because they are to the point instead of cluttered up with a mass of words and dates. He learned to write briefly when he was a newspaper correspondent cabling news from Russia at a dollar a word. It cost so much that brevity was compulsory.

Van Loon, now 41, was born in Holland. He is highly educated, a college professor. But, due to his foreign birth and training, he doesn't handle English as easily as the average American. Says he: "I have to write very simply in order to make my meaning intelligible to myself."

Twenty years ago a man would have been called insane if he had claimed that a book of routine history could be written so it would outsell the top-notchers of fiction. History, until a few years back, was not a popular subject. Obviously, the reason for this was that history had never been written simply and attractively. People are no hungrier for knowledge than in the past. They are reading history because it is being dished up so it can be grasped quickly and without puckering the forehead and reading sentences twice. The same is being done with the great sciences, by such men as Prof. J. Arthur Thomson, whose "Outline of Science" is as fascinating as Jules Verne. Fabre, the Frenchman, started the epidemic of popularization of knowledge, by his books about insect life.

We would like to see a hundred men like Van Loon, Thomson and Fabre turned loose on the job of re-writing most of the textbooks used in schools.

Boston preacher says church is a habit. Well, it's a good habit. Try it, for goodness sake.

Statistics show 45,093,982 bunches of bananas sold last year. Popular song writers are big liars.

!!! And Henry was a bit too slow.
And Edward much too fast,
And Billy had a way with him
That was too good to last.
Leander was a perfect stick,
And Stanley was a miser,
And Clarence would have made a hit
Had he been somewhat wiser.
John did not like to take me out,
And Oswald was a bore,
And Herbert took to chewing gum,
And Jimmy paced the floor,
Sam was a strong and silent man,
And Joe tried cave-man stuff.
But Montague missed out because
He was not bold enough.
Tom's taste in chocolates was vile
Roy never sent me flowers.
And Harold talked and talked into
The dismal wee sma' hours;
And Gordon liked the "girly" shows
Ted danced—but on my feet;
And Percy was too trig and trim,
While Jack was very neat.
Fred's hair was terribly unkempt,
Clem's terribly in curl—
And so you have the reason why
I'm still a bachelor girl.

AN INTERNATIONAL TONGUE

The amazing development of radio broadcasting seems likely to have at least one unexpected but desirable result: it is giving huge impetus to the movement for an international language, which has so long languished in the hands of a few amiable fanatics. The progress of the past few months indicates that we are not far from achieving world-wide broadcasting from a single station; and already, any moderately powerful transmitting apparatus in Europe is heard by persons speaking half a dozen tongues. Hence the demand that radio speeches should be delivered in a language which shall be common to all users of radio apparatus. Whether this shall be Esperanto, Ido, Volapuk, modified English or something else, remains to be seen. The important fact is that mechanical progress, as usual, is having an effect on social relations more far-reaching and rapid than all the efforts of well-meaning reformers.

A LAMENT THE NIGHT BEFORE TEST

I wonder if you ever do as I do,
And put off your work day by day,
'Til the night before test and then do your best,
By cramming to make up for play.
I'm behind with my notes; I'll work like the "goats"
Of a club ere I finish tonight;
I must first read the text and there comes next,
A reference to set some points right.
Now every one sees, with conditions like these,
The question that I now must raise
Is: How shall I pass in even one class,
If I stay here the rest of my days?
My problem I solved, for I have resolved
Each day all my work to prepare;
Then test, though it be, it will not worry me;
I'll know it, so why should I care?

Y. W. C. A. NEWS

The Mission Study Classes held their first meeting Tuesday night, January 8, 1924. The attendance was large at each class, making a good beginning which it is hoped will continue.

Miss Wilhelmina London, our Y. W. C. A. General Secretary is at present ill at the Terrace Springs Sanatorium, Richmond, Virginia. It is hoped that she will soon recover and be able to resume her work in school.

The S. N. S. delegates returned from the Student Volunteer Convention with very enthusiastic reports of Indianapolis. The Convention was very successful, and several interesting talks have been made at Prayers concerning the questions discussed. Agnes McDuffie spoke Wednesday evening, Willie Bellmy, Thursday, Mary Maupin, Saturday and Elsie Bell, Monday. These interesting talks were enjoyed by all.

AN EVENING PRAYER

Father in Heaven, on Thee I call,
Do not, I pray Thee, suffer me to fall.
O God, look down on me and smile,
And let me worship Thee the while.

Helpful I want always to be,
Even when my heart seems cold toward Thee.

To those who love me and are true,
Give wilt Thou more than is their due.

Help all Thy children so to live,
That service to others we may give.

Now as this day draws to a close,
Steep mind and body in repose.

ATHLETIC NEWS

The Varsity Squad for the season 1924 is as follows: Anna Belle Treacle, Elsie Bell, Mildred Hall, Etta Sawyer, Henrietta Hall, Rosabelle Walton, Olive Smith, Julia Reid, Celeste Whaley, Thelma Hastings, Eva McKenny, Edna Hall, Orline White, Annie Milan, Lucille Waddill, Virginia Waddill, Elizabeth Crute, Virginia Vincent, Madeline Gary, and Grace Trittipoe.

At the last meeting of the squad last year Anna Belle Treacle was elected captain and Mildred Hall manager of the 1924 Varsity.

ELECTION OF GLEE CLUB OFFICERS

At a recent meeting of the Glee Club, Miss Annie Miller Almond was elected Vice-President, filling the place of Miss Ethel Warthen, who did not return to school this year.

Misses Kitty Morgan and Cornelia Dickinson were elected as members of the Standard Committee.

He—"Would you scream if I kissed you, little girl?"

She—"Little girls should be seen and not heard."

Mary—"H, hum! There's nothing new under the sun."

Jack—"No, and there's also a lot of old stuff pulled off under the moon."

Prof.—"Do you know Lincoln's Gettysburg Address?"

Student—"Why, he lived in Washington, Sir."

VOLUME IV. No. 1415

FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA

JANUARY 26, 1924

FRESHMEN STAFF FOR "ROTUNDA"

Freshmen Given First of Class
Issues This Year.

At the regular meeting of the Freshman Class, Louise Jones said that it was customary for each class to "get out" one issue of the Rotunda. This year the Freshmen were given the first chance. In order to do this the following staff was elected:

Louise Jones—Editor-in-Chief.
Edith Cornwell—Assistant Editor.
Helen Crisman and Madeline McMurdo—Literary Editors.
Lucy Haile Overbey—Joke Editor.
Louise then asked for suggestions for the class flower. The "White Killarney" rose was chosen.

There was a very heated discussion over the class motto which as yet has not been selected.

MARIA CASLOVA

And Her Miniature Symphony Entertain Large Audience.

The sixth number of the Lyceum course was given in the S. N. S. Auditorium on January 15, 1924 by Maria Caslova and her miniature Symphony Orchestra.

Those who were so fortunate as to be in the audience enjoyed a rare treat. The company consisted of three violinists, a cellist, a flutist and a pianist. Each of the six musicians was unusually talented and displayed excellent technique. Owing to a series of mishaps the music of the company did not come in time for the concert. The selections, although not those originally planned for the occasion, were none the less well selected and rendered.

AMONG THE "FOUR HUNDRED"

On Friday night, January 8, Miss Miriam Robinson was hostess at a delightful birthday party, at the home of Mrs. White.

Miss Frances Montague spent the week-end with her sister, Miss Katherine Montague.

Miss Helen Hodges has returned to school, after a visit of several days at her home.

Misses Madeline McMurdo and Agnes Teel spent last week-end at their homes in Charlottesville.

We are glad to have Miss Buford back with us. She has recently returned from Richmond, where she was called by the illness of her mother.

The members of the Freshman Class have organized a French Circle (Le Cercle Francais). The following officers were elected:

Evelyn Beekham—Presidente.
Virginia Jordan—Vice-Presidente.
Alice Carter—Secretaria-Tesoro.

THRIFT WEEK OBSERVED

Program Presented in Chapel
by Second Year High School.

Due to the fact that the week beginning January 17 was Thrift Week and also that Benjamin Franklin was born on that day, the Second Year High School presented a very interesting program in the auditorium at chapel hour. The first speaker was Irving Armstrong. She presented the subject and discussed the slogan—"For Success and Happiness."

Franklin's position in the building of our nation was discussed by Mae Marshall. She also gave several interesting facts about his life that proved his eminence in the political world of his day.

The last speaker was Ruth Paulette, who characterized Franklin as a Business Man. The program was interesting and well presented. Then let's "get thrift, and keep it, doggone it, don't lose it!"

LETTERS, OH MY!

"What in the world am I going to say to my grandmother in my letter to her?" How many times have we heard this cry in the last week? Then, "I haven't even got a brother so how in the world do I know what to say to one?" Between bells comes the cry, "Loan me a sheet of writing paper, I've written my letters three times and have them all to copy over. If this isn't the biggest nuisance, I just hate to write letters anyway, let alone for inspection. Oh! pshaw, my pen's gone dry, I'll never get through, if I had to be this particular with every letter I'd never write any." When the woe-begone girl stops raving, someone will ask in a terrified voice, "What's the matter, can I help you any?" The poor, distracted child then has to explain that she is simply writing letters as a part of her English work and that she has had a terrible time, hasn't a brother and "the very idea of trying to write to one."

Never mind girls you'll profit by it and thank your profs. later on. Don't let a thing like letter writing spoil your sweet disposition; your letters won't be published, (although we'd like mighty well to have them for the Rotunda).

JUNIOR MEETING

And again the College Juniors have had to fill the office of Secretary and Treasurer, left vacant, this time, by Audrey Chewning's accepting a position as teacher. Frances Barksdale has been elected to fill the vacancy and we're sure that she'll collect all the money we owe.

The saying is "that things always happen in threes," so Frances you're the lucky, or unlucky (?) third. Here's to you. Please, let's not have to put in a call for a fourth.

Senior: "Gee, but it's cold, I'm chilled to the bone."

Fresh: "Why don't you wear a hat?"

WELL KNOWN JOURNAL- IST AND STATESMAN

Addresses Normal School Girls.

Dr. Hamilton Holt, the distinguished author, lecturer, and great friend of humanity, spoke to a large and enthusiastic audience in the Normal School Auditorium Friday night.

The audience was immediately impressed with the wonderful personality of Dr. Holt and as he began to speak one knew he held the entire attention of his audience.

The subject of Dr. Holt's lectures was "The Accomplishments of the League of Nations." He explained in detail the procedure he was forced to go through in order to gain admission to the conference and by means of his expressive language and compelling personality he carried his audience straight with him. In an amusing manner he described to us the room in which the conference was held, the seating and apparel of the delegates and compared them to "a lot of crows in a gilded cage."

He discussed the purpose, accomplishments of the League of Nations and the service rendered to different nations. Dr. Holt said that there was one great argument against our entering the League now. Our entrance into the League will be an admission that we have been wrong for the past few years. On the other hand if we do, our boys whose blood reddened the fields of France will not have been shed in vain.

We consider ourselves unusually fortunate in procuring such an eminent speaker, so well versed in the affairs of the world today.

"MOLLIE'S AUNT" COMING

Will Be Taught to Inhale, Drink Bevo and Drive Sixty Miles an Hour.

The Freshman Class has planned a most delightful surprise for the student body. This surprise is to be in the form of a huge "comedy of errors"—just see the box of pickles sent Mollie, the flapper, by Fred, the pickle king's son. Come and see Pop "pivot" and Chubby borrow magazines from the parson around the corner. And Seryphiny Peasody will afford a thousand chuckles for a nickle. Watch Auntie learn to ride sixty miles an hour in an automobile and learn to inhale and drink bevo. It's really rich. The surprise, however, for you will be how well this show is put across. It's great. Don't miss it. You'll regret it, if you do.

LOST AND FOUND

Found: One miniature green gold fountain pen. Owner may obtain same by applying at the Rotunda Office any day after chapel.

That raiment is attractive by reason of picturesqueness—(S'cute dress).

I shall not escape from proceeding—(Ain't going to miss).

MISS FLORENCE D. BUFORD.

To Miss Florence D. Buford, our beloved honorary member, this issue of the Rotunda is dedicated in love and admiration for her, and in appreciation of her interest in behalf of the Freshman Class.

FRESHMAN SPIRIT NOT THE SPIRIT OF ROBERT DAMPENED E. LEE

By Defeat at Hands of Sophs.

Birthday of Great Man Subject for Inspiring Talk in Chapel.

The championship interclass basketball game was played in the Armory Wednesday night, January 16. The "Four Hundred" were as verdant and "peppy" as ever and backed their team gloriously to the finish. At the end of the first quarter the score was 8-8. Both sides went wild with exultation. The "Reds" however put the game on ice, the final score being 28-23.

The line-up:
Freshmen Pos. Sophomores
McKenny, E. F. Sawyer
Waddill, V. P. Hall, H.
Hall, E. C. Whaley
White, S. C. Walton
Waddill, L. G. Hall, M.
Gardner, G. Smith

Substitutions: Vincent for White, McKenny for Vincent, Milan for McKenny, Gary for McKenny, Tritippe for Waddill; Hastings for Smith, Day for H. Hall.

Referee: Levy, Farmville.
Umpire: Foster, Farmville.

A man was arrested on West for shooting a rooster. Here, we consider it a mark of honor for a girl to be a good foul shot.

As January 19 was Robert E. Lee's birthday it was very appropriate that on Friday at Chapel there was a special program celebrating that event.

It was very fitting also that his favorite song "How Firm a Foundation" was sung. A portion of the fifth chapter of Matthew, which he often read, was read by Mr. Rankin. Mr. Grainger gave a talk on this wonderful man. He described the Stone Mountain Memorial to the Confederacy in which the central face is Lee, looking forward and upward. This wonderful work of art will stand forever as an inspiration to the world. That Lee was truly a successful failure was shown by the fact that he refused to accept the generalship on the Federal side when he knew that the Confederacy had no chance in the world, saying "I will sheathe my sword and hope to never draw it again except to protect my home."

Mr. Grainger said that the spirit of Robert E. Lee is embodied here at S. N. S. and that this same spirit is embodied in the spirit of Joan of Arc who sits listening to the voices which led her on.

Are You Afflicted With Boredom?

If you want to live in the kind of school
Like the kind of a school you like,
You needn't slip your clothes in a grip
And start on a long, long hike,
For you can find what you left behind,
For there's not here that's really new;
It's a knockout yourself when you knock your school
For it isn't your school—it's you.

Do you suffer with ennui? Really it's only a waste of time, life is too short and has too many bright spots in store for us to be bored.

But you are an exception to the rule. We're all like that at times but there are some unfortunate who are afflicted with the dread malady to such an extent that they bore not only themselves but others, too.

Do we ever stop to think that we are sounding the depths of our mentality when we so ruthlessly advocate our feelings of boredom? Everything is worth while so why get in the habit of being bored? Are you in favor of using the trite expression "I'm bored to tears" as a broadcasting station that you have "rooms to let?"

Get all that you can get out of life, but remember that we only get out of it in proportion to what we put in it.

Life and worth living?
Yes, with each part of us—
Hurt of us, help of us, hope of us, heart of us,
Life is worth living.
Ah! with the whole of us,
Will of us, brain of us, senses and soul of us,
Is life worth living?
Aye, with the best of us,
Heights of us, depths of us,—
Life is the test of us!

THE WEARIN' OF THE GREEN "AN EGYPTIAN FREEZE" HIT OF THE SEASON

Oh, Tolly dear, and did you hear the news that's going round?

The Seniors say our colors now have surely been put down.

The final game has now been won, that's paddy to be sure.

Still our athletes will make us proud to spread on plenty green.

I met with an alumnus and she took me by the hand.

And she said, "How's your old Normal School and how does she stand?"

You should have been here one bright day a verdant sight was seen.

From hundred freshmen all arrived in their leoparded caps of green.

And it became the game's best won your sport seems to be.

And you look at your leoparded cap and heave a little sigh.

Just take that mean mackerel out your face and wear a little pride.

For never hear O. T. (Tolly dear) there's a leoparded cap, dear.

"When he can keep the blades of green from his face, then he's green."

And when the leopards in numbers their color dare not show."

How I will change the way I wear my leoparded cap.

But all the time please read the Rotunda and you'll see.

"An Egyptian Freeze," presented by Miss Ann Conway and an excellent cast is unanimously proclaimed one of the year's greatest successes. The drama centers around the historic romance of Mark Antony and Cleopatra. Shaw declares his "Antony and Cleopatra" "better than Shakespeare" and we declare Miss Conway's better than Shaw's.

The audience was spellbound throughout the performance, catching its breath when the raised curtain displayed Cleopatra in all her glory, attended by her Nubian slave, and losing its breath as the lowered curtain hid the lovers adhering to each other even as the fly to its Tanglefoot. The play was a true portrayal of history and an excellent spelling exhibition. It began with Egypt's queen enchanting the Adonis-like Roman and followed their romance through to the tragic death of both. The climax was reached when the fair enchantress cried in impassioned tones, "Alas, I am dying, O, B. V. D." Our hearts thrill yet at the memory of those accents.

Miss Emily Crockett, of Farmville, Va., and Miss Mary A. Jones, of Farmville, Va., gave a beautiful interpretation of the part. Miss Catherine, of Farmville, Va., also participated.

the reputations of such celebrities as Jo Jefferson, Henry Irving, Fritz Leiber and Sothorn. The stolidity and muscular control of Miss Nell McArville as the Nubian slave are worthy of mention, while the fall and death of Miss Louise Jones in the role of messenger is worthy of comparison with the famous Mantell. As for the Roman army, it brought tears to even our cynical eyes with its chorus-dance.

"An-to-ny, An-to-ny, Antony
He su-i-ci-i-ded
An-to-ny, An-to-ny, Antony
He turned up his toes."

FRIENDS! STUDENTS! LEND ME YOUR EARS

Once again Paul Revere is revealed in modern times. I am broadcasting a very important notice. I know by this time you are consumed by curiosity and your inquiring nature is getting the best of you. "What has happened?" you say. Well, never mind; I will get to the point after a while.

AT THE EACO THEATRE

Week—January 28th-February 2nd

MONDAY, TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY—THE SHANNON PLAYERS, with their feature orchestra that made such a splendid impression here last season, will return to the EACO THEATRE these THREE NIGHTS. They will present A NEW PLAY EACH NIGHT. The opening play, on MONDAY NIGHT, will be "A RECIPE IN FULL," a New York success. It tells a pretty story and is brim full of comedy from start to finish. On THURSDAY NIGHT "POLLYANNA" will be offered. TO MOST OF YOU THIS COMPANY NEEDS NO INTRODUCTION. TO THOSE WHO DO NOT KNOW THEM, WE CAN STATE THIS IS A VERY HIGH CLASS STOCK COMPANY, AND THEY HAVE AN EXCELLENT ORCHESTRA WITH THEM. ADMISSION 85 CENTS, INCLUDING TAX. ALL SEATS RESERVED, AND ALL TICKETS ON SALE AT SHANNON'S BAKERY. DO NOT WAIT UNTIL SHOW NIGHT TO GET YOUR TICKETS. THIS IS A REAL TREAT FOR FARMVILLE.

THURSDAY—JACK HOLL and a big supporting cast, in the Paramount picture, "A GENTLEMAN OF LEISURE." You've never seen anything funnier or more exciting than this comedy drama about an adventurous young clubman who turns burglar on a wager, and wins the bet and a beautiful girl to boot. See it and have a spasm. Also Fox News. S. N. S. students, admission 20 cents.

FRIDAY—THOMAS MEIGHAN, LILA LEE and a great cast, in THE SPECIAL PARAMOUNT PICTURE, "THE NEER DO WELL" from the story by Rex Beach. Here you have all the tense moments, all the rich romance, all the splendid heart interest of ALL THE MEIGHAN PICTURES—IN ONE GLORIOUS PRODUCTION. ALSO A GOOD COMEDY. Admission to Normal girls getting tickets at school, 25 cents.

SATURDAY—"MISSING HUSBANDS" from the great play that ran 443 times in New York; and the critics say the picture is better than the play. This is a magnificent drama of desert passion, richly spectacular and thrilling. See in this story of passion, why there are MISSING HUSBANDS. It is a gem of dramatic intensity. DON'T MISS IT. Also 7th episode of PLUNDER. Admission to S. N. S. girls 20 cents. Matinee at 4 o'clock.

THE RUINED WALLS SPEAK

"It is a good thing," said the crumbling walls, "that we, like daisies won't tell. The interclass athletic contests (to say nothing of Tuesday night's solemn meetings) would be tame, yes even boring compared to the excitement which would prevail at S. N. S. should we suddenly burst forth into intelligible speech.

"The secrets, the joys, the heart-aches!" All these we have not only witnessed but, more shame to us, even aided and abetted the girls in their foolish fun. 'Tis upon us they hang the pictures of their secret passions—a source of inspiration as well as occasional anxiety. We protect them from prying eyes as they take their 'daily dozen', keep secret their hilarious laughter as midnight feasts hold sway and, perhaps noblest of all accomplishments, furnish space for the recording of important events.

"Yes, they are fickle but they are true, too. We have surely had ample opportunity to observe them, analyze the various types, and intimately know these representatives of our modern girls. Why all this useless babble about her audacity, her utter irresponsibility, and—always spoken with a sigh—her departure from the ways of her grandmother. But we shan't bore you with debate on the 'Flapper versus the Clinging Vine.' I do want, however, to say this. These girls do things. We have been silent witnesses as they cleverly contrived forbidden means of enjoyment, as well as watched the earnest preparation put upon their teaching, most serious of all professions. We have seen the girls as they have come and gone with the passing of the years, scheming and devising in every conceivable manner to raise money for the erection of the Student Building. What does this prove about our girls? Let me repeat, these girls can do things.

"On that memorable morning of November 17, alas! Sad day for us, what spirit did the girls show then? The same spirit, the only spirit they have ever shown. As the flames licked their way from room to room, was there panic, screaming, selfish hoarding of prize articles? No, there seemed to be an unwritten law, 'We shall help each other.'

"And, now as our end draws near, just this we say to the girls of S. N. S.: For the oncoming years—good luck, Best wishes, success without end, But in life's long flight, Let memory not slight Dining room walls—once your friend."

WHAT WOULD HAPPEN IF:

1. Miss Munoz didn't have a lemon?
2. Mr. Lear would get a permanent wave?
3. Miss Graham wore French heels?
4. We were allowed to cut all meals?
5. Mr. Bell turned against "evolution"?
6. Miss Mary wore red ear-rings?
7. Miss Russell would lose a notebook?
8. The "Sophs" turned green (with jealousy)?
9. "Black Beauty" went out of existence.
10. The new dishwasher would come!
11. The Student Committee got cam-pus-sed?
12. We didn't have to pay for our orders in the Tea Room?
13. The whole Student Body had a date!
14. Dr. Jarman stopped smiling?

(With apologies to Kipling's "The Ladies.")

We have taken our fun where we found it,
We danced the whole summertime,
In September, we picked our Normals,
And four of the lot were prime.

One was a Normal at Radford,
One was at Harrisonburg laid
And one was down in Fredericksburg town,
And they're all mighty good, 'tis said.

Now I ain't no 'and with the various schools,
For, takin' 'em all along,
You never can tell till you've tried 'em,
And then you are like to be wrong.

In some schools, the style is the thing, girls,
In some it's the blood that runs blue
But in Farmville school, the unfailing rule
Is not this, but "What can you do?"

We were Freshmen at Farmville,
Green and shy to begin,
But we will learn from the Seniors,
For they're as clever as sin.

We don't know 'em much, but we like 'em.
They've helped us along a lot too,
They hold their school dear, from all we can hear
And we learned about Farmville from you.

The spirit of '76 was fine,
And we thought of it late that nite.
So the crowd who were here, while they forced back a tear,
Resolved to stand by and fight.

The "breakin' in" was the worst part,
The teachers were with us, it seemed,
Not one; not two, they were all true blue
And Farmville became what we'd dreamed.

Along in the line of sports one day,
We played a game of ball,
We lost; we won; we lost again
But it didn't matter at all.

It was the sporting blood which counted,
As it does in the game of men,
For its the pride of the school, that Eternal Golden Rule,
An' we learned about Farmville then.

"What are you Freshman working for?"
"Why girls, I thought you knew!"
"We are working for recognition,
And we mean to have it too!"

Yes, we mean to work, and we mean to win
If anybody should ask,
And you won't forget, but remember,
The First Professional Class.

And the end of it's sittin' and dreamin',
And a bright sunny future we see,
So be warned by our example—and we mean to make it ample
And learn about Farmville from me.

WILDCATS vs. MIDGETS

The first game to be played by the Normal School Varsity was a practice game. Great Bridge High School (the championship high school team of the state) tried to get a game with the Normal all of last season but was unable to arrange a suitable date. This year however, an early date was arranged and they played the Normal Varsity January 19. We can readily see why Great Bridge won the state championship last year for never has a small team outwitted and outplayed shown a greater "never say die" spirit, more fight, and more pep on the local court.

It is interesting to note that five of the present Normal Varsity were at one time members on the Great Bridge High School team.

FARMVILLE BOYS PLAY LOS-ING GAME

The town team, which consists of the gay young "cake-eaters" of Farmville, went down to defeat when it played Hampden-Sidney Wednesday night, January 16, in the town Armory. Each team played well and fought in a clean, sportsmanlike way, and excitement prevailed throughout the entire game. Good team work was displayed on the part of both teams, but when the score keeper blew his whistle for the "last call" the score was 20-8 in favor of the "Tigers."

The "Normalites" as well as the Tigers and town people showed their "Co-operation" by yelling and cheering for both teams.

FARMVILLE VARSITY WINS FAST GAME FROM RADFORD

Score 29 to 25! Hard Blow to Radford's Expectations.

Saturday night, January 26, the Farmville and Radford sextettes met in the first game of the season on Radford's court, Farmville winning the fast but rough game,—the score being 29 to 25.

Farmville easily took the lead in the first half when Treackle caged the first ball, and so on went the game. The score standing 13 to 7, Farmville leading at the end of the first half.

Radford came on with a rush at the beginning of the second half, but Farmville rallied and fought with her never fail "Hold 'em Farmville" determination which gave her the game.

The game was fought out in the forward's and guard's sections, the center being too small for play. Farmville guards, Mildred Hall, Edna Hall, and Lucille Waddill played a clean hard game, each one starring, Lucinda Thomas, the star Radford forward, being able to cage only three field goals.

Treackle, Farmville's stellar forward, shot 10 field goals and the Treackle-Hall combination in the last half proved too much for the Radford guards.

Although Farmville's centers could not get in their famous pass work they were ever on the alert, blocking many passes to Radford's forwards.

Summary and line-up:

Farmville	Pos.	Radford
Treackle, A. B. (C.)	F.	Thomas, F. (C)
Sawyer, E.	F.	Herrick
Parsons, C.	C.	Whaley
Walton, C.	C.	Parsons, H.
Hall, M.	G.	Hete
Hall, E.	G.	Pery

Substitutions: H. Parsons for Herrick; Showalter for Parsons; H. Hall for Sawyer; Waddill for E. Hall.
Referee, G. L. Walker; Umpire, James Hoge; Scorekeeper, Sarah Moore; Timekeeper, Mundy.
Time: 15 minute halves.

SNOW AND SOPHOMORE DAY

January 24 dawned gray and cold. January 24, everybody knows, is Sophomore Day. The problem that faced each Sophomore was "Shall I wear red and white, or shall I not?"

If anyone had counted the dots of white seen on the campus and through the halls, the number would be very small compared to those shamelessly forgetful souls clothed in dark, warm frocks. About dinner-time, a shout arose "It's snowing!" Shore 'nuff it was. Then a Soph array in white, said in one of those "I told you so" tones, "I knew it would snow if I put on white." But we don't care. The Twenty-fourth of February is coming and then Sophomores, show your spirit! Let's all wear white—and if it snows, let's not let the snow be the only white around the school.

AN INTERVIEW WITH OUR SOPHOMORE MAN

Dedicatée of Soph Issue Expresses Opinion in Poem

We found our highly esteemed Miss Spear reclining on one of the over-stuffed divans in the Association Room. After several minutes of embarrassing silence, we attempted some leading questions but could only gain one answer, "We shall see, we shall see anon." After a while we succeeded in extracting the fact that she was born in Tyler, Texas, educated in Boston and translated to Virginia and that a list of her scholastic accomplishments may be found in the S. N. S. Catalogue. We informed her that this issue of the Rotunda would belong to the Sophomores and that it was to be dedicated to her. She further enlightened us that she was highly honored, loved us all and expressed her opinion in this poem:

Sophomores.

Quickly through the happy days,
Lo, the Sophomores go.
Sunny looks and winning ways—
Time, pass more slow!
For their charming graces,
And their laughing faces,
Their pure love of beauty,
Their quick joy in duty,
Their clear vision of the right,
Fierce gladness in a good, clean fight—
Oh, Time! All the things that make us love them so,
How we shall miss them when they go!
Edna Norton Spear.

Y. W. C. A. NEWS

We are delighted to have Miss Wilie London with us again after her long illness.

Mrs. W. F. Tidyman entertained the service Committee of the Y. W. C. A. at an oyster supper January 27, 1924.

Dr. Smart, of Emory University, will talk to the Farmville Student Body February 13, 14, and 15 on "Christian Fundamentals."

Miss Katherine Lumpkin, National Student Secretary, will be at S. N. S. from February 18 to 21. She will talk to us about the National Student Council to be held in New York in April.

Clara Thompson has accepted the Chairmanship of the Publicity work for the remainder of the year.

THE REIGN OF TERROR

Epidemic of Trembling Hits S. N. S.

Our beloved Alma Mater has been a rather panicky place this last week or so. It all started when an inebriated gentleman of color attempted an entrance into one of the cottages and since then dozens of thugs, burglars, sneak thieves, second story men, and even murderers have been reported to have attempted entrance to the school, armed with jimmies, bludgeons, revolvers, sandbags and other implements of their profession. Cases of hysteria increased several folds and no one dared seek her couch without having first pushed the bureau in front of the door, locked the windows and placed her favorite letter opener beneath her pillow. Even then security was dubious and every step that sounded along the corridors was listened to with fear and trembling. Frequently more courageous damsels dared to stick their cold creamed visages, crowned by "curlers" out of the doors. The drawing room, inviolable sanctum of studious (?) Sophomores was invaded by a terrified young lady, shrieking, "Oh, there's a man under Virginia Lewis' window throwing up bricks."

Now, however, we are becoming braver and the bureau stays in its place while our open windows enable us to breathe. One looks back upon these harrowing tales of intruders with smiles and says, "Oh well, a little excitement now and then is needed to keep us from becoming fossils."

TRAINING SCHOOL NEWS

On Monday, February 4, The Training School is having a benefit movie at the Eaco Theater. There will be two performances, a matinee and an evening performance. The proceeds will go toward improvements for the Training School. The picture chosen is "An Old Sweetheart of Mine," an adaptation of James Whitcomb Riley's poem. That the picture is both excellent and entertaining is well vouched for.

DELTA SIGMA GIVES BENEFIT DANCE

The Delta Sigma Sorority gave a dance Friday evening, January 25, for the benefit of the Student Building. The music was furnished by Hilton's orchestra. An unusual and attractive form of decoration was carried out in the form of pennants and banners of the various colleges of America. Big pennants, little pennants, and middle sized pennants were hung at all angles and formed all sorts of contortions. The dance, as well as being a source of funds for the Student Building was a source of amusement and enjoyment for the girls and members of the Faculty.

Six couples competed for the honor of the best dancers, but Mary Friend and Nancy Lyne were selected as the best judges. Those noble victors then gave the audience an exhibition dance.

LITERARY SOCIETY BID NIGHT

New Life Brought to Societies With New Members

Excitement reigned around school on the night of January 21. What was the excitement about? Literary Society bids of course! This was the time agreed upon by the presidents of the six Societies to send bids to new girls.

More interest is shown by everyone now that the closed forum has once more been adopted. Last year open forum was tried for the first time and was a decided failure. No interest was shown, much less excitement, for each girl that desired to be a member of a Literary Society signed up for her preference. In many cases that was all that was done, a girl would write her name down for a Society and that was the end. In numerous cases many girls were enrolled who never attended a meeting. How could interest be stimulated under these conditions? All of this is past now and there is old time spirit shown again.

Invitations to the various Societies were taken around the first part of study hour and from that time until the close of study hour there were groups of girls standing everywhere around the halls and every now and then a voice could be heard to say, "Oh, I hope she does take us," or something similar. Between bells, yells could be heard for "new girls" as one by one the new girls walked into the rooms in which the Society they had accepted was waiting to welcome them.

Parties are being given by the Societies for the new members and from the way these parties are coming off it is believed that Literary Societies are once more going to have a leading place in school.

OUR "HANDY MAN"

We like to give honor to whom honor is due and often praise those whom we see going about doing big things that endure them to our hearts. But there is a man whom we do not see accomplishing tremendous tasks and whom some of us rarely see, but he is nevertheless with us and it is of him we wish to peak. He watches over us from dusk to dawn though we may not be aware of the fact. No night is too cold for him to patrol the campus seeing that everything's all right. Cottage, walk, campus and main building are all safe under his surveillance. He stokes the furnace when it gets too low. He scares away all suspicious lurkers. He escorts us to and from trains at all hours. He carries down our night letters and telegrams. He is with us through fire and flood. He does a thousand small inconspicuous services of which we never hear. But they are little things that count. He has a pleasant word and cheery smile for us all. There is no need to name him. You've guessed that it's "Cousin Tommy"—and we love every button on his coat!

MRS. LEAR MAKES INTERESTING TALK TO TRAVELERS' CLUB

Mrs. J. Merritt Lear delighted the Travelers' Club at a recent meeting with an interesting account of her trip to the Northwest last summer. Various cities in Washington state, Vancouver, and Alaska were points of the itinerary. Most of her time was spent in Bellingham, a city which must have reminded her constantly of Farmville on account of its many hills. It is located on Puget Sound where ships from all over the world ride at anchor. One stands on the quais and counts the multi-colored flags of all nations, known and unknown. Mrs. Lear was much impressed by the size of the trees of the Northwest which, one will remember, is our famous timber section. Another subject of interest was the fish, especially the catching and canning of salmon.

Vancouver was described as being an island dotted stretch of water. In spite of the variety of its population, it is American in its life and customs. Victoria on the other hand is decidedly English. Juno, of the Alaskan towns is very American.

One of the most enjoyable parts of the scenery was the natural wonders of this vast section of our country, whose natural parks with their wealth of unmanufactured curiosities, whose gigantic ranges of rugged mountains, whose serrated sky line and whose rich forests are enough to still the most worldly minded person in the world to silent admiration.

Mrs. Lear placed on display a splendid collection of post cards picturing the various places of interest she had visited. These were eagerly examined and the entire club votes this talk the most interesting of the year.

ALUMNAE NOTES

Miss Grace Smith, of Pittsylvania County, was married last month to Mr. S. S. Reynolds.

Miss Mary D. Pierce has gone from Alexandria, Virginia, where she was city primary supervisor, to Birmingham, Alabama, where she will be primary supervisor for the state.

Among the announcements of new publications in the November number of Teacher's College Record is that of "Pedagogical Prognosis: Predicting the Success of Prospective Teachers," by Grover Thomas Somers. Mr. Somers was at one time in the educational department of the Farmville Normal School, and received some assistance from the faculty in the preparation of his work.

Miss Melania Meagher, of the class of 1922, died recently in New York City, where she was living with her sister, Miss Margaret Meagher.

Miss Mattie W. Davidson, of the class of 1923, died in a Richmond hospital January 23, after an illness of two weeks.

Attitude and the Training School.

The Training School is one of our most maligned institutions. One hears something like this from the girl who is going in, "Oh, how I dread teaching in the Training School! I shall never survive it. Just think of having those awful observers, and if a supervisor should walk in, I should die." After the girl has taught a month her conversation is something like this: "Oh, my children are the sweetest things I ever saw! I just adore every one of them. And Miss So-and-So is so nice! What—Observers? Oh, I don't even know they are in the room!" Then at the end of the term: "How I hate to give up my children. I had so much rather teach than have classes."

It is the truth, too. The Training Room is always damp with tears the last day of the term and enough words are used in farewell addresses to fill a number of the Congressional Record.

Then why is it that the Training School is spoken of with bated breath and in accents of horror? Why do we talk only of how shockingly Johnny behaves, or how hard it is to teach Mary anything? Perhaps it is because we want to appear heroes to our friends. We want them to think that we have survived terrible hardships and retained our sanity and our religion only through our will-power. Therefore we tell them of wading through mud a foot deep, or overcoming dreadful temptation, such as the desire to shake Johnny until his teeth rattle, or of performing wonders at teaching Mary that Richmond really is the capital of Virginia. However strong this desire for self-glory may be we should strive to overcome it. We should remember our duty to the Training School and to those who are coming after us. Would it not be better to win fame by telling how our children adore us, and how our supervisors praised us? Even though a few people should think us conceited at the time, they would learn from experience that we had. Let us then make the Training School an experience to be looked forward to with eagerness, and back upon with satisfaction.

LITERARY SOCIETY NOTES

On Thursday afternoon, January 24, the Athenian Literary Society gave an informal party in the Y. W. C. A. social room to welcome its new members. A short program was given consisting of a song by Marshall Greathead and Elizabeth Paylor and stunts by the new members after which they were sworn in. Numerous games were played and delicious refreshments were served. Soon the merry-makers departed, everyone having had a most enjoyable time.

The Argus Society has initiated twenty-eight new members since bid night. The "new material" is certainly promising and is an incentive to the old members. Come on, old members of the Argus, let's show these new girls we're a live society.

The Jefferson Literary Society held a meeting on January 24, to initiate its new members. Fifteen girls are now wearing the blue and gold ribbons, the colors of the society. A social in honor of the new members is being planned for February 1st.

AT THE EACO THEATRE—Week February 4th-9th.

MONDAY—"AN OLD SWEETHEART OF MINE" from the famous poem by James Whitcomb Riley. Enacted by an excellent cast, headed by Elliott Dexter. A photo version of what has been called America's most popular poem. A story of love trials and rewards. A tale of a love that was true. Also Pathe News. MATINEE AT 4 O'CLOCK. Proceeds from this picture are for benefit of the Training School.

TUESDAY—WILLIAM DESMOND and a special cast in the Metro Classic Picture "FIGHTING BLOOD." A story of action that is packed with excitement. Of red-blooded men and rapid action woven into a delightful romance of a cultured girl who is suddenly introduced to the rawer civilization. Also 7th episode of "HAUNTED VALLEY."

WEDNESDAY—DUSTIN FARNUM in "THE MAN WHO WON." He gambled for money, for women, for horses—and then he gambled for another's honor and happiness. A production which recalls Custer's last stand in Wild Bill's last defense. A smashing story of selfishness and sacrifice. Also AESOP FABLE and 8th episode of "HAUNTED VALLEY."

THURSDAY AND FRIDAY—BETTY COMPSON, CONWAY TEARLE, ANNA Q. NILSSON and a very select cast in the SPECIAL PRODUCTION, "THE RUSTLE OF SILK." FOLKS, HERE IS ONE OF THE FINEST PARAMOUNT PICTURES OF THE WHOLE YEAR. For the first time in his life the rustle of silk came to him as a siren-song of love, and sung its way into a glorious romance that swayed an empire. THIS IS A SHIMMERING, STIRRING ROMANCE IN A SETTING OF SILKS AND SATINS. It is a magnificent picturization of Cosmo Hamilton's novel. Here you will see BETTY COMPSON in her greatest picture. WE KNOW THAT THIS IS A WONDERFULLY FINE PICTURE. Fox News Thursday and a GOOD COMEDY Friday. Admission to Normal Students, 25 cents.

SATURDAY—MAE MURRAY in "JAZZMANIA." IN THIS PICTURE WE ARE GIVING YOU AN OPPORTUNITY TO SEE A BIG SUPER SPECIAL AT REGULAR ADMISSION PRICES. It is a photoplay of syn-copation and splendor, about a girl who put jazz into the national anthem. A romance of saxophones and sovereigns. IF THIS ISN'T A GOOD PICTURE, THEN THERE NEVER WAS ONE. DO NOT MISS IT. Also 8th episode of PLUNDER.

Admission to each show except Thursday and Friday, 20 cents to S. N. S. girls.

FACULTY ASTONISHED BY MARVELOUS CHANGE IN STATUE

There was great consternation when some members of the Faculty entered the Senior Parlor and found a striking change in our statue "The End of the Trail." It was after the dates had left and the fact that so many of the strong sex had been present may be an explanation to the miracle. At any rate "Lo, the Poor Indian," with legs and arms interchanged was astride a headless charger. We thought and thought and finally came to the conclusion that horse and rider had become so befuddled by listening to the astounding lines our friends from H. S. C. et cetera were handing their companions, that they got quite mixed up.

PRIDE GOETH BEFORE A FALL

An icicle hung on the S. N. S. wall, (Sophomore Skill was the name of this one)

And he said to the sun: "I don't like you at all."

(Sophomore Skill was the name of the sun.)

Drip! Drip! Drip!
The sun said: "Dear Me, We've a Saucy tongue,
You must remember we're old, you're young!"

Drip! Drip! Drip!

The sun smiled on just as before, (red and clear)

The icicle melted a little more, (green and deary)

Drip! Drip! Drip!
But at the end of the third inter-class game,

The icicle had been melted by the sun's red flame.

Drip! Drip! Drip!

We hand it to you, Freshies, you sure are journalists.

WIT AND HUMOR

Men willingly believe what they wish to be true.

Angling is somewhat like poetry—men must be born so.

The 1923 prune crop was short, so that helps boarders some.

Antiquity cannot privilege an error, nor novelty prejudice a truth.

He who tells a lie must invent twenty more to maintain it.

Tomato canning increased in 1923. Something should be done. This is cruelty to boarders.

WOES OF A TEACHING SENIOR

On a cold rainy day at seven
I arise and to breakfast I trot.
There are eggs to greet my day
And the dishes to do—my lot!
When the bell rings I madly rush
Back to my room and in haste
I make up my bed, fix my hair
And of course have a collar to baste
On my dress, but I soon have it fixed
And gather my books, plans and fly
Down the steps, putting in the last pit
And calling to Roomie "goodbye."
I open the back door, let it bang,
And start down the steps with a rush
But lo! and behold look ahead
There's nothing but mud and slush!
What am I to do? I'm now late
It's eight-forty-five I know
Then the thought pops in my head,
I'll go try the other door
Madly I run through the hall
Fall down the dark steps quite shocked
Gain the door, bounce 'gainst like a ball
Only to find that door locked.
Back I retrace my steps
Out in the wind and the rain
Trying to keep my feet dry
Trying, but 'tis all in vain.
I think as I plod along
They like you to be nice and neat
When you teach in the Training School
And just look at my dress and my feet!
But onward I go just the same
Wondering with all my might
When are we to get a paved walk
To aid in our direful plight?

OUR FAIRY TALE

'Twas MUNDY, RAINEY, COLB
ANN dear,
The WINN through REIDS was sighing near.
Upon this DAY the Sophomores,
Began a quest in threes ANNE fours,
ANN leaving all they had to do
They left their ALMA Mater true
All in a FORD with colors gay
To TARRY not along the way.
On pleasure bent? A BIRDIE, tells
That on yon distant mountain dwells
A LITTLEPAGE who holds a
SPEAR
That travelers coming far ANNE near
Have sought to WINN at any PRICE.

The mountain's GREATHEAD seen afar,
Bent to greet the morning star,
Lay past a GLENN ANN many TOWNES,
BARNES, ANNE WELLS ANN
GARDEN grounds,
Just to the SOUTH ANN EAST it grew

On went the BEADLES every BUGG
ANN all the BEADLES warm ANNE snugg
Woke up ANN full of awe ANNE
GRACE—

WELL—Saw a smile on each one's face,
We met a FRIEND, a TAYLOR too,
ANN saw a PRINCE, alive and true,
A JESTER and a PORTER bold
Each one a fairy story told,
That on the MORROW at break of
DAY,

Upon a HILL not far away,
There grew a MYRTLE BRANCH
so rare
So beautiful and vastly rare,
That NUNN but it would gain the
SPEAR

That every KNIGHT of LUCK would fear.

But first the dew that ever fills
The ROSE ANN DAISIES on the HILL
Must cool the MYRTLE blossoms' brow.

But only fate doth this allow
To those who strive with patience sure
With happy hearts both strong ANNE pure.

Each like an ARCHER with his bow
All on a LYNE ANN in a row,
Each like a LINK in one great chain
Resolved the flower rare to gain
And on and on up to the crest
None stopping e'er to look or rest.

Ah! Truly at last we hold a SPEAR
Deep in ours hearts her love is dear,
Found in the vision and we see
From it faith and power to do
All things great and all things true.

Y. W. C. A. ENTERTAINS THE GIRLS

Hurrah for the new girls! 'Cause they're here—a dozen or more. You see, we found out about them and how much we like 'em at the party Saturday afternoon. The Social Committee, under the chairmanship of Agnes McDuffie, entertained them in the Association room.

Everything was so homelike, and there were lots of good games. We nearly choked ourselves trying to cram down dry crackers and whistle at the same time. We all had a chance to prove our artistic (?) ability by drawing a picture of whatever was suggested on our paper. Misses Sarah Gilchrist and Elizabeth Epes were the winners in this. We had played such good get-acquainted games that everybody knew everybody else; and when refreshments came we had become so thoroughly acquainted that we were revealing family secrets to each other.

JOKES

Willie's teacher wrote to his mother asking why Willie was not at school on a certain day and received this note in reply:

Dear teacher: The reason why Willie was not at school on Thursday was because the snow was seventeen inches deep and little Willie's legs were only fourteen inches long.

His Mother.

The dentist (pushing up window):
Oh, that air!

Country girl (from chair): That air
what?

Miss Kendrick teaching gym (pointing towards Julia Reid and Mary Eggleston): "Somebody please get those two dumbbells over there."

She: (gazing up at the moon): "Say something soft."

He: "Oh, mush!"

To the Normal Girl

The Baker: "Try one of my kisses!"
Shoe Clerk in Garnett's: "Have a fit?"

H. S. Boy: "Have a heart!"

Doris: "I think I'll open a tea room next summer and call it the "Step Inn."
Martha: I want to open one too and I'll call mine "The All Inn."

Student teacher giving command in gymnasium: "Heels together in hail."

A buxom lassie teaching arithmetic:
"Now children if we measure twice around our thumb we have once around our wrist, twice around the wrist once around our neck, twice around the neck once around the waist."

"Johnnie, what are you laughing at?"

Johnnie: "I was just thinking twice around the teacher once around the town hall."

At the Opera.

Freshman: "Isn't that the Sextet from Lucia?"

Sophomore: "No, I think it is the quartet from Rigoletto."

Freshman: (after looking toward the orchestra pit at the board where the numbers are sometimes posted), "We are both wrong. It's the Refrain from 'Smoking.'"

—Virginia Reel.

No Explanation Necessary.

"Bill asked me for a kiss last night."

"What did you say?"

"Same old thing."

"What did he do?"

"Same old thing."

—Penn State "Froth."

Senior (reading Rotunda): "Who's in Gamma Theta Sorority?"

Freshie: "I don't know her but I saw in Rotunda that she gave $50.00 to the Student Building."

Miss Taliaferro (calling roll):
"Babb-Boone."

Red: "What's the difference between an elephant and a can of tomatoes?"

Green: "Well, neither of them can ride a bicycle."

—Virginia Reel.

"Freshmen always remind me of a piece of property."

"Why?"

"Because they're a vacant lot."

—Penn State "Froth."

FACULTY AGAIN TAKES DANCING LESSONS

One of the many original ideas formed last year for raising money for the Student Building was the formation of a Faculty Recreation Club. Many of our teachers responded and joined. The Sigmas volunteered their services as teachers of dancing.

As the club was very successful last year, the faculty missed it and felt the need for a similar organization. At last, though, the Club is on its feet again and once more the faculty is being instructed in the gentle art of tripping the "light fantastic toe."

COLLEGE JUNIORS CHOOSE FLOWER AND CLASS MOTTO

The College Juniors had their regular class meeting on Monday night instead of Tuesday, so that it would not interfere with the Bible classes. This meeting was very important in that the flower and class motto were chosen. The class emblem will still be the white rose, and the motto is "To strive, to seek, to find, and not to yield."

Other important business was transacted and the meeting adjourned.

COLLEGE GOSSIP

Dr. Jarman was in Richmond several days last week to attend a meeting of a committee composed of the heads of state institutions of higher learning.

Miss Jane Byrd has her guest for the week-end Miss Nannie Graham Sanders and Miss Virginia St. Clair of R. M. W. C.

Miss Frances Butler, on account of ill health has gone home for the rest of the term. She expects to return for the spring quarter.

Miss Anne Smith who fell on the hall and hurt her back is still in the infirmary out is improving very nicely.

Miss Mabel Edwards is at her home in Norfolk "on sick leave." She is improving rapidly and will soon be back among us.

Miss Mildred Hutchins is from R. M. W. C. and is spending the week-end with Miss Sue Roper.

Miss Belle Atkins, who recently was in a Portsmouth Hospital for a tonsils and adenoid operation, has returned to her home in Bodyton and is reported much better.

Miss Helen Hodges, who has been very ill with pneumonia, is convalescing and expects to leave soon for her home. She will return for the spring quarter.

Miss Frances Howard has as her guest for the week-end her sister from South Boston.

ARGUS LITERARY SOCIETY ENTERTAINS NEW MEMBERS

The old members of the Argus Literary Society gave the new members a party Wednesday evening. At seven o'clock the society assembled in the Y. W. Association room where the color scheme of green and gray was carried out in the decorations.

The entertainment committee had planned exciting games. Here was introduced a new version of the alphabet which omitted the letter G. The girls also learned that "potato" has a "toe" as well as an eye.

In the Gossip game the girls were quite excited when they learned that their "Maggie McNut" was engaged.

Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served. The favors were gray baskets containing little green mints.

Everyone expressed themselves as having had a most enjoyable evening and was ready to depart when the little green crickets with one accord chirped forth "Argus shall live!"

BIG FIRE THREATENS WHOLE BLOCK

Excited Girls Watch Flames.

Great excitement prevailed in the Normal School Saturday morning at ten o'clock when the fire alarm was heard. The girls rushed from the building to see great clouds of smoke rolling out of an old tobacco warehouse behind Dr. Whitaker's house. Thick, heavy, smoke swept down over Thaxton cottage and drove the girls from there choking and coughing.

The factory, large, very dry, and full of tobacco made a magnificent fire and kept the firemen very busy protecting the other buildings. Dr. Whitaker and Mr. Barrow's houses, the Armory, and Wade's caught several times and, at one time, it looked as if the whole block would go. However, the firemen by constantly plying their hose against the side of these buildings, prevented the fire from spreading any further.

Great relief was felt when the last of the walls fell in and the flames in the small buildings around were brought under the firemen's control.

The building belonged to Mr. Gilliam and was covered with insurance amounting to almost its total value. The tobacco belonged to the Cooperative Association and was valued at about $100,000. It was fully insured. The damage done to the other buildings has not yet been estimated.

DR. TIDYMAN INTRODUCES "AN OLD SWEETHEART OF MINE"

The students in Chapel Friday morning were charmed when they saw Miss Spear rise to give a reading, but they were mystified when she announced the title "An Old Sweetheart of Mine," and said that Dr. Tidyman asked her to read it. Needless to say the listeners gave her their strictest attention, sending only once and a while curious glances at Dr. Tidyman. A loud roar of applause greeted Dr. Tidyman when he rose to give an explanation to this unusual proceeding. The audience was relieved to find that it was only a moving picture based on this popular poem, which would be given at the Eaco Theatre Monday afternoon and night for the benefit of the Training School.

RUFFNER LITERARY SOCIETY ENTERTAINS

The Ruffner Literary Society held a social meeting Wednesday afternoon, from four-thirty to six P. M. After a most enjoyable social hour delicious refreshments were served. Among the new members present were: Alice Cook, Margaret Crawley, Mary Gose, Louise Hyde, Arvie Harmon, Elsie Jones, Grace Stultz, Evelyn Thompson, Virginia Wilson, Margaret Wallace, Frances Young.

WOODROW WILSON A WORLD TEACHER

"Any comprehensive view of the career of Woodrow Wilson," says an editorial writer in the Washington Post, "falls naturally into three divisions—the teacher, the writer of history, the statesman. It is upon this work in the latter capacity that the late president's fame will chiefly rest." It is the purpose of this brief comment on his life to point out that his whole career was that of a teacher and that it is rather upon his work as a teacher, a world teacher, that both his temporary fame and his permanent contribution to human progress will rest.

All but the last dozen years of Wilson's life were spent in an academic atmosphere. In his life—long association with the growing life of college youth and in working with them and for their good, his mind received such a set toward forward looking and progressive conceptions and such a faith in the ultimate triumph of truth and right, as it could have received in no other profession. When he stepped out of education into politics he could not help carrying with him the spirit of his profession, many of its methods of work, and even some of its manners.

His work in the class room fixed in him the scholarly habits of precision and of devotion to truth as well as faith in its liberating powers, which led him as a statesman always to think, speak, write, and act by principles rather than by political expediences. In the class room also he had acquired the habit of asserting high conceptions of truth, even though beyond the reach of the ordinary mind, because he was in duty bound to lead young people on to attain what they could. The habit stuck to him in politics and led many to think of him as an impractical idealist. In his work with students he also learned the importance psychologically of "watchful waiting" with his "ear to the ground," as he expressed it, until the psychological moment came at which men were ready to follow him into the realm of the truth which makes you free. This accounts for the tremendous uniting of forces with which the whole nation backed him when the time came to declare war. Furthermore in teaching he had every reason to learn that the highest truth is beyond the power of vision of the majority of people, and that in such matters the majority is always wrong.

THE CAUSE OF ALL THIS COMMOTION

One night when I was in bed and everybody was gone I heard footsteps in the next room and then, low talking, Pretty soon I heard a big crash and then a window pane smashed. All was quiet and my head was under the covers.

When my father came home he found the dog and cat had been shut up in the next room. The cat sprang for a rat and knocked the clock off the shelf. The noise scared the dog so that he jumped through the window to get away. The cat was happily eating her rat when father found her.

PEACE PLAN DISCUSSED IN CHAPEL

Mr. Lear Tells Merit and Limitations of Peace Plan.

In chapel Friday morning Mr. Lear discussed the plan that has been selected as best by the judges of the Edward Bok Peace Plan Contest.

Thinking that perhaps all the girls had not heard Mr. Holt's lecture, he set forth very briefly the organization of the League of Nations. Besides the council and the Assembly, there are subdivisions of the League; namely, the Secretariat, which collects and prepares the material for any case before the Council or Assembly; the International Labor Organization, which stands for an eight hour day, an adequate wage, a weekly rest of twenty-four hours and the abolishment of child labor; the Economic and Financial Organization; the Communication and Transit Organization; and the International Health Organization.

Mr. Lear then took up the Peace Plan and discussed it, reading the first suggestion, that the United States, as a non-member of the League, may show her willingness to cooperate with other humane and reconstructive agencies of the League, may participate in the work of commission and technical committees of the Labor Organization and may adhere to the Permanent Court of International Justice. There are four means of settling international disputes—war, diplomatic conferences, reference of a question to a temporary court and reference of a question to a permanent court. The first two methods are agreed to be unsatisfactory. The last two Mr. Lear compared, showing that the permanent court is more economical, quicker, will have more value as its decisions will strengthen international law and is more satisfactory in that the judges are already appointed and the countries need not fear biased opinion. Mr. Lear cited the trouble over the Alabama claims and said that it took seven years to settle this case, which would have been settled in one year by a permanent court.

In discussing the second suggestion, namely, that the United States though not an actual member of the League, cooperate with it under certain conditions, Mr. Lear read article X of the League Covenant and said that in his opinion with the reservations made in the Peace Plan, the United States certainly had nothing to fear.

"The fault," said Mr. Lear, of this plan is that it has too many reservations, but perhaps it is the best that the American people will accept and therefore the most satisfactory.

Mr. Lear in no way tried to sway the opinion of his listeners, but clearly stated the facts in order that the girls might be better prepared when their chance comes to vote on the question.

SPIRIT

It's an intangible something—that has more than anything else to do with either making or marring our school lives. It's the thing that makes us try to get the other girls to come to our school. It's the thing that makes it possible for us to be a self-governing unit. It's the thing that makes us work for our Alma Mater. And last, but by no means least, it's the thing that makes our Varsity long to win for us.

How can we show this "spirit?" By many ways. Every school has some outstanding characteristic. People say, "Oh, they have a splendid faculty." "They offer a fine course of study." "That's the place to go to have a good time." "Those girls have the real spirit." Which of these had we rather have? The last of course because how could we have the spirit if we did not have a fine faculty, and good times thrown in, for:

"All work and no play makes Jill a dull girl."

We can talk about our school and back her up in every piece of work she undertakes. But right now the best and surest way of demonstrating our sentiment is by our pep.

The Varsity games have started and our Varsity has been victorious once. But once a victor does not mean always a victor. We soon play Radford, an opponent worthy of our mettle. Come to the game, and when you get there use your lungs. Cheer leading isn't any cinch, help the poor leaders out by "lending a helping voice" instead of the proverbial hand.

The Varsity naturally has an incentive to play faster, better, and cleaner if you are there with your good sportsmanship and pep. So:

"Girls of Farmville, give a rouse
For the Normal that you're in!
For the lofty ideals of her
And the loyal girls who love her,
Give a rouse, give a rouse with a vim."
(With apologies to Richard Hovey.)

"TO BE
(A Bachelor of Science) or NOT TO BE
That Is the Question"

We, the Juniors, wish to take this opportunity to tell to the world just how glad we are to be here at S. N. S. working toward our degrees. When we think of what we would have missed had we gone away contentedly last June, not to return, we are grateful to Providence (or whatever it was) that made us decide to come back. Why just think of the thrills of the fire and the joys of dish-washing! Could we have afforded to miss them? Certainly not!

For you girls who have not yet made up your minds as to whether you are coming back or not, we have a word. Next September is thought of as being long to the dim future and yet when we get right down to facts it isn't such a long time off, after all. Now, however, is the time to decide what you are going to do, because if you put off letting Miss Mary know whether you are going to return or not the dormitories will all be crowded and who wants to room in the garret of the Student Building or the bell tower of the Gym. Laying all joking aside, if you go out into life with a degree S. N. S. will have meant more to you and you will, in turn, mean more to the state. Teaching is recognized as one of the most important professions, and as time goes on, none but the best training for it will be accepted. And which one of us can be perfectly sure that she will not be clamoring for a school when that time comes to pass, some ten, twenty, or thirty years from now? Even if she does not intend to teach long, in whatever course she takes in life, a B.S. from S. N. S. can serve as a solid foundation on which to build. Every worthwhile person has the desire to do whatever has been undertaken, in the best way possible. With two extra years of training a girl has a decidedly better chance of being a successful and good teacher when she begins work. Looking at the question from a material standpoint we find that the difference in salaries between degree girls and diploma girls is great enough in fact to show that an investment in the four year course is quite worthwhile one.

We should realize that the time is near at hand when the teachers of Virginia will, of necessity, have degrees. Girls, if you want a degree come back next year! You will never have any regrets, on the contrary, you will always be thankful.

AT THE EACO THEATRE —Week Feb. 11th-16th.

MONDAY & TUESDAY—"THE TOLL OF THE SEA" HERE IS A SUPER SPECIAL TREAT FOR ALL. It is a photoplay in colors so marvelous that their beauty inspires awe. A brilliantly colored photoplay, the first to be photographed by a new invention which makes the players as real as the audience. You will see every color of the rainbow shown in natural colors in this production. It is a Chinese legend of the beauty and treachery of the siren sea depicted in amazing colors. KENNETH HARLAN is in the special cast. NO WORD OF OURS CAN DESCRIBE THE BEAUTY OF THIS PICTURE. TAKE our word for it, THAT IT IS WELL WORTH SEEING. PATHE NEWS Monday and the 9th episode of HAUNTED VALLEY Tuesday. MATINEE Monday at four o'clock. Admission to Normal girls 25c.

WEDNESDAY—WILLIAM RUSSELL in "ALIAS THE NIGHT WIND." A drama mellowed by swift action, intriguing characters—the bizarre underworld shadows! The story of a mysterious woman, a modern Mercury—a gun-toting Cupid! Also AESOP FABLE. Admission 20c.

THURSDAY & FRIDAY—"THE VIRGINIAN" From the immortal novel and play. FOR TWENTY YEARS THE SUPREME MASTERPIECE OF WESTERN LITERATURE. Under the spell of color, action and setting such as only the moving picture makes possible—you can live yourself with Trampas, with Molly, Steve and "THE VIRGINIAN" the greatest western character ever given to literature. KENNETH HARLAN heads the preferred cast. This is a better picture than the book that has been a best seller for twenty years. IF THIS PICTURE IS APPRECIATED HERE AS IN OTHER TOWNS, THE THEATRE SHOULD BE CROWDED TO THE DOORS BOTH NIGHTS. IT COST A LOT OF MONEY TO BRING IT BUT WE ARE SHOWING IT FOR 25 cents to Normal Students. Fox News Thursday and a GOOD Comedy Friday. Matinee Friday at 4 o'clock.

SATURDAY—"YOUR FRIEND AND MINE." A SPECIAL METRO CLASSIC PICTURE ENACTED BY A SPECIAL CAST. A brilliant screen play of luxuries and lovers. A drama of riches and roguery. A magnificent screen drama of a husband's selfish sacrifice. Adapted from the play by the same name. Also the 9th episode of PLUNDER. MATINEE at 3:30. Admission to Normal students 20c.

EIGHTH GRADE PRESENTS PART OF JULIUS CAESAR IN ASSEMBLY

Prisoner of Zenda

of their interest in the study of ancient Rome by presenting Act III, scene II of "Julius Caesar" in Assembly Monday, January 28.

Mary Taliaferro, the president of the class, led the devotional exercises and announced the program. Claudia Fleming gave some interesting facts about Shakespeare and the theater of his time. Edith Coleman gave the background and synopsis of Julius Caesar to Act III, scene II. Then Brutus (Willie Welchin) spoke so effectively that the Roman people (the grade) approved his horrible deed. Caesar's body mourned by Mark Antony attracted the attention of the audience. The mob, moved by the convincing speech of Antony (Elizabeth Williams), became so angry that they left the room seeking revenge.

JUNIOR CLASS GIVES STUNTS

Famous Company of Players Appear in College Auditorium.

On Saturday night February the second a large, and famous company of players under the management of Flap-pian Seigfield Conway, gave an entertainment full of laughter, heartache, and real joy. This entertainment consisted of five short plays which were so well rendered and so full of merriment, pathos, and emotion that the audience was swept from laughter to tears and from tears to thrills of joy.

The Dancing Dolls were a lighter number and was quite fitted for opening the evening's entertainment. These joyous girls arrayed in the colors of the rainbow tripped over the stage in such graceful and carefree manner that the audience was charmed as it showed by the rounds of applause which followed this performance.

"Lochinvar" was one of the delightful romances of old English life that everyone loves. The setting was in England in the fifteenth century. A brave knight rescued the fairest lady of the land from a dastard craven bridegroom, while the father and mother fumed and the knight and maidens looked on in approval. The perilous ride of young Lochinvar and the escape of Lochinvar with his bride held the audience breathless with suspense.

"Celestial Love" is a play that appeals because it is different. Played in the real Chinese manner, with genuine Chinese Manager, this play was very refreshing to those who had been fed up on the American version of Chinese life. All the parts were unusually well taken but especially must mention be made of Yo Howarden Sen, whose daintiness of action and delicacy of beauty pleased the audience very much. Her art was perfection.

"Wild Nell, the Pet of the Plains or Her Final Sacrifice" is a soul-gripping drama of the free open West. It provided the thrill that every American audience loves. Lady Vere de Vere of England fell in love with Handsome Harry, King of the Cowboys. Later she was captured by Sitting Bull and his accomplice, Bull Durham. Nell at first rejoiced but later conquered her baser impulse and assisted Handsome Harry in capturing his lady-love. After seeing them together and happy, Nell killed herself. The last scene, showing Handsome Harry standing over the body of his dead sweetheart was so pathetic that the audience was almost dissolved in tears.

The "Egyptian Freeze" had appeared in Farmville before and had been so well received that the company was asked to repeat it. The stars, Gwendolyn Joyce Calcott and Lionel Cuthbert Kemp are of a highly dramatic temperament and their portrayal of this soul-stirring tragedy held the audience spellbound with terror.

The whole performance was distinguished by artistic acting and perfection of detail. The Conway Company leaves this school with added laurels.

Y. W. C. A. NEWS

Dr. Aiken Smart, of Emory University, Georgia, will be in Farmville February 10, 11 and 12 to speak to our students on Christian Fundamentals. Dr. Smart is a very interesting speaker, and those of our students who heard him at Blue Ridge are enthusiastic in his behalf. His talks will be along the line of those delivered by Dr. Thomas K. Young last year. Dr. Smart will speak at Chapel and Prayers Wednesday and Thursday, and at Chapel Friday, February 12, under the auspices of the student Y. W. C. A.

Prognostication.

TRAINING SCHOOL STUDENT RECEIVES LETTER FROM ABROAD

Belgian Boy Thanks Friends For Christmas Box.

The Seventh Grade of the Training School received a letter from a school boy in Belgium thanking them for a Christmas box they sent. The recipient, a little Belgian boy, proud of his mastery of the English language, decided to write a personal letter to Edith Coleman, who wrote the letter enclosed in the box. Both letters are below:

A letter received by Edith Coleman from a Belgian boy thanking the Training School for the Christmas Box.

Dear Friend,

Many thanks for your most welcome letter and box containing all those nice presents. All the boys were delighted with the little gifts you sent. It was a great surprise for everyone and I can assure you every boy sends his thanks to you and that they appreciate your kindness very much also wishing you both a prosperous new year and the best of luck for your future happiness. We will send a photograph when the weather improves.

For the class,
STANLEY DAMON.

A Personal Letter Received.

Dear Friend,

You have noticed that the first letter was signed by an english name. Being the only english boy in the school I was designed to translate your nice letter. I thout I would write a personnel letter. It is a great pleasure to be able to have an english friend as I am the only British boy in the town, that is not nice. I would very much like to have your photograph and now a bit more about you. I should also like you to write often to me as I would do the same and so it would be better for me to have an english friend.

As I am president of the school for the red cross your parcel passed thru my hands. I noticed your letter an I read it. Seeing that it was english writing I was interested and that was the reason it took me in writing to you. You must wonder why I am in Belgium. Welle my father was shot in the war and I am to stay with my mother hou is belgium. I am 14 years old and I am finischnig my 8th standed hou is the last.

Hoping that you will write to me, I am

Your friend,

STANLEY DAMON.

STUDENT BUILDING SHOUTS

Oh, me, oh, my! How long has this torture got to last, and when, oh, when will I be in the ideal building that I started out to be?

First I thought my girls never would get in, and when they finally did where were they housed? Why on the fourth floor of course, from which all day long there issues the gruntings, groanings, and complaints of the inhabitants and visitors who try to reach these lofty regions.

But, these aren't the only complaints I hear. Every time they go to take a bath they complain of having to carry a blanket to act as a door. And then all hours of the day people walk into my third story and complain about how long it is taking me to be completed, and wondering when they'll move in. It's a wonder they want to come with all the discontent about the steps.

Of course, I got the blame when the pipes burst and dampened the linen in the dining-room. Well, it's a wonder my heart hasn't turned to a lump of ice before now and frozen more than the water pipes.

While all these complaints are in progress I'd like to offer a few myself. How long have I got to look at Thaxton Cottage? That place is enough to give any well person the dyspepsia, much less a much abused building. And my beautiful gym, with all those girls dropping crumbs on the floor and Miss Buford tearing her hair with rage, when will it be the scene of games, dances, and pleasure?

Those old outside steps look like "something sent for and couldn't come" so they sent the best they had, and that was mighty poor.

Last but not least, that kitchen reminds me of a tin can tied onto a helpless dog's tail, and like the dog, I'd like to shake it off.

So:

"Stop your grumbling girls.
Doesn't help a bit.
All the building what you got
Is all you're gwine to git."
(For a short time at least.)

SIGMA SIGMA SIGMA NEWS

Miss Louise Denit of Salem, Virginia, is spending the week-end with Miss Betty Cole.

Miss Eugenia Vincent spent last week-end in Emporia, Virginia.

On Saturday night, January 26, the Sigmas entertained at a very delightful dinner in the Tea Room. Miss Spear was the guest of honor.

Misses Agnes Walker and Ethel Warren were guests at S. N. S. last week-end.

Miss Kitty Carroll, who is now teaching in Woodlawn, Pa., was a recent visitor in school.

Miss Sallie Barksdale is visiting her Alma Mater.

For the benefit of the Student Building the Sigmas are giving the Faculty dancing lessons.

Miss Agnes Watkins, who has been quite sick in Richmond for some time, is improving and is expected home soon.

CUNNINGHAM LITERARY SOCIETY ELECTS NEW MEMBERS

At a short business meeting held by the Cunningham Literary Society the following officers were elected:

President—Ruth Bartholomew.
Vice-President—Laurice Wyche
Secretary—Lois Cosby.
Treasurer—Welma Williams.

On Monday night the society sent out bids and between bells, held a short social meeting for welcoming new members. Refreshments were served carrying out the color scheme of green and white, the society's colors. After singing the Cunningham song and giving some peppy yells for the society the meeting adjourned.

The following new members were elected.

Dorothy Shoffner, Mobley Brown, Virginia Vincent, Evelyn Beckham, Elizabeth Crute, Gertrude Quinn, Doris Crocker, Miriam Robinson, Emily Lawrence.

Moreover he knew that the salvation of the world depends upon those chosen few whose power of vision can pierce beyond the obvious, and that they must lead the rest of mankind on through sacrifice and slow, painful growth into that freedom which is ever new. It was this vision of the truth that enabled the author of "The New Freedom" to liberate the minds of his students in the academic world and which enabled him, in affairs of state, to become, as Clemenceau acclaimed him, "The liberator of the small nations of the world." And it was this vision which enabled him at the last to lay down his life by his "journey to the people" that all America might know the truth.

Woodrow Wilson was essentially a teacher, a revealer of ideals. As "the schoolmaster in politics" his words were never a summons from the rear to come back to normalcy, either in thought or in action. His words were always:

Look up, look forth and on!
There's light in the dawning sky:
The clouds are parting, the night is gone:
Prepare for the work of the day!

Small girl—"Mummy, how do angels get their nighties on over their wings?"

APPROACH OF FOUNDERS' DAY HEIGHTENS INTEREST IN STUDENT BUILDING FUND

All Methods Resorted to in Endeavor to Make This Year's Contribution the Largest.

As Founder's Day again approaches, we see signs of a mercenary spirit, which we never before suspected, taking possession of every organization and individual connected with our school. Services which at other times are done gladly and without thought of remuneration now draw wages "for the Student Building."

Many enterprises are now on foot for the purpose of collecting creditable sums of money to be presented on the day mentioned above. Bazaars, selling of ice-cream, candy and sandwiches, and movie benefits are some of the methods used. Benefit dances, also have been held for this worthy cause. Dancing lessons are being given, as one may easily see by observing the exceeding grace of the students—and faculty—who have embraced this opportunity offered.

Great consternation was felt when discrimination was made between the bobbed-haired Freshmen and those with long hair. It was wondered if such pressure could be brought to bear that those with flowing locks would sell them as a final and crowning sacrifice to the object of our dreams. Later developments disclosed the fact, however, that this was only a convenient way of dividing the class into groups to carry on a campaign for funds. Those with short hair have successfully carried us a beauty contest in which our fairest maidens have been brought into the eye of the public, and their charms have been brought to our attention. The other group has carried out plans equally successful.

Not long ago the Juniors gave an evening of thrilling entertainment. Airy dancing dolls and brave Lochivar filled us with joy and admiration; while black tragedy caused our very soul to shudder.

But why proceed further? The air is even now charged with mystery and we do not know what will next draw the nickels, dimes and quarters from our flattened purses. We care not, for the cause is ours.

THE GOSSIP CLUB

In a certain dark corner warmed by a friendly radiator, sheltered by an overhanging stairway, and flanked by a mysterious bulletin board, meets daily, at any and all hours, the Gossip Club. Its personnel cannot be ascertained; it fluctuates from day to day, from hour to hour. Yet the unity of the group is apparent to any susceptible passer-by. Always that fluttering spirit of happiness, always that air of mystery, always that aspect of naughty, yet innocent children. A knowing look, a shy smile—almost an invitation to join them. And suddenly one knows the purpose of the club—to talk things over, with charity to all, with malice toward none, not even those rigid taskmasters who brook not the inversion of a period.

TO WOODROW WILSON

We called you Dreamer, said your dreams were vain—
We who to-day kneel humbly by the Gate

Through which you lately passed, and pledge, too late,
The faith you gave your life and soul to gain.

We called you Dreamer—to-day we know regret;
The aching bitterness of debts delayed
By littleness and blindness ere we paid;
The tragedy of futile, vain remorse—and yet

Surely, beneath your Sleep, you know that God

Will lead our stumbling feet along the path you trod—
Some day, somehow, we'll keep the faith. You have not died in vain.

Y. W. C. A. OFFICERS TO BE ELECTED SOON

In view of the fact that the election of officers for our Y. W. C. A. is to be held in the near future, it would be well for our membership to be thinking seriously about those best fitted to carry on the work for the coming session 1924-25. There are five officers elected by the members of the Association to lead its activities: The President, the Vice-President, the Secretary, the Treasurer and the Undergraduate Representative. While each office of our Association is important, the two especially important ones are the President and the Undergraduate Representative. The President must oversee the entire work of the Association and direct the work with the chairmen of the various committees. The Undergraduate Representative is the connecting link between our local association and the National Y. W. C. A., and it is she who represents us at the meeting of the U. R.'s at Blue Ridge.

Every Association member is urged to thoughtfully consider what girls she thinks are best suited to hold the positions of leaders in our Y. W. C. A.; to be led in her considerations not by personal likes or dislikes, but by a just estimate of the qualities that fit one to hold office on our Y. W. C. A. Cabinet.

A baby soon grows too old for a rattle, but certainly nobody can say that of an automobile.

'LONG HAIRS' BENEFIT DANCE OCCASION FOR CROWNING QUEEN

The long-haired girls of the Freshman Class gave a dance Friday evening, February 8, for the benefit of the Student Building. The color scheme of green and white was effectively carried out, attractive feature being the wearing of Freshman caps by the musicians.

The event of the evening was the crowning of Miss Pink Calcott as Queen of Beauty. She had won this place of distinction at a recent contest held by the bobbed-haired girls of the Freshman Class. After her coronation the Queen favored those present with a most charming solo dance.

Other enjoyable and effective features of the evening's entertainment were the exhibition dances given by individuals of Freshman and Sophomore classes. The dance, as well as being a source of funds for the Student Building was a source of real enjoyment for those present.

STATE TEACHERS' COLLEGE

Pending the signature of the Governor is a bill passed by the senate and legislature changing the name of the State Normal School for Women at Farmville, Virginia to State Teachers' College. As a result of this change of name, there will be no longer debarred from entrance.

This change of name will come as a relief to the students, alumnas and patrons of this institution who have long felt that the former old-fashioned appellation was out of keeping with the advanced educational methods herein taught.

DEFEATED BY A REFEREE HOT CONTEST ENDS IN CLEOPATRA'S VICTORY

The Farmville and Radford sextettes met Friday evening, February 8, in a free for all scramble. The whole game was characterized by its roughness and unfair decisions. Playing with the ball blown up until it was larger and harder than regulation requires, the Farmville forwards were unfortunate in their shots. The ball would race around the rim of the goal only to fall on the outside of the basket. It is needless to say the referee was blind to Radford faults and prejudiced in their favor for every time Treacle, our stellar forward, went to shoot for the goal a foul was called on her with no explanation except, "I'm the referee." Numbers of times during the game Farmville forwards, in order to get the ball had to push the referee out of their path. The whole Farmville team is to be commended on its sportsmanship in staying on the floor and completing such a game.

Line-up:

Farmville	Pos.	Radford
Treacle (Capt.)	F.	Thomas
McKenney	F.	Parsons
Walton	C.	Slowwater
Hall, M.	G.	Perry
Hall, E.	G.	Hite

Substitutes—H. Hall for McKenney, Referee—James Hoge, Blacksburg. Umpire—Dr. Fraiser, Farmville.

ALUMNAE NOTES

Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Dunton, of Nassawadox, recently announced the engagement of their daughter, Myrtle Lydon, to Warren Forrest Curtis, of Richmond.

The Times-Dispatch of January 27 contained a picture of Miss Emspie Shapard, of Halifax, and a notice of her approaching marriage to Dr. Lawrence Owen Sneed, of Richmond.

Miss Robbie Leigh Raney of Lawrenceville, was married in January to Mr. John Thomas Wallace, of Covington. A beautiful reception was recently held in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace at the home of Dr. J. W. Wallace, father of the groom, in Covington.

WILSON MEMORIAL SERVICE

All work was suspended in the State Teachers' College when the students, faculty, and townspeople gathered in the Auditorium Wednesday afternoon, February 6, to show in their smart way their appreciation and love for Woodrow Wilson and their sympathy for his bereaved family. It was indeed fitting that the service should be closed by the reading of a poem embodying the thought that Wilson, the Man of Peace, had not died in vain.

It was a grim and wordy battle that was waged in our presence last week. The two main beauties of our school sought to be crowned as queen. Yet—from the start was there a single doubt as to the outcome? Surely not! Who could resist acting the part of Anthony to the tempting wiles of Cleopatra? Who could resist the pep, the optimism, the brilliance of Pink Pluskkin?

The rush at the polls was one that has never been seen before in the annals of the school (or politics). The box was filled to overflowing with little slips of paper which were to decide the fate of life or death for Cleopatra. At the end of each counting the voters waited with breath suspended, to hear the reckonings. At times sighs and even suppressed groans were heard as other names were read as those leading. Still, the "backers" of Cleo remembered the old saying, "you can't keep a good man down," and as if to confirm their faith and the statement, in the final reckoning our beautiful, beloved Cleopatra, with torn hairnet and dress, came up from the rabble bearing high the floating banner of victory.

Last evening amid shouting dancing and rejoicing crowds, Cleopatra, our I-u-v, our d-u-v, our b-v-d, was crowned "Queen of Beauty."

So with glasses held high let's drink to the most beautiful girl in "old S. N. S."

"Here's to Cleopatra, drink it down,
Here's to Cleopatra, drink it down,
Here's to Cleopatra, here's to Cleopatra,
Here's to Cleopatra, drink it down,
down, down!"

HEIFETZ GIVES CONCERT IN LYNCHBURG

Lynchburg is truly fortunate in that it has succeeded in securing Jascha Heifetz, world famous violinist, for a concert Saturday night, February 16.

Heifetz made his New York debut October 27, 1917 and at once won recognition as a master of the violin. As a result of this success he has performed with enthusiastic approval in all musical centres of the country.

Heifetz was born in Vilna, Russia, February 2, 1901; he began learning violin at the age of 3 and entered the Royal School of Music, at Vilna, when only 5 and graduated at the age of eight years. He was then taken to St. Petersburg, where he became the pupil of Professor Leopold Auer. It is amazing to note that he made his first public appearance when he was five years old and played before an audience of 5,000 when he was only nine years of age. Since that time he has appeared in the leading cities of Germany, Hungary, Austria, and Russia.

There is only one Heifetz in a century and those on earth when such a phenomenon appears have one more reason to be happy for being alive!

What Is Wrong With Our Elections?

On January 19, this paper attempted to give some thought provoking ideas concerning the system of elections held in this school.

Our present system is poor; a change is necessary. Why should any of the systems governing our school life be antiquated and inefficient?

Think about it, talk it over, look at it from all angles and finally decide on the system that seems best. We propose that the Student Standards Committee discuss this matter. They cannot do all however. You must be interested, think and cooperate—will you do it?

Why? Why? Why?

Radford, January 27.—The Radford State Normal School was the hostess of the Farmville Normal basketball team on Friday and Saturday. This is the third time the Farmville team has visited the Radford Normal. This game is always looked forward to with a great deal of interest by both teams. The team this year brought eight members of the student body with them, who formed a most effective cheering squad for their team.

The representatives were entertained in the McGuffey Hall of the Normal School. The Athletic Association gave them a sight-seeing trip in the mountains which was thoroughly enjoyed. The social program also included an afternoon reception and supper for the teams after the game on Saturday night.

This is the second game to be played by the Radford Normal this year.

We have an inquiring turn of mind, and cannot help but wonder just why the Farmville Normal basket ball team went to Radford. Was a convention meeting there? Or was a party being given, perhaps? But in that case, why refer to a cheering squad? What did they cheer for, the refreshments served at the party?

We would naturally infer that the team went to play a game (and truly after careful search, we do find the word mentioned) but if such were the case, it's importance was obscured by the round of festivities—referred to above—so thoughtfully planned by the Radford students for our girls. After more careful consideration, we conclude that the idea of a game is ridiculous, for who ever heard of an inter-collegiate contest with no score? We read the sporting news quite regularly and feel sure that such an important item would never be omitted unless

Well, we are still curious.

WANTED—A PIED PIPER

If Robert Burns had ever seen the S. N. S. specimen he most certainly would never have written "Wee sheikit, trimorous, cow'rin beastie!" Nay, indeed, 'tis bold and brazen, that describes these nightly visitors of ours. Our minds are never wholly at rest; for, no sooner do we lay our weary heads upon our downy pillows than suddenly a noise is heard! Another noise! (The noise is indescribable but the reader can appreciate it.) Enter the nightly brigades! Now we ponder what we must do in this harassing situation. Not only are "catables" unsafe, but even "wearables," and even the most humane must confess that such cannot, must not, continue. Why even the students' lives are in danger. At least one young individual on Tacky Alley said a few nights ago that "she just would die if she had to stay in the room with that awful rat!" Now of course the persistent disposition of these intruders cannot be allowed to endanger their lives. Rather a thousand times that the rat die! (However, we would suggest, if one is so fortunate as to mortally wound or actually exterminate any of those afore-said pests, that at least one chase them out-of-doors before committing the deed. (A hint to the wise, etc.) Missiles of any kind, even though directed with the most skilled aim, prove quite ineffectual. It is utterly useless to set traps. One cannot stay up all night to empty them.

We ponder long, we sigh! But to no avail! Ah, Joan, if you love us, send us another Pied Piper!

LOST AND FOUND

Found: two S. N. S. belts at the Armory, February 8. Owners may obtain by applying at the Rotunda office any day after Chapel.

The Student Body wishes to express sorrow for the illness of Mr. B. M. Cox, Business Manager of this institution, and to extend sympathy to his family.

AT THE EACO THEATRE—Week Feb. 18th-23rd

MONDAY—"THE PRISONER OF ZENDA" by Anthony Hope. A story of royal romance; and of adventure as breathless and flashing as sword play. With Alice Terry, Lewis Stone, Ramon Navarro and a SPECIAL CAST. In this SUPER SPECIAL PRODUCTION you have all the gorgeous glamor and fascinating intrigue of the world's most famous romance depicted in a vividly beautiful setting. Also Pathe News. Matinee at 3:45. PROCEEDS FROM THIS PICTURE GO TO THE PHI KAPPA OMEGA SOCIETY FOR BENEFIT OF BUILDING FUND. Admission S. N. S. girls 25c.

TUESDAY—"MIGHTY LAK' A ROSE," A SPECIAL PRODUCTION which is a symphony of life in the high and low places. A story as gentle as a mother's lullaby, yet as stirring as the trumpet blasts of a military band. This is a picture that will linger in your memory like the echo of an unforgettable song. IT WILL APPEAL TO ALL. Also 10th episode of HAUNTED VALLEY. MATINEE AT 4 o'clock.

WEDNESDAY—SHIRLEY MASON in "SOUTH SEA LOVE." The powerful drama of a girl who was a daughter of the sea and a mother to its fearless travelers. In this picture Shirley Mason captures the Muse in all her moods—grief, joy, ecstasy, despair, love and hate! Also Aesop Fable.

THURSDAY & FRIDAY—MARION DAVIES and a select cast in the SPECIAL PARAMOUNT PICTURE "ADAM AND EVE." The merry story of a millionaire father who couldn't manage his pretty flapper daughter. And brought in one of the smart young men from his office to do the job. You can't imagine the amazing things that happened. From the brilliant Broadway stage hit. Filmed by the star and director of "When Knighthood was in Flower." Here we have the Rolls-Royce of screen comedy, averaging a hundred laughs to the reel. A frisky flapper fun-fest; A beautiful girl in a beautiful mess. Fox News Thursday and a GOOD COMEDY Friday. Admission to Normal Students, getting tickets at school 25c.

SATURDAY—ALICE BRADY in "THE LEOPARDESS" A Paramount Picture. The romance of a bewitching South Sea dancer and the American millionaire who tried to tame her. They called her "The Leopardess" because she was sleek, graceful, dangerous, untamed. An excellent picture. Also 10th episode of PLUNDER. Matinee at 3:30.

Admission to S. N. S. students for Tuesday, Wednesday, and Saturday 20c.

OUR VOTE ON THE BOK PEACE PLAN

The Bok Peace Plan has been determined, and has been submitted to the vote of the American people. Up to February 4, the day before the award of the $50,000 Peace Prize was made, 351,256 votes had been cast for the plan and 49,927 against it. The referendum on the plan is still proceeding, and will be continued until March 1 in order to secure the widest possible vote of the American public. The plan has been received in the press with an enthusiasm that shows that the League of Nations is not a "closed incident." It has rallied the churches, schools, colleges, universities, all organizations and institutions that are working to preserve the peace of the world.

The plan has been presented in the colleges throughout the country, ours among the number, with such transparent clearness that we may vote intelligently for or against it. We have been given an opportunity to focus our thoughts on this first step in a possible pathway to permanent peace, and to register our best thinking on the subject. The majority of our students have already cast their vote and those who have not will, it is hoped, not fail to do so during the next few days.

It is interesting to note that the much-speculated-upon author of the Winning Plan, Dr. Charles H. Levermore, a Republican of Brooklyn, New York, is unanimously acclaimed in the press as a student in the field of international relations who is admirably qualified to work out the best possible plan. "Probably no other man in the United States," says the editor of the New York Times, "has wrestled more persistently with the problems of international relations with a view of finding a way to prevent war. He is a highly qualified expert in his work."

WHO WAS SHE?

Without, the wind howled, and the rain dashed in fitful gusts against the closed blinds. Within, an air of gloom pervaded. Truly, a night for dark deeds. And what is this that is being done? Closely huddled around the long table is a tense and sinister group, brows knitted as they consider the problem at hand. At the head sits one with hand uplifted over a blank page. Again one wonders what is the lodestone that has drawn this group together on such a night. Could it be the foregathering of some secret order? Is some dastardly deed being planned? Ah, no! 'Tis but the composing of the Senior number of the Rotunda, and this the Senior Staff.

As I have said before (note: see above), an atmosphere of deepest gloom prevailed. Inspiration there was none.

But hark! Whence comes the air that stirs the Picture on the Wall? Is that the swishing of the rain that is heard? Can it be the rustle of the leaves? Is it the wind that lifts the latch?

Suddenly there was a presence in the room. The door had not opened—yet she was there, a woman silent and serene. Not a word was said, not a syllable uttered. But across the tense group there swept a soothing calm, as a zephyr plays across the hills at twilight. Then came a spirit of indomitable action—facile pencils raced over the paper. All was well—the Senior Number of the Rotunda was being written.

But now the burning question that agitates the minds of many people is: "Who was she—this mysterious woman?" Who? Who? No, gentle reader, she was not a member of the faculty. Wrong again, she was not a town person, nor was the Home Department responsible for her being. Then who? And Echo answers, "Who!"

MY WISH

If I could have a wishing ring, I'd never wish for pearls, nor limousines and all the things desired by many girls. I'd never wish for beauty rare nor yet for wealthy beaux; nor should I wish for world-wide fame as many would suppose. I would not wish for silken robes, nor treasure chests of gold. I'd simply wish for gobs of food—far more than I could hold!

A NEW DAY

I like to think, at the dawn of day,
That all my worries have slipped away;
That the hurts and wounds of the day before
Are gone from me to return no more.

I like to feel that my heart is clean,
That my mind is free from the low
and mean;
That again I have the whole new day
To make of it—just what I may.

EMPLOYMENT BUREAU

The Rotunda Staff offers the following openings for those who obtain their degree in June and do not desire to teach:

1. The cleaning of the Vatican it only has 5,000 rooms.
2. The hitching of wagons of all ambitious people to stars.
3. The holding of a moon perpetually in the sky for ardent lovers to gaze upon.
4. Refereeing all basket ball games between Radford and Farmville.
5. Reading all the books for Miss Everett's English fiction class so as to be able to report on them without having nervous prostration.
6. Writing P. K. O. projects for the weary and toil-worn members of that organization.

7. Entertaining all visiting basket ball teams even to the extent of standing on their head if that will win one smile as a reward.

8. Standing at the Rotunda Office door so as to admit all brainless idiots who forget their keys to that sanctuary—I'm tired of lending mine.

9. Furnishing real winds for Miss Munoz whenever she wants them to "blow" and "freeze" in her operas.

10. Catching the dirt that "Old Dutch Cleanser" has chased for us these many years—Gee! but the poor critter must be tired.

11. Acting as traffic officers in the hall around Room I.

All applications will be received and considered with most diligent care. We wish to state, however, that it is useless to apply until you have at least three references of the highest standing.

LITERARY LIGHTS

In the new magazine, The Milkmaid's Pal, appears the first installment of a thrilling serial, Love in a Desert Love Nest by Miss Gertie Asterisk, the hero being a fetching lad with the motto, "Take 'em young, treat 'em rough, tell 'em nothing." The author gives a pleasant, historical flavor when she claims that the said gentleman was the first to walk a mile for a Camel.

We were gently transported into the land of Nod by an article in the same periodical, What I Like About Myself by Horatio Small, the popular idol of the silver sheet, who has lashes five inches long and most limpid, brown eyes in Hollywood. Mr. Small evidently has an intense love of his subject on which he is the greatest living authority.

Brain Storms by C. Blahot Gargole, a recollection of poems published by the Piffing Co., is great stuff. We did not understand a word of it. C. B. says "Life is a nebulous series of neuroids pursuing the solar plexus of amphibious amoebas with a torn butterfly net."

The Anti-Skeptical Society reveals the result of scientific research on the much mooted question Have You a Little Fairy in Your Home?, a stupendous discovery conducted by Professor Pry who will receive the Nobel Peace prize as a reward of labor.

A Straight Line is the Shortest Line Between Two Points and Other Short Stories by Steven Half-Cocked, illustrated by Bud Fisher, sold out three editions in two days. This little volume proved of particular interest to high school pupils.

The literary world is agog over the recent novel, The Crimson Crime or Who Killed Cock Robin? by Ibid. This is a tale of the wild and woolly West, with lots of gore, gun play and murders, in the land where men are men and wear yellow, humped-toed shoes.

CAVORTRICS

Kitty: "I wonder if Henry Esmon's in the Library. I believe I'll go and see."
Ruth: "Oh, do they allow men in the library? Wait a minute I'll go, too."

Every moment the atmosphere was becoming thicker with thought. Huge chunks of it floated around, dazing students with whom it collided. High into realms of gray matter soared Mr. Grainger. "Take the title: 'The Revenge of Hamish'—It speaks of hatred, of passion. What of the title 'The Raven'? What does that remind you of?" And with one accord the class answered eagerly. "A bird!"

Pink is frequently afflicted with cold pedal extremities. One morning upon awakening she declared that she would have to get some mittens to keep her feet warm—as did the Three Little Kittens. Kemp drowsily arose to the occasion with, "Humph! you're talking 'bout Puss's Seven League Boots."

What peculiar illnesses some folks do have! During the late burglar scare a maiden came dashing into the drawing room screaming wildly, "Oh come quick! There's a man under Evelyn's window throwing up bricks."

It's fortunate some people are taking Music Appreciation. Lucille Farrar can't tell the difference between cow-mooing and sure—nuff singing. The other day after listening to record after record, she remarked, "Now let's play Brindell's Wacery."

PI KAPPA OMEGA

Pi Kappa Omega announces that Misses Freida Crookin and Ruth Cleland have been elected to membership.

BEWARE! LOOK OUT,
FOR THE WIZARD!
HE IS COMING!

Friday, February 15, the Glee Club will present "The Wizard of Oz," to the students, faculty and friends of the State Teachers' College. The story of the annual spring opera is based upon the fairy tale "Wizard of Oz" and has been dramatized and "fantasized" by Miss Munoz.

One of the principal leads will be that of Jane Hunt Martin as "Dorothy." Our well known and popular comedians will also play leading parts. Janie Washington Moore will be seen as the Tin Woodman, Nell McArdle as the Scarecrow and Margaret Agnes McDuffy will be the Fierce Lion. Other interesting features will be Flower Dances, Guards of the Emerald city, and the ever mirth provoking clowns.

CHUCKLES

Soph: Why cut across from the main building to the dining room?
Fresh: To avoid two crooks!

Fresh: "You ain't got no sense."
Frosh: "Shucks, I got sense what ain't never been used."

"Habit" is hard to overcome
If you take off the first letter, it does not change "a bit."

If you take off another, you have a "bit" left.

If you still take another, it isn't "a" totally used up—
All of which goes to show that if you wish to be rid of a "habit," you must throw it off altogether.

The Yellow Strand.

"All I need now is a golf stick," said the convict as he gazed at the ball on the links.

Elsie: "What did you get for Christmas?"

Julia: "You know one of those long good looking sable coats? Well, I got a handkerchief."

"Two cubes are the root of much evil."

Senior: "Did Jonah stay in the whale three days?"

Junior: "When I get to heaven I'll ask him."

Senior: "But suppose he's not in heaven?"

Junior: "Then you ask him."

MY DAD

There is one to whom I can always go,
With all my joy, and with all my woe,
He understands as no one could
He shares the bitter with the good.
If my heart is heavy with grief,
It is only he who gives relief,
When on the bed with pain I lie,
It is only he, I want near by.
And if on a galloping horse I ride,
It is only his presence I want beside.
He is a pal both staunch and true,
I'll sing his praises forever anew.
He stops the tears and brings the smile,
It's just his way, it's just his style.
With such a treasure I could not be sad,
He's my thoughtful, loving, true-hearted Dad.

GUESTROOMS OF S. B. CONVERTED INTO TEMPORARY DORMITORIES

Room on First Floor Also Opened for Hygiene Lecture Room.

The Student Building is, shall we say, growing? Yes, for that is what it may well be called. One day last week the curiosity of all was aroused. No signs of fire were seen, still eyes and imaginations were not playing tricks after all. But why should the girls in Thaxton Cottage all be moving their trunks out in the street and carrying some of their much treasured belongings along, if there was neither fire nor flood? When finally some one asked one of the moving inmates why she was moving, the glance of disdain she received along with the reply, "Don't you know that the third floor Student Building is now ready for our occupancy?" was enough to have frozen her to the spot (but it didn't). Anyway, the desired information was obtained and many received a surprise along with it. No one had noticed that the rapidly flying time is nothing to the rapidity with which the Student Building is being completed.

Instead of running downstairs to hygiene class, the girls now take a promenade along Lover's Lane to the first floor Student Building, where a room has been completed for their use. Students had better keep their eyes open or the first thing they know the building will be completed without their even suspecting the fact. Watch out for further developments!

MY POETIC INSPIRATIONS

At times I feel as though I could write volumes of poetry, especially after having read such poems as Scott's "Lady of the Lake" and Poe's "Annabel Lee." It seems that to them the rhyming verses flowed as steadily and fluently as the ink, itself, from the pen.

Sometimes, when such impulses grasp me, I never have material at hand, and later as hard as I try to recall the scenes which inspired me, they will not come with such vividness as will enable me to write. And again when I have the material at hand, still there is something lacking.

I would that I were so well equipped with the mastery of my language, or the art of expressing my sensations and emotions, that I, too, might seize the instruments and with the apparent ease of the aforesaid poets, paint the beautiful sunsets of the fall, the snow scenes of winter, the atmosphere of budding trees, singing birds and humming bees of spring, and the gorgeous rose gardens in early summer.

Alas! I realize by my many attempts and failures that it is not in my power to do so, and I make myself content with simply enjoying such scenes of reality and continuing to read from the fortunate ones, who are masters of this art.

FARMVILLE'S LATEST ENTERPRISE

New Fifty Room Hotel to Be Erected by Public Subscription.

The citizens of Farmville, for many months have recognized that a new and modern hotel is the one great outstanding need for the growth and development of Farmville. A committee, of which Dr. J. L. Jarman is president, was appointed to ascertain the best possible method of obtaining such a hotel.

A corporation to be known as The Farmville Hotel Corporation is being organized under the laws of the state of Virginia, for the purpose of building and operating a new and modern hotel, which will have fifty rooms and will cost approximately one hundred and thirty-five thousand dollars. It is desired to finance the hotel by local subscriptions. In order to accomplish this, it is proposed to issue six per cent fully paid, non-assessable preferred stock, this will construct and operate the hotel. It is also planned to issue an equal number of shares of common stock.

The Richardson property on the northwest corner of High and North Streets was selected as the site. This is an ideal location, is close to the business, near the railroad station, on a main highway and convenient for visitors to the College.

BETTER MAILING WEEK

Carelessness Costs Taxpayers Over Million Annually.

Lo! there is in our midst a new week. We have Thrift Week, Better Speech Week, Own Your Own Home Week, Eat an Apple Week, Fire Prevention Week, National Education Week, Rat Extermination Week, and hundreds of others. We have just passed a new one. Postmaster General New has designated the week of February 18 to 25 as Better Mailing Week.

As we have co-operated wholeheartedly with other "Weeks" let us do the same for the new one.

No more shall we misaddress mail, or address it carelessly, for if we do, we take the time of the postal clerk from his regular duties to correct, if possible, the address, or to return it to the sender, if his address be given. If not it must be sent to the Dead Letter Office.

For another reason, too we'll no longer be careless. We, the taxpayers, pay $1,470,000 annually, for the salaries of these correction clerks.

Therefore, on all mail sent out by us, we will put the correct address of the person to whom directed, and the correct return address. If we do our part in this campaign, our mail service will be more efficient.

FORMER STUDENT RECEIVES HONORS

Gives Credit to Training of Alma Mater.

Miss Irma F. Price, a graduate of the class of 1912, of this institution, has received the grand prize, two hundred and fifty dollars in a nation-wide contest on "The Teaching of an Ideal." The Literary Digest offered a thousand dollars in prizes on this subject, working on the theory that the average teaching tends to make the pupil ignore the higher things of life in order to obtain material things.

In a letter to Dr. Jarman, Miss Price says: "I want the credit to go where credit is due—to my training in Farmville Normal School."

Every day I feel more and more gratitude to Farmville and I am glad it happened to go there. Your training must be all right."

The old Normal School should be very proud of Miss Price. She has given another proof of the wonderful spirit prevalent in our Alma Mater which passes into each of its daughters as a permanent quality.

"THE DEEPER VOICE"

Miss Annie Steiger Winston, sister to Miss Lula G. Winston, formerly instructor of Chemistry, in this school, is the author of a recently published book now in our library, "The Deeper Voice." Miss Winston has shown a remedy for the pessimism and too intellectual rationalism in modern Christianity in following the Biblical lines. "Verily I say unto you, whoever shall not receive the Kingdom of God as a little child, he shall not enter therein." Miss Winston gives a penetrating analysis of child nature, then urges an humble, childlike faith in Jesus Christ as the solution of the present religious turmoil.

The title is chosen in reference to the following passage from William James' Letters "I have no living sense of communion with God. I envy those who have, for they hear a Deeper Voice."

A SPECTACULAR GAME PLAYED IN ARMOY

Shorts Succumb to Longs After Violent Struggle.

The armory on the evening of Tuesday, February 12, was the scene of a titanic struggle, when the tall members and short members of the Sophomore class met at basketball. The entire game was spectacular. The tall team were resplendent in white with vertical red stripes while the short set were brave in white with horizontal red stripes. The swiftness and alacrity with which all participants chewed their gum was one feature of the game. Miss Evelyn Kendrick, coach for the lengthy team showed remarkable knowledge and ability through the playing of her team. Miss Blanche Edith Olive Graham, coach for the brief team was conspicuous for her fairness and optimism throughout the combat. The coaches took turns at refereeing the game which was played in sixths. We recommend the rules used by these teams in preference to those of Spalding. In spite of their valiant and expert use of cosmetics, gums, ladders, ammonia and fists, the shorts bowed in victory to their lofty opinion by a score of 213 2/3 to 1917 1/8.

The line-up:

Longs—"Stalky" Friend, F.; "Pole" Asher, F.; "Bones" Brett, C.; "Goliath" Roberts, C.; "Beantpole" Walton, G.; "Long Distance" Gray, G.

Shorts—"Shorty" Yost, F.; "Stump" Pruitt, F.; "Tot" Browden, C.; "Brevity" Deaver, C.; "4 Foot" Warren, G.; "Mite" Willis, G.

Substitutes—"String" Beale, "Giraffe" Cleaton, "Dwarf" Hancock, "Chunk" Greathhead.

Referees—Kendrick, Graham.

STANDARDS COMMITTEE

Working on Plan to Improve School's Standards.

At a recent meeting of the Student Standards Committee, the matter of maintaining standards becoming to professional students came up for consideration. At this meeting, the adoption of a code of ethics for professional and for social guidance was suggested as a possible remedy for lax decorum in school. But how to get such a code from the student body was the question. Certain members of the committee were so firm in the belief that governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed, that nothing short of a plan initiated by the students themselves, seemed feasible to them. After a pretty thorough discussion of the benefits to be derived from such a plan, a committee was appointed to initiate a movement by which the sentiment of the student body might be ascertained concerning their attitude toward standards, and toward needed reforms.

CROWDED HOUSE AT THREE PERFORMANCES OF "WIZARD OF OZ"

Annual Glee Club Comic Opera Draws Scores of Visitors and Alumnae.

Under the direction of Miss Christine E. Munoz, the Glee Club of the State Teachers' College presented the comic opera, The Wizard of Oz, last Friday and Saturday nights, in the school auditorium. Credit for its great success must be given to Miss Munoz. The settings were well carried out, and the stage was artistically decorated. The costumes were beautiful and most appropriate.

The story centers about little Dorothy, who finds herself in a strange land after a cyclone has destroyed her Kansas home. Her first adventure is with the Witch of the North. When Dorothy expresses a desire to find her home, the Witch advises her to go to the Wizard of Oz, whom she claims, can do anything. Dorothy makes friends with the Scarecrow, whose one desire is to have brains, the Tin Woodman, who wants a heart, and the Cowardly Lion, who wants courage. She tells them about the Wizard, and they decide that they must see him. Guided by the Munchkins, they set out for the Emerald City, the home of the Great Oz. They arrive at the city, and the Wizard, after hearing them, grants their desires.

Little Miss Jane Hunt Martin, as Dorothy was excellent. There was nothing strained or unnatural in her manner, and she portrayed her part as any little girl would have done, if the circumstances had been real. After seeing Miss Nell McArdle as the Scarecrow, one is certain to change his opinion of scarecrows, for she was a most pathetic figure with her desire for brains.

The part of the Tin Woodman was interpreted by Miss Janie Moore. As the Tin Woodman, she found that her best friend was the oil can. Only too true is the saying that nothing is appreciated until it is gone. Those who heard the Woodman's pitiful tale of his lost heart, would even welcome heart trouble for then they would know that they had hearts.

So realistic was the Lion, that its first appearance on the stage created quite a commotion in the audience. Miss Agnes McDiffie was exceptionally good as the Lion.

How the hearts in the audience fluttered when Miss Evelyn Barnes as the handsome Guard made her appearance! How patriotic one felt, when the Emerald City Guard marched. Only the Wizard's own City Guards could be so perfect. Miss Barnes also took the part of the Witch of the North. As the Witch she sang two selections, "Wind and Lyre," and "The Night Wind." Miss Barnes had a beautiful voice, and last night she was at her best.

Last but not least, was the Wizard himself, splendidly portrayed by Miss Annie Miller Almond. The words of Spring Holiday.

This institution has never had a regular spring holiday. Seniors alone have been the favored ones. Perhaps there was no special need for a general vacation in normal years, years when the students had not remained at school during the entire Christmas holidays. True it is that a holiday of equal length was enforced before Christmas, but it was before Christmas, and going on in a routine manner for such an unbroken stretch taughtens the nerves and enhances the jaded condition of mind and body so obvious at this time of the year. The need for a spring vacation has been recognized by hundreds of the foremost colleges throughout the country, who make this holiday of equal rating with that of Christmas. Why should not we? We need a spring holiday. We deserve it.

Specialization in Education.

The present day, we all know, is one of specialization. He who is a "Jack at all Trades" is nothing but a Jack; he never becomes anything worth while, for he never does anything well. Let us consider exactly what is meant by the term, specialization, as applied to education.

Every teacher should expect to specialize either as teacher of a certain grade, or of a special subject. She who has trained for eighth grade work is not likely to make a success of first grade work. A teacher trained in sewing is not likely to make a successful music teacher.

Our curriculum here has been wisely planned, in so far as it requires every student to select a major and a minor subject at the beginning of her course and to continue those lines of study while in training. The student herself, however, is privileged to choose several electives. From being allowed to choose her electives, she is able to find out along what lines she possesses ability.

School superintendents are looking for the best teachers of the various subjects taught in the public schools. In order to qualify for these positions, teachers must specialize. To secure an attractive position in teaching, we students must become proficient along the line of our specialization. And let us not forget that much good advice is contained in the maxim: "There is always room at the top."

PERSONALS

The annual Glee Club Opera drew many visitors during the past week-end.

Miss Laurice Wyche's sisters and nephew and niece spent the week-end at S. T. C.

Miss Mary Gatlin was the guest of Miss Pauline Timberlake.

AT THE EACO THEATRE—Week February 25th-March 1st.

MONDAY AND TUESDAY—"MY FRIEND, THE DEVIL." A SUPER SPECIAL, based on the stirring novel, "Dr. Rameau," by the famous French author, George Ohnet, and enacted by a select special cast. We do not wish our patrons to miss this picture and there we EMPHASIZE the importance of "My Friend, The Devil," as the best kind of screen entertainment. This story has in it all the elements that make for high class entertainment. It is one that will hold any audience, having many thrilling situations which all lead to one of the strongest and most gripping climaxes in the history of screen drama. DO NOT MISS THIS PICTURE. Pathe News Monday and the 11th episode of "HAUNTED VALLEY" Tuesday. Admission S. N. S. girls 20 cents.

WEDNESDAY—"THE BAREFOOT BOY." A great love story based on the great poem by John Greenleaf Whittier. This SPECIAL PICTURE is enacted by one of the biggest casts ever assembled. HERE IS A PICTURE THAT WILL APPEAL TO EVERY MEMBER OF THE FAMILY. IT IS EXCEPTIONALLY GOOD. Also Aesop Fable. This picture is being put on by The Farmville High School League, for the benefit of school lunch room and boys' athletic association. MATINEE AT 4 O'CLOCK. Admission S. N. S. girls 25 cents.

THURSDAY AND FRIDAY—"THE FAMOUS MRS. FAIR." Another Special Production, enacted by a very select cast, headed by Marguerite De La Motte. An elaborately staged photodrama reflecting American society today. CAN YOUR DAUGHTER TAKE CARE OF HERSELF? Shaking shoulders and cocktails. Painting the town and her lips red. Burning up cigarettes and moonlit roads. While Mrs. Fair was getting famous, her daughter Sylvia knew all the flapper follies. They have their price! This is a great American play screened by a great American director. IT IS A MOST EXCELLENT PICTURE. Fox News Thursday and a GOOD COMEDY Friday. Admission S. N. S. girls 25 cents.

SATURDAY—BESSIE LOVE, GARRETH HUGHES and a fine cast in "FORGET ME NOT." It's a story of a girl nobody wanted—a story of what a home means when you haven't one. A romance of the glory of the young heart. This is a photoplay for even those who think they haven't hearts. Also the 11th episode of "PLUNDER." MATINEE AT 3:30. Admission S. N. S. girls 20 cents.

DR. AIKEN SMART SPEAKS

Series of Lectures on "Christian Fundamentals" Feature of Last Week.

Teacher's College was most fortunate in having Dr. Aiken Smart, of Emory University, Georgia, speak at this institution February 13 through 15. Each year, under the auspices of the Y. W. C. A., a speaker visits this school to give talks on the Fundamentals of Christianity. This year we count ourselves particularly fortunate in having a man like Dr. Smart deliver this series of lectures.

Dr. Smart received his B. S. degree at the Vanderbilt University, then he attended the Union Theological Seminary for three years. For four years he served in the Methodist pulpit at Lynchburg and for four years at Portsmouth. Afterwards while he was at Charlottesville he was called to Georgia to become a charter member of the faculty of Emory University, where for about eight or nine years he has been a professor in the Chandler School of Theology. He received his Doctor's degree from the Southern Methodist University in Texas.

Dr. Smart has spent a great deal of time going about as a lecturer, both at Sunday School Teachers' Training Conferences and at schools and colleges under the auspices of the Y. W. C. A. In addition to this he has written extensively for religious papers, his articles having been published in such magazines as the Missionary Voice.

Dr. Smart is a speaker of unusual ability with an excellent and very forceful personality, with a mind in which there are combined common sense, humor, and intellectuality of a high type. His religious conception is sincere and satisfying, showing him to be a broad-minded thinker who sees the value of the past, the importance of the present, and the possibilities of the future. His series of talks on Christian Fundamentals proved a great success and were greatly enjoyed by not only the students and faculty of the college, but also by many of the people of Farmville.

I CANNOT TELL A LIE

And Other Stories of George Washington.

Fair reader observe the above line is a famous saying of Washington and the author of this article.

As I stood before that monument in the capital city, that tower which is 555 feet going up and as many feet going down, I begin to think over the life of Washington, I remember the incidents in his boyhood days that are worthy of mention and mentioned less than 1,000,000 times every year or the day after the 21st of February.

Of all the incidents, the one of the miniature wild west is the most thrilling. George and his friends went out to ride the "Wild Fire" sorrel. After George planted his number 13 in the stirrups, the colt began to take his "daily dozen" all over the plantation. The boys became alarmed, lost their heads, but George held on to his seat and the reins. The bronco gave up heels over head, and died. Washington's horsemanship truly surpasses that of W. S. Hart and Douglas Fairbanks.

Another story: George's father took him into the apple orchard, whose trees were full of apples. He reminded George of the time his cousin brought him an apple, and he would not divide it with his brothers — whereupon George became very repentant and said, "Truly, father, I will never be selfish again." After that George gave the seeds of his apple to his brothers so they could plant an orchard.

The story of Washington and his flute is generally unknown—but who knows what he could have done with a "baby saxophone?"

On the day after July 2, 1775, General Washington took command of a whole army under the elm tree in Cambridge. The tree is still standing, at least 300 years old. An iron railing surrounds this noble tree, for in its old age it totters.

Washington was noted for his coolness in maneuvers, for he crossed the Delaware River in ice water, with his little band of soldiers.

Cornwallis said, "I can catch the boy," but the Yanks said, "Let George do it." But from the history we gain the real facts, that is, Cornwallis caught the bullets instead of the boy. So calm did he stand that his men said, "he was a stone wall."

And now I refer you to the life of George Washington for any stories that I have omitted. Be sure and read, "Washington and the Cherry Tree," for there lies the subject of my theme. —Adapted from Life of Washington (with due apologies).

ALUMNAE NOTES

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Krebs, on Mountain Avenue, S. W., Roanoke, Virginia was the scene of a beautiful wedding Wednesday night, January 23, at 9:30 o'clock, when their daughter, Miss Katherine Hamilton Krebs, was married to Mr. George William Tate Kearsley, of the same city. The house was lavishly decorated with mountain greens, each room having its own color scheme. In the drawing room, where the ceremony was performed, the walls were hung with delicate evergreens, and pink roses were used in profusion.

The bride and groom left on the midnight train for several weeks' stay in Florida. They will be at home in the Aberdeen Apartments after the middle of February.

The Farmville Alumnae Chapter at a meeting held on February 14, made plans for a benefit card party to add to their Student Building Fund before Founders' Day. The managers of the Prince Edward Hotel have kindly given the use of the dining-room for this occasion and a large number of tables can be accommodated there. Bridge, rook, and Mah Jong will be played, and a pleasant evening is in prospect.

Miss Katherine Trent, president of the Richmond Alumnae Chapter, with alumnae of the other normal schools, worked as a committee to interest legislators in the bill to change the name from State Normal School to State Teachers' College. The result, the passage of the bill by a large majority, showed that their services were effective.

STANDARDS COMMITTEE

in the dining-room responded to the questionnaire prepared by this committee. This is a minority, to be sure, but since the response seems to be from thinking girls, and from the girls who really care, it may be worth while to publish some shortcomings indicated in those twenty-eight papers.

1. Irreverence, discourtesy to speaker or to entertainer, disregard for others who wish to give attention, saving seats, and gum-chewing seem to be the most flagrant faults of the audiences at chapel time and at the evening entertainments.

2. The papers were almost unanimous in their complaint about the "jam" around the doors of Room I, and against the loitering of groups on the hall.

3. Marking desks, writing letters, preparing for other recitations, and chewing gum were mentioned as the only class-room behavior to be frowned upon.

4. Nobody seems to hear the notices in the dining-room! (Pardon the committee for keeping quiet about some of the behavior reported from the dining-room. It is not complimentary to home training.)

5. Meeting or trying to pass four or five walking abreast seems to concern many. Loud and boisterous behavior on the street and down town was mentioned by only a few.

Are you satisfied with conditions as they are? If not, what suggestions have you for improving our school? Is it not possible for certain reforms to be initiated and carried through by classes?

MODERN MORALITY SUPERIOR TO THAT OF PURITANS

States Professor Coyner in Talk to Freshmen

Mr. Boyd Coyner, professor of psychology, gave a very interesting talk last Thursday evening to Miss Douglas Everett's Freshman English classes. He chose as his subject, "The Increase of Knowledge."

Mr. Coyner contrasted the knowledge of the Puritans with the knowledge of the present day. A great many people always associate religion and learning with the Puritans. He showed us their narrow-mindedness and ignorance, by discussing and giving examples of their religious, scientific, and medicinal knowledge.

The religion of the Puritans was very narrow and strict. The social ranking of the people was clear cut and distinct. Anything pleasurable was a crime, and trifling offences were taken seriously. With all of these rules their morality was inferior to the morality of today. Mr. Coyner said that the object of their religion was not for the furtherance of kindness, but as a harsh, stern, and cruel, observance of rules and laws.

The Puritans had very little scientific knowledge. They associated almost every peculiarity of science to some ill omen. They knew little of astronomy, and were superstitious of all of its wonders. They were prejudiced against any new idea about science.

Their knowledge of medicine was very small. The cures which they used were indeed pathetic, but amusing as well. They knew the causes of one or two diseases, and were superstitious of anyone who tried to introduce new causes and cures.

Mr. Coyner concluded by explaining the three theories concerning the increase of knowledge. First, is the static view, which says that there is nothing new under the sun. Second is the idealistic view, which means that everything works out all right in the end. Then there is the scientific view, which willingly tries to see how and why.

Life is much more pleasant now than when the Puritans lived. How did this change come about? It came about through the investigations and hard work of such men as Francis Bacon, who like many others, sacrificed his life for the betterment of civilization. It was through their willingness, attitude, and initiative to see how and why, that we are enjoying the freedom and many wonders of today.

The conductor and a brakeman on a Montana railroad differ as to the proper pronunciation of the name Eureka. Passengers are often startled upon arriving at this station to hear the conductor yell: "You're a liar! You're a liar!" Then from the brakeman at the other end comes the cry: "You really are! You really are!"—Boston Transcript.

CELEBRATION OF BETTER SPEECH WEEK

This week, February 18-23, has been given over to the observance of American Better Speech Week. It has been set aside by the National Education Association for the promotion of better speech throughout the United States.

This week has been of great benefit to us as future teachers. The talks given in chapel, the co-operation of both teachers and students and the wonderful reading by Mr. Wachter, have been a great inspiration and help to us. It has given us the idea of how to arrange and carry out similar programs.

The following program was rendered, under the auspices of the Second Professional class in, "Teaching of English in High Schools."

Tuesday—An introduction of the plans for the week.

Wednesday — A lecture by Dr. Farmer and a reading by Mr. Wachter.

Thursday—Two minute talks by various members of the faculty entitled, "The Value of Good Speech as Related to Their Subjects."

Silent Chapel and Silent Prayers.

Friday—Silent Supper.

STUDENT VOLUNTEERS TO ATTEND LYNCHBURG CONFERENCE

The following girls will represent Farmville at the State Student Volunteers Conference, in Lynchburg from February 29 to March 2: Leah Spitzer, Eva Palmer, Ellen Smith, Frances Scott, Margaret Disharoon, Alice Disharoon, Frances Sale, Katherine Dashiels, Lula May Babb, Mary Maupin, Frances Baskerville, Ella Jones, Birdie Reynolds, Elizabeth Earnest, and May Parker.

LONG HAIRS ENTERTAIN

On February 22, 1924, the long-haired Freshmen, again, invited all to come and join them in the shaking of the light fantastic toe, in the Gym. at 8:30. This dance was one of the most enjoyable events of the season even vying with H. S. C. Mid-winters.

The decorations of green and white were most tasteful and cherry and chocolate ice cream cones were said to be filled most artistically. But the crowning success of the whole entertainment was the orchestra. This orchestra was one never before seen in Farmville. It consisted of six young gentlemen (all white). They all showed remarkable talent not to mention pep (especially after having a turn at the bottle, which contained some light brown liquid, claimed to be ginger ale).

All dancers left at exactly six and three-quarters past eleven and many were heard to say that this newly discovered orchestra not only plainly surpasses Hilton's but even ranked above Garber Davis.

POET DELIGHTS AUDIENCE

Mr. Carl Wachter, of Richmond, spoke at Chapel Wednesday morning, February 20, and also in the auditorium Saturday night, February 23. Mr. Wachter read and criticised both original poems and those by famous authors.

Mr. Wachter has taught in Buffalo and Albany. His health having failed him he came South—and at present is traveling for an investment concern which is situated in Richmond.

The audience was much charmed by Mr. Wachter's pleasing personality, beautiful poems and dramatic ability. His hearers will look forward with much interest to Mr. Wachter's return, which he promises will not only be at an early date but will also be frequently repeated.

The Senior Class, under whose auspices he appeared for the Student Building gave an informal reception for him after the program. Miss Christine E. Munoz entertained for Mr. Wachter Sunday afternoon. Some students especially interested in poetry were present to learn more of his theories and opinions.

SENIORS ENTERTAIN CLASS MAN

The Senior class gave a Valentine Party, Tuesday, February 19, in honor of Miss Mary Clay Hiner. The class colors, red and white were carried out in the Valentine favors and decorations. Before the last course the mail box was opened and valentines found there for all. Much amusement was found in the reading of the valentines and in the discussion of a certain something not yet given for publication.

H. G. Goodman and M. W. Cousins, two of the best cartoonists at V. P. I., are busy designing the new V. P. I. Psalm Book. LITERARY SOCIETIES

Athenians.

A regular meeting of the Athenian Literary Society was held in the Y. W. C. A. Social Room, Saturday afternoon, February 16. The following program was given:

1. Vocal solo—Annie Gaylard.

2. Origin of Valentine Day—Daisy Mitchell.

3. Recitation, "Jack's Valentine"—Betty Hopkins.

4. A Valentine Contest.

The prize for this was won by Miss Florence Riss.

Delicious refreshments were served. The meeting adjourned to meet again February 29, 1924.

Jefferson.

The Jefferson Literary Society held its regular meeting in room "J" on Wednesday evening, February 20. The following short program was rendered:

Charades, by Dorothy Aschew and Frieda Crookin.

Discussion of the opera, "Damnation of Faust," by Annie Robertson.

FOUND—A fountain pen was found in the auditorium, February 15, after Chapel. Call at the Rotunda Office and get it.

HAMPDEN-SIDNEY INTERMEDIATE SOCIETY CELEBRATION

The annual Intermediate Literary Society Celebration at Hampden-Sidney College was held in McIlwaine Hall, Friday, February twenty-second, at eight o'clock.

Three representatives from each of the two literary societies made excellent speeches on various subjects, among them, "The Renaissance of Youth," "Cushing Hall," "Woodrow Wilson" and others.

In between the talks, Lucille Hogge, Elizabeth Ware and Elizabeth Paylor entertained the audience with songs and readings. "The Usual Way," a reading by Elizabeth Paylor, seemed to especially appeal to the audience.

Following is the program:

PHILANTHROPIC SOCIETY

Fredericksburg-Farmville.

We were immensely proud of the student body at the last game. We had occasion to be. In the first place the cheering was good—spontaneous, even and strong. Excellent judgment as to when to cheer and when not to cheer was evinced. But best evidence of all, of pure, unadulterated sportsmanship was shown when the game was called off within a minute of the end of the last half by Fredericksburg on account of rough playing. There was no question, of course, to whom the game justly belonged, but a slap in the face, although it may not injure, is none the less an insult. We took an insult gracefully and according to our code.

If we did not know that the action of the Fredericksburg team came as the result of direct orders from their captain—and their coach—and not as the result of the concerted opinion of the players, our censorship might be more severe.

Our definition of the word "sportsmanship" may differ from that of those representatives of our late opponents, but perhaps our readers will recall another game at which not only was the playing rough, but the referee unfair. Our team stuck until the end. The past game was rough, but no rougher than the playing necessitated and the referee (selected by the visiting team) was fair and impartial. We have nothing to regret.

Campus Fee.

We have a Campus Fee. Our soul is troubled with no "tag days." No "drives" harass our mind. We are annoyed with no insinuations that our school honor is perjured because we have not subscribed to this, that or the other. So far, so good. But, is there any particular use in combatting one fault with another? Is there any particular use in having a fee so inadequate that only one of the items included is sufficient—that providing for the Lyceum Course?

The Athletic Association gets 60 per cent. of its proposed budget. Consequently visiting teams cannot be entertained with the customary Farmville hospitality. More important still, advance equipment cannot be acquired and the school's athletic activity is limited to two sports—basketball and baseball. In this day of college sporting versatility that is too limited a scope for a school of this size. The budget of the Student Government has been halved. The Rotunda has more money than ever before due to the certainty of collection of money due on subscriptions, but it must have more. The space devoted to advertisements needs to be halved at least. If we have a good thing, let us have it a really good thing and make the Campus Fee adequate.

OUTLINE OF THESIS ON "TEACHING AN IDEAL"

By Miss Irma Frances Price, Winner of First Prize in "Digest" Contest.

Announcement was made in last week's Rotunda that Miss Irma Frances Price, a former student here, had won the first prize in an essay contest on "The Teaching of an Ideal," held by The Literary Digest. The Digest gives the skeleton form of her thesis in the February 23 issue. The outline is as follows:

"Organize the English classes into a 'Service Workshop.'

Inspire each pupil to make a 'Service Book' as an outgrowth of class work.

Use the following as a basis:

1. Theme: The dignity and greatness of work and workers.
2. Slogan: 'The will to work for men.'
3. For service laboratory work, divide each class into two sections.
4. Elect a chairman to conduct discussions, a secretary to record decisions and three judges to decide which section tests issues most soundly.

5. Laboratory period: Each section meets separately to discuss articles in the current Literary Digest in view of service, to compare the people in the Digest who are serving, with those of the town and state; to make out a list of 'Service Traits,' basing it on the personal qualities of those under discussion. Fill out a World Service list, giving name, place, personal traits, specific service to whom, value.

6. Each secretary reports the 'Service List' from a blackboard poster, made by elected artists. Each chairman has his members justify the choice and climax of his list. The judges name the better list as a whole or in part, stating their reasons, thus revealing the sound thinking of each section. From this decision, make one final list which each copies in his 'Service Book.'

Elect judges weekly on the merit of judgment used in selecting the final list.

7. Each pupil makes a 'Community Service List,' from observation and newspapers.

AT THE EACO THEATRE—Week March 3rd-8th

MONDAY—CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG in one of her latest Metro Classic Pictures, "THE WOMAN OF BRONZE." A photoplay that plays on all the strings of human emotion. It is the story of a wife who believed a man can love the same woman twice. Also Pathe News.

TUESDAY—MILTON SILLS and a select cast in "THE FORGOTTEN LAW." Can a child's voice redeem those who condemn? This question is answered by this most forceful photodrama of a decade. One man, two women, and a transgressor of—The Forgotten Law—these dynamic elements bring about this most forceful photodrama. Also 12th episode of HAUNTED VALLEY.

WEDNESDAY—WILLIAM FARNUM in "THE GUNFIGHTER." Doris May is also in the cast. Here is a production that is tremendous in scope, thrilling in development, and offering a variety of entertainment seldom equalled. The scenes are admirably photographed, startingly staged, and there is plenty of action and suspense. Also Aesop Fable.

THURSDAY AND FRIDAY—MAE MURRAY and MONTE BLUE in the super SPECIAL PRODUCTION "BROADWAY ROSE." This is an incredibly lavish production. A glittering drama of the bright lights of Broadway, in which a famous dancer seeks love and finds disillusionment. Gorgeous gowns, stupendous sets and a love story of deep appeal, with the splendor of society and the glamor of the Gay White Way. The brilliant star in the most spectacular production of her career. THIS IS A MOST EXCELLENT AND HIGH CLASS PRODUCTION. Fox News Thursday and a GOOD COMEDY Friday. Admission to S. N. S. Girls, 25 cents.

SATURDAY—JOHN GILBERT, the star of Monte Christo, in "THE LOVE GAMBLER." A story about a young man who bet that by, or before a certain day, he could kiss a certain girl, and also that he would tame and ride a wild horse. How he proceeds to do this, is the theme of the story. We also show the 12th episode of "PLUNDER." Matinee at 3:30. Admission to each show except Thursday and Friday, 20 cents to S. N. S. girls.

FARMVILLE SEXTETTE DEFEATS FREDERICKSBURG

Fredericksburg Outclassed by Opponents' Brilliance and Speed.

The Fredericksburg-Farmville clash was one of the fastest and most brilliant basketball games of the season. Never has the Farmville team been seen to play a better brand of ball. Although the game started with a bang, and Fredericksburg arose to the occasion only after Treagle had caged four field goals, it was no walk away for Farmville. When the Fredericksburg team located themselves, they came forward at a rapid stride and several times endangered Farmville's victory. It is a pity that such a game should have been marred by the calling off of the game by Fredericksburg (for rough playing) within a minute of the end.

The score shows that the game was no cinch for Farmville, although they outplayed their opponents at every turn. At the end of the first half the score was 13 to 8 in Farmville's favor. Five minutes before time was called, the score was still in Farmville's favor, 19 to 18. The final score was 25 to 20.

Summary and line-up:

Fredericksburg Pos.	Farmville
Broaddus (C.)	F.....Treagle (C.)
Chenault	F.....Hall, H.
Squires	C.....Whaley
Evans	C.....Walton
Blaydes	G.....Hall, E.
Johnson	G.....Hall, M.

Field Goals: Farmville, 12; Treagle (9), Hall (1), McKenney (2), Fredericksburg 6; Broaddus (3), Chenault (3). Free throws—Fredericksburg (8); Farmville (1). Substitutions—McKenney for H. Hall, Waddill for M. Hall.

Time—15 minute halves. Referee—Miss Eva Moody, Central High School, Washington, D. C. Umpire—Walton, Farmville. Scorekeeper—Lewis, Fredericksburg. Timekeeper—Buford, Farmville.

NEW DINING ROOM BLUE-PRINTS IN HANDS OF CONTRACTORS

Will Have Seating Capacity of 1000; Recreation Room Below.

The blueprints of the new dining room are in the hands of the contractors, ready for their building. The contract will be issued March 1. The date of completion of the building is uncertain, but will probably be before 1925. The new dining room is to be a great improvement over the old; it will not only be larger, seating from 1000 to 1100 students, but more beautiful and convenient.

The building is to be 145 feet long and 125 feet wide with the dining room and kitchen on the main floor. The dining room connects with the reception hall by means of a vestibule. Of the two exits, one connects with the porch back of the Business Office and the other to a porch to be built in the rear of the Junior parlor. A balcony 25 feet wide will be on the east and west sides of the dining room; part of this space will be used as a serving room and part as a dining room. Above the vestibule will be a parlor.

In the basement of the building are storage rooms, the cold storage plant and a recreation hall 150 feet long and fifty feet wide. At one end is a raised platform where the orchestra may be seated.

TEN AUTHORS ON THE ROAD TO FAME

(Note: Some of the books mentioned in this article have just been presented to the library by Miss Everett's Freshman English class, of which the author of this criticism is a member.)

Once upon a time ten authors started out on the road to fame, each armed with the aim of writing a book. The Common Highway was very crowded; consequently, these writers soon divided into groups and took smaller roads of Description, Character and Plot. Four, otherwise, Hansum, Lagerlof, Hemon and Cather chose Description. Character appealed to Sinclair, Wharton, James, and Bennett, but Plot attracted Hardy and Hergesheimer. Sometimes these warfs intermingled, but, finally, each author took a separate and distinct path.

Hansum made progress with simple, direct sentences in a realistic, yet sometimes startling manner, and obtained at the end "The Growth of the Soil." Lagerlof's path, although branching from the same road, resembled the first only in simplicity. Here, "The Story of Gosta Berling" unfolded, permeated with legends of Sweden, and enlivened with beautiful descriptions of nature. Description was also prominent on Hemon's way to "Maria Chapdelaine," but it differed from the others in its pure, religious tones, and unusual metaphors. Willa Cather, also, used the road of Description in a practical, straightforward manner to reveal her ideas in "One of Ours."

All of the paths leading from character were more complicated than those from Description. Mac Sinclair's course passed through paragraphs of analytical, and often ironical character sketches, broken by bits of realistic conversation. Every means was used to obtain the full character of "Mr. Waddington of Wych." The result was very humorous to the reader. Henry James' "The Portrait of a Lady" was similar to the preceding book in its psychological study of characters, but the end was gained only through intricate and tiresome passages. In direct contrast with this was Edith Wharton's method of progress. Her way was paved with sophistication, and made clear by forceful, modern sentences, through which real persons appeared. Real people also lived and talked among the pages of "The Old Wive's Tale," by Bennett. He accomplished the end, however, after long simple, though pleasant plodding.

The byways of Pot had only two persistent travelers. Hardy, guided by Plot, waded into an atmosphere, splotted with local color, and heavy with the thought of Fate governing the lives of everyone. These ideas culminated in "A Pair of Blue Eyes." Plot also controlled Hergesheimer as his way unwound towards "The Three Black Pennies," although he touched Description enough to identify each chapter with suggestive, powerful words.

All of the authors ended their quests in that exclusive city of Fame, armed with the book, now, in place of the aim.

FARMVILLE LOSES TO HARRISONBURG

Lightning Hath Struck Us.

The Farmville and Harrisonburg sextettes clashed, in their first game of the season, Friday night, February 29. Although the Harrisonburg squad was outweighed by the Farmville squad they were not handicapped by Farmville's extra weight. The Farmville squad did not play its usual brand of ball. The pass-work in the center was different from that usually used by our centers and was not up to the standard. The team was never seen to play slower ball. Harrisonburg has a light and fast team, but their score should not have been as large as it was and it wouldn't have been if Farmville had played its regular class of ball. In fact, Treacle and M. Hall were the only members of the Farmville squad who played real ball, and they as usual played a stellar brand.

Summary and line-up:

Harrisonburg Pos.	Farmville
Rosen, J.	F. Treacle (C)
Doan F.	Sawyer
Clone C.	Whaley
Nickell C.	Walton
Cochenill G.	Hall, M.
Harrison G.	Hall, E.

Field goals: Harrisonburg 16; Rosen (11), Doan (4), Cook (1). Farmville 6: Treacle (6). Free throws—Harrisonburg 1; Farmville 2. Substitutions—McKenney for Sawyer, Bell for Whaley, Reid for Walton, Bell for E. Hall, Cook for Doan.

Time—15 minute halves. Referee—Jack Haas from Washington, D. C. Umpire—Dr. Fraiser, Farmville, Va.

BENEFIT CARD PARTY FOR STUDENT BUILDING

On Tuesday night, February 26, the Farmville Chapter of the Alumnae Association gave a benefit card party to add to their Founder's Day contribution to the Student Building Fund. The attractive rooms generously lent by the Fraternity Club furnished a pleasant meeting place for the 70 or 80 players present.

About ten o'clock delicious refreshments were served for which the Chapter is indebted to Miss Cary Jeter, who was assisted by the Gamma Theta Sorority.

In addition to adding a substantial sum to our treasury the occasion enabled those present to spend an enjoyable evening. The committees in charge consisted of Mrs. Boyd Coyner, Mrs. E. R. Booker, Miss Cary Jeter, Mrs. T. G. Hardy, Miss Mary Clay Hiner, Miss Ada Bierbower.

How soon the world forgets its heroes! Nobody seems to remember even the name of the person who finally won the marathon dancing championship a few months ago.

FRESHMAN CLASS GIVES THREE-ACT FARCE

The Freshman Class presented "Molly's Aunt" last Thursday night in the college auditorium.

Each actor was exceedingly well suited to her part and interpreted the role of the character she represented realistically and with ease. It cannot be said that one part was portrayed with more skill than another.

The story is one which is typical of the families of today. The Griggs family is out for a good time in general and due to the fact that an old maid aunt is going to make them a visit they determine to change their way of living and become very "proper." Therefore, a jazzy and slangy family is changed into one which is sedate and not at all given to "low-brow" life; to their surprise they find that this does not please the aunt who is found to crave what they had given up.

The program was as follows:

Cast.

Denman Griggs, a manufacturer with political aspirations—Madeline McMurdo.

Chubby Jones, an influential politician—Bessie Meade Riddle.

Fred Fitzgerald, the son of a pickle manufacturer—Elizabeth Crute.

Marietta Griggs, Denman's gay wife—Nancy Weisger.

Jane Cabell, the visiting aunt—Evelyn Beckham.

Seraphine Peabody, maid-of-all-work—Louise Jones.

Molly Griggs, the daughter of Denman Griggs—Claudia Anderson.

Synopsis.

Act I—Library of Grigg's home.

Act II—Same, one week later.

Act III—Same, four weeks later.

Place—Any city in United States.

Time—Present.

PEABODY FOUNDER'S DAY

Farmville Alumni Celebrate Peabody Founders' Day

Founders' Day of their Alma Mater is always a red letter day for the students of George Peabody College for teachers wherever they may be. This year the get together meeting of the alumni took the form of an informal dinner in the tea room. There are at present in Farmville twenty former students and faculty members of Peabody, sixteen of whom attended the alumni dinner. Former days at Nashville were recalled and news of old classmates and teachers discussed, until a real Peabody atmosphere pervaded that corner of the tea room. Earlier in the day a telegram had been sent to Dr. Payne expressing love and good wishes of the alumni and assuring him of their loyal support.

Rum runners are not fish even though the biggest ones do get away.

'SOUR GRAPES' SUBJECT OF DR. OTT'S LECTURE

Auditorium Crowded to Hear Well Known Chautauqua Speaker.

Mr. Edward Amherst Ott, famous educator and lecturer, delivered a most inspiring talk Friday night, February 29, in the school auditorium, the subject of which was "Sour Grapes." Mr. Ott's earnestness and eloquence gripped his audience and held them fascinated for nearly two hours.

The great trouble with the American people, says Mr. Ott, is that they do not know how to live; living is an art, and although the Americans think they are perfect they have not learned the art of living. He says, however, that it can be learned, but that the American people have never realized that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. They have too much faith in cure, and money, which should be used for educational purposes is deposited at the drug stores.

Again, Americans have a mistaken idea about school. They expect the teacher to literally make over the children. Parents never seem to realize that the teacher often has poor material, due to the lack of home training and the parents' carelessness in building up the physical bodies of their children. After all, everything depends on the physical condition of the body, for only the man with the clear brain and healthy body can accomplish great tasks. Yet, millions of Americans are weakening themselves by the use of drugs.

One great cause for the increase in the number of degenerates is that the marriage laws are not strict enough. Statistics show that the marriage of two degenerates has resulted in twelve hundred criminals, or as Dr. Ott says, one large bunch of sour grapes. Dr. Ott believes that the only way to decrease the number of degenerates is to allow them to die single and childless. The number can also be decreased by teaching the grandeur and sacredness of marriage, by having hygienic and sanitary marriage laws, and by marriage announcement laws.

Thus, one can readily see that the great problem which America has to face today is that of heredity, not environment. If one is not pleased with his environment, he can easily move; not so, however, with heredity, one is either blessed or cursed. Why should the right to live be crushed at birth?

DR. TIDYMAN ATTENDS CONVENTION OF N. A. S. S. T.

WAITING FOR THE BELL

Upon picking up your book and pencil to take to your most dreaded class the thought comes to your mind, "How I hate to go to this class; if I ever live through this day, I'll certainly study my lessons for tomorrow." Perhaps you may even put the thought into words.

The first fifteen minutes passes very quickly compared with the next fifteen, and very, very quickly compared with the next. By this time you have of course answered to roll call and all fears of a written lesson are removed. At short intervals you anxiously look at your watch and notice that the hands are slowly moving around to the hour, and all the time you are hoping that you will not be asked a question.

After waiting longer to look at your watch again, you discover that it's ten minutes to the hour. Then you lean forward on your elbow, crossing your feet several times, pushing two or three hair pins back in place, tracing the figure eight on a piece of paper; after all of this only five minutes have passed. For the next five minutes the same procedure is probably repeated until you hear the words "For next time," and then you joyfully open your book and get the assignment. You are then dismissed, feeling sure that you'll never get in such a predicament again although you have escaped without injury today.

Correct This Sentence.

"Be sure it is a ring with a small diamond," said the girl to the rich suitor whom she had just promised to marry, "a large stone looks so conspicuous."

Watch the autos. You can't tell what they are driving at.

VIRGINIAN MAY BE RECEIVED MAY 15

The members of the Virginian Staff feel that they are almost at the end of their labors. Practically all of the engraving has been done, a great part having been sent to the engraver early enough to receive a discount amounting to quite a large sum. This discount is being expended for making a better Virginian.

A large part of the material has been sent to the printer and the staff is working diligently to have all material ready by March 15, thus enabling the subscribers to the annual to receive their books by May 15.

DE-HO-EC CLUB TO LOOK FOR S. B.

The De-Ho-Ec Club held its regular meeting February 27. The purpose of this meeting was to formulate plans for raising money for the Student Building.

As these girls are the ones who are in the Department of Home Economics, they decided to make money by the sale of their own products. You may bet that the Student Building will soon be completed as these girls by their savory cooking will collect all the stray dimes and nickels in the dormitories.

The De-Ho-Ec Club has often been mispronounced, and for what it stands is not generally known. It stands for the Department of Home Economics which consists of all girls majoring and minoring in Home Economics, and those taking Course five.

ALUMNAE NOTES

The Charlottesville Alumnae Chapter gave a subscription card party March 1 in the Elks' Home which was lent them for the occasion.

Several Farmville alumnae were in the bridal party of Miss Empie Shepard, whose marriage to Dr. Lawrence Owen Sneed, of Richmond, was solemnized in the Beth Car Baptist Church, Halifax, at six o'clock Saturday, February 9. Preceding the ceremony Miss Myrtle Dinton, of Massawadox, sang Schubert's "Serenade," "I Love You Truly," and "At Dawning." The church was beautifully decorated with ferns, palms and cathedral candles. The bride was lovely in a gown of satin, cotton, elaborately embroidered, with veil of illusion and Duchesse lace. Misses Esther Dodson, of Burkeville, Elizabeth Morning, of Farmville, wore costumes of maize Georgette and carried shepherd crooks of gold tied with rainbow tulle, with which they formed an arch for the bride. Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home. Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. David Webb gave a dance to the bridal party. Dr. and Mrs. Sneed will make their home in Richmond.

NEW DINING ROOM BLUE-PRINTS IN HANDS OF CONTRACTORS

Will Have Seating Capacity of 1000; Recreation Room Below.

The blueprints of the new dining room are in the hands of the contractors, ready for their building. The contract will be issued March 1. The date of completion of the building is uncertain, but will probably be before 1925. The new dining room is to be a great improvement over the old; it will not only be larger, seating from 1000 to 1100 students, but more beautiful and convenient.

The building is to be 145 feet long and 125 feet wide with the dining room and kitchen on the main floor. The dining room connects with the reception hall by means of a vestibule. Of the two exits, one connects with the porch back of the Business Office and the other to a porch to be built in the rear of the Junior parlor. A balcony 25 feet wide will be on the east and west sides of the dining room; part of this space will be used as a serving room and part as a dining room. Above the vestibule will be a parlor.

In the basement of the building are storage rooms, the cold storage plant and a recreation hall 150 feet long and fifty feet wide. At one end is a raised platform where the orchestra may be seated.

TEN AUTHORS ON THE ROAD TO FAME

(Note: Some of the books mentioned in this article have just been presented to the library by Miss Everett's Freshman English class, of which the author of this criticism is a member.)

Once upon a time ten authors started out on the road to fame, each armed with the aim of writing a book. The Common Highway was very crowded; consequently, these writers soon divided into groups and took small roads of Description, Character and Plot. Four, otherwise, Hansum, Lagerlof, Hemon and Cather chose Description. Character appealed to Sinclair, Wharton, James, and Bennett, but Plot attracted Hardy and Hergesheimer. Sometimes these waris intermingled, but, finally, each author took a separate and distinct path.

Hansum made progress with simple, direct sentences in a realistic, yet sometimes startling manner, and obtained at the end "The Growth of the Soil." Lagerlof's path, although branching from the same road, resembled the first only in simplicity. Here, "The Story of Gosta Berling," unfolded, permeated with legends of Sweden, and enlivened with beautiful descriptions of nature. Description was also prominent on Hemon's way to "Maria Chapdelaine," but it differed from the others in its pure, religious tones, and unusual metaphors. Plot also controlled Hergesheimer as his way unwound towards "The Three Black Pennies," although he touched Description enough to identify each chapter with suggestive, powerful words.

All of the authors ended their quests in that exclusive city of Fame, armed with the book, now, in place of the aim.

FARMVILLE LOSES TO HARRISONBURG

Lightning Hath Struck Us.

The Farmville and Harrisonburg sextettes clashed, in their first game of the season, Friday night, February 29. Although the Harrisonburg squad was outweighed by the Farmville squad they were not handicapped by Farmville's extra weight. The Farmville squad did not play its usual brand of ball. The pass-work in the center was different from that usually used by our centers and was not up to the standard. The team was never seen to play slower ball. Harrisonburg has a light and fast team, but their score should not have been as large as it was and it wouldn't have been if Farmville had played its regular class of ball. In fact, Treacle and M. Hall were the only members of the Farmville squad who played real ball, and they as usual played a stellar brand.

Summary and line-up:

Harrisonburg	Pos.	Farmville
Rosen, J.	F.	Treacle (C)
Doan	F.	Sawyer
Clone	C.	Whaley
Nickell	C.	Walton
Cochenill	G.	Hall, M.
Harrison	G.	Hall, E.

Field goals: Harrisonburg 16; Rosen (11), Doan (4), Cook (1). Farmville 6; Treacle (6). Free throws—Harrisonburg 1; Farmville 2. Substitutions—McKenney for Sawyer, Bell for Whaley, Reid for Walton, Bell for E. Hall, Cook for Doan.

Time—15 minute halves. Referee—Jack Haas from Washington, D. C. Umpire—Dr. Fraiser, Farmville, Va.

BENEFIT CARD PARTY FOR STUDENT BUILDING

On Tuesday night, February 26, the Farmville Chapter of the Alumnae Association gave a benefit card party to add to their Founder's Day contribution to the Student Building Fund. The attractive rooms generously lent by the Fraternity Club furnished a pleasant meeting place for the 70 or 80 players present.

About ten o'clock delicious refreshments were served for which the Chapter is indebted to Miss Cary Jeter, who was assisted by the Gamma Theta Sorority.

In addition to adding a substantial sum to our treasury the occasion enabled those present to spend an enjoyable evening. The committees in charge consisted of Mrs. Boyd Coyner, Mrs. E. R. Booker, Miss Cary Jeter, Mrs. T. G. Hardy, Miss Mary Clay Hiner, Miss Ada Bierbower.

How soon the world forgets its heroes! Nobody seems to remember even the name of the person who finally won the marathon dancing championship a few months ago.

FRESHMAN CLASS GIVES THREE-ACT FARCE

The Freshman Class presented "Molly's Aunt" last Thursday night in the college auditorium.

Each actor was exceedingly well suited to her part and interpreted the role of the character she represented realistically and with ease. It cannot be said that one part was portrayed with more skill than another.

The story is one which is typical of the families of today. The Griggs' family is out for a good time in general and due to the fact that an old maid aunt is going to make them a visit they determine to change their way of living and become very "proper." Therefore, a jazzy and slangy family is changed into one which is sedate and not at all given to "low-brow" life; to their surprise they find that this does not please the aunt who is found to crave what they had given up.

The program was as follows:

Cast.

Denman Griggs, a manufacturer with political aspirations—Madeline McMurdo.

Chubby Jones, an influential politician—Bessie Meade Riddle.

Fred Fitzgerald, the son of a pickle manufacturer—Elizabeth Crute.

Marietta Griggs, Denman's gay wife—Nancy Weisger.

Jane Cabell, the visiting aunt—Evelyn Beckham.

Seraphy Peabody, maid-of-all-work—Louise Jones.

Molly Griggs, the daughter of Denman Griggs—Claudia Anderson.

Synopsis.

Act I—Library of Grigg's home.

Act II—Same, one week later.

Act III—Same, four weeks later.

Place—Any city in United States.

Time—Present.

PEABODY FOUNDER'S DAY

Farmville Alumni Celebrate Peabody Founders' Day

Founders' Day of their Alma Mater is always a red letter day for the students of George Peabody College for teachers wherever they may be. This year the get together meeting of the alumni took the form of an informal dinner in the tea room. There are at present in Farmville twenty former students and faculty members of Peabody, sixteen of whom attended the alumni dinner. Former days at Nashville were recalled and news of old classmates and teachers discussed, until a real Peabody atmosphere pervaded that corner of the tea room. Earlier in the day a telegram had been sent to Dr. Payne expressing love and good wishes of the alumni and assuring him of their loyal support.

Rum runners are not fish even though the biggest ones do get away.

'SOUR GRAPES' SUBJECT OF DR. OTT'S LECTURE

Auditorium Crowded to Hear Well Known Chautauqua Speaker.

Mr. Edward Amherst Ott, famous educator and lecturer, delivered a most inspiring talk Friday night, February 29, in the school auditorium, the subject of which was "Sour Grapes." Mr. Ott's earnestness and eloquence gripped the audience and held them fascinated for nearly two hours.

The great trouble with the American people, says Mr. Ott, is that they do not know how to live; living is an art, and although the Americans think they are perfect they have not learned the art of living. He says, however, that it can be learned, but that the American people have never realized that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. They have too much faith in cure, and money, which should be used for educational purposes is deposited at the drug stores.

Again, Americans have a mistaken idea about school. They expect the teacher to literally make over the children. Parents never seem to realize that the teacher often has poor material, due to the lack of home training and the parents' carelessness in building up the physical bodies of their children. After all, everything depends on the physical condition of the body, for only the man with the clear brain and healthy body can accomplish great tasks. Yet, millions of Americans are weakening themselves by the use of drugs.

One great cause for the increase in the number of degenerates is that the marriage laws are not strict enough. Statistics show that the marriage of two degenerates has resulted in twelve hundred criminals, or as Dr. Ott says, one large bunch of sour grapes. Dr. Ott believes that the only way to decrease the number of degenerates is to allow them to die single and childless. The number can also be decreased by teaching the grandeur and sacredness of marriage, by having hygienic and sanitary marriage laws, and by marriage announcement laws.

Thus, one can readily see that the great problem which America has to face today is that of heredity, not environment. If one is not pleased with his environment, he can easily move; not so, however, with heredity, one is either blessed or cursed. Why should the right to live be crushed at birth?

DR. TIDYMAN ATTENDS CONVENTION OF N. A. S. S. T.

Dr. Tidyman spent the week of February 25-March 1 in Chicago attending the meetings of the National Association of Supervisors of Student Teaching of which he is president, and other organizations allied with the National Educational Association.

FOUNDER'S DAY PROGRAM

8:30—Decoration of College in the College Colors.

10:30—College Songs.
Stunts by Classes and Other Organizations.
College Songs.

2:00—Processional—Alma Mater Song.

Prayer—Rev. Roscoe White.

Music—Glee Club.
Address—Dr. Douglas Freeman, Editor of The News Leader, Richmond, Virginia.

8:00—Pageant—Dramatization of Dr. C. Alphonso Smith's "What Can Literature Do for Me," by Miss Elizabeth Davis; presented by the six literary societies under the direction of Miss Margaret Moore.

Report concerning Student Building by Dr. Jarman.
College Songs.

WAITING FOR THE BELL

Upon picking up your book and pencil to take to your most dreaded class the thought comes to your mind, "How I hate to go to this class; if I ever live through this day, I'll certainly study my lessons for tomorrow." Perhaps you may even put the thought into words.

The first fifteen minutes passes very quickly compared with the next fifteen, and very, very quickly compared with the next. By this time you have of course answered to roll call and all fears of a written lesson are removed. At short intervals you anxiously look at your watch and notice that the hands are slowly moving around to the hour, and all the time you are hoping that you will not be asked a question.

After waiting longer to look at your watch again, you discover that it's ten minutes to the hour. Then you lean forward on your elbow, crossing your feet several times, pushing two or three hair pins back in place, tracing the figure eight on a piece of paper; after all of this only five minutes have passed. For the next five minutes the same procedure is probably repeated until you hear the words "For next time," and then you joyfully open your book and get the assignment. You are then dismissed, feeling sure that you'll never get in such a predicament again although you have escaped without injury today.

Correct This Sentence.

"Be sure it is a ring with a small diamond," said the girl to the rich suitor whom she had just promised to marry, "a large stone looks so conspicuous."

Watch the autos. You can't tell what they are driving at.

VIRGINIAN MAY BE RECEIVED MAY 15

The members of the Virginian Staff feel that they are almost at the end of their labors. Practically all of the engraving has been done, a great part having been sent to the engraver early enough to receive a discount amounting to quite a large sum. This discount is being expended for making a better Virginian.

A large part of the material has been sent to the printer and the staff is working diligently to have all material ready by March 15, thus enabling the subscribers to the annual to receive their books by May 15.

DE-HO-EC CLUB TO LOOK FOR S. B.

The De-Ho-Ec Club held its regular meeting February 27. The purpose of this meeting was to formulate plans for raising money for the Student Building.

As these girls are the ones who are in the Department of Home Economics, they decided to make money by the sale of their own products. You may bet that the Student Building will soon be completed as these girls by their savory cooking will collect all the stray dimes and nickels in the dormitories.

The De-Ho-Ec Club has often been mispronounced, and for what it stands is not generally known. It stands for the Department of Home Economics, which consists of all girls majoring and minoring in Home Economics, and those taking Course five.

ALUMNAE NOTES

The Charlottesville Alumnae Chapter gave a subscription card party March 1 in the Elks' Home which was lent them for the occasion.

Several Farmville alumnae were in the bride party of Miss Empe Shepherd, whose marriage to Dr. Lawrence Owen Sneed, of Richmond, was solemnized in the Beth Car Baptist Church, Halifax, at six o'clock Saturday, February 9. Preceding the ceremony Miss Myrtle Dinton, of Massawadox, sang Schubert's "Serenade," "I Love You Truly," and "At Dawning." The church was beautifully decorated with ferns, palms and cathedral candles. The bride was lovely in a gown of satin tulle, elaborately embroidered, with veil of illusion and Duchess lace. Misses Esther Dodson, of Burkeville, Elizabeth Morning, of Farmville, wore costumes of maize Georgette and carried shepherd crooks of gold tied with rainbow tulle, with which they formed an arch for the bride. Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home. Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. David Webb gave a dance to the bride party. Dr. and Mrs. Sneed will make their home in Richmond.

S. I. N. A. or V. I. N. A?

Once there was a Southern Intercollegiate Newspaper Association. Where is it now? Echo answers, "Where?" The S. I. N. A. arose from a need. The need still exists. No group of people can be sufficient unto itself; it has problems that it cannot solve alone, it must borrow thoughts and ideas. The newspaper is one of the chief connecting links between colleges. Should not the link be strengthened? Should not intercollegiate co-operation be encouraged?

A Newspaper Association including all of the Southern States was evidently too big an initial project. An organization of its size needs, to accomplish its purpose, to be the connective for smaller organizations instead of the strong organization in itself. The colleges of Virginia are situated closely enough together to form one of these strong minor associations. It is but consistent with the rest of Virginia's progressive higher educational plan that we do so.

To Annual Editors.

College newspapers and college magazines, since time immemorial (as far as we know,) have maintained exchanges. Just why they should seek to impose that which they seldom read themselves upon others, we are not able to say positively. The object might have been; in the antecuram days, when college burdens and duties were not heavy, to create a new office in the collegiate system, namely that of exchange editorship, and thereby give two or three men at every college the advantage of the discipline which the added duty carries.

Yet it cannot be denied that considerable good, almost inestimable good, has come from the exchange of college publications of this sort.

The question which we wish to raise is: Why do college annuals not exchange? The exchange need not be as extensive as is carried on by newspapers and magazines, but could be done in a limited way to a marked success.—From "The Hornet."

DANCE IN GYM

On Saturday evening, March 1st, from nine to eleven a dance was given in the gymnasium by the Gamma Theta Sorority, the proceeds going to the Student Building. The gym was attractively decorated in bright colored crepe paper. The music was furnished by Hilton's orchestra. Special features consisted of a dance by Miss Mary Friend and the awarding of a box of candy to the holder of the "lucky number."

AT THE EACO THEATRE—Week March 10th-15th. Every Show Unusually Good.

MONDAY AND TUESDAY—"PIONEER TRAILS." HERE IS A SPECIAL PRODUCTION that is very MUCH LIKE "THE COVERED WAGON." It is enacted by a very select special cast, headed by CULLEN LANDIS and ALICE CALHOUN. Here you will see prairie schooners on burning plains, bearing brave men, oak-hearted women, happy children, all lured by the magic of GOLD. Indians on the warpath! A hopeless battle against cruel odds—the MASSACRE! Youth's loyalty, hope, love, tested by hate's treachery—the ever living romance of the glorious WEST. CRITICS HAVE SAID THAT THIS PICTURE IS EVEN BETTER THAN "THE COVERED WAGON." Pathe News Monday and 13th episode of "HAUNTED VALLEY," Tuesday. MATINEE MONDAY at 4 o'clock. Admission to S. T. C. GIRLS, 25 cents.

WEDNESDAY—Tom Mix in "JUST TONY." Folks! here is a picture that we want every one of you to see. It is a story about a wonderful horse. It is filled with deep human interest. The action is fast all the way through. It will thrill you. WE WILL REFUND YOUR MONEY IF YOU DO NOT ENJOY THIS PICTURE. Also AESOP FABLE.

THURSDAY—"TURN TO THE RIGHT." A Special Rex Ingram production, with a wonderful cast headed by ALICE TERRY. It is "a peach of a play about peaches." "The freshness of hopeful, honest, erring, ambitious young men and women." The great photoplay of love and laughter. Also Fox News. MATINEE at 4 o'clock. PROCEEDS FROM THIS PICTURE GO TO THE KINDERGARTEN OF THE NORMAL SCHOOL, to help make it better for your children. Admission to S. T. C. Girls, 25 cents.

FRIDAY—"HEARTS AFLAME." Another SUPER SPECIAL PRODUCTION, in which you will see the GREATEST FOREST FIRE ever filmed in the most dramatic photoplay of the season. It is a gripping film play of cowardice and courage, hate and heroism. IT IS SO GOOD THAT WE WILL REFUND YOUR MONEY IF YOU DON'T LIKE IT. Also A GOOD COMEDY. Admission to S. T. C. Girls, 25 cents.

SATURDAY—CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG in "CORDELIA THE MAGNIFICENT." The drama of a girl who looked for and like a million dollars. A story of cupid and cupidity. A photoplay of Men, Money and Marriage. Unusually GOOD. Also 13th episode of "PLUNDER." Matinee at 3.30. Admission to S. T. C. Girls 20 cents.

JOAN SPEAKS

Dear Joan:

I'll say Harrisonburg has a team! Foor Miss Buford! Her "Pride and Joy" got one licking Friday night. I was there and saw it all. But it was only a "love tap." There was absolutely the best of spirit between the two teams, coaches, and strange to relate the referee too. But I know basketball and I know my team—there was something wrong. They should not have been defeated by such a score. Somebody went to sleep at the switch and Harrisonburg took the wrong track to victory! Miss Buford lost her Lucky Buckeye. You know Harrisonburg was to have it whenever we lost. But they are to give it back when we win and I know my girls are going to bring that old Buckeye back to Farmville. I understand that the coach is going to give her bedraggled chickens some pepper dough and surprise Harrisonburg. Come on Farmville!

Yours,

"Polly."

Dear Girls:

So my basketball team met defeat Friday night! The very first such defeat from Harrisonburg since 1920-21. How did it happen? I know Mrs. Johnson has a wonderful team but my girls ought to have done better. But I am not going to fuss with them. My girls deserve credit for their basketball efforts. Did you ever stop to think under what conditions they have to practice? Whenever they want to even play around with a ball they have to go down to the Town Armory. All the other schools can practice any day and any hour they desire. This must surely make a difference. Do you realize that there is not a single standard basketball goal in this school where the forwards can practice? I am afraid that the students don't think hard enough.

Practicing in the armory means only four practices a week at the best. Fire has to be made. Who thinks about all this? When it rains they have to go out as usual—and it is not very pleasant. Now—I am not excusing my girls for not playing their best—for I know they didn't—but I do want people to appreciate their efforts.

But after all the Coach is the one I feel sorry for. After such a defeat she must go around with a smiling face, but all the while her heart is aching. She is worried for fear she didn't play the right girls—didn't change the lineup, etc. She always wants to receive the blame for a defeat and knows that her girls deserve all credit for a victory.

But let's get behind our team and shove them for a victory over Harrisonburg on the 15th.

Yours in hopes,

Joan.

FARMVILLE NEWS

New Hotel Makes Excellent Progress.

The fact that Farmville is to have a new hotel is well known. Some of the male citizens of Farmville, one hundred strong, have organized themselves into a company of salesmen to sell hotel stock. This week, from March 3 to 10 is Hotel Week, which began after a banquet, held last Monday night in the basement of the Baptist Church. Every one is interested in this new undertaking, which is commonly recognized as the biggest thing ever under way in Farmville.

Hubard's to Become 5 and 10c Store.

Mr. E. W. Hubard has sold his fixtures in his store and has moved to his new location, formerly occupied by the Post Office Pharmacy. Mr. Hubard's old stand is now the scene of construction. A 5 and 10c store will make its advent here. A grand opening for the new store is planned for some time this month. A 5 and 10c store is surely to be a success in a college town.

Thaxton College Removal.

Thaxton Cottage, long an eyesore on the campus, is at last in the process of removal. It was at first offered at auction, but since the highest bid was $250, it was rejected, and the house is being simply torn down and carted away.

LITERARY SOCIETIES

Athenians Meet

The Athenian Literary Society met in the Y. W. C. A. social room, Saturday afternoon, March 1. The following program was given:

1. Hymn—"The Son of God Goes Forth to War"—Society.
 2. "Birth and Ancestry of Woodrow Wilson"—Sue Roper.
 3. "Woodrow Wilson's Boyhood"—Elizabeth Paylor.
 4. "Wilson's College Life"—Ade-laide Emory.
- The meeting adjourned to meet March 15, 1924.

Pierians Hold Open Meeting.

The Pierian Literary Society held an open meeting the night of February 27. The purpose of the program was to show something of the folk music of a few countries. After a brief talk on "Folk Music" in general, popular songs of various countries were played; a dance or song accompanied each piano selection. Interpreters of the music were dressed in costume, which added greatly to the enjoyment of the audience.

The program was as follows:

(Miss Jacqueline Marsden at the piano.)

"Old Folks at Home"—Sung by entire society.

"Folk Music"—Talk by Miss Evelyn Barnes.

Germany.

"Lullaby" by Brahms—Misses Helen Miller and Norma Fuqua.

Denmark.

Danish Dance of Greeting—Misses Daisy Shafer, Katherine Weller, Cornelia Dickinson and Katherine Shore.

England.

"Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes"—Miss Elizabeth Crockett.

Spain.

"La Paloma"—Victrola record sung by Emilio de Gogorza.

Scotland.

Highland Scottish—Misses Annie Lee Gwaltney and Mary Douglas Walker.

Ireland.

"The Last Rose of Summer"—Miss Evelyn Barnes.

America.

Indian Dance—Miss Cornelia Dickinson.

Clog Dance—Miss Emily Calcott.

Pierian Oyster Supper.

The Pierian Literary Society entertained at an oyster supper in honor of its new members in the Tea Room, the night of March 1. The room was decorated in green and gold, Society colors; green and gold ribbons were run from each corner of the table to the center and connected the candles, by whose light the meal was eaten. The color scheme was further carried out in the potted jonquils and ferns, used for decoration, and in the favors and hand painted placecards.

COLLEGE CUT OUTS

Skate and the world skates with you is the slogan at Meredith College, where this newly fashionable recreation has been adopted.

Columbia freshmen were publicly tested recently on their knowledge of school songs. The sophomores were the judges. Those who knew their songs received a yellow tag and those who didn't know them received a dose of shoe blacking. Shoe blacking predominated.

An offer has been made by an alumnus of the University of North Carolina to finance a new official publication until it is able to support itself. The old "Boll Weevil" was dissolved last fall, and since then the college has felt keenly the need of a newer and better magazine. Chinese students at Columbia University are teaching students the art of "Mah Jongg" in order to work their way through college.

The largest indoor swimming pool of any school in the country was unveiled at the United States Naval Academy on March 1.

MARCH 15, 1924

FORTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF FOUNDER'S DAY CELEBRATED

Morning Program.

The program was opened by the singing of College Songs, after which the Stunts by the various classes and organizations were given. The amount given by the Students and Student Organizations was $1,354.

The first Stunt given was by the Freshman Class. This consisted of a song and workmen raking for the Student Building. This class gave $200 for the Student Building. The Sophomore Class, due to unforeseen circumstances, was not able to give their stunt. They sang a song and presented Dr. Jarman with $157.75 in money, much love and a promise to pay $200 toward the Student Building before the end of the year. The Junior Class gave an extremely entertaining stunt. It consisted of a rummage sale, by which they were making money for the Student Building. This class gave $101.52. The Senior Class gave $100. The Lion of "The Wizard of Oz" presented Dr. Jarman with $145 from the Glee Club. Miss Russell's English Classes gave $19. They made this money by sending aprons to their friends, in the pocket of which the friend put the same number of pennies that she measured inches around the waist. Aunt Lucy brought in a bouquet. On the end of the many ribbons attached to it were tied bills. The De-Ho-Ec Club sent this. The amount was $30. The Training School Lunch Room sent $5 in the form of a sandwich. Miss Dorothy Askew presented Dr. Jarman with $20 from the Pi Kappa Omega Society. All of the Sororities contributed liberally to the cause. They gave the following amounts: Gamma Theta, $110; Delta Sigma Chi, $100; Sigma Sigma Sigma, $202.

The reports of the Alumnae Chapters were then given. These, including the unorganized alumnae members, sent $1,826 to the Student Building. The Alumnae Chapters that sent money were: Portsmouth, $181; Richmond, $—; Norfolk, $75; Charlottesville, $41.80; Petersburg, $50; Farmville, $76.90. The Faculty gave $280, while $200 was received from other sources.

The total amount received for the Student Building on Founder's Day was $3,661. This makes $32,582 in cash that has been received for the Student Building. The State has given $50,000. Pledges amount to $30,000. The building is to cost $150,000, so it will be seen that $40,000 is yet to be raised. When this has been paid we can feel that the Student Building is our own.

Afternoon Program.

A spectator watching the portals of the State Teachers' College on Founder's Day at two o'clock in the afternoon would have seen a very long line of figures entering the Auditorium.

First marched Dr. J. L. Jarman with the speaker of the occasion, Dr. Douglas Freeman. Behind them, came the faculty, dignified, as befitted the role of professors. Then last marched the students. The Seniors, arrayed in cap and gown, the Juniors, and Sophomores and the "four hundred."

When all the students had taken their places, the Alma Mater Song was sung. Rev. Roscoe White led the assemblage in prayer. Then the Glee Club gave a very creditable rendition of "Blow, Blow, Thou Winter Wind," which Dr. Jarman said "was the best he had ever heard them give." The speaker was then introduced, Dr. Douglas Freeman, Editor of the News-Leader, of Richmond.

Dr. Freeman divided all students into two classes—those who came to college because they had something to do, and those who came because they had nothing to do. The latter class, he claimed, were harmless and inoffensive if they did not hinder the earnest students. He pleaded for Truth, for Truth is Beauty. Optimism gives one a perspective, which is necessary for Truth. The real test to discover whether a person possesses a shallow mind or deep, is to place him in a library, among books of all sorts. If he becomes lonesome, brand him as shallow. Dr. Freeman closed with a strong appeal to us, as teachers, to become students in the School of Service, and thus bring day from night and the people of Virginia to clearer and more perfect understanding of their government.

Evening Program.

The feature of the evening program on Founder's Day was a pageant, written by Miss S. Elizabeth Davis, and presented by the six literary societies under the direction of Margaret Moore. The pageant was based on Dr. C. Alphonso Smith's "What Can Literature Do For Me?" The scene was laid in a Student's study, and when the curtain was raised, she was shown, vainly trying to write. The Spirit of Literature entered and showed the Student how, with the knowledge of Self-Expression, Idealism, History, Human Nature, and the Glory of the Commonplace, she might know mastery of Language.

Doris Crocker was a very apt Student, while Pauline Timberlake as the Spirit of Literature was a beautiful and impressive figure. The tableaux were represented as follows:

Self-expression—Pierian Literary Society.

Idealism—Athenian Literary Society. History—Jefferson Literary Society. Human Nature—Argus Literary Society.

The Glory of the Commonplace—Ruffner Literary Society.

Master of Language—Cunningham Literary Society.

DR. METCALF LECTURES

Distinguished Author and Speaker
Chooses as Subject "The American Novel"

Dr. John Calvin Metcalf, under the auspices of the Woman's Club of Farmville, delivered an address in the College auditorium Wednesday evening, March 5. Dr. Metcalf, a distinguished author, at present holds the Linden Kent Memorial Chair of English at the University of Virginia. He is also Dean of Graduate Studies.

Dr. Metcalf's subject was "The American Novel." In his speech he said that the greatest readers and writers of the novel were the American women. Virginia had done her part in the development not only in the past but at present is making contributions.

Dr. Metcalf then gave a short history of the American novel. It is one hundred years old. The first American novel was written by James Fenimore Cooper. From 1820 to 1860 the novel had two main themes, sentiment and adventure. The next person mentioned was Nathaniel Hawthorne, the greatest of the novelists. The greatest novel ever written was his "Scarlet Letter." Dr. Metcalf then mentioned "Uncle Tom's Cabin," the best seller of all American novels. He then sarcastically stated that one of America's contributions to the types of novels had been the "Dime Novels." He read some passages from them, reminding the audience that "The Shiek" of the present day was no more thrilling than many of the "Dime Novels" of the Eighties.

After this the American novel went through changes. Regional Novels developed. These do not go deep into the subject but present a picture of a particular locality. After this came The Social Novel, which deals with topics, Economics, Religion and Social Uplift. Dr. Metcalf stated that the progress and the change that came over the American Novel could be more readily understood by reading the following novels in the order given: "The Deer Slayer," "The Scarlet Letter," "The Prophet," "The House of Mirth," and "Main Street."

Dr. Metcalf stated that though all the stories had been told long ago, today it is what a writer has to say rather than what he has to tell. The plots have been reduced, while what an author has to say takes most of the space. The two classes of American novel that are most read are the sentimental novel and the novel of adventure. The novel of Adventure is chiefly an American production. It shows chiefly America's love for exploring the out-of-doors. If the Social novels of today had a little more of this current of air they would be better. The novel, unlike the short story, the drama and the poem, is concise, analytic and cosmopolitan. It has been shaped by three influences, journalism, science, and internationalism. Journal-

FARMVILLE LOSES HARD FOUGHT GAME 34-33

Farmville lost to Fredericksburg when the two teams met in a hotly contested game in Fredericksburg Saturday, March 8. Fredericksburg took the lead in the first half, but Farmville came back in the last half with her old fighting spirit and overcame the lead. The last five minutes, the lead zig-zagged between the two teams until, during the last minute and a half of play, a wild shot for the basket landed the ball in the gallery. Here it remained until the time was up, the referee failing to call "time out" when the ball became "dead."

The game was very fast, Whaley completely outplayed Fredericksburg in the center and speeding up the game in every play. Treacle found the Fredericksburg basket easy, caging ten field goals. Hall played an individual game as forward, and started in shooting free shots. Hall and Bell played an excellent game as guards. Walton and McKenney were excellent as side centers—McKenney proving too fast for Evans.

This game was very rough when compared with the game played here between the two schools. The game was marred by the unsportsmanlike conduct on the part of the Fredericksburg players, coach, and spectators, but Farmville remained true to its code.

NEW ALUMNI ACTIVITIES

The Alumni Associations of the several institutions of higher learning in Virginia have formed a joint organization designed to further in every way possible the educational interests of Virginia. This Council of Alumni Associations is composed of the President and Secretary of the Alumni Associations of all the colleges and universities in the state. The Executive Committee consists of Mr. Murray McGuire, President of the Alumni Association of the University of Virginia; Dr. Douglas Freeman, President of the Alumni Association of the University of Richmond; Dr. Manfred Call, of the Medical College of Virginia; Mrs. Menefee, of Randolph-Macon Woman's College; Miss Pauline Camper, of the State Teachers' College, at Farmville; Mr. H. H. Hill, of Virginia Polytechnic Institute; Mr. W. T. Hodges, of William and Mary College. The Council, through its Executive Committee, has already put into operation a definite educational program.

The eleventh annual conference of the Association of Alumni Secretaries is to be held at the University of Virginia, April 10, 11, 12, 1924. The State Teachers' College, at Farmville, has been invited to join the membership of this Association, which now includes most of the leading institutions of learning in the United States and Canada.

Fencing is a part of the Athletic curriculum at Columbia University.

NEXT LYCEUM COURSE NUMBER MARCH 17

"The Cotter's Saturday Night," the next number of the Lyceum Course, will be presented on March 17, by the Scottish Musical Comedy Company.

The scene is laid in a peasant's kitchen. A "cotter" is a tenant of a cottage attached to a farm. It was the custom in Scotland for the "elder bairns" out at service elsewhere to spend Saturday evening at their "ain firsides."

This sketch was constructed by Mr. J. H. Daniels, who used the poem of Burns as a vehicle for the introduction of Scottish songs and stories, and the delineation of Scottish character.

OLD DAYS IN DIXIE

A delightful play, entitled "Old Days in Dixie," was given March 3 at Appomattox by the Tri-Sigma sorority, under the direction of Miss Edna Norton Spear, sponsor for the sorority. The play has been given three times, at John Randolph, Cumberland, and Appomattox.

Tri-Sigma has been very successful in raising money for the Student Building from this play as well as from the faculty dancing class.

They have not, by any means, finished "doing their bit" for the Student Building, and they expect to carry the play to many other towns.

The cast for the play is as follows:

Missess Bonfoey, mistress of the plantation—Miss Spear.

Azalea, her ward—Betty Cols.

Nancy, Azalea's sister—Virginia Vincent.

Cousin Sallie, from a neighboring estate—Evelyn Beckham.

Phoebe, little coquette—"Dodie" Shaffner.

Mary Rose, Phoebe's sister—Mary Linn Petty.

Mam Dicey, the house mammy—Mobbey Brown.

Beverly Bonfoey, the young heir—Lucille Barnett.

Judge Pennyment, his uncle—Mabel Mays.

Raoul Chaudet, a visitor from Quebec—Ann Oakley.

Camco Clemm, from the city—Mary Cousins.

Uncle Shad, a bit of old malagony—Martha Blair.

Little Betty, a visitor of Bonfoey—Pauline Batten.

Frank Chandler and Jean Leonard, visitors from the city—Mary Turnbull and Elizabeth Crute.

Accompanist—Eugenia Vincent.

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer, and these will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matters should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of their copies of The Rotunda will be appreciated.

Don't Let Lizzie Do It All.

The election of officers for next year will soon take place. If things turn out as they have in the past, a few girls will have all the offices both major and minor. It doesn't require a Sherlock Holmes to detect that state of affairs is all wrong and unfair. In the first place, there are so many organizations in this school that even considering our tremendous student body, nearly every one can and should be responsible for some share in the various activities. It is wonderful training for future citizenship for, as teachers, we shall be called on for a multitude of things in addition to class room management. Therefore, we should give as many as possible, the opportunity to qualify themselves as citizens. It is more laziness when we do not make an effort to find out good girls for the various offices, but instead load all on the chosen few who are known as "old reliables." Sometimes it is the fault of the girl who is over-worked. Perhaps she suffers from false modesty or a dislike of appearing unaccommodating, or she may desire a string of offices to puff up her vanity. All of these motives are silly and absurd. One girl should hold only one important office, if she expects to do justice to her job, her school work and be fair to the rest of the student body.

We urge that the student body think seriously and distribute the offices evenly so that we will not have a few rushing madly around, in a frenzy of work, while the majority loaf.

The Evolution of An Institution.

Today is Founder's Day at the Farmville State Teachers' College for Women. It is the first day for the College as such, but the latest of a long line of such days for the Institution which has for years existed in Farmville. Today a friend of the Institution, if he is wise, will not attempt the role of a prophet without first taking the part of a historian. He will not be guilty of presuming to foretell the future glory of the Institution without first recounting its record of growth and usefulness. The perusal of that record reads like an epic. It is replete with heroic struggles. Because it was a pioneer in the venture of woman's education for a vocation it had to struggle against small economies within and prejudices without. But throughout the long struggle it never faltered in the face of opposition nor lowered the ideal of its vision; viz.: preparation for service.

Prior to 1884 it was known as an Institute for Girls. For a number of years it existed as such, a small school for girls under private or church auspices. In 1884, by act of Legislature, it was taken over by the State and was known as a Female Normal School. It grew rapidly in influence as the number of students increased year by year. In 1894, by act of the Legislature, the name was changed to State Normal School for Women, at Farmville. And this year the Legislature again changed the name, making it State Teachers' College for Women, at Farmville. During the forty years of its existence as a State institution it has enrolled nearly 8,000 matriculates, and graduated nearly 2,800 of them. These young women, nearly 8,000 strong, have gone out into all parts of the State and throughout the South, each an evangel of service. The wholesome influence of their work and lives cannot be estimated.

The record of the growth and character of the Institution assures its continued expansion and increasing usefulness. To know its past is to be sure of its future. Its spirit today is its best promise for tomorrow. As the small Institute grew into a Normal School, and it in turn grew into a College, we cannot but feel that the process of growth will continue and that the College some day will become the University of Virginia for women. The law of growth is inexorable; a living organism must grow.

And so today, Founder's Day, the Herald extends best wishes to the Teachers' College. We are proud of your past, we rejoice over your present vigorous life, and we have no fear for your future. The spirit of service has nothing to fear. The Farmville Herald.

A REVERIE

"O, me," groaned Thaxton Cottage, "everybody is against me. For years the girls have not wanted to live in my rooms. They complained that I looked bad, I needed more paint, more conveniences for bath, a new porch. They said my rooms were not well arranged and I did not keep them warm."

"When the girls came back from the fire, they wanted to go in the Student Building and not back in my poor rooms. When they were told that they could move over to the Student Building, how they jumped, shouted, and clapped their hands. Yet my floors held them up."

"How gladly they tore the pictures from my sides, leaving the nails to rust."

"Soon I was empty and deserted. The blinds were closed. How lonely I was."

No more did the girls run up the steps and relate the news of the school. I was ignorant of everything. The Student Building made fun of me, it complained of me; people called me an eye sore, a mar to the campus. And yet—was it my fault?"

"Then the carpenters opened the door, but not for long was I to enjoy the sunshine. My windows were taken out, my roof torn off; I was gradually being torn apart. Soon I will be gone. Farmville will see me no more, I will be a memory and soon cease even to be remembered. Ah, sad has been my lot."

AT THE EACO THEATRE—Week March 17th-22nd.

MONDAY, TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY—The FAMOUS HERBERT K. BETTS STOCK COMPANY will play at the theatre these three days, presenting a select repertory of high class plays at popular prices. There will be an entire change of program each night. Vaudeville each night—catchy songs, original dances and novel specialties. Little DOROTHY LULL, who comes direct from the Children's Ballet, of the Metropolitan Opera House, New York City, will dance each night. Monday night the comedy drama, "AN ARIZONA COWBOY," will be presented. Tuesday night, "THE TENDERFOOT," and "THE GRAFTERS" will be put on Wednesday night. THIS IS A MOST CAPABLE COMPANY, THAT EVERY ONE WILL ENJOY. SHOW STARTS EACH NIGHT AT 8:15. Tickets sold at the door. Admission, 50 cents to all.

THURSDAY—WILLIAM FARNUM, in "THE GRILL," A story of a Texas Ranger who placed duty before love. When a man faces duty he turns his back on the road to wrong. This is a picture that will appeal to and please both young and old. It has an excellent cast. Also Aesop Fable, Fox News, and 14th episode of "HAUNTED VALLEY."

FRIDAY—"THE GO-GETTER." A SPECIAL PARAMOUNT PICTURE from the story by PETER B. KYNE, enacted by a select special cast of stars. Here's a high geared, six-cylinder lover for you! Starting with nothing, but his nerve, winning a million dollar girl and a job! In a romance that sizzles. It is a breezy comedy of love and business. Also a good comedy. Admission to S. T. C. girls, 25 cents.

SATURDAY—"THE FOG." A SPECIAL METRO CLASSIC enacted by an ALL STAR CAST. A story of a love that bridged continents, oceans, and life itself. A tale of romance and adventure, of love defeated and love triumphant. Of how the fog of life disperses and gives way to the sunshine of love. Also 14th episode of "PLUNDER." Admission to S. T. C. Girls, 20 cents. MATINEE AT 3:30.

LETTER FROM DR. JARMAN

State Teachers College,
Farmville, Virginia.
March 10, 1924.

To Our Alumnae:

To those of you who responded to our Founder's Day call, I wish to express my sincere thanks for the assistance you gave to the Student Building Fund, and my warm appreciation of the many cheering and encouraging letters you wrote; you have no idea how much they mean to us.

I really meant what I said in my letter to you when I stated that I hoped for a hundred per cent. response. I knew that there were some of you who were so situated just now as to be unable to make any contribution whatever towards our enterprise, but I thought that you would at least send us a word of cheer to show that your heart was with us—some of you did and we appreciated the letters just as much as we appreciated the donations which accompanied other letters. We sent out twenty-five hundred letters; we heard from a hundred and eighty-seven of you—so I am still due about twenty-three hundred letters and I am going to expect them if they contain nothing more than congratulations on our new name.

The financial report in The Rotunda will tell you of the amounts sent in. Six Alumnae Chapters sent chapter gifts: Norfolk, Portsmouth, Petersburg, Richmond, Farmville, and Charlottesville. The amount received from the alumnae was approximately $1,900; from student organizations, faculty, and other sources, about $1,700; making a grand total of $3,600, which very materially reduces our indebtedness. However, before we can say that the Student Building is ours, with nothing due on it, we still have forty thousand dollars to raise—but we are going to do it and do it cheerfully.

Wishing that each one of you could have been with us for the delightful programs that were prepared for Founder's Day, I am, with best wishes,

Yours very truly,

J. L. JARMAN.

COLLEGE CUT OUTS

The Gymnasium Committee of Randolph-Macon College has extended to every student and alumnus of that college, an invitation to suggest a plan for raising the necessary funds for the new $100,000 gymnasium. The committee will award two gold medals for the best two plans submitted, one for the best plan submitted by an alumnus, and one for the best plan submitted by a student.

A protest in the form of resolutions urging all students of the Penn State to "avoid absolutely all participation in any practice or transaction in violation of the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution," has been passed by the student council of the college. And also is offered freedom to the college officials in properly punishing all students committing offenses against the Volstead Act. There was not a dissenting voice in the group of 50 Councilmen. This is thought to be the most sweeping action taken by a college student government in support of prohibition enforcement.

The Better Yet Group of the University of Chicago, has recommended that a full time recreation director be added to the faculty. The duty of this director would be to assist in the planning of entertainments by private organizations as will help in the University activities.

Washington and Lee University is considering the organization of a "Davis for President" Club, to support its distinguished graduate, John W. Davis, LL.D., former Congressman and Ambassador to England, who is being strongly backed for the Democratic nomination for President by the New York Times and other prominent agencies throughout the country.

The authorities of Vassar College have decided to form another post graduate department, which will have no instructors. Its purpose will be to provide Vassar graduates with opportunity to engage in any creative work desired, which may be writing a long dreamed of play, the painting of a picture or the carving of a group of statuary.

The proposed Graham Memorial Building plays a very important part in the plans now being formulated by certain campus committees for the unification of the University of North Carolina, in an effort to prevent its growth from splitting up the campus into different factions.

"Fine ye $5 and costs for exceeding the speed limit," said Squire Ramsbottom. Then, turning to Constable Sam Slackputter, he asked, "That sound about right, Slack?"

"Skurecly," returned the sleuth. "When I halted him and told him to consider himself under arrest, he laughed and said, 'Shucks, chief, you oughtn't to do that! Why, I have traveled around a lot in my time, but I have always said that Periwinkle is one of the most progressive little cities I know of anywhere, and—' I stopped him right there. 'This happens to be Petunia and not Periwinkle, dod-blast you!' says I."

"Oh, ho! So that's the game, hey?" cried the justice. "Fine ye $50 and costs. And I hope ye can't pay it and haffo go to jail, gol-rum ye!"—Country Gentleman.

JOAN SPEAKS

Dear Girls:

Did you ever stop to think how hard it is to come back defeated and disappointed? Last week our team came back defeated and disappointed. Did we, as a student body, try to help them? Did we try to cheer them up? We did not. When our team returns victorious, their greeting should be enthusiastic, of course, but when they return defeated, their greeting should be trebly enthusiastic. If we are disheartened because they have not won, how do you suppose they feel? Haven't they done their best for us? And shouldn't we make them feel that we know they have done their best, and even if we haven't won we can take our medicine and come up smiling? Of course! Then remember next time, even while we hope that it won't come for many a long day.

Yours,
JOAN.

NEW FIELD FOR GRADUATES

U. S. Patent Office Offers Great Possibilities.

The Constitution of the United States provides for granting patents, and as early as 1790 Congress enacted legislation for the grant of patents for inventions. The United States Patent Office, as such, was established in 1836, and was included in the Department of the Interior when that Department was established in 1849.

A patent is granted an inventor to give him exclusive rights in the invention he discloses in his application. It is essential, therefore, that the disclosure be sufficient to instruct fully in the performance of the invention. For a great many years college graduates have gone into the Patent Office as examiners. Their function is to examine applications for patent, to see what the alleged inventor thinks he has produced that is new and to see that the disclosure is complete. They then investigate the prior art as represented in patents already granted by the United States and various foreign countries and by the descriptions in technical literature. The invention claimed by the applicant to be new is compared with what is found to be old and a patent is finally allowed by the examiner if the application in fact claims a new invention.

A good examiner should have enough curiosity to make him want to know the patents and prior publications relating to the particular devices he examines and also those in related subjects in other divisions of the Patent Office. He should have a good enough memory to be able to remember where to find a description he has seen and enough interest in procedure to enable him to acquire a knowledge of principles and decisions in patent law and a ready wit in applying them to the case in hand.

The positions in the examining corps of the Patent Office are filled initially from a list made up of those who pass a technical civil service examination, and promotions within the office are made on a strictly merit system. The entrance salary has been fixed by Congress at $1,800, beginning with the 1st of July, 1924, and increases of salary are provided for by promotions from time to time up to $5,000 a year. The positions are under the civil service and are not political. An employee cannot be dismissed except for cause after hearing, and provision is made for retirement with pension in old age.

The civil service entrance examination includes such subjects as are pursued by the scientifically inclined graduate of a college or a technical school. In addition to physics, mathematics, and a reading knowledge of scientific French or German, an examination in the reading of mechanical drawings is required as well as a familiarity with the applied sciences in the fields of mechanics, mechanical arts, industrial arts and processes and applied chemistry. Optional engineering examinations may be taken. Examinations are held at many places throughout the United States at short intervals. Complete details of the examinations, as well as the time and place, may be obtained from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

Many new graduates and younger alumni enter the office with the specific idea of training themselves to become patent lawyers. To such persons the universities in Washington offer exceptional opportunities for graduate work in the arts and sciences. Many of the examiners take courses in the law schools connected with the universities in Washington and prepare themselves for the bar. Classes are held in the late afternoon and evening so that it is possible to devote an entire day to the government work before going to classes. It is thus possible for an examiner to be entirely self-supporting during the period devoted to work in the graduate school or in the law school.

There are about a dozen women now in the examining corps and there is no reason why many more college women should not successfully enter the Patent Office as their contribution to public service.

A POE-EM OF PASSION

It was many and many a year ago,
On an island near the sea;
That a maiden lived there whom you mightn't know
By the name of Cannibalee;
And this maiden she lived with no other thought
Than a passionate fondness for me.

I was a child and she was a child—
Tho' her tales were adult Feejee—
But she loved with a love that was more than love.
My yearning Cannibalee;
With a love that could take me roasted or fried
Or raw, as the case might be.

And that is the reason that long ago,
In an island near the sea,
I had to turn the table and eat
My ardent Cannibalee—
Not really because I was fond of her,
But to check her fondness for me.

But the stars never rise but I think of the size
Of my hot-potted Cannibalee,
And the moon never stares but it brings night-mares
Of my spare-rib Cannibalee;
And all the night-tide she is restless inside,
Is my still indigestible dinner-bell bride.
In her pallid tomb, which is Me,
In her solemn sepulcher, Me.

—(Selected.)

How doth the gentle laundress
Search out the weakest points,
And always tear the straps off
At most strategic points?
Tis the every day things that really count
And the every-day people we know,
And the every-day kindnesses go very far
Toward making a heaven below.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS FROM ALUMNAE

1. "I have been teaching in West Virginia for the past ten years, and at present am principal of the graded school in Welch. I like West Virginia and enjoy teaching here, but I shall never go back on the Virginia Normal Schools and especially do I still admire and praise my Alma Mater."

2. "I heard the call and I'm trying to answer it. With best wishes for the best Student Building in old Virginia—"

3. "Your letter, after going to two cities in Oklahoma, has reached me here in New Jersey. I had not heard of the Student Building that is being erected, nor of the fire, nor that the institution had become a State Teachers College. I have heard, through students I have met at Columbia, that you are doing very excellent work."

4. "I cannot express to you my feelings when I first heard the news of the fire at Farmville. I knew that I loved every brick in the building, but how much I did not realize until then. My two years at Farmville stand out among the happiest of my life."

5. "I have always loved the dear old school since I first came under its influence, but during this year I have come to love it all the more since I have been far away and have been able to contrast it with similar institutions all over the United States. In my rather careful study of other Normal Schools and Teachers Colleges I have learned anew how splendid our own school is. It is, too, a source of pride to hear the instructors of Teachers College, Columbia University, speak so enthusiastically of it."

6. Miss Irma Price was recently awarded the first prize in the Literary Digest's nation-wide contest on "The Teaching of an Ideal." Miss Price wrote to Dr. Jarman, "I want the credit to go where credit is due—to my training in Farmville Normal School. Every day I feel more and more gratitude to Farmville, and I am glad I happened to go there. Your training must be all right."

7. Mrs. Annette Alexander Jones writes "Something has happened to me that never could have happened if it hadn't been for my training at Farmville, and especially for the help given me by Miss Haynes, Miss Stubbs, and Miss Pierce. I have just been elected county superintendent of Early County, Georgia, and since I had a popular lawyer for an opponent and am the first woman in the country to run for an office, I'm right proud of myself. There's just not another Normal School like Farmville anywhere and I wish every girl I know could go there."

The Freshman.

I will not waste my time this year,
The Freshman nobly cries;
I will pursue the narrow path,
That straight before me lies.
I will not squander father's coin
In roistering and such
I will not smoke, I will not drink—
At least not very much.
I'll write to Mother once a week
Her loneliness to soften,
But I won't ask for money—no,
Well, not so very often.
But I will work with all my might;
With all my youth full pow'r,
And like the little busy bee
Improve each shining hour.
Yes, I am going to study hard,
So folks won't think me dumb.
For I intend this coming year
To learn to play the drum.

By GEORGE MITCHELL.

When nobility ruled, it took three generations to make a gentleman. Now it takes only three coats of whitewash.

Don't Be a Gloom Gatherer.

When Old Man Gloom comes 'long your way
Put out your card, "Not Home To-day";

In other words just smile and smile,
Don't wear a face as long as a mile.
Our life has sides both dark and bright;
The latter seek with main and might;
Don't let the dark side bother you,
But chase Old Gloom in all you do.
If you do this you'll get along
And life will be a merry song.
So smile and have a word of cheer,
And Old Man Gloom will disappear.
—The Habit.

"No, they are all busy writing movie scenarios."—Kansas City Journal.

VIVID REMEMBRANCE.

Not so long ago there died in Washington a man who for many years had been the chief of one of the government bureaus, a man noted for his strict ideas of discipline.

As a clerk in his bureau was dashing madly down the street, a friend stopped him.

"Why the deuce are you in such a tearing hurry?"

"I am going to the funeral of my chief," explained the clerk, "and there is nothing he hates like unpunctuality."

"THE GIZZARD OF WAS" FIRST GRADE NEWSPAPER THE SPIRIT OF FARMVILLE

Senior Class Wins Praise by Clever Burlesque.

One of the events of lesser local theatricals was the "grand uproar of the Gizzard of Was," a clever semi-burlesque of the "Wizard of Oz," "concocted, directed, presented and generally mixed up by the Senior Class." The story is briefly as follows: The cherished Gizzard of Was escapes, to the great consternation of all inhabitants of the realm, including the Plushkins, Has-Beens and Defectives. The severe emotional strain caused by the loss brings on a Brain Storm which completely prostrates every one. All are aroused to new hope by the approach of the Defectives, who find by a clue that the Gizzard has escaped to the City of Tombstones. The curtain of the second act rises on the City of Tombstones where the inhabitants of the country, the Pop-eyes are shown dancing and singing. At the approach of Was and his attendants they became frightened and ran away. The whole of Was's retinue (with the exception of the ever-alert Defectives) stagger in, exhausted and despairing to be resuscitated, finally the finding of the Gizzard, crouched behind a tombstone. The play is brought to a grand climax by Was's summoning the Brain Storm to carry them back to their own land.

One of the features of the "uproar" was a beautiful dance by Miss Lalla Jones. There were no star acting parts, but all was well and cleverly acted throughout. The College has long been expecting some such entertainment from its unusual Senior class and it now unites in unanimously praising its efforts as a complete success.

MOORE'S ESSAY ON BURNS

Burns aren't the most popular topic of conversation, or the most pleasant things in the world to have. Sometimes, however, they seem to be entirely necessary, and at other times entirely unnecessary evils.

To prove the necessity of them, have you ever felt the need, or has your mother ever felt that you needed, a mustard plaster? It wasn't the coolest thing you ever felt, was it? At the time it seemed to be absolutely necessary, didn't it? It didn't appear to be exactly a heaven-sent offering did it? There fore, I say at times they are necessary evils.

Another proof to uphold this point is: Have you ever been on a long hike or horseback ride? Did you fear the next day, much to the amusement of your family, and your own chagrin, you would be forced to eat off the mantel-piece? After secretly exploring the family medicine chest did you discover a bottle containing a mixture compounded by a man named Sloan, and gently but firmly, oh, so firmly, apply it? The result was, I maintain, to your mind, a necessary evil.

Oh, but there are countless ways in which this smarting sensation is entirely unnecessary.

Was it necessary that the only pan you picked up without a handle should be hot? Was it necessary that the side of your face bear evidence of a few hours spent in the search of natural beauty? And last, but no means least, was it necessary that you should ignorantly hold a piece of phosphorus in your hand, or pour water into sulphuric acid?

I uphold my point in saying that these last incidents were unavoidable, and that more than once burns are entirely unnecessary and, needless to repeat, evils.

Children Receive Valuable Training in Weekly Bulletin.

One of the most interesting projects ever undertaken in the Training School, is the Weekly News Bulletin, by the First Grade.

Each section of the First Grade contributes to this bulletin, which is posted on the board, just outside the First Grade room. Every Wednesday the children suggest and dictate what they want the bulletin to contain. True it is made up of short simple sentences, yet it is real work for the children in this grade. Their sentences are usually about something they are studying, or something that has happened in the Training School.

The following is a copy of the March 5, 1924, News Bulletin:

We put rich dirt on our sand table. Franklin brought grass. Walter and Waverly brought moss. Miss I. Dickenson brought some bulbs.

Miss Looney brought us some seeds. We planted them in a sponge. We watered them.

We hung the sponge in the sunshine.

Guess what it will be? Dr. Tidyman has come back from Chicago.

We are glad he is back. Florence brought a plant.

The Third Grade is having health week.

The Tooth Brush Elf visited them. We planted some seed on March the 3rd.

We are going to watch them. We want to know how soon they will wake up.

We have seen some new birds. They are blue birds and woodpeckers.

Miss Dickenson is going to draw a picture of them for us.

NEWS OF FACULTY

Miss Thelma Brown was married in August.

Misses Barlow, Jeter, Carter and Camper are spending the winter at Columbia University.

Miss Eleanor B. Forman is Registrar at Salem College, Winston-Salem, North Carolina.

Miss Lula O. Andrews is with her sister at Radford State Teachers College, and is engaged in writing.

Miss Mary D. Pierce is primary supervisor for the State of Alabama.

Miss M. W. Haliburton is living in Waco, Texas, where she supervises first, second, third and fourth grades in ten buildings. In an eleventh building she has a Demonstration or Training School for primary teachers.

Dr. Mary Evelyn Brydon, director of the Bureau of Child Welfare of the Virginia State Board of Health, was called to Detroit, Boston, and California to speak before various associations upon this phase of health work in Virginia.

Miss Mary St. Clair Woodruff is head of Community Betterment work in Alabama. This is a department of the State Board of Education. Miss Woodruff is in charge of the Parent-Teacher and Community Leagues, of which she has organized six hundred and seventy-five and for which she prepares and sends out a program each month.

Service! Your spirit is service—

Service to God and man.

Yours is the kind of spirit

That fits in with God's great plan.

And this is a happy spirit

As well as good and great.

There are no happier years in my memory

Than those spent within your gate.

This spirit is in your leaders,

And whether they will or not,

Your daughters come under its influence

And learn what time cannot blot.

As the years go by they are scattered—

Some to the ends of the earth,

But the seeds have been sown, Alma

Mater,

And this spirit soon finds its worth.

For nothing is greater than service,

And whether we're great or small

If the service rendered is greatest

Then we're the greatest of all.

For God in His Infinite Goodness

Has given us this great plan,

And your spirit, O! Alma Mater,

Is service to God and man.

—EDITH ESTER.

When'er I look on any lovely things—

A landscape or a garden or a face—

Or when sweet music's dreamy murmuring

Is wafted to me in some quiet place, Somewhere inside there comes a happy pain.

A glad, ecstatic feeling of regret— That rises up and tinges through each vein,

As if despair and blessedness had met.

I know not why the goblet of delight Is always flavored with the taste of tears,

Nor why the face of Beauty is not quite

The unalloyed good that it appears. But this I know, that Beauty is most wise

When she appeals and hurts and satisfies.

—JAMES L. PEARSON.

ism gave to it the directness and compactness of the short story. Science has caused the topics of the novel to be changed from the subject of moralization to that of descent, from manners to motive, from marriage to divorce. The readers of today demand frank speech. The novels of today are no worse than the society that enjoys them.

There are a certain group of people who think that the novels should not have a happy ending. If the ending is happy and rings true it is a good thing—for people forget the unpleasantness of life and remember the happy events. One thing that the American novel still holds to is the estimation of people according to morals.

The American Novel needs ideas rather than strength and artistic skill. It lacks depth, spiritual development—beauty and the interpretation of life in a large way as compared to the English Novels.

When the pendulum swings too far in one direction it will come back. This is the case of the American novel. It swung from regional topics to fiction, from fiction to nationalism. The next swing of the pendulum will be to idealism. From this we see that the Golden Age of American Literature is yet to come.

STATE STUDENT VOLUNTEER CONVENTION

The spirit of the gathering of students at Randolph-Macon Woman's College last week-end from nearly every college in this state, will long be remembered by all who were privileged to go. How hard it is to try to express in words this spirit! You may get some idea of it from the messages of greeting given by the leaders when first introduced. Some of these were, "Students together in the school of Christ, live, love, and serve." "We frankly face here the lordship of Christ" and "May this conference make Jesus more real to us."

Not only these words created a desire to press on in doing one's part in the advancing of God's Kingdom but also there were posters, which contained stirring and valuable information. The one that expressed the purpose for such a gathering was "The evangelization of the world in this generation." None of us who were present can forget the message brought by the speakers which revealed the needs of our brothers and sisters in America and in foreign countries. After facing frankly these needs the group as a whole and each individual realized the only way was to know God as a personal savior and then try to reveal Him to others by living a message of brotherly love, by knowing the conditions existing in the world and by answering all questions according to the way exemplified by Jesus Christ.

DR. MIMS SPEAKS ON "THE FIGHT OF IDEALISM IN AMERICA"

Large Audience Hears Inspiring Lecture of Famous Scholar and Author.

On Thursday night, March 13, Dr. Edwin Mims, of Vanderbilt University, delivered an address on "The Fight for Idealism in America." Dr. Mims is one of the great teachers of literature in the south and is one of our greatest interpreters of literature.

Dr. Robert A. Milikan, Director of the California Institute of Technology, and recently the recipient of the Nobel Prize in Science, has the following to say of an address delivered by Dr. Edwin Mims on "The Fight for Idealism in America": "It was the most stimulating and constructive lecture which I have heard delivered in the Pasadena course of public lectures for two years, and that despite the fact that some of the foremost lecturers of the country have appeared in the course. This lecture ought to be heard by every man and woman in the United States. Dr. Mims has a real message and is at once scholarly, stimulating, and intensely interesting."

This lecture was also given at the University of California, Leland Stanford, the University of Southern California, and other colleges on the Coast, and before leading men's and women's clubs. More recently it has been given before the State Teachers of Michigan, before leading colleges in North Carolina, and a large group of college clubs in Atlanta. Series of lectures have been given in Minneapolis, at the University of Cincinnati, and Chautauque, New York.

Dr. Mims presented his theme to his audience in a series of questions such as: Do you believe that the earth is a piece of mud passing through space to nothing? Do you believe that man is a parasite or of eternal worth? Do you believe that history is a series of cycles of progress and then retrogression or that through the ages one increasing purpose runs and that we are moving to that one event to which everyone is going? Do you think that religion is a spent force in life or that it will continue to be that which binds us to God?

Today, declared Dr. Mims, there are two tendencies in our contemporary life; first, wordliness, selfishness, pessimism, utter oblivion to what is going on about us, on the other hand, optimism and idealism. If we want to understand our age we must be able to interpret and know the significance of great standard literature even if we disapprove. Our literature is characterized by a realism, a naturalness, courage, faith, and optimism, and we must have these to attain idealism. In studying the lives of great men if we knew their limitations there would be no more hero worship. But in Walter Hines Page, who became the foremost

ANOTHER FIRE AT FARMVILLE

Star Warehouse Owned by Co-Ops and Two Other Buildings Burn.

The Star warehouse filled with tobacco, owned by the Co-Operative Tobacco Growers' Association, an empty warehouse owned by W. W. Jackson, and a small tobacco factory recently purchased by the Teachers College, were completely destroyed, and the power plant and Presbyterian Church damaged by a fire here Saturday night, March 15, causing damage estimated at over $60,000.

At one time it appeared that the flames would spread to other buildings in the business district and auxiliary fire fighting apparatus from Crewe and Lynchburg were requested, but the flames were gotten under control in time to stop the Lynchburg apparatus at the station and to turn the apparatus from Crewe back when it reached Burkeville.

This is the second warehouse in Farmville to burn within a month, the former fire also being in a warehouse belonging to the Co-Operative Association and containing 290,000 pounds of tobacco and the building itself was valued at $20,000, while the warehouse owned by W. W. Jackson is valued at $10,000. Damage to the Presbyterian Church was extensive, while the power plant was only slightly damaged, although lights in the city were extinguished and the electric pump of the fire department was rendered useless, allowing the fire to gain new headway before the steam pump could be placed in operation.

No explanation of the origin of the fire has been offered. The fire department of Farmville is to be commended upon the wonderful work it accomplished, for the fire, reported at 8 o'clock was well under control at 9:30.

KINDERGARTEN CHILDREN GIVE PROGRAM IN CHAPEL

The Kindergarten Department of the Training School presented a delightful little program in chapel Thursday, March 13. The children marched on the stage in double formation, those in front bringing a wagon, bearing carpentering tools, others came behind carrying pieces of furniture, while still others had posters telling of what the furniture was made. In the very front of the stage was a wagon on which were pots of blooming hyacinths and tulips, and two posters, "We planted these bulbs last fall" and "This wagon was made with Hill Blocks." The children thanked Dr. Jarman for their Patty Hill Blocks which they said they had enjoyed very much.

Then they sat down on the stage while the devotional exercises were going on and, after a talk by Dr. Jarman, on how he used to act when he was their age, they marched out.

Only a few more days until more resolutions are broken.

ELIZABETH BELL WINS LOCAL ORATORICAL CONTEST

Miss Elizabeth Bell, high school senior, is the winner of the initial local try-out for the nation-wide oratorical contest. The subject of these orations is "The United States Constitution," and the purpose "to increase interest and love and respect for our Constitution." The State winner will be sent to Washington for the final contest at which prominent men will be present to judge the oratorical ability of the younger generation.

STEPS TOWARD A COLLEGE BASIS

No Diploma to Be Given in Course Four.

Further changes have recently been made in the curriculum of the Farmville State Teachers College. Freshmen entering course four cannot receive a diploma in two years, but must stay for a degree. This measure is anticipatory to the act that after 1925 no person will be allowed to teach in Virginia high schools without a degree. Another change is the elimination of Course V. The Home Economics Department will remain the same, but those who formerly would have taken Course V will choose Course IV with Home Economics as an elective. Both of the changes should be beneficial to the school. They will revise its standards and tend to place it more upon a college basis. Teachers College prophets are already seeing the number in our degree classes go up into the hundreds.

STORY OF ST. PATRICK

St. Patrick was born about the year 389, the son of Calpornicus, a middle-class land proprietor and deacon, who is represented as living at a place called Bannauenta.

Patrick was doubtless educated as a Christian and a devout Roman Catholic. When he was about sixteen years old he was carried away and enslaved in Ireland by a band of marauders who made a raid on his home in western Britain. After six years, he succeeded in making his escape to the Continent. He later went to Gaul and was there made a priest and bishop. He returned to Ireland as a missionary in 432. On March 17, 493 he died at Saul, near Strangford Lough, where many years before he had founded his first church. March 17 is now a day sacred to his memory.

Ireland was, during St. Patrick's lifetime, inhabited by a great number of petty tribes, most of which were evangelized by Patrick. So well was his work accomplished that Ireland became known as the "island of the saints." His autobiographical "Confession" and his "Epistles to Conoticus," both reveal a devout, simple, intelligent man and a most discreet and energetic missionary, always emphasizing in his teachings the essentials of the Gospel.

Some have told us that he performed miracles; overcame the famous idol known as Ann Cruach; astounded his enemies by bringing down darkness; banished the snakes and toads out of Ireland; and at his death, so great was his glory that there was no night for twelve days.

Is it strange that the Irish set aside a day in his memory?

MODERN HOTEL FOR FARMVILLE

Recent Campaign Closes With Stock Oversubscribed For Modern Fire Proof Structure Costing $135,000.

The intensive campaign for the selling of stock in Farmville's modern, fireproof hotel closed last Monday night with a grand total of $140,700 worth of stock sold to the citizens of the town. This is said to be one of the greatest steps forward in the progress of the growing little city that has been made by the citizens in the past generation.

The hotel will probably be located on the Richardson property directly across from the new Student Building. It will be a three-story, brick structure, well equipped with all modern conveniences. It is one of most needed institutions in the town and will be an ideal place for the many guests of the State Teachers College.

First Planned by Lions Club.

The hotel was first planned by the Lions Club, which employed the Hockenbury Co., Inc., to make a survey of the needs, method of selling stock, etc. Following their report a citizens salesman's organization was formed, which in one week sold $140,700 in stock in the project.

To Begin Work at an Early Date.

It is said by those in charge that work on the building will begin as soon as possible. The organization of the stockholders will be held on the 25th of March, after which the Board of Directors will choose the plans for the building and work will begin as soon as the contractor can be secured. The date of the completion of the hotel will probably be within the next eighteen months, at which time the building will be ready for use, and leased to a competent operator.

LOCAL CAPITAL BUYS THE LITHIA SPRINGS

The Farmville Lithia Springs were sold at public auction on last Saturday to Messrs. N. B. Davidson, H. A. Barrow, J. T. Thompson and P. W. Beckman for $10,000. The property was sold under a deed of trust.

The development of the Farmville Lithia Springs will mean a growth for the Town of Farmville, as they are considered to be the best mineral springs in the United States. Many tourists and others will be attracted by them.

Arrangements have been made to supply N. & W. Pullman service with the water and it is expected that a large shipping business will be developed as speedily as possible.

"In Time of Peace—"

Farmville may not have another fire in twenty years. We hope not. It may have one tomorrow. Fires have a habit of being unexpected.

During the fire which destroyed part of our school, esprit de corps could not have been better. No one screamed, no one did anything excessively foolish; in fact, the "Do unto others" rule was in pretty general usage. But that is not a guaranty that in case of a future fire everything will be the same. At any rate, it isn't safe to tempt Providence. "In time of peace prepare for war." Practically all large colleges and boarding schools have realized the value of fire drills. They give a feeling of self-reliance, if not security. To have fire drill does not mean that we must always be expecting a fire, but it does mean that should a fire start, we would be prepared to meet it sanely. At any rate the fire drill itself could do no harm.

For Better or For Worse?

We are all changing, always, for better or for worse. But what changes us? Why are we now so different from what we once were? One of the things that will almost always change a girl is going off to school. So that is why we, students of Teachers College, look at ourselves with wonder and remark, "How we have changed." Is it for better or for worse? Well, both.

A year ago we were peacefully attending some high school. We thought we were important in those days. We were president of this and vice-president of that and perchance captain of the basketball team, but now—we are merely freshmen at Teachers College and are we as happy as when we were the all-important seniors of some high school? Well, now that we are used to being nobody we feel as big as if we were president of the college. We are resigned! In other words, the conceit has been knocked out of us. This, then is one change for the better.

But was conceit our only fault? Decidedly not! Even if we were dignified and responsible seniors, we had no self-reliance. The family was always back of us, making us study and keeping us in the straight and narrow path. Now—perhaps we have strayed a short distance and returned, only to find that the straightest path is not only the safest but also the pleasantest. We know what self-reliance is now, not only from reading Emerson's Essay on "Self-Reliance" but still more from hard-earned experience.

How we have changed! Has Teachers College changed us for the better? Well, let us hope so!

WHAT IS YOUR EDUCATION WORTH?

Did you ever stop to think just what your education was worth to you in dollars and cents? Remember, you have to go to school practically fourteen years in order to obtain even a high school diploma. The four more years of hard work are added before you get your degree. Fourteen years of high school work plus four years of college work make an average of eighteen years which is spent in preparing ourselves for our life's work. Is our education really worth the time and trouble which we have put into these eighteen years of continuous work?

High school and college cannot make successful men of all boys or successful women of all girls—but statistics show that the boy or girl with a college education stands a hundred chances to succeed where the untrained boy or girl stands one. Education pays in dollars and cents.

The testimony of the Western Electric Company is, "only about 10 per cent of men and women without a college education make good while 90 per cent with a college education make good."

"Every day spent in school pays the student $9.02. Here is proof: uneducated laborers earn on an average of $500 a year, for 40 years a total of $20,000.

"High school graduates earn on an average of $1,000 a year, for forty years a total of $40,000.

"This education requires 12 years of school of 180 days each (not counting kindergarten work), a total of 2,160 days in school.

"If 2,160 days at school add $20,000 to the income for life, then each day at school adds $9.02."

How many students would earn $9.02 per day if they stayed out of school and worked? Not many. Those that stay out are therefore losing money, not making it. Just from the viewpoint of money alone we see that education is worth the trouble and time. "Education pays in dollars and cents, but it pays a thousand times more in values that cannot be reckoned in money."—(Harry Clark.)

Elizabeth Wingo.

"What became of that portable garage of yours?"

"I tied the dog to it and a cat came by."

AT THE EACO THEATRE—Week March 24th-29th

MONDAY—"SUCCESS." A Special Metro Classic Production, enacted by a special cast. A brilliant screening of a tensely interesting stage hit. Revealing the intimate secrets of the world behind the footlights. It is a drama of hearts and hopes. Also Pathe News.

TUESDAY—"ALL THE BROTHERS WERE VALIANT." This is a SUPER SPECIAL PRODUCTION, enacted by a most excellent cast, in which Lon Chaney and Billy Dove, take leading parts. A stirring tale of daring adventure and thrilling romance. THIS IS THE MOST DRAMATIC SEA STORY EVER PICTURIZED. It is full of drama, love, adventure and thrills. TAKE OUR WORD FOR IT, THIS IS A MOST EXCELLENT PICTURE. BE SURE TO SEE IT. Also the last episode of "HAUNTED VALLEY."

WEDNESDAY—CHARLES JONES and a big cast in "BIG DAN." It is the story of a leader of men who was followed by women. It proves that boxing gloves with brawny hands inside are helpless before ladies' gloves, with white, delicate hands inside. Also AESOP FABLE.

THURSDAY—"THE SOUL OF THE BEAST." Another Special Picture with Madge Bellamy, Cullen Landis, Noah Berry and others in the cast. Every kid from seven to seventy should see this. It is the biggest screen novelty of the season and the greatest human interest story ever screened. A whole circus was used in making this picture. And an elephant does some wonderful acting in it. DON'T MISS IT. Also Fox News.

FRIDAY—CONSTANCE TALMADGE and HARRISON FORD in "THE PRIMITIVE LOVER." This is a special picture. It is a most excellent comedy drama; the kind we all like to see Constance Talmadge and Harrison Ford in. It contains many highly amusing situations, and it will be a real treat to see it. Also a good comedy. Admission to S. T. C. girls, 25 cents.

SATURDAY—JACK HOLT in "A GENTLEMAN OF LEISURE." He had to steal a certain girl's photograph within twenty-four hours, to win a wager. So he hired a real burglar to help him. And together they stir up a hornet's nest of furious fun and excitement. A perfect blend of galloping comedy and tense drama. Also the last episode of "PLUNDER." MATINEE AT 3.30.

Admission to each show except Friday, 20 cents.

Y. W. Y. A. NEWSFebruary Business Meeting.

The Y. W. C. A. business meeting for February was held Wednesday night, Feb. 12. At this time the reports of secretary and treasurer were read, and the coming National Y. W. C. A. Convention to be held in April of this year was discussed. The business meetings of the Y. W. C. A. are very important and all members are urged to attend them each month.

Discussion Groups to Be Held.

As a continuation of the mission study classes which are held after the Indianapolis Convention, discussion groups will be held for two Tuesday nights after the spring holiday. These discussion groups will meet in the same places the mission study classes met and will continue the same subjects for discussion.

Convention Training Class to Meet After Holiday.

For the purpose of studying and discussing the questions to be considered at the National Y. W. C. A. Convention which meets in New York City this spring, and as well as for the purpose of instructing our delegates to this convention, a convention training class will be held several times after the spring holiday. The time for the meeting of this class will be announced later.

Since the coming convention is an important one not only to the delegates, and the Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, but to every Association member and every student in our school, every girl in school is not only invited but urged to attend these meetings. It is extremely important that the questions decided be the true consensus of opinion of our student body and Association membership.

READING CLASS PRESENTS ATTRACTIVE PROGRAM

On Wednesday afternoon, March 12, Miss Spear's Reading Class presented "Blue Beard" (dramatized by Alma Maynard) and "Old Pipes and the Dryad."

"Blue Beard" was given first. The story is briefly as follows: Louise, the wife of Blue Beard, forbidden to open a certain door, upon doing so is horror-stricken at finding the gory heads of the former wives of her husband. Other exciting events follow upon this discovery.

The cast was as follows:
Blue Beard—Mary Mount.
Louise—Louise Deans.
Sister Anne—Florence Odell.
Mother—Martha Freeman.
Brothers—Margaret Turpin and Mary Hartle.

A maid and friends.

The second part of the program was "Old Pipes and the Dryad." The story was woven around Old Pipes who, because of his age is unable to call the cattle from the hills any longer. Upon releasing a dryad from a tree he is repaid by a kiss which restores his youth, thus giving him the power to blow his pipes as of old.

The cast was as follows:
Old Pipes—Evelyn Gallagher.
His Mother—Lillian Minkel.
Dryad—Ida Byrd.
Echo Dwarf—Grace Trittipoe.
Sheriff—Gladys Griffin.

DR. MIMS SPEAKS ON "THE FIGHT OF IDEALISM IN AMERICA"

interpreter of the ideals of English, we might have hero worship.

Dr. Mims says that there are two interpretations of science, facts and theories of science as the basis for agnosticism and fate. We are in the grip of a force over which we have no control. This force is fate.

One of the great characteristics of modern literature is the depiction of the American village. One should not go away from his home to make a name for himself, but should stay and do all he can for his home town. There are three types of people—the knocker, the booster, and the idealist. Be the idealist.

There has been much criticism of America since the war, but we meet every criticism by acknowledging the truth of them and express a profound hope in the future.

Despite so many things that fill one with dismay we are passing through the greatest period of religious history since the Reformation. To magnify Jesus as supreme and final authority of religion—this is the fight that commands all that is best in human nature.

"I do not love my billy-goat
I wish that he were dead,
Because he kicked me, so he did—
He kicked me with his head."

"LOVES ME, LOVES ME NOT"

Friday evening, March 14 the Dramatic Club, under the auspices of Miss Edna Norton Spear, presented its annual number on the Lyceum Course, "Loves Me, Loves Me Not."

The chief thread of the plot is briefly as follows: The beautiful heiress is courted by the practically penniless, but thoroughly charming young Irishman, Litton. She loves him and in an attempt to prove it succeeds in ruining him financially and bringing about their heads a tangle of legal complications. Both lovers, ignorant of the other's part in the mix-up, part after a quarrel. Merivale, who has caused most of the misunderstanding, pursues the heiress determinedly until he is unmasked by the clever old family lawyer. Litton, who has returned a military idol, generously pardons his rival and helps him escape, after he has won back his sweetheart. The curtain falls as cupid sends his call to arms.

"Loves Me, Loves Me Not" is undoubtedly one of the best plays ever presented at the College. The situations were clever, the lines sparkling. But a play cannot be a play simply by merit of its speeches. It must be acted. This play was acted. In joyful contrast to most amateur plays, the entire cast of this play was good. Their interpretation and acting showed more than skillful coaching, it showed real understanding and appreciation, it showed the greatest achievement of art, naturalness.

Program.

Act I.—Dean's House, Beechwood, "Loves Me?"

Act II.—Captain Litton's quarters in the barracks, "Loves Me Not."

Act III.—Scene 1. Mr. Seton's office, London. Scene 2. Dean's House, Beechwood, "Loves Me."

Costumes furnished by Miss Catherine Tupper.

Play coached by Miss Edna Spear.

Characters.

Captain Letterblair Litton—Mabel Mays.

Dean Ambrose, his uncle—Catherine Kemp.

Percival Pinkney, Dean's secretary—Mary Bruce Friend.

Francis Merivale, a neighboring Squire, suitor to Fanny—Elizabeth Westbrook.

Mr. Seton, a lawyer, Fanny's trustee—Elizabeth Paylor.

Jorkins, Litton's servant—Elizabeth Jarman.

Smithers, Mr. Seton's clerk, Lucy Hale Overby.

Fanny Hadden, Mr. Seton's ward—Virginia Cowherd.

Polly Messiter, The Dean's god-daughter—Dorothy Shoffner.

Hyacinth Messiter, her aunt—Nancy Lyne.

LOOK OUT FOR THE VIRGINIAN!

It has gone—to the press. The staff once more smiles and perhaps March will be filled with brighter days. We can't wait for May 15 to come.

If you have to climb the steps in the student building, it diminishes avoirdupois.

LITERARY SOCIETIES

The Athenian Literary Society held its regular meeting on March 15. Officers for the spring term were elected. They are:

President—Margaret Davis.
Vice-President—Daisy Mitchell.
Recording Secretary—Elsie Bell.
Corresponding Secretary—Mabel Cathey.

Treasurer—Elizabeth Paylor.
Reporter—Martha Phillips.

The following program was given:

Woodrow Wilson as a Lawyer—Marjorie Webber.

Woodrow Wilson as a Professor—Margaret Cobb.

Woodrow Wilson as Governor of New Jersey—Agnes Johnson.

Pierians Present Musical Program.

The Pierian Literary Society held an open meeting the night of March 12 in the auditorium. The subject of the program was the Operas of Saint-Saens and Wagner. A few of the most familiar selections of some of the Operas were sung and acted by various members of the Society. The program was an attractive one and enjoyed by all.

The program was as follows:

(Miss Jacqueline Marston at the piano.)

Life of Saint Saens—Miss Katherine Shore.

Story of "Samson and Delilah"—Miss Munoz.

"My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice"—Victrola Record.

Life of Richard Wagner—Louise Glenn.

Story of "Tannhauser"—Annie Lyle Tucker.

Part of Scene III given.

"Elizabeth's Prayer"—Evelyn Barnes.

"Pilgrims' Chorus"—Members of the Society.

"To the Evening Star"—Norma Fuqua.

STUDENT COMMITTEE ENTERTAINS STUDENT BODY

The Student Committee entertained the student body in the auditorium Saturday night, March 29.

The first number of the program consisted of a school room scene into which came well known members of the faculty, who were represented by different girls in school. Each teacher centered her lesson on the same poem "Mary Had a Little Lamb." The arithmetic teacher worked problems about it, the writing teacher taught "little e" by it, the psychology teacher traced it to the Greek, the head of the schedule committee had to rearrange all the sections so Mary and her lamb could be together. Characteristics of the teachers were cleverly portrayed by the girls—the audience was to guess the member of the faculty represented.

Mr. Bell—Ruth Bartholomew.
Miss Bierbower—Jean West.
Miss Buford—Lucile Wright.
Miss Craddock—Madeline McMurdo.
Miss Everett—Gladys Parker.
Miss Graham—Louise Jones.
Mr. Grainger—Mary Maupin.
Miss Hiner—Cornelia Dickenson.
Miss Kendrick—Eva McKenney.
Mr. Lear—Frieda Crockin.
Miss Lila London—Marion Asher.
Miss Taliaferro—Nell McArdle.
Miss Tucker—Annie Miller Almond.

Following this was a song entitled "A B C" by Mable Mays, Laurie Wyche and Julia Reid. They sang as encores—some Mother Goose Rimes, after which Peggy Moore gave a reading entitled "Sewing Things at Night." The audience sang school songs while the members of the Student Committee served refreshments.

FARMVILLE NOT BY ITSELF

Tests given the Freshman class prove some very queer things, about topics of the day. Recent newspapers, however, show to us that the scholars here are not the only students in the United States who do not keep up with current topics:

Boston, Mar. 28.—Here are some of the answers supplied by engineering students in Northeastern University to a series of "reaction" tests to the "Teapot Dome" scandal, conducted by Prof. Milton J. Schlagenhalf:

"Teapot Dome is on top of the Capitol."

"It's just a cartoonist's idea of the government scandal."

Thirty-seven of the 245 students questioned thought the Teapot Dome was in Washington. One sophomore declared Edward B. McLean was a movie actor.

PRINCE EDWARD ELIMINATION CONTEST

In the Prince Edward County elimination contest for the nation-wide oratorical contest held at the Farmville High School on Friday, March 21, four contestants took part. Each of these did creditable work and the decision was declared in favor of Miss Ruth Garland of the Farmville High School. We have reason to be proud of our representative, Miss Elizabeth Bell, whose ability gives promise of distinction in this line of work.

SISTER SALLY'S KITCHEN

A great number of girls at some time or other add Mrs. to their names. The majority of them do not know anything about the kitchen. We will undertake to publish a number of recipes for their benefit.

To Pickle Your Husband's Love:

- 1 permanent wave.
- 2 quarts of cooking sense.
- 3 pounds of ability to sew.
- 1 cup of humor.
- ½ teaspoonful of temper.

Mix the humor and the temper, variety is the spice of life and pepper the spice of pickles. Use the cooking sense to a good advantage and next mend the sox and sew the buttons. Before this look your best and take care not to add too much water to your permanent wave as it might fall. Pickles have been kept for fifty years made by this recipe.

To Make Expenses Low:

- 1 spring hat every 4 years.
- 1 winter hat every 3 years.
- 1 coat every 5 years.

Get the spring hat white and "color-ite" it light blue the second year, dark blue the third year, and black the fourth year. If you are very careful it may be used the fifth year by changing the trimming. Get a large winter hat. The second year take off part of the brim and the third make it into a turban. Get one light coat. Make it over and dye it as time and color demands. If you follow these directions both ends will always meet—especially if you are caught in a rain storm.

To Preserve Children:

- Take: 1 large grassy field.
½ dozen children.
2 or 3 small dogs.
A pinch of brook and pebbles.

Mix children and dogs well together, and put them in the field, stirring constantly. Pour brook over pebbles; sprinkle grass with flowers; spread over all a deep-blue sky; and bake in the sun. When brown, remove and set to cool in a bath tub.

Tom, Tom, the piper's son
Stole a kiss and away he run;

VALUABLE BULLETIN

School Entertainment for Primary and Grammar Grades, Edited by Miss Mary B. Haynes.

A bulletin, "School Entertainments for Primary and Grammar Grades," has been edited by Miss Mary B. Haynes, Supervisor of the First Grade in the Training School. The "Foreword" of this bulletin contains an accurate description of its purpose, contents and value: "We have been accustomed for years to receive numerous requests from teachers in the state for help in getting up school entertainments. These requests give evidence of what we believe to be a general demand. The present bulletin is designed to meet this demand. Dramatic exercises have been given from time to time in our Training School. From this source, exercises have been selected that have proved successful and that are suited to the usual school situation. In the original production of the exercises, as in the preparation of the bulletin, two aims have been held in mind; first, to vitalize some phase of school work; and second, to entertain."

It seems to us that this little bulletin should be in the hands of every teacher, particularly the inexperienced, for all of the exercises have been tried out and found good and practicable. There is a great variety of subject matter, covering almost every grade and subject.

UNION CONCERT

A delightful concert was given in the auditorium Monday, March 31, after dinner by the quartet of the Union Theological Seminary of Richmond.

The quartet sang negro spirituals and sacred songs. The music was indeed beautiful and their personalities pleasing. Some members of the quartet were former Hampden Sidney students. Mr. Claud Pritchard, former president of the State Student Volunteer Association, gave a short talk.

The College was fortunate enough to obtain this concert by virtue of the students' being in town to attend the Union—Hampden-Sidney baseball game.

MILLER RE-ELECTED AS PRESIDENT

The following are the results of the Student Government elections:
President—Helen Miller.
Vice-President—Eugenia Vincent.
Secretary—Olive Smith.
Treasurer—Frieda Crockin.
Campus League Chairman—Winnie Sutherland.
Freshman Representative—Virginia Uptide.

COLLEGE CUT-OUTS

Princeton University is installing a system of unannounced tests in the hope that it will do away with "cramming" before examinations. Now it is a question of "cramming" every night.

A professor at the University of California, while on a train enroute to the East, suddenly remembered that he had forgotten to post a promised quiz. He got off the train at the next stop, phoned to the University, and had the quiz posted just as the class was about to adjourn. Incidentally, he held up a transcontinental express for three minutes.

There are sixty-seven candidates out for fencing, the most minor sport, at the University of California. In fact, there is talk of its being made a major sport at that institution. This would be an innovation in the sporting world and a tremendous boost for fencing.

Four University of Virginia students have forfeited the use of their automobiles for thirty days as a result of speeding on the campus. Two others were meted out the same penalty for operating their machines with the mufflers open.

In celebration of its seventy-fifth birthday anniversary, the University of Wisconsin served a large cake bearing seventy-five candles. An idea of the size of the cake can be obtained from the fact that the frosting alone required sixty-five pounds of sugar, whites of 240 eggs and three pounds of marshmallow. The first piece was served to President Berge, the "father of the family."

A boxing show is held annually at Notre Dame, the proceeds of which are for the benefit of missionaries sent out from the university.

According to the "Boston Transcript" there was an increase of seven per cent in the number of students enrolled in American universities and colleges from 1921-22 to 1922-23.

Students who wish to submit poems for possible inclusion in this year's College Anthology ("The Poets of the Future," Vol. 7) should send their contributions not later than May 15 to Dr. Henry T. Schmitting, The Stratford Company, 234-240 Boylston Street, Boston, Mass.

MOTHER GOOSE FASCINATES AUDIENCE

The Training School children of the first, second, and third grades swept a large audience in the school auditorium off their feet straight into the realms of Mother Goose and her children Friday night when they presented, "Mother Goose, Her Heart and Her Book." There all dignity and thoughts of troublesome math and science were cast aside and every one revelled again in these irresistible people and their charms.

As Betty was showing Jane her Mother Goose Book, Mother Goose herself stepped out of its pages and, calling her children, made them relive the joys and woes, and calamities that were characteristic of them. The grandeur of King Cole with his drummers, fiddlers, and dancers; the sad fate of Jack and Jill; the heavy responsibility of the Old Woman in the Shoe; the ingenuity of Peter; and the triumph of The Three Little Kittens were as real to the enthusiastic listeners as to Betty and Jane themselves.

These well known and beloved characters portrayed so naturally and with such ease by the children, that any professional might well have grounds to envy them.

The play was arranged and presented by Miss Mary B. Haines, Supervisor of the first grade, under the auspices of the Woman's Club of Farmville.

SAFETY FIRST

It seems well at a time when people are so careless, as they are today to consider this subject. Every day some preventable accident occurs and adds more to the innumerable list of souls who have been devoured by the great dragon, "Recklessness."

The most pitiable part of any accident is the thought that it might have been avoided. Safety first appliances and mechanical precautions help, but they lack the human intelligence to adapt themselves to the conditions and circumstances. If we combine with appliances and precautions a little care and forethought, they will then and only then render their greatest service.

It is a little thing to be careful when crossing the street, but it is a big thing if thru neglect, an arm, a foot, or even a life is lost.

Money does not compensate for such unfortunate accidents as happen daily. An ounce of precaution, as the old saying goes, is worth all sorts of regrets.

So bearing in mind the accidents which might have been prevented had it not been for thoughtlessness and carelessness, let us, as good citizens of this wonderful country of ours and as true followers of the one who gave us life, have as our motto, "Safety First" for the good of others as well as ourselves.

Two Scots were fishing, but were new at the game.
"Got a bite yet, Jack?"
"Naw," said Jack, "I don't believe my worm's half trying."

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer, and these will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matters should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of their copies of The Rotunda will be appreciated.

The other day, in a certain class in this college, a professor, not finding chalk, wrote on the board with an eraser. It served his purpose well. So far as we know, this is the first time an eraser of this school has been put to a really profitable use. Personally, we always felt a delicacy in laying ungentle hand to the object on which the hoary dust of ages had so trustfully collected.

This same delicacy does not guide others, it would seem, judging from the cloudy condition of many boards. Why not speak to the maids gently and have them take the erasers outside once a month for an airing. If not that, then we'll have to degenerate to the sponges used with the "used to be" slate.

Elections

What we are about to say has been said many times in many ways. But never, do we think, has it been more timely or necessary. Almost before we realized that spring vacation was over, spring elections arrived. In the aftermath of so much joy, it is hard to think seriously, we know, but it has to be done. In the past, it has been the custom for interest to lag after the first election of the year. Why this should be we cannot say unless it is that the succeeding three elections deal with more specialized phases of school activity, whereas interest in Student Government is universal. Or it may be that the student body simply becomes bored with the series. Neither should be the case. Each of us is reflected in each office-holder. If we do not have pride enough in our own college to vote for the girl we conscientiously believe to be the one best fitted to uphold her traditions, then—well, better not to say what then. Another thing. Besides voting, vote conscientiously. "She speaks to me, I'll vote for her." Absurd, isn't it? And yet that, or something equally as important has influenced more people than would care to admit it, perhaps. Remember, as you vote this year, so will your college be run next year. Do you want to be one of those who say, "Farmville isn't what it used to be?" It all depends on how you vote—NOW.

THE DECLINE OF COURTESY TOWARD WOMEN

Perhaps, the above title will bring forth a volley of protest from the opposite sex, nevertheless, they must admit that courtesy, at present, hardly consists of more than tipping the hat. However, it is only fair to say that this condition has come about only since the World War, which caused women to play such an important part in the industrial world. Although, immediately following the Industrial Revolution, the sight of women working in factories and mines was not uncommon—yet it did not seriously affect society because the women were from one class.

The War did a great thing for women, in that it brought out the initiative and ability that was dammed up in them, but which had never had an outlet. The cream of the country had been taken away, and the problem of organizing industry was largely left to the women. The result was that woman was put on the same level with man. Consequently, man felt that woman no longer needed his protection, as the new woman was not one who easily fainted and cried, but one who could pass a crisis.

Not only did the War produce this type but it caused the appearance of the flapper. Woman, having found herself free, in many cases went to extremes. These were the flappers who encouraged such unbecoming acts as smoking and drinking. One can readily see why man lost both respect and courtesy for woman, yet he cannot be excused, for the higher and better traits of his character did not influence him for the good. Until man realizes that beneath the forward appearance of the modern woman lie sincerity and truth, he is committing an irreparable sin.

AT THE EACO THEATRE—Week April 7th-12th.

MONDAY—"THE HOTTENTOT"—the comedy drama special of the year. This picture is A RIOT! One of the GREAT BIG HITS of the year. That steeple chase! When you're not laughing you're yelling—like—yelling like! And the story! A panic when a youth who can't even stick on a rocking-horse has to ride a four-legged thunderbolt because his girl believes he's a famous steeple-chaser. THIS IS SOME GOOD PICTURE. Also Pathe News.

TUESDAY—TOM MIX in "THE LONE STAR RANGER." Here is Tom Mix at his best. There is good action all the way through, much human interest, and the usual thrills. Tony, the famous Tom Mix horse does some intelligent acting. On this night we commence a new serial, "THE WAY OF A MAN," written by the man who wrote "The Covered Wagon."

WEDNESDAY—CORINE GRIFFITH in "MORAL FIBRE." Here is a unique production that offers strong appeal, with magnificent scenes, beautiful gowns, dramatic situations, novel twists, surprises and a clever love story.

THURSDAY and FRIDAY—"THE MAN FROM BRODNEY'S." A SPECIAL PRODUCTION adapted from the famous novel by GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON, enacted by a superb cast, in which we have J. WARREN KERRIGAN, ALICE CALHOUN, WANDA HAWLEY, MISS DUPONT and many other stars. This is said to be the sweetest love story ever filmed. Most every one has read the novel, so we need not tell you what the story is. What we want you to realize is THAT THIS IS UNDOUBTEDLY ONE OF THE BEST PICTURES THAT HAS BEEN SHOWN IN OUR THEATRE IN A LONG TIME. MAKE A SPECIAL EFFORT TO SEE THIS PICTURE. Fox News Thursday and a good comedy Friday. Admission to S. T. C. girls, 25 cents.

SATURDAY—"THE GIRL OF THE GOLDEN WEST," David Belasco's powerful drama of the stage, with a wonderful cast headed by J. WARREN KERRIGAN. Here is a drama—real drama. Situations here that have lived and will live forever in the history of dramatic art. On this night we start a new serial "IN THE DAYS OF DANIEL BOONE," a serial that every boy and girl, man and woman should keep up with. Matinee at 3:30. Admission to each show except Thursday and Friday, 20 cents.

COLLEGE STUDENTS' EXCURSION TO ENGLAND AND FRANCE

Chance to Economically Attend European Attractions.

Under the chairmanship of B. D. Adams, of "The Oaks," Ithaca, N. Y., college men are arranging an economical excursion to England, France and other European countries this summer, sailing from New York for Plymouth, Cherbourg and Southampton on June 21st in the third cabin of the "Saxonia," and returning home on the same ship from Southampton and Cherbourg on September 6th. Only college students are eligible, but students of all colleges are welcome to join the excursion. The "Saxonia's" entire third class has been reserved for the college students, and no others will be admitted.

The cost for the round trip has been placed at $165, and the chairman says that with the low rate of exchange prevailing abroad students may enjoy two months of sightseeing and attending exhibitions, fairs, athletic meets, and kindred attractions for $400.

Some of the features abroad the coming summer will be the British Empire Exposition, London; the Olympic Games, Paris; the Ancient Taitcann Games, to be revived in Dublin; and many lesser events throughout Great Britain and the continent.

Mr. Adams says that the exclusive third cabin will answer the increased demand for an economical and comfortable mode of transportation to Europe. On this excursion non-students and immigrants will positively be excluded from the third class, thereby eliminating what has been the economical traveler's only objection to the modern third class. The chairman promises "Good wholesome British food four times a day."

Students are invited to take their musical instruments along, so that impromptu parties, "song fests" and musical evenings may be the rule. The Cunard Line will arrange to store the instruments until the ship returns in September.

The "Saxonia" has just been completely renovated and reconditioned. She has always been famous for her steadiness.

JOKES

"Now, Mr. Brown, if your wife was dying and you had just one wish to make, what would it be?" asked the religion dispenser.

"That she'd go to Heaven," answered Brown.

"A noble wish—a noble wish indeed—your last thought would be for your wife's happiness."

"No, for my happiness—then I'd never see her again."

Suspicious Lover—"How was Cora dressed last night, Jack?"

Jack—"Why—er—it's hard to remember; but I do know that the dress she wore to the dance was checked."

S. L.—"There, I knew it! She's no girl for me to be going around with."

"How long you all in jail fo' Mose?"

"Two weeks."

"What am de charge?"

"No cha'ge, everything am free."

"Ah mean, what has you did?"

"Done shot my wife."

"You all killed yo' wife and only got two weeks?"

"Dat's all—then I gits hung."

He—"What kind of a dress is that?"
She—"A dotted swiss."
He—"How dumb of me. Cheese-cloth of course."

Belle—"Shall we tango?"
Happe—"It's all the same to me."
Belle—"Yes—I noticed that."

Gone, But Not Forgiven.

And now we've passed our newest fads,
From soup to cigarette,
We've tried to name the whole darn crew
Including the girls who pet.

But there's another fad I name
In sadder, softer tone,
She has no doubt passed on for good—
Our valiant chaperon.

—Punch Bowl.

Roommate—"What was the idea of trying to kiss me when the lights went out?"

Roommate—"Force of habit, ole dear."

"See that man over there?"
"Yeah, what about him?"

"He's got such a hot line that when he writes to his girl he uses asbestos envelopes."

Mary—"I believe I will go into the movies."

Margaret—"Got enough money for two tickets?"

Yearling, at Davidson's—"I'd like to see something cheap."

Clerk—"Try this on—the mirror is at your left."

Cherry—"Our American women of today are poverty stricken. They do nothing but use lip-sticks from morning till night."

Stone—"Sort of a hand to mouth existence as it were."

He loves me, he loves me not,
Is a tune that's out of date—
He has no cash, he has a lot,
Is the song they sing of late.

Driver — "Five dollars and fifty cents."
All Gone—"Back up to fifty cents."

No girl at S. T. C. buries her nose so deeply in books that she can't get at it with a powder puff.

ALUMNAE NOTES

Miss Mary Rives Richardson, of Farmville, is a member of the Cornell College Conservatory Orchestra which, on March 26, began its twenty-sixth annual tour through eastern Iowa and Illinois. The Cornell Orchestra is one of the few organizations of its kind that goes on the road during the spring vacation. It has a personnel of thirty-five under the direction of Professor Horace A. Miller, of the Cornell Conservatory, who has attained considerable prominence as a composer. The itinerary includes Grand Mound, Mt. Vernon, Cedar Rapids, in Iowa, and the following towns in Illinois: Lanark, Freeport, Geneva, Aurora, Palatine, Barrington, Beloit, Rockford, Polo and Sterling.

The following interesting letter was received from Mildred Dickinson, '22, Editor-in-Chief of the Rotunda her Senior year:

Humacao, Porto Rico,
March 16, 1924.

Dear Rotunda:

Each week when you arrive you seem to bridge the very ocean itself and make me feel that S. N. S. is the same dear old place and not really so very far away as I was afraid it would seem this year. For this I thank you. Many times during the year I have planned to write you this letter. Since you have made the school seem so much nearer to me I have often had a longing to do something which might make you feel that I wasn't very far away and that in me you could always find an eager subscriber and reader. The satisfaction in both cases would be entirely mine.

My year in the tropics has proved more than worth while. To those of you who dream of doing "something different" let me suggest a year in Porto Rico. If you think you could get a thrill out of palm bordered beaches and tropical moonlight, just try the West Indies. You'll have some perfectly killing experiences trying to order meals in a small hotel or buying a spool of thread in a small town store where the proprietor does not understand a word of English. We've learned a little Spanish first hand but not a day goes by that we don't get some surprise as a result of our attempts in Spanish with our native servant. There are three of us keeping an apartment in the upstairs of a large and new American style home. We have a servant to do the laundry, marketing and cleaning for which services we pay the large sum of six dollars a month, with board and lodging. We do our own cooking, preferring it to Porto Rican grease and garlic. It's lots of fun. From our balcony we can look out upon coconut palms, banana plants, mango and bread fruit trees, and in the distance the queer rose and grey-blue Spanish houses of the town with the ivory tower of the Catholic Cathedral conspicuous against the Porto Rican hills.

It all seems very foreign in scenery and customs, and yet in the twenty-five years of American occupation a great deal has been accomplished. So far Porto Rico has adopted what is best in American civilization without allowing herself to become entirely assimilated. The English language has made slow progress but American conveniences and modernisms are fast creeping in and in San Juan we find an almost American city. So much of the Americanization goes on through the schools. In the lower grades Spanish is the medium of expression with English as a required subject. The children are eager to learn in most cases and easy to discipline. It's quite an experience teaching our language to a Spanish speaking people, and still more of an inspiration trying to instill a little of good old-fashioned American ideals into a Latin race.

The year has been full of interesting events. We spent our Christmas holidays in Caracas Venezuela, where we saw a real South American bull fight, visited an ostrich farm, attended "cock mass" on Christmas Eve, went through the historic home of Bolivar, and had a real English Christmas dinner in a Spanish home with a Dutch host and an English hostess each of whom spoke fluently six and five languages.

I could write more, but to quote the youthful contributors to the Christian Observer, "I'm hoping this won't find its way to the waste basket," so I guess I'd better not try your patience too far.

To Dr. Jarman I want to state that it is not my intention to lure his dear girls from their native state—at least not "for keeps." In a way I'd like to think of them all as prospective teachers down here for one year—for Porto Rico's sake and their own "experience," but I can assure him that in spite of all the pleasures in store for them they'll appreciate all the more the "old Dominion" and end by deciding that after all there's "no place like home."

May I close with a word of congratulation to the Rotunda staff for the successful enlargement of the school paper and to the school as a whole for the wonderful spirit which has been manifested throughout this rather trying year. Even down here in Porto Rico I have been impressed with it.

Most sincerely yours,
Mildred Dickinson.

PERSONALS

Miss Jennie Tabb attended the meeting of the American Association of Collegiate Registrars held in Chicago, April 2, 3, and 4.

Miss Flamentine Peirce who has been ill with appendicitis at St. Luke's Hospital, Richmond, is greatly improved, and will soon be able to return to school.

The student and faculty representatives to the National Y. W. C. A. Convention in New York will leave next Friday.

We all have sufficient fortitude to bear the misfortunes of others.

HOTEL WEYANOKE NAME OF NEW HOTEL

In the midst of the excitement and enthusiasm centering around Farmville's new hotel, the question arose as to what the name should be. The Hotel Corporation accordingly announced that a contest would be held and the person submitting the most suitable and appropriate title would be awarded ten dollars in gold. When the contest closed on April 1, quite a number of names had been sent in. However, the Board of Directors later announced that Hotel Weyanoke is the name selected for the new hotel, this name being suggested by Miss Jennie M. Tabb, Registrar of State Teachers College, and Mrs. Frank W. Fallwell, of Farmville. The name, as offered above, is the name of the Indian tribe which inhabited this section of the country many years ago. We feel sure, then, that this name is, by far, the most appropriate from a historical standpoint.

SOPHOMORE TABLEAUX

Almost everybody turned out for the Sophomore Tableaux last Saturday night. And they were glad they went, too. The performance was delightful. Miss Evelyn Barnes sang several lovely songs, but several failed to satisfy her appreciative audience. And Miss Edna Norton Spear—ah! A Woman in A Shoe Shop only whetted the appetite for more. Especially well did Miss Spear imitate A Bachelor Scolding on a Button.

There were four tableaux: (1) The Love Letter, (2) Two Strings to One Bow, (3) a. The Proposal, b. After the Proposal and (4) Looking Backward. Miss Mary Friend completed the program by her exquisite interpretation of a Spanish dance.

The whole college, as well as the Sophomore class, is indebted to Mrs. Marshall Baker for the arrangement and management of the entertainment.

ADDRESSES LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

On Thursday afternoon, Mr. Bondurant, a representative of Prince Edward and Cumberland Counties at the recent assembly of the Legislature, addressed the League of Women Voters, of Farmville, and members of the faculty and student body of Teachers College. Mr. Bondurant carefully explained the procedure which a bill has to undergo in order to become a law. In an interesting manner he outlined and discussed the achievements of the Legislature last term. Mr. Bondurant's address was both instructive and entertaining.

PROCTOR

Proctor! How easily that liquid sound rolls from the mouths of the tortured souls under the dictatorship of that illustrious mortal. Many a time and oft have I shaken in my boots with fear at the very name of proctor. To quote Virgil, "my hair stands on end and my tongue cleaves to my mouth," when in the presence of this august monarch. Can there be more excruciating pain than that which is felt by the victim of the proctor? Verily, I answer, no. I speak from experience. I have drained that bitter cup.

Often have I lain in a semi-conscious state "till the wee sma' hours" planning revenge. I see the haughty lady of my troubles on her knees before me. I hear myself saying, "You have done me many and great wrongs. I have waited a long time for this triumph, but it is complete. You shall suffer two-fold what I have suffered." I stop aghast at my phantom instruments of torture and lack of mercy. I hear myself chanting.

"A hall president, a proctor and a freshie
Once lived in Tacky Row.
The president and the proctor
Would have been quite shocked to Associate with the freshie, because she was so low.

The President, Faculty, and Home Department
On Tacky Row once chanced to call
And as the hall president was mute
And the proctor didn't suit
The freshie went off to the hall."

To the pleading glances of the proctor I return a disdainful one.

A cynical smile lights up my features
And I proceed to inflict unheard-of cruelties upon my victim. I give a wild yell of triumph and come to my senses after a vigorous shaking. Looking up I gaze into the eyes of none other than the proctor. She is indeed the master of our fate.

ALMA MAYNARD.

COLONEL HODGES ADDRESSES PEOPLE OF FARMVILLE

Five-Five Plan for Virginia Discussed.

Colonel Leroy Hodges, Managing Director of State Chamber of Commerce of Richmond, Virginia, gave a very interesting talk in the Court House at Farmville, Virginia, April 1, 1924. The subject of his talk was "Virginians Reasoning Together as Virginians."

He discussed the Five-Five Program of Virginia. The five things which are to be accomplished in Virginia in the next five years are namely: Hampton Roads as a world port, Agricultural Advancement, Fair System of Taxation, Industry development, and Cities.

Colonel Hodges says for these five things to be accomplished Virginia has got to unite, cooperate, and bring Virginia together for the Virginian's sake. This is the first time since the War Between the States that Virginia has had to reason as a whole. Virginia is making progress in many ways, but other states are making far greater progress in more ways.

After Colonel Hodges' address, Dr. Jarman (who introduced the speaker) and several other prominent citizens of Farmville expressed their appreciation to Colonel Hodges for his magnificent address.

The State Teachers College was well represented at the meeting by members of the faculty and Mr. Lear's Civics classes.

SONG OF APRIL

Sing a song of April madness,
Springtime gladness, whimsied sadness,
Sing a song of April madness:
The sky is blue.

With wind of March and sun of May
My heart of April, gypsies, play,
Singing, swinging, mad and gay:
The wind sings to the sky!

April, meet me neath the moon,
We will chant a lilting rune,
We'll sing a long-forgotten tune:
Clouds in a checkered sky!

Gypsies, April, you and I—
Vagabonds of earth and sky,
Met to love and say goodbye:
The sky dreams on above.

Sing a song of April madness,
Springtime gladness, whimsied sadness,
Sing a song of April madness:
The sky is grey!

WRITING EXHIBIT

A writing exhibit was held by Miss Craddock and the student teachers of the Training School. The exhibit consisted of designs and copies. A piece of work done at the beginning of the year and work done now were contrasted, showing the marked improvement of the pupils. Miss Craddock should be congratulated on that which she has accomplished.

Y. W. C. A. CABINET TRAINING COUNCIL IN PROGRESS

The members of our new Y. W. C. A. Cabinet left for Lynchburg Friday, April 11, to attend the annual Cabinet Training Council. The Training Council this year is being held at Lynchburg College, where the Training Council for the Y. M. C. A. is also being held. The Y. W. C. A. and the Y. M. C. A. are holding some joint discussions at this time.

LITERARY SOCIETIES

Athenian.

The Athenian Literary Society held its regular meeting in the Y. W. C. A. Social Room on Saturday, April 5, after dinner. Six new members were sworn in, after which the following program was rendered:

1. Wilson as a Nominee for Presidency—Florence Riss.
2. Wilson's Election—Marshall Greathead.
3. Wilson, a Fearless President—Henny Hall.
4. Stunts by the new girls.
5. Song by the Society.

Jefferson.

The Jefferson Literary Society held its regular meeting on Wednesday, April 2. The following officers were elected:

President—Dorothy Askew.
Vice-president—Anne Robertson.
Secretary—Dama Hill.
Treasurer—Rosalie Weiss.

S. T. C. IN OLYMPIAN FEATS AROUSES FURY OF GREEKS

On Field Day we shall have the pleasure of seeing a mass meeting of the athletes of Teachers College. There will be no fights as the affair is not a class line-up and the Sophomores and Freshman will throw their surplus energy into athletic events.

Many interesting tryouts will be held in this Preliminary Track Meet. The Rotunda and Virginian staffs will vie with each other in scaling rods. The Virginia Bugg will fly against anything the Rotunda puts up.

The old Greek athletes will occupy one corner of the field and such will be the envy of these fellows that they will cast a green light over the field.

Atalanta will be disgusted, for she will see she'd need a barrel of golden apples (winesap) ere she could reach our Lyne.

In one of the races Perseus will take off his wings and present them to Greathead.

A chariot race will be held during which Ben Hur will leave the field resigned in favor of Cleopatra.

There will be a suitcase race between Clubs that will make any elephant drop his trunk. So some of the audience had best leave theirs at home.

The originals of the famous "Before and After" girls will compete with each other in a race. These fat and lean models of 1924 urge you to come out and give them a cheer.

It will be impossible to enumerate the entertaining program of the day in this column. Come and take part in it. Only one girl from each club, sorority, or staff will be allowed to enter one event. See who wins in the Preliminaries!

FACULTY REPRESENTATIVES ATTEND CONFERENCE

Miss Florence Stubbs of the Teachers College Faculty attended the Teacher's Conference of District D, at Emporia where she spoke on Rural Supervision. Mr. Coyner, accompanied by Mrs. Coyner, was also present at this meeting.

COLLEGE CUT-OUTS

Students of the College of Arts and Sciences at Cornell will receive, along with the semester registration card, a questionnaire aiming to supply full information regarding their life, tastes, tendencies and scholastic records. The faculty is then able to recommend men not only on the basis of their scholastic records, but on that of their life outside the classrooms.

The members of the V. P. I. German Club were entertained at a banquet Saturday night, March 22, in the Blackburg Inn dining hall. After the delightful four course dinner was served the remainder of the evening was enjoyed by smoking and talking.

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer, and these will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matters should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of their copies of The Rotunda will be appreciated.

Our Poll System.

The poll system has certainly proved itself a vast improvement over the old system of electing in called student body meeting. In the Student Council election, about six hundred of our eight hundred students voted. Of these, all but twenty-five of the dormitory students cast ballots. Approximately the same number participated in the Y. W. election. Elections this year have been an enormous step in progress in so far as arousing the interest of the student body is concerned. True, nominations from the students at large were few, but that may be accounted for by our system of nominating and electing. If our system makes strides in the near future proportionate to that made this year, we shall soon have it thoroughly democratic and satisfactory.

Tennis Courts.

We note with enthusiasm that the ground to the rear of Duval Cottage, formerly used for school gardens, is being filled in for tennis courts. Great has been the lamentation for the past two years because of the obliteration of our original courts "for the benefit of the Student Building." From the limited variety of sports that our college can offer, the loss of one of the most popular has been keenly felt. The supply of courts in town is inadequate even for residents of Farmville, so tennis has, for some time been completely erased from school activities. We shall now be able to reestablish tennis as a Field Day contest and be able to answer challenges from other colleges.

Leadership.

Leadership—how many, many times have we heard this word since we entered the portals of our Alma Mater—and who of us knows what leadership means in its true sense? Is holding offices leadership? By all means yes, but many who hold no offices are just as true leaders as those who do.

According to the popular idea, self-confidence is the only requisite for leadership, but he who would be master over others must first be master over himself. Self-control is likewise indispensable. To have control over self means perfect insight and perfect adjustment to kindred forces. Leadership that depends for preeminence upon self-confidence alone will at best be transitory; but if as basic principles, leadership has both self-confidence and self-control it will be lasting, will win rewards, will be productive of honor.

There are other factors which also contribute to the make-up of a good leader—not to be identical but to be individual, not to imitate but to create, not to follow but to lead these betoken the master mind.

COLLEGE CUT-OUTS

A new spirit of friendliness has invaded the University of South Carolina campus with the introduction of "Hello" week. Seventy girls, college men, staid professors, and even janitors are going out of their way to say "hello," smile and shake hands.

A student at Kentucky has just undergone his eighteenth operation for mastoids and is still smiling. His doctor believes that one more operation will cure him.

Newspaper Day, an annual affair at the University of South California, sure matter passed any previous attempts to stimulate interest in journalistic work this year. The convention was attended by seventy-five delegates from the high schools of the state. Many noted journalists were among the speakers on the program.

The trustees at Gettysburg College have decided to abolish co-education. They were greatly influenced by the sentiment around the campus that the college should be a man's institution.

"Is the world growing better or worse?"

"Opinions differ as to that," said the fashionable person, but when grandmother was a girl a duple in the tennis

AT THE EACO THEATRE—Week April 14th-19th.

MONDAY—JACKIE COOGAN in "DADDY." With his pig and his fiddle, his unmanageable spaghetti and a shower bath—and his too big trousers—that's JACKIE COOGAN in "DADDY." Not all laughter, not all tears—but the mingling of both in symphony of childhood. Filled with delicious fun and honest tears. Also Pathe News. MATINEE at 4 O'CLOCK. Proceeds from this picture are for Farmville Girl Scouts.

TUESDAY—"ON THE BANKS OF THE WABASH" A SPECIAL photo-play of back-home folks, none can afford to miss. One of the finest all star casts ever seen in any production, will be found in this masterpiece. The greatest rainstorm and flood scenes ever taken are contained in this production. It is the greatest human heart interest story ever filmed. Also 2nd episode of "THE WAY OF A MAN."

WEDNESDAY—WILLIAM RUSSELL in "TIMES HAVE CHANGED" This is an entertaining feature which presents the serious side of life humorously. Its attitude speaks the popular phrase, "It is to laugh." Mabel Julienne Scott and Allene Ray support Russell. Also Aesop Fable.

THURSDAY—RICHARD BARTHELMESS and DOROTHY GISH in the SPECIAL PRODUCTION, "THE BRIGHT SHAWL." A great book—great photodrama! Read once! see twice! When you have seen this picture you'll know why we're so proud it's a motion picture. "THE BRIGHT SHAWL" gleams among the brightest. Also Fox News.

FRIDAY—"APRIL SHOWERS" A SPECIAL Production with COLLEEN MOORE and KENNETH HARLAN. A charming story of happy sweet-hearts and the troubles that come into their lives. There are heart-throbs and thrills; smiles and a few tears. A story of temperamental Irish lovers and of a society girl who almost came between them. "April Showers" will tickle you pink. Also A GOOD COMEDY. Admission 25 cents to S. T. C. Girls.

Saturday—"THE MAN NEXT DOOR" Another special production by Emerson Hough, the author of "THE COVERED WAGON" with ALICE CALHOUN and a fine cast. A girl story, the kind the whole family likes and loves! The story of a tom-boy raised in the west, and tempted by city luxuries. EVERYBODY will enjoy this. Also 2nd episode of "IN THE DAYS OF DANIEL BOONE." Matinee at 3:30.

Admission each night except Friday, 20 cents to S. T. C. Girls.

THE MODERN CINDERELLA

Norfolk, Virginia,
March 18, 1924.

My dear Bunny,

Daddy and mother are giving me a house party at the beach in July, and I want the daughter of my daddy's dearest friend to come. Will you? I'm only having you, my two best friends from College, and four boys whom I know.

I am going to have a dance the night before I leave, and I want you to be here for that. I shall be expecting you Thursday morning, July 14.

Please write and tell me that you will come.

Love,
BETTY.

Della, Bunny Latimer's maid, looked longingly at the letter. She had gotten it from the postman and something, she didn't know what had prompted her to tear it open and read it.

All her life Della had been deprived of the gaities which most girls have. After the death of her father, a poor Methodist minister, the responsibility of eeking out a meagre existence for her mother and two little brothers had fallen to her. It was then that Bunny Latimer asked her childhood playmate to live with her as a companion and maid on a small salary.

Now, with the opened letter in her hand, she hesitated. The temptation was too great. Bunny had everything a heart could wish for, and this was her only chance for a fling at the world. Bunny need never know the letter had been written. She thought the question over and finally convinced herself that she would be a nut not to let opportunity in, knowing that she knocked but once.

Della resigned from the Latimer employment and explained to her mother that she was going with Bunny on a yachting cruise. Together they searched the attic and ripped and dyed and made over until a really tasteful, attractive wardrobe was the result. From their precious savings, enough was sacrificed for a filmy evening dress, a cape, and an adorable tweed suit which brought out the auburn lights in her hair and made her brown eyes still browner.

She made a hit right off the bat! First impressions are usually lasting ones, and Della was wise enough to see that her traveling costume was becoming. As she stepped off the train she called forth such admiring remarks as, "Oh, the adorable little mouse," and, "I say, 'tis a modern Priscilla we have here."

Della was the sensation of the party. She was what boys termed "different, but a good sport just the same—a such a refreshing relief from a flapper."

"I'll just tell you," said Bob Norton, "some might say she is a prude, but I tell you frankly, Ted, I never knew I could care—"

"Help! Help!" cried Ted. "Far be it from me to listen to the confidences of the love lorn. I'll see you later, boy."

Never were good times so thoroughly enjoyed. During the day she lived in a whirl of gaiety that served to submerge the growing pangs of conscience, but at night she tossed on a bed of indecision. What would her father think, if he knew? The horrible deception could go on no longer. Try as she would to evade it, her arguments always came back to this point. She was living a lie.

The final decision came the night of Bob's proposal. She loved him and knew he was sincere in his avowals of love. She must confess or leave at once.

And so, on the stroke of twelve, she vanished, even as Cinderella had done, leaving not a even a silver slipper behind her.

He—"Naw, he's a Ku Klux Klansman from Pittsburgh."

A good thought, well expressed, is often a source of inspiration to thousands.

Mother (looking through the magazine): "Darling, I see from statistics given here that every third baby born is a Chinese."

Father: "Then thank goodness this is our first!"

"Yas, suh," explained Jenkins, "Mah job uv passin' de church plate hab been given to Job Jackson."

"Is it because he is a war hero?"

"No, siree, not 'zackly. It am 'cause ob de fac' dat he done los' one arm."

A young man, springing out of an overcrowded train, trod on the toes of an old man in a corner seat.

"I'm sorry," he apologized.

Old man (hand behind ear)—"Eh?"

Young man (more loudly)—"I beg your pardon."

Old man—"Eh-h-h?"

Young man (shouting) "I trod on your foot. It was an accident—an accident."

Old man (catching the last word only)—"An accident? You don't say so! Anybody hurt?"

Get off the track of doubt and gloom; Come on the sunshine train, there's room—

Get a transfer.

Fresh—"Judging by the way you pick girls you must have played the races."

Soph—"Why so?"

Fresh—"You pick them according to form."

THIS AND THAT

The principal business of most of the people in power at present seems to be to make the world chaotic for democracy.

A man in Michigan has edited a weekly paper 50 years. We don't know how he makes his living.

As ye sow so shall ye reap. Bok spent his money for peace, the oil men spending theirs for just the reverse.

Chicago teamsters are striking. When teamsters fall out chauffeurs get more than their due.

These days a moth keeps one eye on your winter clothes.

The world would be much better if you could whistle with a pipe in your mouth.

You will find that three cheers beat six jeers.

The principal weakness of many movie marriages appears to be in the continuity.

All we hope is Magnus doesn't intend to use the public treasury in that milking contest.

Be not deceived. While Santa Claus has many agents hereabouts he has no genuine double.

HOUSES AND HOMES

Houses! Usually when we hear this word, we immediately form a mental picture of a continuous row of various kinds of buildings. We become so accustomed to these same buildings that we never attach any particular meaning to them. But just think how many different kinds of houses there are in the world! There are a great many materially different houses, stretching from the straw hut of the African to the igloo of the Eskimo. The greatest difference between houses, however, lies in the house that is merely a house and the house that is a home. There are the wealthy castles of the rich and the humble abodes of the poor. Homes can be made of small huts if love is there. Many of our greatest men have come from homes of dire poverty. Abraham Lincoln was born in a rude log cabin, but he lived in an atmosphere of love, for he had a real home and a good mother. The castles of the rich do not always produce famous men, for it seems that the more a man has, the more he wants, and money and social position are usually the ruling passions of a wealthy household.

Houses have always seemed to me to have expressions. Some are beautiful, but others are forever scowling. I love a house with a large, spacious porch because that kind always seems to be beckoning and welcoming one within its portals. But homes with small, skimpy porches seem to say, "Oh, well! Come if you must, but I'm not so particular about having you."

Styles in houses change like other styles. In the time of Christ, and even earlier, the predominant style was a square, box-like building with stairs built on the exterior leading to a flat roof. Down through the ages, old houses have been torn down and newer, more up-to-date ones have been placed in their stead. About a half century ago, the old colonial mansion was in vogue, with its white pillars and spacious verandahs which alone bespoke of hospitality. Today, apartments and structures practically all alike are thrown together in about a week and called houses. A little boy was once asked what an apartment was. After thinking for a while, he replied, "An apartment is a place where folks go when they first get married, before they have enough money to buy a house."

After all, though, home is what you chose to make it. It isn't the kind or price of the material, nor yet does it depend upon its location, the thing that really counts is the fact that the house is a home.

Virginia Cowherd.

I'm off o' the game of gold for life,
 Yes, done with it once for all;
 No more shall I swing a driving iron
 Nor hunt an elusive ball.
 How oft, in appropriate top arrayed,
 Have I sailed forth at dawn
 To wallop a pill 'round the dewy course—
 But those old days are gone!
 I'm off o' the game, as I said' for life,
 Since a saphead had the gall
 To ask me, lamping my kit of clubs,
 To fix his parasol!

"Are you the photographer, Meester?"
 "Yes, ma'm."
 "Do you take children's pictures?"
 "Yes, ma'm."
 "How much do you charge?"
 "Three dollars a dozen."
 "Well, I'll have to see you again. I've only got eleven children."

FACULTY CONTRIBUTES TO VIRGINIA JOURNAL OF EDUCATION

In a splendid article entitled "An Important By-Product of Education," which was printed in the Virginia Journal of Education for March, 1924, Miss Lila London throws down the gauntlet to all conscientious teachers. Education is, of course, more than preparation to earn money. Ruskin says, "Education consists in causing people to like what they ought to like." Improving the taste of people improves their leisure occupations. The responsibility of doing this improving rests upon the teacher, no matter what home environment her pupils may have. In regard to this responsibility Miss London says, "In a social sense, teachers may pass on to their pupils an inheritance no less real than the physical inheritance transmitted to them by their parents."

In the Virginia Journal of Education for March, 1924, Miss Ilma Von Schilling published a useful article on lettering. Her suggestions for block letters for posters and book titles are both interesting and practical.

THE NEW Y. W. C. A. CABINET IN TRAINING

The members of the new Y. W. C. A. Cabinet are now in training for the work of the coming year. All indicates a very successful administration. The new officers will be installed sometime in early May.

The Y. W. C. A. Cabinet officers are: President—Nancy Lyne. Vice-president—Frances Howard. Secretary—Ruth Bartholomew. Treasurer—Dorothy Askew. Undergraduate Representative, Elizabeth Buggs.

Committee Chairmen:

Membership—Frances Howard. Religious Meetings—Virginia Cowherd. Morning Watch—Daisy Mitchell. Alumnae—Margaret Wallace. Social—Lucile Wright. Service—Ruth Abell. Conference and Convention—Helen Crisman. Publicity—Sue Roper. Bible Study—Margaret Cobb. Music—Mary Lynn Petty. Rural Life—Thelma Woolfolk.

The Y. W. C. A., under the auspices of the Social Committee, entertained the new girls at a very enjoyable little party Wednesday evening at six forty-five in the Association room. Those present were the new girls, Miss London, the members of the Y. W. C. A. Cabinet and the members of the social committee.

The Report of the Indianapolis Convention, a most delightful piece of literature, has been placed on the Y. W. C. A. book shelf in the reading room. Any one who is interested may find this book very pleasant reading.

Al:—"Wanna ride home with me?"
Sal:—"Yeah."
Al:—"Where's your car?"

CABINET TRAINING COUNCIL IN LYNCHBURG

The Cabinet Training Council held at Lynchburg College from April 11 to 14 was very valuable in that it was thought provoking, though few definite conclusions on the subject under discussion were reached.

The feature of the Friday night session and one of the most important talks of the whole council was that of Dr. Derchener, Head of the Department of Bible Study of Lynchburg College. He discussed the new youth movement in Europe and America and said that it was to be lauded not feared. He stated that revolutions were fine because they altered things right side up and declared that a religious revolution in which the conventional and formal were changed to an actual and sincere living of the principles of Christ was the most desirable thing that could come to America. He ended by entreating every student, not only to live for Jesus, but to live Jesus.

The main topic of discussion for Saturday morning session was the purpose of the Y. W. and Y. M. C. A. This discussion was led by Miss Katherine Lumpkin, National Secretary. Many different ideas were expressed by the delegates but it was finally decided that the real purpose was to seek and help your comrade seek the relation between religion and life. In the afternoon a discussion of industrial problems was conducted by Miss Teddy Madson of Hollins College. The situation was made much more clear and interesting by each girl imagining that she was an industrial worker and stating some problems that confronted her. It was discovered that few college girls have yet acquired the best attitude towards their sisters in industry. At the Sunday morning session the New York Convention and Student Assembly were discussed. The program was given and the girls were instructed as to what particular subjects they should study before going to the convention. In the afternoon reports of committees were heard and elections held. Miss Mary Aistis Foster of William and Mary College was elected student executive for Virginia.

This council differed from preceding ones in that the Y. M. C. A. was a part of the conference as well as the Y. W. C. A. General Assemblies were held jointly, while meetings for the discussion of particular subjects were held separately.

On Friday night the students and faculty of Lynchburg College gave a reception at which everyone became acquainted with everyone else and which was delightful because of its informality. On Saturday night a Blue Ridge banquet was held. Here delicious food helped enthusiasm and good spirits to reign supreme.

The hospitality of Lynchburg College contributed greatly toward the success of this conference.

The world may not be crazy, but the songs they sing, the stuff they drink and the other fool things they do probably would lead a man from Mars to decide a good many people in the world are.

KEEPING UP WITH THE NEWS

Why should we keep up with the news? What good is derived from reading newspapers?

In the first place, by reading newspapers we keep in touch with the happenings of all countries. We are informed of current events from all parts of the world, and we hear not only of questions that arise in our own nation, but also of political issues in other lands. Social, religious, and economic problems are discussed—problems that confront our nation and the world at large. Is it not important that we be well informed along these lines and be able to discuss them freely?

In the second place, newspapers keep us from becoming narrow-minded and prejudiced. Our community, about which our interests center, seems to broaden out into the great world. From editorials and other articles we get arguments on both sides of a question, and the views of the most educated and learned men of the day. By reading these articles, we become more broad-minded, and are better able to form our opinions.

Then, a great deal of pleasure is derived from reading the papers. It is a recreation for us. There are so many subjects taken up surely there is something that interests each of us.

Let us make it a part of our daily routine to read the newspapers. By doing this, we not only become better citizens, but we are better qualified for teachers and trainers of the future citizens of our nation.

EVELYN THOMPSON.

HAVE YOU EVER SEEN A MINSTREL?

You have never seen ours, and your life will be incomplete until you have! You will have only one opportunity to see this matchless production, given by the Fourth Year College Class in the auditorium of the State Teachers College, Thursday, April 24 at 8 o'clock.

Come on! Be a sport! Don't let the "slimy ooze stagnate in your veins!" If the performance does not make you laugh as if you were a carefree youth again we will see to it that medical care is immediately made possible without cost to you.

Boys! Girls! Can you afford to miss it? No, a thousand times, No! We will find room for you, so Come! Admission thirty-five cents.

ROTUNDA STAFF ELECTION

The results of the Rotunda Staff election are as follows:

Editor-in-chief—Ann Conway.
Assistant Editor—Lucille Walton.
Business Manager—Frances Barksdale.
Circulation Manager—Cornelia Dickinson.

Appointments to editorships will be made at once.

Chaplain:—"Is your faith perfect?"
Goed:—"Goodness no! I have to paint it twice a day."

MANY VISIT MONTICELLO FOR JEFFERSON MEMORIAL SERVICES

Founder's Day at the University of Virginia this year was broadened into a celebration of Jefferson's birthday at which were present delegates from many states, visiting at the national shrine. In addition to the usual Founder's Day exercises held at the University, additional celebration was held at Monticello in the afternoon. Early in the afternoon the doors of the historic home were thrown open to the public. Later, Governor Trinkle presiding, a program was given at which several notables, including Senator Carter Glass, spoke.

The board of governors, heading the movement for state ownership of Monticello expressed the opinion that the fund for its purchase will be sufficient by June of this year.

DRAMATIC CLUB PRESENTS PLAY AT KEYSVILLE

The Dramatic Club, under the direction of Miss Edna Norton Spear, presented "Loves Me, Loves Me Not" at Keysville on Friday night, April 18, for the benefit of the Student Building. This play was a decided success when recently presented at Teachers College. The girls went to Keysville and returned in cars sent from there for that purpose. While there they were entertained at various homes in the town.

Announcement is made of the presentation by the Dramatic Club of "Friend Hannah" on May second. The Club, under Miss Spear's direction, has always done work of high quality and distinction, and "Friend Hannah" bids fair to be no exception to the precedent which the members of the club have established for themselves.

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer, and these will not be published if the writer objects to the publications.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matters should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of their copies of The Rotunda will be appreciated.

Live and Let Live.

What has our school come to? Has it forgotten how to read, or has it lost its self-respect? You admire the posters and signs of the "Campus League," but did you obey their orders? No. You do not "Cut Square Corners" or do you "Keep Off the Grass." You take the road of the least resistance, which means death to the tender blades of grass and to a beautiful campus. You break the shrubbery for your own selfish interest. Think how many more people will be benefited if you had let it alone. Then, too, think of the shrubbery itself. "Lovers Lane" looks like the 'dump heap' of an apple butter factory. Save your cores and put them in a trash basket. Our Campus League needs no assistance in starting an apple orchard.

Think of the school first and yourself last. Not only read and admire the works of art set before you by the Campus League—but carry out what they say to the last letter.

Spring Fever.

Ye Editor has spring fever. She doesn't want to ask people to write things. She doesn't want to correct copy. She certainly doesn't want to write an editorial (Who ever reads them, anyway?) So instead, she calls your attention to the joys to be derived from lying under a tree in a wonderful green something called grass, and looking up into the rustling green flecked with patches of blue. That's the kind of thing she wants to do. And you do, too, so 'scuse her this time for just having one editorial.

AT THE EACO THEATRE—Week April 21st-26th.

MONDAY SHIRLEY MASON in "LOVE LETTERS." A story that proves the folly of writing love letters to persons older than nine and younger than ninety. Here is a love story that throbs and pulses, that is made of dreams and songs, of happy hours and high romance. This is SHIRLEY MASON in a very likable picture. Also Pathe News.

TUESDAY CORINNE GRIFFITH in "ISLAND WIVES." A dramatic tale filled with thrilling incidents and stirring action, with one of the best casts ever assembled. A story that rings true in every detail, well enacted and filmed against the wealth of natural scenery. Also 3rd episode of "THE WAY OF A MAN."

WEDNESDAY DUSTIN FARNUM in "KENTUCKY DAYS" a story in which a new trail is blazed into the human heart on the trail to the Golden West. A romance of old Kentucky and the golden west when gold was about all it was good for. Thrilling scenes, a realistic desert storm and excellent photography combine with good acting throughout. Also Aesop Fable.

THURSDAY and FRIDAY NORMA TALMADGE in "WITHIN THE LAW." A special production from the great stage play by the same name. This is one of Norma's latest productions in the series that includes "Smilin' Through," "The Eternal Flame," etc. This famous American play provides one of the greatest acting roles of the decade. A woman scorned, persecuted, who turns on her tormenters and wins a great love, is the theme of the play. It is a picture that will leave but few chords untouched within the heart. Playgoers paid $5,000,000 to see "Within the Law" on the stage. Screened, it costs you just twenty-five cents to enjoy. Fox News Thursday and a GOOD COMEDY, Friday.

SATURDAY—"THE DANGEROUS AGE." A special production with a special cast. The drama of a wife who put away romance with her baby's first shoes and became a mother instead of a sweetheart. Dedicated to the husbands who think they are young and are really old; to the wives who think they're old but are young as they like to make themselves. EVERY WIFE SHOULD SEE IT—WITH HER HUSBAND. Also 3rd episode of "IN THE DAYS OF DANIEL BOONE." MATINEE at 3.30.

Admission to S. T. C. girls, each show except Thursday and Friday, 20 cents.

FACULTY ATTEND SECRETARIES' CONVENTION

Misses Hiner, Bierbower, Taliaferro and Mrs. Coyner motored to the University last week-end to attend the annual conference of Alumnae Secretaries. They were also present at the Jefferson Memorial Exercises.

EPISCOPAL CHOIR SINGS "CRUCIFIXION"

"The Crucifixion," a sacred Cantata by Stainer was given by the choir of the Episcopal Church, April 16 and 18. The cantata was enjoyed by all present and the choir should be congratulated on rendering such a notable production.

DID YOU COME?

Every girl with her Easter corsage is a skilful doctor in the art of taking care of them, in short in promoting their lives. Ben Johnson, said,

"I sent thee late a rosy wreath
Not so much honoring thee
As giving it a hope that there
It could not withered be."

He little knew the truth in his lines. The average girl can promote the life of a corsage three days. I've often watched them take them off with all care, gaze adoringly then place into a vase with an eye on every stem and bud. I cannot give the formula but you can get it from any Easter Corsage girl.

It is a lucky thing for a boy that any sort of corsage will do. A few ferns for a background, leaves and blossoms is all that is necessary. Any girl will ram a dinky little bunch of withered once-were roses on as if they just came from the garden of Killarney and the dew was still sparkling like diamonds upon their rosy petals.

Here is the sad part of this tale, I always tell both sides of a story. You've imagined the joy and care of the fortunate possessor of a corsage. It is impossible for you to imagine the agony of the maid who is forced on Easter Morn to say, "I don't know why but mine didn't come."

So if at early dawn you by chance see girls robbing the Nature Study room of its ferns, the borders of their violets don't be too hard on them.

VERS LIBRE MANIAC (?)

We don't know whether our Assistant Business Manager is quite mad, or whether she has just been reading too much Walt Whitman. The sheer senselessness of the thing stunned the Editor, and before she could come to, it was gone to press.

Girls, girls, a superabundance of nothing but girls. Girls, whirls, curls, pearls, girls, girls, girls! Hoptoads and this is that, never why. For I see a vision of girls: girls tall, fat, lean, round, square, oblong, red-headed girls, brown-headed girls, yellow-headed girls, hardheaded girls! Girls with double chins, girls with long eyelashes, girls with cracked voices: and this is a wherefore with a crimson peach switch. Girls with a long grey cloak on, girls eating, always fat girls who are eating, girls who madly tear their hair because of tests and such abominations of the Lord, girls who look askance and girls looking for a chance to rapture with a swollen porcupine under tall moons, girls, girls, I see nothing but girls, I am becoming satiated with the sight of girls, all these idiotic, silly, sweet, scheming creatures, girls, girls, someone deliver me from girls! I eat girls, I sleep girls, I read girls, I dream girls, I love girls, I hate girls, for I am a what not with a high shelf and custards with buttons, above an elephant, below a checker board! Girls, girls, I am going wild, I will soon be crazy, nothing but girls. This ought to fill up space, girls, girls, girls ad infinitum!

CASUALTIES AMONG THE LONG HAIRS

Said one hair to another hair (and they were both long), "Friend tell me a story,"—and he told him the following story.

"Long ago, when young ladies were attending the State Female School they behaved in a most dignified manner. They were the good old days, when girls got up before the breakfast bell in order to tuck up their flowing locks and put on corsets. In those days young ladies did not cut off their hair except in a case of dire necessity, such as having typhoid fever. As I have said before, they were the good old days when long hairs reigned safely supreme. Later, when girls were attending the State Normal School, long hairs were not so safe. Often there would come periods when any number of beautiful hairs would be cut off in the bloom of their youth. They were dangerous days when long hairs held their breath. Many, however, survived, uttered a sigh of relief, and continued to grow and prosper. They thought that at last they were safe.—But no!—Even now, girls who are residing at the State Teachers College are every day destroying the lives of long hairs. My friend, you know of the dangers now confronting us. Why every time I so much as see a pair of scissors, I shiver. When some of the girls that I have always considered our chief protectors cruelly assist in exterminating our race by themselves bobbing their hair, I become hopeless. I have always considered myself comparatively safe, since I have for a long time, been residing on a sensible, dignified maiden's head—but now—Alas, my friend, I see scissors approaching, I feel a bit shaky around my roots, I know that my doom is come, oh, these foolish, cruel girls!—Friends, Farewell!"

SPRING FEVER

(With a High Temperature)

Rip Van Winkle slept awhile
And when he woke up
There were flies everywhere;
Everywhere also
Were the S. T. C. girls
Clad as all the rainbows
That ever were
(Plus a few choice colors)
Yet otherwise
Singulantly like those
Lilies that toil not;
On the tables were eggs
Of a loathesome yellow;
Girls went early and reported late
To Mr. Lear's classes;
Read references madly
For Mr. Bell;
Smiled sadly on Easter morn
And murmured
"Why—er—no; they just didn't come!"
Sat in the auditorium
Or in the gym
Or in M2
Or the office of the Rotunda
Or elsewhere
And learned strange lessons;
And there was much goulash like that
In the papers:
"Oh Gosh!"
Sighed Rip,
"It's still the same old world!"
Just then he saw
A man and a maid
And heard queer words
Of "love" and "forever"
And things like that—
"Oh Lord!" He added,
"It's worse than that, It's Spring!"

MEMBER OF FACULTY WRITES ARTICLE ON EDUCATION

A timely article entitled "Education a National Problem," appeared in "The Fincastle Herald" recently. This article was written by Miss Peck, supervisor of the eleventh grade. Miss Peck's subject was one of national interest as the Sterling-Reid Bill is now before Congress. This bill desires that a department of Education be established by the United States Government. This department is to have a Secretary at its head as all the other departments and look after Education in the United States.

Miss Peck's article deals with the subject of "Education a National Problem" from several points of view, the first of which was that America was the only great civilized nation that failed to recognize education as one of the fundamental interests of the nation. Germany, France, and other great nations have their own Departments of Education. These countries are far in advance of America in education. They not only save time, but the students are better fitted for life. As it stands now the Bureau of Education in the United States comes under the Department of Interior. This department has seven or eight other bureaus each more important if the amount appropriated by the Department of Interior means anything.

The article showed us that one reader out of every four could not read or write English. 5,000,000 illiterates were enumerated in the 1920 census, and 2,000,000 of these were immigrants. It is to the nation's interest that these people be educated so that they become intelligent citizens, as well as satisfactory laborers.

Miss Peck in the latter part of her article referred to the bill in the Education Committee of Congress. She said that she could not understand the "laissez faire" of our people today regarding the things that ought to be of such great importance. Miss Peck ended her article by "Who knows?—we may have an education for citizenship that will consist in knowledge of actual working of our social organization, rather than a mere study about the plan of our national government."

MISS STUBBS' ADDRESS REQUESTED FOR PUBLICATION

As previously reported in the Rotunda, Miss Stubbs of the Department of Rural Education made an address on "Rural Supervision" at the teachers meeting held recently at Emporia. This address was very favorably commented upon by Dr. Macy Campbell, of the Iowa State Teachers College, who followed Miss Stubbs on the program. He asked for a copy of the address, and specially requested that a copy be sent to the Journal of Rural Education for publication.

FAMOUS LECTURER GIVES ADDRESS

Dr. Edgar Albert Winship, editor of the New England Journal, and widely known as an editor and lecturer, delivered an inspiring address in the auditorium, Monday, April 21. Dr. Winship discussed the changes that have already come to America in the last eight years and those that are yet to come.

People went to school eight years ago to learn seventy-five percent of that which the teacher knew, today, they go to learn what the teacher does not know. Some people say that education will collapse for lack of money, however recent developments show that the statement is not true and that salaries are going up. In Chicago when the question of "Money vs. Kids" arose, the Kids won. Business men and women of the day are backing the boys and girls that do things. This was shown in Chicago last year when the city entertained the prize winner among the boys and girls of the Agricultural Clubs. The six thousand boys and girls in clubs increased the value of farm produce $8,000,000. If the 8,000,000 students in the country schools could be so interested, what would be the outcome?

Nothing really grips America unless it comes through her public schools. Today there are more than twice the number of pupils in high schools that there were eight years ago. Eight years ago a person did not have to have a high school education to get a job. Today, even clerks have to be educated. Dr. Winship discussed the changes in astronomy, physics and chemistry that have taken place recently, the cataloguing of stars, measuring of speed atoms, and the making of silk from trees.

Dr. Winship closed his address by bidding us as teachers not to fail at all times to teach the child to abhor the life of mere existence, but to make them into men and women that shall soar and sing.

STUDENT SENATE HOLDS INITIAL MEETING

Although nothing definite was accomplished at the initial meeting of the Student Senate April 16, a time for regular meeting was selected, which is quite a deed in itself in this place of many meetings. The Student Senate, added to college organizations recently through an amendment to the Student Body Constitution, is composed of all members of the third and fourth year classes and ten percent of the first and second year classes. Its duty is to discuss and suggest changes in college activity and organization that will lead to greater efficiency in college life. Its interest is by no means confined to questions concerning the Student Council, as the name would seem to indicate, but concerns all phases of student life. It is to be hoped that this Senate will prove itself a great means of representing the mass of student thought in college life.

VARIED PROGRAMS RECEIVED OVER LOCAL RADIO

Music, lectures, book reviews, bedtime stories, baseball reports, and the like have been heard over the radio situated in the Chemistry lecture room, in the Science Hall. The pieces of this radio receiving set were bought for the Physics class by the school. The class put these pieces together as an experiment. After many changes and hard labor the first message was heard. Since then many improvements have been made. Some of the stations located are Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Schenectady, Springfield, Washington, and Cincinnati. The instrument is to be operated by the students of the Physics department.

MR. COX

Mr. Cox is dead. Our Mr. Cox with Jack at his heels will pass in and out among us no more; no more will his cheery smile and happy greeting be ours. We shall miss him, we who loved him shall miss him more and more as the days go by. As we realize that he is really gone and not just away the ache will grow more keen. But his memory will be more sweet and as we recall the many little ways in which he touched our lives, we come to feel that his spirit, the imperishable part of "Mr. Cox," is still with us.

No man can live and work and throw the labor of his body, the force of his mind, and the strength of his heart into any institution as Mr. Cox has thrown the whole of himself into this school and then die and pass out of it. His spirit is here and will be always, a part of the spirit of our school.

NEW VIRGINIAN ELECTION SYSTEM SUGGESTED

Awaiting adoption or rejection of the student body is a plan for a change in our system of electing the Virginian staff. According to the suggestion the staff will be elected in the series of spring elections from the student body at large.

When the Virginian was first published, it was practically a one-class edition—edited by the second-year class. In a few years the fourth-year class asked representation on the staff. It is for the student body to decide now whether the annual publication shall be the class book of the graduating classes, or whether it shall be the result of the best efforts of the college at large, the life of the whole college as seen through the eyes of representatives of the whole college.

DINING ROOM CONTRACT LET

The contract for heating the new dining room has been let to Mr. F. L. Watson, of Lynchburg, Virginia. Description of the new dining room has been given in the Rotunda in a previous issue.

ASSISTANT EDITORS APPOINTED

Additional appointments to the Rotunda staff for 1924-25 have been made. They are as follows:

Board of Editors.

Rosalie Weiss, '27—News.
Virginia Cowherd, '27—Assistant News.
Madeline McMurdoo, '27—Athletic
Edith Cornwell, '27—Literary.
Lucy Hale Overbey, '27—Joke.
Hellen Crisman, '27—Exchange.

Managers.

Grace Noel, '26—Assistant Business Manager.
Frances Sale, '27—Assistant Circulation Manager.
Daisy Shafer, '26—Advertising Manager.

ALUMNAE NOTES

The Executive Board of the Association of Alumnae of State Teachers College, Farmville, Virginia, announces with much pleasure the appointment of Mrs. Ruth Harding Coyner to the office of secretary-treasurer for the rest of this session. Mrs. Coyner has already taken steps toward the organization of new chapters of the Association, and is making arrangements for class reunions on June 7.

Miss Lucile Herndon was married on April 14 to Mr. W. R. Adkins, of Lynchburg.

Miss Pauline Camper, last year rural supervisor of Prince Edward County, this year a student at Columbia University, spent the weekend of April 19 at Teachers College, where she was cordially welcomed by her hosts of friends.

Miss Rose Brimmer, head of the schools in Schoolfield, Virginia, spent two days interviewing students who would be available for positions next year. She had not visited her Alma Mater for several years and was much interested in the changes she found.

Other recent alumnae visitors to Farmville are Miss Pauline Williamson, State rural supervisor, Misses Mary Lancaster, Florence Hunt and Lucile Wood, of Norfolk, and Miss Kellogg Holland, of Richmond.

The Literary Digest of April 19, 1924, contains a poem by Julia Johnson Davis, with the comment: "A mother's imagination about her son is presented poetically and compactly in The Lyric (Norfolk, Va.)."

To My Little Son.

In your face I sometimes see
Shadowings of the man to be,
And eager, dream of what my son
Will be in twenty years and one.
But when you are to manhood grown
And all your manhood ways are known
Then shall I, wistful, try to trace,
The child you once were in your face?

Mrs. Davis after graduation, assisted in the kindergarten department here for several years.

TRAVELLERS' CLUB HAS PROGRAM ON ROME AND SWITZERLAND

The Travellers' Club has presented two most interesting programs lately. To Miss Coulling the club is indebted for a most instructive account of her visit to Rome. This talk, as well as being appealing to every one was especially so to those students of Ancient History. In her talk she emphasized the wonderful works of art of which we have always read.

Of course, you have heard of Switzerland, and if you are anything like most people you have always been interested in it. A delightful hour was spent by the Travellers' Club recently when Miss Emma Dietrich talked of her trip to Switzerland. If you are planning a trip abroad, you should certainly learn to speak enough foreign language to reach your destination. To be sure, you must be able to tell the conductor where you're going and ask him what train to take. You would be very interested in the Swiss customs, too. They have a family wash day which takes place at the public fountain. When each family waits its turn you can readily see that wash days do not come often.

The American visitor, on the other hand, afforded the Swiss children many hours of interest when she taught them how to play games, but the greatest curiosity of all was the visitor's shoes.

ENGLISH LECTURERS ADDRESS STUDENTS

On Tuesday, April 15, State Teachers College was visited by Miss Benton and Mr. Stephens, both of England, who are on a trip around the world in the interest of Bernardo Homes.

Dr. Thomas J. Bernardo over sixty years ago, felt that his duty in the world was to be a medical man, to aid the needy in China. While studying medicine in London, a student of nineteen, he realized that his life work lay in the care of helpless, homeless children. There are Bernardo Homes for girls and for boys, not confined merely to England but situated all over the world. Over the door of each Bernardo Home is the motto "No Destitute Child Ever Refused."

Miss Benton and Mr. Stephens plead for service, that we, students ourselves might see that a life of service was worth while and full of recompense.

VIRGINIAN WILL SOON BE HERE

Announcement has been made that the "Virginian" will be shipped from the printer May 10 and received here May 20. Pay days are held at intervals so students may be given opportunities to "pay up," for it must be remembered that an annual may not be distributed to a person who has not paid in full, or to a person belonging to an organization that has not paid in full.

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon the manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer, and these will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matters should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of their copies of The Rotunda will be appreciated.

Dining Room Notices.

Dissatisfaction has been expressed by students concerning the reading of notices in the dining room ever since this has become a custom, but more especially has the inefficiency of the system been evident since the location of the dining room has been changed. The home table in our present dining room is placed in exactly the right spot to make the notices incoherent and often inaudible beyond a radius of ten feet. Must notices be read in the dining room? The bulletin board habit is not so very difficult to acquire, and that, or any other system, by the very law of elimination must prove itself superior to our present system.

Wanted—A Traffic Cop.

Speaking of the dining room, our thought naturally turns to another channel of thought. We realize, of course, that our present dining room is merely a substitute, a makeshift, but even so, something is needed to relieve the congestion necessitated by the simultaneous and hasty exit of six hundred people from two doors. Some day, some one is going to break a leg or collar bone or something. Then our prophetic soul will be relieved and we shall say "I told you so." Until that time we keep our seat in the dining room while the six hundred are dashing out madly, and pray for no one to kick the chair over. But seriously, why cannot the notices be read at beginning of the meal and then have the students leave when they have finished, in two's and six's and ten's instead of hundred's. It really would save a lot of time any many a temper.

TEACHERS COLLEGE

Invited to Become Member of College Alumni Societies.

Misses Mary Clay Hiner, Carrie B. Taliaferro, and Ada Bierbower, and Mrs. M. B. Coyner attended the meeting of the national organization of College Alumni and Alumnae Secretaries in Charlottesville, April 10th to 12th. Representatives from all over the United States were there to discuss the problems of alumnae work. It was a most inspiring, friendly, and enthusiastic meeting.

Meetings were held in Madison Hall at the University of Virginia. Such subjects as "Why an Alumnae Association?" and "Ideals of an Alumnae Association," were discussed. Mr. Osborne, of Yale University, was elected the next president of the national organization.

The University of Virginia Alumni planned some interesting automobile sight-seeing trips for the visitors. One was to Mirador, the beautiful home of Lady Astor; another was to the top of the Blue Ridge Mountains; and on Saturday the delegates were taken to Monticello for the national celebration of Thomas Jefferson's birthday. True Virginia hospitality was shown in the form of luncheons, dinners, a reception and dance given for the visitors.

The State Teachers College of Farmville is proud to have been asked to join this organization composed of alumnae secretaries from leading colleges and universities of the United States. In order to maintain a high standard of work among the loyal alumnae of this college the Executive Board is very anxious to make permanent the office of Alumnae Secretary.

At a recent meeting of the Executive Board of the Farmville Alumnae Association it was decided that a full-time secretary would be necessary to promote the work of the Association for the next two months. Mrs. M. B. Coyner, formerly Miss Ruth Harding, of the Class of 1913, was appointed at this time to fill this office.

LOST AND FOUND

FOUND—Two black fountain pens. Owners may obtain upon identification at the Rotunda office.

TRAGEDY.

That is the tragedy,
Dear Love I love so well—
That you and I should walk
Thru a country lane in April
And I should see a silver path
Pale as young dreams, go gaily round the hill;
And tender trees against the sun;
And shadows cool and lavender;
And new plowed soil—
That I should see these things and thrill
And that my heart should ache for beauty,
While you talk of tea-time gossip—
You can never sense the tragedy.
That is what hurts.

"A kiss is a peculiar proposition—of no use to one, yet absolute bliss to another. The small boy gets it for nothing, the young man steals it and the old man has to buy it. It is the baby's right, the lover's privilege, the hypocrite's work. To a young girl, faith; to a married woman, hope; to an old maid, charity."—Mink.

AT THE EACO THEATRE—Week April 28th-May 3rd.

MONDAY—"LORNA DOONE," A SPECIAL PRODUCTION that is a spectacular screen adaptation of R. D. Blackmore's famous story; a classic loved and read by millions. It is enacted by a select Special cast. This is the greatest love story ever written, and it is the greatest picturization ever made of a popular novel. Proceeds from this picture go to the Y. W. C. A. of State Teachers College. Also Pathe News. Matinee at 4 o'clock.

TUESDAY—JOHN GILBERT in "THE WOLF MAN." Here is a picture that we recommend as being EXCEPTIONALLY GOOD. It is a picture of elemental passions and subconscious deviltry. He was the idol of society and the beast of the hills. For good entertainment SEE THIS PICTURE. Also 4th episode of "THE WAY OF A MAN."

WEDNESDAY—TOM MIX in "THE EYES OF THE DESERT." Mix in a new role that will make your eyes roll. You'll be thrilled as Mix has never thrilled you before. When Tom Mix leaps from a horse to an airplane you'll leap right out of your seat. This is a new Mix-up with Tom and Tony aces up. Tom Mix out-Mixes himself in this picture. Also Aesop Fable.

THURSDAY AND FRIDAY—"MAY TIME," A BIG SPECIAL PICTURE with HARRISON FORD, ETHEL SHANNON, and Hollywood's twelve most beautiful girls. "Maytime was loveliness when mother was a girl; Maytime means gaytime in today's mad whirl." This play was a success for six years on the stage. Now this novel story of love-down-to-date is told in an unusual motion picture. They say the prettiest girls in the world are in this production. Come and see if you think they are prettier than the girls we have in Farmville. This is a tale of sweethearts told as never a story was told before. THRILLS—Laughs and Beautiful settings. Fox News Thursday and a good comedy Friday. THIS IS AN EXCEPTIONALLY GOOD PICTURE. Admission to S. T. C. girls, 25 cents.

SATURDAY—MILTON SILLS in "SKIN DEEP." A Special Picture. A powerful melodrama, that will please any audience. A picture that combines the last word in melodramatic action with an intensely interesting theme. The love story in this picture is POWERFUL. To see this picture, is to enjoy it. Also 4th episode of "IN THE DAYS OF DANIEL BOONE." Matinee at 3:30.

Admission to each show except Thursday and Friday, 20 cents to S. T. C. girls.

DR. METCALF TO SPEAK

Dr. John Calvin Metcalf, Dean of the Graduate Department, University of Virginia, who lectured here some time ago, will deliver the address to the Pi Kappa Omega Society at their annual open meeting on May 3. The public is cordially invited to hear Dr. Metcalf. He will speak on some subject of literary interest.

COLLEGE CUT OUTS

Seventeen out of forty-five girls in the Senior class at Wesleyan stated that a doctor is the ideal husband in a recent questionnaire. Lawyers came next with 8 votes, and third place was given to ministers who received 5 votes.

C. M. S. (Chong) McIlwaine, of Kochi, Japan, occupies the rank of chief-journalist of Davidson by virtue of his success in the Davidsonian election held recently. The Davidson speaks of its succeeding editor as follows: "McIlwaine has been connected with the Davidsonian, in reportorial and editorial capacity since the early days of his freshman year. For two years he was a valuable reporter, serving on the Reporters' Club. He is a member of the Order of the Golden Quill and a member of the Delta Pi Kappa journalistic fraternity."

Charlottesville High School, winners of the state basketball championship, went all the way to Chicago to try for a throw at the high school championship of the United States, but their venture was more or less of a setback in view of the fact that they were defeated in the first round of the tournament 51 to 15.

He: "So you are engaged?"

She: "Oh no, but would he?"

He: "He might."

She: "Well, let's give him a chance to try."

She: "I am used to toe dancing."

He: "So I noticed."

Bobbie rushed into the sewing room and cried, "O mama, there's a man in the kitchen kissing the maid."

Mother dropped her sewing and started for the door. "April fool!" said Bobbie, "it's only papa."

Willy: "I wonder why we had that puncture?"

Hubby: "Probably because of the fork in the road."

Sap: "Blind drag?"

FARMVILLE REPRESENTED AT STUDENT GOVERNMENT CONFERENCE

Questions and Problems Discussed by Representatives of Southern Colleges.

The ninth annual conference of the Southern Inter-collegiate Association of Student Government was held April 24-26, at the Mississippi State Teachers College, Columbus, Mississippi. Farmville was ably represented by Miss Helen Miller and Miss Eugenia Vincent, the new president and vice-president of the Association.

The purpose of the conference was, of course, to discuss student government problems. Our representatives found that practically all the schools had the same problems, for instance, the problem of making students realize the importance of the honor system. Although this is often discouraging, it should not be given up for it is an ideal for which to strive. This situation may be helped by properly training new students, and the responsibility rests upon the older students, for the new students will be guided by their examples.

Several schools reported that they have trouble with their presidents and faculty advisors, because they are not always in sympathy with student government. Farmville was glad to report that they have had no such trouble, on the other hand, the president and faculty have co-operated in every possible way.

Among the problems discussed at the convention was that of the day students. All the schools were found to have this problem, as the day students do not come directly under student government.

We feel sure that the Student Government of our school will be more efficient than ever, for the new ideas gained from the convention.

GLEE CLUB GIVES ENTERTAINMENT

It is customary, in the spring, for various Glee Club Groups to give entertainments at the country schools near Farmville. Glee Club Group 16 made its first appearance at Belona High School on May 4, 1924. This was given under the auspices of the Civic League of Powhatan County. The program was as follows:

Comin' Thro' the Rye—Max Vogrich.
Annie Laurie—Lady John Schott.
Reading by Miss Elizabeth Jarman.
If Love Rules the World—Circo Pinsuti by Miss Cornelia Dickinson.
The Return of Spring, (Piano Solo) by Miss Mary Vaughan.
State Song by Miss Edna Hall and Group.

Spirituals.
Smilin' Through by Miss Elizabeth Crockett.

Who is Sylvia—Schubert-Lynes.
Reading by Miss Elizabeth Jarman.
'Tis Springtime by Miss Noma Fuqua.
O Sole Mio by Misses Ollie Gillespie and Patty Smith.

Good Night, Good Night, Beloved—Ciro Pinsuti. Under the direction of Miss Cornelia Dickinson. Miss Mary Vaughan at the piano.

ANNUAL U. D. C. CONTEST ANNOUNCED

The subject of the annual U. D. C. contest has just been announced. A prize of five dollars will be given to the high school student who writes the best original essay on "Joseph E. Johnston, His Life and Military Service."

Rules governing the contests are as follows:

1. The competition is open to all girls and boys in the graduating class of the Farmville High School, and to all girls in the graduating class of the Farmville Training School (11th grade).

2. Essays must not contain more than 2,000 words. The number of words must be type written, on one side of the page only, and three copies must be submitted.

3. Each essay must be signed with a fictitious name. No other name or identifying marks of any kind must be upon the essay. A sealed envelope containing the real name and school of the writer must be enclosed with each essay. The fictitious name selected must be on the outside of this envelope. Upon receipt by the Chairman, each essay and sealed envelope will be given an identification number.

4. All the essays written by the High School students, and all the essays written by the Training School students must be given to the Principal of said school, who will select the three best essays of the school, and he will mail these, in triplicate form, by May 20th, 1924, to the Chairman of the Prize Committee—Rev. Fred Deihl, Farmville, Virginia.

5. Essays will be judged according to the truthfulness of history, accuracy, terseness and clearness of treatment, as well as from standpoint of literary finish.

6. The essays submitted in this contest will become the property of the Farmville Chapter U. D. C. and the prize essays will be printed in the Farmville Herald.

7. The prize will be awarded at the Theatre at the Confederate Reunion, May 29th.

The envelopes containing the real names of the writers will not be opened until then. The fictitious names of the prize winners will be published in the Farmville Herald the week before, so that the successful contestants may be present to receive the prizes.

A. & P. STORE OPENS IN FARMVILLE

In the United States there are now one hundred thousand branch-A. and P. stores. Farmville now boasts one of those mighty hundred thousand. It is situated next to Hubbard's new stand. One can not mistake the A and P red front for anything else.

THREE ELECTED TO HONOR SOCIETY

Pi Kappa Omega announces that the following have been elected to membership: Misses Lalla Jones, Mabel Mayes, and Elizabeth Coghill.

ACCA TEMPLE CHANTERS ENTERTAIN LARGE AUDIENCE

Popular Selections Win Applause.

On May 5, 1924 the Acca Temple Chanters, presented by Farmville Shrine Club, entertained a large and enthusiastic audience in Teachers College Auditorium. Preceding the program, the Farmville Silver Band rendered several creditable selections, after which Rev. Frederick Deihl introduced the artists of the evening. Although five of the group were detained in Richmond, the remaining seventeen gave a most delightful program.

This is the second time the Chanters have appeared in public, their first appearance having been made in Washington. Dr. Jarman suggested that their first appearance made them national, so it seems very fitting that they should open the programme of the National Music Week at Teachers College.

The audience was also very fortunate to have Miss Edna Norton Spear to give two very delightful readings in addition to the songs by the Conservatory Quartette and two solos by Mrs. Horace Dowell, wife of one of the Chanters.

Program.

- I. (a) "Fellowship Song"—F. F. Bullard.
(b) "Where My Caravan Has Rested"—Hermann Lohr.
Acca Temple Chanters
- II. "May Time"—Ricci.
Female Quartette
- III. (a) "Little Cotton Dolly."
(b) "I've Gwine Back to Dixie."
(c) "Kentucky Babe."
Acca Temple Chanters
- IV. "Carissima"—Penn.

STUDENT SENATE HOLDS FIRST BUSINESS SESSION

The Student Senate held its regular meeting, May 1, at 6:45 in the Auditorium, the Student Government President, presiding.

The meeting was immediately opened to suggestions as to changes in the Constitution. Under the head of Student Government membership and, therefore, Student Government jurisdiction, it was revealed that there had been discussion in the school to place the third and fourth year High School pupils under the jurisdiction of the Faculty and Home Department. It was also suggested that the third year High School class elect a fourth year representative to the Student Committee.

Much-needed changes in the methods of Student Government elections in so far that the defeated candidate for any office is often kept from membership on the Student Committee was brought to the attention of the Senate.

Following the plan that the Presidents of the outstanding organizations in the school shall be elected in the spring for the following session, it was asked why the editor-in-chief of the Virginian was not included in the list. Recent plans made by Mr. Lear altered this question but a further suggestion was made whereby the assistant editors shall be appointed in the fall so that any capable girls finding it possible to return to school will be given a chance to serve on the staff.

Following criticism prevailing in the school in regard to the working of the nominating committee of the Association, it was stated that the committee had gone strictly by the Handbook and that individuals fostering such a criticism should re-read their Handbooks.

PI KAPPA OMEGA HOLDS ANNUAL REUNION

The Pi Kappa Omega Society held its annual reunion the week end of May 2-3 at which were present members of both Alpha and Beta chapters. After business sessions Saturday afternoon a tea was given in honor of the speaker of the evening, Dr. Metcalf, Dean of the Graduate Department, University, Virginia, at which the society and faculty were present.

After the open meeting in the auditorium a banquet was served in the Tea Room; the table was U-shaped. The circle was banked in ferns, softening the rose and silver of the decorating scheme which was carried out in rose tulips, silver balloons, rose shaded lights and streamers, and quaintly dressed dolls which served as favors. Between courses society songs and toasts were given. Dr. Tidyman serving as toastmaster. Out of town guests included Mesdames Montague and Shepherd, Misses Emma Dold and Margaret Ritchie of Beta Chapter, Ruby Paulette, Helen Rogerson, Carolyn Coghill, Helen Craddock, and Elizabeth Moring.

SOUTH'S GREATEST BARTONE GIVES CONCERT

Foster Barnes' Concert Comes as Fitting Conclusion to National Music Week.

Farmville has had more than its accustomed share of fortune in its celebration of National Music Week. It has had the opportunity, within a week, to hear two great artists and a group of singers famed throughout America. The Acca Temple Chanters gave a very popular program on Monday night, May 5. John Powell, the greatest American pianist, gave a beautiful concert on the following night. On Friday evening, a program of like excellence was sponsored by the Fourth Year Class.

On the night of May 9, J. Foster Barnes, baritone of the South, assisted by his sister, Miss Evelyn Barnes of Teachers College, made his second appearance of the year at Farmville.

Mr. Barnes' voice, which combines perfect technique with a mellow smoothness and a singularly rich timbre, charmed alike those who had heard it before and to whom its beauty was no surprise, and those who listened for the first time. His program, which follows, showed an understanding of the musical loves of school girls, both in its selection of composition and in rendition.

Mr. Barnes is assured a sincere and hearty welcome whenever we are so fortunate as to have the opportunity of hearing him again.

Program.

J. Foster Barnes, Baritone, assisted by Miss Evelyn Barnes, Contralto.
Miss Jacqueline Marsden, Accompanist.

Meal Cuts?

It has long been a thorn in our side—this having to go to meals whether or no. If a girl doesn't want to go to dinner why should she? If she would rather sleep than go to breakfast at 7:30 why not? Most people have enough sense of self-preservation left to know when they are harming themselves. In addition to inconveniencing one, enforced attendance at meals does something not quite so harmless. It causes a good many to start a series of petty fabrications. Has the Home Department never wondered at the number of headaches and other illnesses Saturday and Sunday? Has the Home Department never wondered at the few in attendance in the dining room and at the list of absentees. If the Home Department really wishes attendance at meals it is defeating its own purpose by its very absolute-ism. If a certain number of cuts were allowed or missing a certain number of meals given with other class privileges, we prophesy that attendance in the dining room would be different.

Self-Government, Its Importance in Education.

A great percentage of students come to college from high schools which have faculty government. They have been ruled nine months of the year for some eleven or twelve years by a code of "Thou shalt and thou shalt not." Consequently, they are accustomed to very little self-control as far as conduct in the school room is concerned. The policy has often been to risk anything as long as one can get by with it.

On entering college the environment is entirely new in every respect and, in more than one way a girl is thrown upon her own resources. Often she finds it necessary to change her code of ethics and morals, as regards school life, altogether. No longer is she governed by her elders but by herself and her associates.

One of the most necessary qualities of a good teacher is self-control. The fact that she alone is responsible for her conduct tends to develop a higher conception of honor in every dealing with herself and her fellow-students.

The Student Government system here has its discreditors. Many girls seem to feel that it is too autocratic, that the officers and members of the Student Committee are spies who seek every opportunity to make trouble for some one. Others continue to follow the policy of risking anything so long as they can do so without being caught.

In high school the honor system in class work is regarded lightly, and getting help from fellow-students is considered all right so long as the teacher does not know it. In college the absolute contempt for such practices and the high standard maintained appeals to, and develops the best qualities in the characters of students, and character is more important than all scholastic training.

JOHN POWELL GIVES RECITAL

On Tuesday evening, May 6, John Powell gave a concert in the auditorium of Teachers College under the auspices of the Music Department of the Farmville Woman's Club. Our own criticism of Powell may be summed up by criticisms from leading papers of this country.

"There was very good reason for the enthusiastic applause which was given to Mr. Powell's playing. There was great beauty, warmth and variety of tone, and a real penetration into the poetical significance of the music. Times (Richard Aldrich).

John Powell's piano recital was an example of beautiful pianistic art. He rejoiced his hearers by the poetic and sensitive spirit of his interpretations. It was playing that brought the realization of the maturity on the part of Mr. Powell of a truly remarkable talent.—Post (Min Poisons).

The program is as follows:

1. Beethoven—Sonata, E flat, Opus 31, No. 3
Allegro
Scherzo

DRAMATIC CLUB PRESENTS

Friend Hannah the Most Beautiful Play of Year.

Friend Hannah was presented by the Dramatic Club of State Teachers College, Friday night, May 2, under the direction of Miss Edna Norton Spear.

The following is a synopsis:

Hannah Lightfoot is a little Quaker maid with a light, joyous heart. Because of this and her lovely curls, she is suspended from meetings by her stern church members. Her mother and uncle are greatly perturbed over her worldliness, and they finally decide to send her to London with her Uncle Thomas, who keeps a linen shop there. Here, they hope that she will learn to love and finally marry her Cousin Isaac Ax-ford.

In the meantime, Hannah becomes acquainted with a certain George Tudor, who was hurt trying to follow her in the chase. George Tudor is really the Prince of Wales in disguise, but Hannah thinks he and his brothers merely fine gentlemen from London.

Because she refuses to marry Isaac, her Uncle Thomas firmly decides to send Hannah back to her home. While she is measuring George for his shirts for the last time, he proclaims his love for her, and they are married that night with Betty and George's brothers as witnesses. At the wedding supper, news comes of the king's death, and George Tudor leaves abruptly.

The next scene opens at the home of Hannah and George in a secluded country spot at Hampton. They are living very happily there until the Earl of Bute comes and reveals her husband's true identity to Hannah. The Princess Dowager of Wales, George's mother, comes, too, and makes her see her way clear to give her husband up for the good of England. Hannah leaves George that night, and in company with Betty, she travels to lands where he may not find her.

Fifty years pass! The king has become an old man, blind and mentally sick from years of suffering. Hannah still lives in her old Quaker home where she met him. Through all the years, she has been true to him. One day, the King passes along the road, and, with Charles, he visits the old garden. There he sits in company with the bitter-sweet memories that surround him. He does not know that Hannah is really there, but he seems to feel her presence very near to him. He leaves, and Hannah, the true, uncrowned queen of England, lives on in the garden.

Miss Spear, in her four years here has always maintained high standards in Dramatic Club work, but Friend Hannah with its quaint humor, its pathos, and its tragedy brought out subtleties of acting and interpretation that were consistent with the delicate structure of the play and that are not always so obvious in plays of harder construction. There was no star as measured by quality of work; each member of the cast took her part and lived it. The stage settings were chosen with Miss Spear's usual skill and taste. Against the soft gray background either garden or indoor scenes could be presented effectively by means of adding or substituting for the beautiful ivy covered trellises, the potted plants and the great number of wild flowers arranged in gorgeous profusion on the stage. We congratulate the cast and Miss Spear upon the perfect representation of "Friend Hannah."

long halls was mentioned. Question as to who should preside at the Senate meetings arose and it was suggested that the Vice-President occupy the position. It was voted that the Senate meeting be held at 10 o'clock at night on Thursdays instead of 6:45. The President, however, suggested that the next meeting be held following the Student Body meeting next week and that the second meeting, if one should be called, should be held at 10 o'clock. This change was approved by the members.

The President appointed the following committees, upon vote of the Senate that she should appoint them, for the consideration of problems suggested at this meeting:

Committee to work out plan for Senate meeting: Olive Smith, Chairman, Louise Stephenson, Julia Reid, Daisy Mitchell and Mrs. Baker.

Committee on membership in the association: Ruth Bartholomew, Chairman, Mable Mays, Jean Powell, Thelma Woolfolk, and Elizabeth Jarman.

Committee on proctors in cottages and halls: Janie Moore, Chairman, Winnie Sutherland, Irma Dickerson, Eugenia Cogbill and Doris Fletcher.

Committee on Virginia elections: Eugenia Vincent, Chairman, Mary Vaughan, Katherine Shore, Nell McArdle, Agnes McDuffie.

The meeting adjourned.

DR. METCALF LECTURES

Delivers Annual Address at Pi Kappa Omega Open Meeting.

Dr. John Calvin Metcalf, famous author and lecturer, delivered the annual address to the Pi Kappa Omega Society in the auditorium, Saturday, May 2. Dr. Metcalf chose as his subject, "The American College and Intellectual Leadership."

The American college, says Dr. Metcalf, receives much criticism which is mostly adverse. A great deal of this criticism comes from uneducated people, for they have the mistaken idea that the college ruins the youth. This is, of course, untrue, but it is a good thing, for it acts as a stimulator.

The four principle indictments brought against the college are first, that the modern college lacks a definiteness of purpose and a unity of curriculum. Dr. Metcalf admits that to a certain extent this is true. The second indictment is that the college spends too much time on useless information. This criticism is less truthful than the first, because these critics do not realize that all information is useful if one is to enrich his personality. Insufficient encouragement of the gifted student is the third charge. Dr. Metcalf says that gifted students are being recognized more and more in the way of honor societies. The last indictment and probably the most ridiculous is that the college is becoming paganized, and although it was once good it is now bad. It is true that college students are more bold and frank, but they are far more intellectual.

The real question that the college must face is whether it is educating for leadership, or whether its sole function, as one writer remarks, is to turn out people like Ford. Dr. Metcalf believes that self-control and open-mindedness are the two prerequisites of leadership, and that the conflict in education is between the open-minded and the close-minded. Today, the college is an institution of investigation, and its purpose is to promote relativity of thought. It should neither be too practical, nor too radical, but an honest, truth-seeking center. Since the function of the college is to serve the state and nation, it should seek quality rather than quantity.

In closing, Dr. Metcalf said that we should not look at the standards of yesterday, but rather at the light of tomorrow, and we should always keep in mind that the college should stand for noble and clear thinking.

"NEVER TOUCHED ME" GOES OVER BIG

Jongleurs Win Hit With Three Act Comedy.

The Jongleurs, Hampden Sidney Dramatic Club, won large applause last week at the State Teachers College Auditorium when they put on their three act comedy hit "Never Touched Me." Ben Morgan, Jr., played the leading male part as Edward Vanderberg, the wealthy indolent son of a wealthy indulgent father, who dropped several cool millions in an attempt at a wheat corner in Wall Street. Ben went through the play under the cognomen "A Broker Who is Broke" and completely won the sympathy of his audience throughout the many trials and tribulations that he as the hero was forced to endure before the inevitable "happy ever after" clinch at the final curtain. Haynes Hancock played the role of a serious minded young doctor to perfection. Other male characters were Professor Barret, played by C. W. Kernan, a hard and heartless Wall Street broker (Ned Eldridge), Bill the Butch (Granville Hinckle) and just a very ordinary, but all important police, played by Cecil Blankenship. On the other side of the gentler sex there were three "queens" who brought the real heart touch to the play, namely Hampton Fleming, Andrew McLaughlin and Dabney Jarman acting respectively in the roles of Joyce Barret, "Milly," and a charming young nurse. Each person on the cast "staged" well, acting his respective part in a manner that would have done credit to a professional troupe and by no means "over-acting" as is so often the case in amateur theatricals. The costumes were unique and the make-up excellent, thanks to the courtesy of Miss Spears of the Teachers College who assisted in the latter. Prof. Herman Bell of Hampden Sidney College directed the play and to him is due much of the credit for the success of the comedy.

Concerning the Play.

When the play opens Vanderberg (Ben Morgan) is penniless, in debt and in danger of arrest on a technical charge. In addition to this he soon falls in love with Joyce Barret ("Ham" Fleming), the daughter of an old chemistry professor (Kernan), whom Vanderberg is accused by his Wall Street enemy (Eldridge) of having swindled out of his fortune on some wild cat stock. Napoleon has met his Waterloo! Vanderberg's young doctor friend (Hancock) has also been a victim of Cupid's arrow and finds himself amorously inclined towards Milly (Andrew McLaughlin), a friend of Joyce's.

Bill the Butch crashes into the play about this time in the person of Hinckle who is set down on the lists as a hard working burglar. Bill offers a rather gruesome solution to the

FACULTY MEMBER PUBLISHES EDUCATIONAL ARTICLE

Dr. W. F. Tidyman is the author of an interesting article in the April issue of "The Elementary English Review," Dr. Tidyman says,

"The teaching of language in the elementary school is often vague, because the aims, or better, the objectives of the language work are vague, both as to requirements for the elementary school as a whole, and also as to requirements for the particular grades. The approach to the definition of objectives for the school as a whole and for each grade lies in selecting the essential features of language work in the elementary school in terms of which definite objectives can be stated.

Definitely and specifically, what are the essential features of language work, in which elementary school pupils may be expected to show measurable growth? This was the problem undertaken by the supervisory corps of the Training School, State Teachers College, Farmville, Virginia."

The article, entitled "Essentials of Language in the Elementary School" deals with the teaching of English in the lower grades in regard to selection of subjects, teaching of sentences, paragraphs, vocabulary, correct usage of grammar, essentials peculiar to oral work, essentials peculiar to written work, spelling, handwriting, and memory.

Teachers College has reason to be proud of the number of articles written by members of her faculty and published in educational magazines of good standing.

MRS. WOODFORD TALKS AT CHAPEL

Last week Mrs. Woodford, a representative of the National Women's Christian Temperance Union spoke in Chapel. The first thought she gave us was "build nation's thought thru the nation's school." She gave many helpful hints as to how to correlate the teaching of temperance with the other school subjects. The following reasons were given for the continuing of the teaching of temperance in our schools:

1. As a matter of information.
2. On account of the foreign born.
3. In order that the people may understand the reasons for and purpose of the 18th Amendment.
4. A benefit for the child himself.

Mrs. Woodford spoke to the hygiene classes and pointed out to them the effect of intemperance on the health. She talked in the Methodist Church Sunday morning and in this way she was able to reach not only the students of the school but the town at large.

FOSTER BARNES, WELL KNOWN SOLOIST

Will Appear in Farmville. Sponsored by Fourth Year Class, Teachers College.

Mr. J. Foster Barnes, Educational Director and baritone soloist of the First Presbyterian Church, Greensboro, North Carolina will give a concert under the auspices of the State Teachers College at 8:30 P. M., May 9, 1924.

Mr. Barnes has twice in succession won in the South Atlantic District Contest of the National Federated Music Clubs of America and has represented North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida at two National Contests. During the summer of 1921, Mr. Barnes won a free schol-

At the end of school he took the leading baritone role in Thais, accompanied by a part of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra under the baton of Mr. Hageman himself.

Mr. Barnes is a well-known favorite throughout the entire South as a baritone soloist as the following press citations show:

"The opening number, Massenet's aria 'Vision Fugitive' displayed Mr. Barnes' dramatic ability, fine control in sotto voce parts and beautiful French diction. His second group, four negro spirituals were done with sympathetic interpretation and completely captivated his audience. . . . The last group of beautiful songs convince his hearers that Mr. Barnes is master of art of singing in all of its intricate and varied forms."—Greensboro Daily News.

"Mr. Barnes delighted his audience with many familiar pieces as well as more ambitious numbers. His voice is not only great in its strength and power, but it is true in every note. Mr. Barnes is an artist of whom Rich-

ACCA TEMPLE CHANTERS TO SING IN COLLEGE AUDITORIUM

The Acca Temple Chanters, composed of those so beautifully gifted Nobles, twenty-two in number, will make their first appearance in public ever held outside of a Shrine Temple at the State Teachers College on the fifth day of May.

Acca Chanters have been enthusiastically received in every Temple in which they have appeared. When at their concert last June in Washington, D. C., at the Imperial Council Session they rendered the Medley of Southern Airs they were acclaimed the best chanters of any Shrine Temple in North America, and a musician of note stated that Acca Temple had the best Chanter organization he had ever had the pleasure of hearing. The price of admission to college girls is twenty-five cents.

TREACLE ELECTED MAY QUEEN

Elaborate Plans Made for May Day.

It is the custom at State Teachers College each year, to hold a May Fete. The fete this year is to be on May 8, at 4 o'clock, and will take place on the campus facing the athletic field. Miss Anna Belle Treacle is to be May Queen and her attendants are Misses Mary Spiggle, Lucille Barnett, Dorothy Gibson and Martha Hinch. Flower girls—Gertrude Quinn and Dorothy Shaffner.

The queen will hold her court and each grade of the Training School, from the first primary, through the eleventh, will take part in the activities by presenting its stunt for the queen's enjoyment.

The eighth and ninth grades will give a "Fairies' Revel" and the "May Pole Dance." The tenth grade will present some Roman games, an imitation of a field meet, which will include Javelin throws, old and new Grecian, and modern throwing of the discus, a combat and arrow shooting. The eleventh grade is preparing a Spanish Dance, with the tambourines and flourishes and much stamping of feet and graceful running. As the final figure the whole corps of performers will give an English Folk dance "Reaping the Flax," at the end of which they will form a living S. T. C.

LOCAL GIRL WINS SECOND PLACE IN CONTEST

May Frances Tuttle, of the Training School, won second prize for the girls in the Reading Contest of Prince Edward County. The Contest took place in Rice, April 23. A delegate from each High School in the County took part in the contest. The first place was given to a young lady from Prospect High School who will go to Charlottesville to enter the contest for the state prize.

LOCAL THEATREGOERS WILL SEE FILM MASTERPIECE

"Hunchback of Notre Dame" Soon to Appear at Eaco Theatre.

"The Hunchback of Notre Dame," the massive and much heralded film production of Victor Hugo's story masterpiece, will be given its local premier at the Eaco Theatre soon.

Never before, it is said, has there been offered a picture production representing so stupendous a cost—$1,500,000—never a film presentation so exact in its details, so artistic in its conception, so wonderful in the acting of its seventy-five principals, two hundred sub-principals, and in the handling of the mob scenes in which more than 3,000 persons take part.

Lon Chaney, admittedly the finest interpreter of unusual character roles on either stage or screen, plays the stellar part of "Quasimodo," the deformed bell-ringer of Notre Dame, with Ernest Torrence as "Chopin," the under-world king; and Patsy Ruth Miller as "Esmeralda."

The spirit of the story is "Quasimodo," the hunchback, an elemental creature, twisted in body and restricted in mind, who haunts the great church. "Quasimodo," as Mr. Chaney presents him, is said to be a grotesque monster, and yet under the forbidding aspect the actor succeeds in making the character human and pitiful. His daring poses on the projecting gargoyles of the Cathedral, his bold descent, stone by stone, of the front facade of the great church, his hazardous swinging on the great bells at the risk of his life, the gruesome scene of his castigation in the market place, and the pathos of his final act as, dying, he rings his own death knell on his beloved bells, are features, it is said, that make "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" the most noted film production to date.

In constructing the Cathedral of Notre Dame at University City an army of carpenters, masons and other mechanics, were employed. The building is an exact replica in every detail as the famous Cathedral looked in 1482. It is declared to be an extraordinary feat and an architectural and technical triumph. In addition to the Cathedral, other historical sets include exact reproductions of the Cour de Miracles, Place du Parvis, Palace de Justice, interior of the Bastille and the seven Noble Mansions.

Among the other principals in the big cast are: Norman Kerry, who plays "Phobus"; Tully Marshall, as Louis XI.; Raymond Hatton, as "Gringore"; Nigel de Bruier, as "Don Claude," and Gladys Brockwell as the crazy "Gothic."

BACON-BAT AT FARMVILLE LAKE

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer, and these will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matters should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of their copies of The Rotunda will be appreciated.

Why Contribute to the Rotunda?

The Rotunda should be regarded as representative of one of the most important phases in our college life. It can be made the most interesting; if each girl contributes willingly the school at large must contribute. The staff and a dozen contributors are not the school. Writing for the Rotunda offers excellent opportunity for the development of talent in writing.

There are many girls in school who have talent for writing but they are either afraid to try out or give no thought to such things. Each thinks that another girl can do it better than she; therefore she never tries. If one gets no practice while in college, her best chance for development has been lost. Journalism offers employment to girls as well as to men today. College papers possess invaluable practice, because one can be benefited by the criticisms of capable judges. To succeed one must begin with minor articles and work towards higher things.

The Rotunda offers a means of developing leadership which is needed most in those who are going out to teach. A girl can not be a successful teacher if she is not a good leader. If she tries out for the Rotunda and is able to write articles for several issues, it gives her a chance to become a member of the staff. The only way that she may learn to write good articles is to try to write them. She can not expect to wait for some one to pick her out as having the appearance of a good writer. Writing brings her before the notice of the entire student body and faculty and gives her a chance to rise.

Each graduate who leaves college is always interested in what is being accomplished by her Alma Mater. There is no better way for the Alumnae of a college to keep up with what is going on at her Alma Mater than by reading her College publication. If the individual has contributed toward its success she is much more interested than if she had no part in its success.

The Rotunda may be called a means of advertisement; it advertises the college from which it is issued by revealing its spirit in a live vigorous way that no tame, carefully worded advertisement could ever do. This can be done with the Rotunda if each girl assumes it her duty to her school to encourage and help in any way possible each weekly issue. Contribute to the paper and it will be the best issued from any college.

It is humiliating, to say the least, to learn (from bitter experience) that students of this college are incapable of listening to a lecture. We have said nothing of this during the past year, because criticism of such childish, bad manners doesn't look well in a school paper. We also hoped that "next time" there would be no need for that criticism. "Next time" never came. During the lectures we have had this past year, the conduct of some members of the audience must at times have been quite disconcerting to the speaker. No effort on their part was made to suppress either conversation or tone of voice; and the constant buzz going up from the audience was in strenuous competition with the poor lecturer. What impression can visitors to the college carry away with them? If you are unable to listen to the lecturer, use discretion and stay away, somebody else may want to.

ALUMNAE NEWS

On Saturday, the 20th of April, there was a full attendance of the nominating committee of the State Teachers College Alumnae Association. This committee consists of Miss Otelia Harvey, of Mattoax, Va., Miss Katherine Trent of Richmond, and Mrs. Elliott Booker, Miss Mary Clay Hiner, Mrs. M. B. Coyner of Farmville.

The Alumnae Association has a plan of electing a part of its officers each year, so that there is not an entire change in any one year. This year there are two vice-presidents and a director to be elected. The following were nominated for first vice-president: Misses Mary Glasgow, Julia Cave, and Bettie Murfree; for second vice-president, Misses Gwendolyn Wright, Shannon Morton and Mrs. Lucy Wright James; for director, Misses Otelia Harvey, Carrie B. Taliaferro, and Marion Camper. These will be voted on at the annual business meeting on June 7th, 1924.

COLLEGE CUT OUTS

Hereafter, according to new faculty regulations at Harvard, the Freshman class will be limited to a thousand, and except in exceptional cases, no student will be admitted to advanced standing without extraordinary qualifications.

Major William H. Cooke, V. M. I., '94, of St. Louis, is to succeed General Nichols as Superintendent of V. M. I.

The faculty of Princeton University recently passed a resolution to the effect that in the future all Sophomore, Junior and Senior quizzes would be unannounced. This action was taken as a result of repeated complaints of certain departments that students neglected their work to prepare for announced tests in other departments.

President Coolidge is now a member of Phi Beta Kappa.

"HEES AND HAWS"Fourth Year Minstrel Entertains Full House.

A minstrel, "Hees and Haws," was given by the Fourth Year Class of the Teachers College, Thursday, April 24, at 8 o'clock. The minstrel was one of the cleverest productions of the school year. The peals of laughter were due to the comic action, the droll jokes and the unusual performances.

The minstrel was divided into two parts. Part one consisted of the "Rag Time Court Scene." This was unusually good. The cast kept up a rag time motion, a ragtime voice and a ragtime line of talk throughout the entire act. The scene was held in a court room. Here after much trial a father, a mother, a daughter and a son were united.

Between the first and second part there was an "Entr' acte" consisting of a hotel stunt and a solo. A dialogue was held between a bell boy and a maid. The scene was held in the future Weyanoke Hotel. They gave jokes about members of the faculty and towns-people, danced and sang "The Bell Hop Blues." This was indeed good—as someone expressed it, "That Bell Hop sure makes a good looking nigger, and that maid is some dancer." Evelyn Barnes sang Lindy Lou during the Entr' acte.

The second part of the minstrel was given over to the Circle. The men in the circle wore overalls—while the end-men were dressed in a varied assortment of striped garments. The songs and the jokes were unusually good.—Some of the special features were the clog dancing, by the "Jolly Little Pickaninnies," the "Gold Dust Twins," the "Cake Walk" and "Cross Eyed Papa."

The cast of characters and program follows:

FARMVILLE DELEGATES ATTEND CONFERENCE

affair but luckily his butcher knife misses stroke and Vanderberg was never made the scape goat.

The second act furnishes a set of fresh complications. Vanderberg finds that he has jumped out of the frying pan into the soup. The outlook grows darker and darker. Near the end of the act he is about to be arrested and taken to jail. A few arguments with a policeman and Bill the Butch again near the end of the act with a hurry-up wagon honking outside make things pretty hard on the young ex-brother but Joyce Barret runs to the center of the stage—and—well you know! When the curtain goes down Vanderberg is still safe.

Of course it comes out all right in the last act. Vanderberg proves that he is not guilty as charged. The old chemistry professor gets his money and Vanderberg gets his girl, to say nothing of the million odd dollars that the young doctor cleans up for him on the side through patenting a spot light revolver that he, Vanderberg, all unconsciously has invented. Of course the audience intuitively knew all the time what was going to happen but it all comes about in such an unexpected way with laughs, thrills and surprises galore. For originality of ideas and richness of humor "Never Touched Me" is a play hard to surpass.

Between curtains a "pick-up" quartet which picked up everything from tight harmony to the long lost chord entertained in the personages of "Reggie" Dunn, Harold Dudley, "Spritler" Adkins and "Satchel" Blankenship. They sang in costume and rendered several imposing selections. Dunn's banjo solo was a "scream" and deserves special mention.

The Jongleurs were organized last year at Hampden Sidney and have twice appeared in the State Teachers College auditorium, each time pleasing an appreciative audience. Next year the management announces hopes of being able to stage something a little heavier than a comedy, or a minstrel as heretofore and perhaps take the cost of such a play on the road.

mond is justly proud."—News Leader, Richmond, Va.

"Outstanding features of the opera concert must include first, a genuinely finished performance of the Pagliacci prologue by J. Foster Barnes, a baritone with exceptional quality of voice and a method of handling it quite equal to that of many singers already established on the operatic stage."—Atlanta Constitution.

In addition to his musical in many large Southern cities, Mr. Barnes took an important part in "Grand Opera Night" of the Greensboro Festival. The other artists are members of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, Mr. Barnes being the only local singer.

Farmville should appreciate this opportunity of hearing the one who is generally conceded to be the greatest baritone in the South.

EIGHTY MORE BOBBED HAIRS THAN LONG HAIRS IN COLLEGE

Census Shows That Long Hair in Farmville is Fast Follow- ing Dodo.

Can you guess? Or rather can you guess right? Guess what? Whether there are more girls with bobbed hair or more girls with long hair, in school, of course. That seems to be the principal topic of speculation since the "bobbed fad" has come in again.

Have you made a guess? Well here is your answer, you have guessed right (no doubt), there are 80 more girls who have bobbed hair; as a result of our survey we found 345 girls with bobbed hair and 263 with long hair.

What a blessing, how thankful we should be that all of these locks were not shorn at the same time. Think of the many tears that were shed as the scissors went clip! clip! clip! thru the flowing tresses; and turned the dignified young lady into a modern flapper (so to speak). Ah! had they all been done at the same time I fear that the State Teachers College and all of its inmates would have been washed into oblivion by the mighty flood.

But, have you ever stopped to think what a really serious state of affairs this is? Modern youth is then really corrupt. We no longer have the sweet maidens of our Grandmother's day whose hair was indeed her crowning glory. Instead the maid with flowing locks is becoming a curiosity, at which one turns to stare at as we pass her on the street. The critics seem verily to speak truly, when they talk of the corrupted modern youth. Why, we even have one "boyish cut." Oh! alas! alack! what is the world coming to?

Oh I say, what about your girls in the minority? Are you going to hold to the old custom or are you going to join in the style and make this a bobbed hair school? You really can't afford to be oddities and that is what is rapidly becoming a fact. I dare say by the time this is published our figures will be incorrect and several more will have joined the ever filling ranks of perfect ease. The rare feeling of not having to get up early and arrange the golden tresses, of spending money on candy and eats that was heretofore spent on hair pins and hair nets.

What joy, what bliss! what agony! The tears! Shall I or shall I not? But why worry? Let your conscience be your guide, before a thousand years will have passed we all may be out of style!

Some time between May 20 and 29 the University of Meiji, Japan, baseball team will play the Illinois nine. It will be the first contest with a foreign team since 1920, when the Illini beat the Watsaka team for the third consecutive time.

NATIONAL Y. W. C. A. CONVENTION

The delegates from S. T. C. to the National Y. W. C. A. Convention have returned. The meeting of the Convention began April 30 and lasted through May 6. Our delegation to the Student Assembly and to the Convention is unanimous in proclaiming the great success of the entire program, and the inspiring and helpful time enjoyed by all. All delegates were busily employed during the entire session of the convention, but in addition to attending the meetings, they managed to see a little of New York as well.

This Convention was the Eighth National Convention of the Young Women's Christian Association. The Hotel Commodore was the headquarters, though the Student Assembly held its meetings in a church nearby. Morning, afternoon and evening sessions were held, including the Student Assembly, the Business Assembly and meetings of Special Groups of City delegates and Girl Reserves.

Miss Wilhelmina London, our General Secretary, spoke at Prayers Saturday evening, May 10, giving a birds-eye view of the entire convention; and this talk was followed during the week by several others of a more specific nature, delivered by our student delegates.

We are glad to report to our Association Membership that the National Convention was a great success, and we are hoping that the good gained from it will help make the coming year one of the biggest in the history of our Student Y. W. C. A.

The Y. W. C. A. Cabinet examination has been passed by the new Cabinet members who will take up their new work immediately.

SENATE SUGGESTS CHANGES IN COLLEGE

Committees Appointed to Work on Reforms.

The Student Senate met Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights at 6:45 in Room I during the past week owing to the large number of suggestions and topics for investigation arising from a reading of the Constitution.

The following questions were referred to Committees to be carefully thought over and a decision reached. They are of great interest to the student body and the Senate will appreciate any thoughts on these or similar questions that the students would like to offer.

The President was requested to investigate into the possibility of having the big bell rung at 7:15 as a rising bell instead of the gong at 6:45.

A Committee with Maude Bailey as chairman, was appointed to decide upon the practicability of each student having two meal cuts over the week end. These cuts would, no doubt, apply to morning meals and the effect that a Sunday cut would produce on Sunday School attendance is a debated question. Committee members consist of Frances Sale, Madeline McMurdo, Ruth Cleland, and Agnes Teel.

The possibilities of extending Study Hour to 10:30 was referred to a committee composed of Mary Turnbull, Chairman, Dorothy Askew, Mary Lynn Petty, and Gertrude Quinn.

Sylvia Yost was appointed Chairman of a committee to see if shopping hours during the week days can begin at 3:00 o'clock. Her co-workers are Frances Barksdale, Dama Hill, Martha Bair and Sara Fox.

The question of whether we should have fire drills was placed in the hands of a committee composed of Peggy Moore, Chairman, Stella Presson, Alice Carter, Martha Phillips, and Frances Baskerville.

Pauline Timberlake was made chairman of a Committee with Mattie Bonds, Marion Clarkson, Etta Sawyer, and Bessie Meade Riddle to decide whether card playing should be allowed in the college.

The Chairman of the Senate brought before the members the question as to how to get the real meaning of Honor system before the Student Body as a whole. This was discussed from the standpoint of visiting. Shall occupants of a room allowing visiting be punished? This problem is now on the minds of the members of the Senate to be discussed further at a later date.

The Student Body should not forget that the Senate is rapidly becoming one of the most outstanding features of the Student Government Association. It is the practical way in which the students may voice their opinions thereby enabling the rules and regulations to meet the ever-changing conditions of the social life. Come on, girls, get the real school spirit, join the ranks and show your colors. We need you.

WHY IS THE NOVEL POP- ULAR?

There is untold happiness embodied in the fact that one may have an intimate friend with whom he may converse and exchange ideas on matters of common interest, and to whom he may listen while he tells to him the world old stories of love and adventure, friendship and ambition. How many of us really have this privilege; the opportunity of talking with a sincere and virtuous friend to whom the innermost secrets of the heart may be revealed? Such a happiness comes to but few; so naturally we turn to some other source as a means of gratifying our desire—that of the novel, in which we often see our own thoughts and ideals reflected. The novel has served for generations as a means of recreation and pleasure for all people alike. It is an agent thru which like happiness has been brought to the mighty and humble, rich and poor.

When I speak of the novel, I mean those which are considered good literature—not the dime novel of today—those of Scott, Dickens, Jane Austen, Thackeray, George Eliot, George Meredith, Thomas Hardy, Robert L. Stevenson, and so on down the list to the present time. What have these authors done for us? They have created worlds in which we may live and enjoy the friendship of seemingly real and virtuous people, hear the stories of their travels and experience, have revealed to us their outer and inner lives. We are given a privilege to study human nature on a broader scale than is the privilege in the average life. We learn to be more sympathetic and have a keener understanding of the likes and dislikes of human nature. We have the privilege of putting ourselves in another's place and living the life portrayed. Our eyes are opened to the greater and bigger things and we are made to forget our own narrow views in the interest of others.

However, pleasure is not the only virtue of the novel; its mission is twofold. It is an educator as well as an entertainer. What could be more educational than Scott's novels as a study of romanticism and the history of his times? Dickens's as a study of humanitarianism? George Eliot's as a psychological study? George Meredith's as a philosophical study and a study of woman? Thomas Hardy's as a study of the forces of nature and man as a creature of in-

BOHEMIAN CLUB PRESENTS THE LOST SILK HAT

Interesting Club Organized in School Presents Initial Program.

An interesting organization has been formed in college, consisting of various Freshman English classes, called the Bohemian Club. Each section of English comprises a chapter of the Club. On Thursday night, May 8, the Alpha chapter presented the initial program of the expected series. The first number of the program was The Lost Silk Hat. The cast of the play was unusually well chosen to suit the parts. Every member was picked for the part she played and consequently every part was well played.

The Lost Silk Hat conveys the story of a society gentleman who has quarrelled with his sweetheart and in his haste to leave her house has forgotten his hat. He tries to inveigle a laborer, a clerk and a poet to get his hat for him, and all three refuse to aid him, whereupon he goes back to get it himself. About the time he goes in for it the laborer and the clerk reappear with a policeman and the poet hears a duet issuing from the piano within and madly exclaims, "They are killing romance."

The music for the play was furnished by the comb orchestra of the chapter.

ART EXHIBIT PUT ON BY DEPARTMENT

For some years it has been the custom of the Industrial Arts department to give an exhibition of all work done during the year in the department. Formerly the exhibit has been held in the Industrial Arts Rooms. This year the exhibit is being displayed in the windows of Barrows' stores down town. The exhibit is a very interesting one displaying a large variety of work. The work shows excellent workmanship and artistic taste. Miss Millican is to be congratulated on the splendid work done in her department.

May Day on a College Basis.

It is with no attempt to disparage the beauty of our May Day celebration that this editorial is written—as a matter of fact, this year's celebration has not taken place at this writing. We understand, however, that a number of dances before the Queen are to be done by Training School children; this has always been the custom in the past. Well do we realize the importance of the Training School in our college life, by equally well do we realize that it is college life. Why drag in the infants? Couldn't May Day be made just as impressive and beautiful and perhaps less confused by exercises carried on by college girls alone? There would be no dashing around of frantic teachers and supervisors attempting to corral excited children and impress them with the fact that they were to take three side steps before the final bow. We do not go so far as to say that there would be no confusion or excitement if the Training School were left out of our May Day, but at least much confusion of a certain type would be eliminated. Besides, it's our May Day. Let the Training School have a May Day and let the College have one, but not together.

Unpaid Bills

What we are about to say is not universal in its application, we are glad to say, but it does apply to some, and it should not. Down town there are bills at various stores contracted by students and organizations of this college. All right. There's nothing wrong in that. Down town there are bills at various stores contracted by students and organizations of this college who do not intend to pay and who never did intend to pay. Is that all right? The bills cannot be collected from the parents of the students, for under a state law, merchandise cannot be charged legally to a minor. By his very desire to accommodate, the merchant loses. One merchant reports a loss of one account in ten. It isn't fair to the merchant; it isn't fair to the College. Steps can be taken by school authorities, but they should be taken by those who make the bills. They don't intend dishonesty when they charge, perhaps, but what else is it?

HOMERIC TRIP TO NEW YORK

Gang Relate Jay Tales About Each Other.

Well say do you know who went to New York? I am not going to give their names—because—well—I am going to give you a little inside dope on the trip.

"The gang" was walking down Fifth Avenue and an enormous bill board caught their eyes, which read something like this:

They had just the price of the second balcony so . . . rushes up and asks for the tickets, and adds, "Do you think we can hear in the second balcony?" The man wreathed his face in a typical New York smile and said, "young lady there is nothing to hear."

Next we find the gang riding up Broadway on the top of a bus. An enormous light shining out over the buildings attracted the eye of one of our girls. She exclaimed, "Oh what a wonderful sight, the moon." The bus was crowded and this was plenty amusing for the occupants.

During one of the recess periods one of the girls suggested we go to the Woolworth Building. The songbird of the gang chirped-up and said, "Why spend our time going to the Ten Cent store? We have one in Farmville."

I must give them credit for doing one sensible thing. On arrival in the metropolis they invested in a very useful book. From the title I think you will agree with me—"How Country Girls Should Act in the City." The girls found this a very valuable possession during their sojourn in the city. They wish me to say that anyone who expects to take a trip to the city in the future, and who would like to have a few hints, may borrow a book from any member of "the gang."

One night about 2 A. M. in the morning a fire engine passed the hotel going at a rapid rate of speed (so like our fire engine). The Farmville girls remained true to their colors, rushed madly down to the lobby and would have gone further but a gentleman stopped them. The following conversation ensued: "Young ladies, where are you all going?" "To the fire," was their reply. He told them they did not realize the area of New York and that they could not keep up with the fire engine. The girls were very disappointed and returned to their rooms. But after discussing the matter, they realized that New York was larger than Farmville and that they might get lost.

They all enjoyed riding busses, one member in particular. She delighted in hopping on any one that came her way.

She was sometimes surprised when she reached her destination.

They all had a lovely time and feel that they lived ten times ten days while in New York. They arrived home safe and sound, each girl with the noted look in her hand. Due to some enjoying Richmond more than others, some arrived at 11 others at 1 A. M. All report a wonderful time.

Stunt night is a new institution at Georgia Tech. Pic-eating contests, saxophone and guitar playing, songs, and a hula-hula dance were features of the evening.

AT THE EACO THEATRE—Week May 19th-24th.

MONDAY, TUESDAY and WEDNESDAY—"THE HUNCHBACK OF NOTRE DAME." It's HERE at last! Your opportunity has come to view the greatest, most sensational, most fascinating photo-play production of ALL TIME—the screen drama which has won the world's unstinted praise. Never before has there been such a picture. You will not, in all probability, see its like for many years to come. YOU CAN'T AFFORD TO SAY YOU HAVEN'T SEEN IT! And when you do see it, IT WILL LIVE IN YOUR MEMORY FOREVER. The editor of the Richmond Times Dispatch said this, "Maybe somebody, somewhere, some day, will produce a more superb motion picture than 'THE HUNCHBACK OF NOTRE DAME'—but nobody has done it yet." There will be a matinee each day at 3 o'clock. Admission to S. T. C. Girls 75 cents.

THURSDAY and FRIDAY—"APRIL SHOWERS" A special production enacted by a select cast, headed by KENNETH HARLAN and COLLEEN MOORE. A charming story of happy sweethearts and the troubles that came into their lives. There are heart-throbs and thrills; smiles and a few tears. A story of temperamental Irish lovers and of a society girl who almost came between them. THIS IS A PEACH OF A PICTURE. There will be a GOOD COMEDY Friday and Episode 7 of WAY OF A MAN Thursday.

SATURDAY—"CHILDREN OF JAZZ," A SPECIAL PARAMOUNT PICTURE with Theodore Kosloff, Eileen Percy and many others. As jazzy as its title—yet striking a note of real novelty. Cramped with comedy—yet bound to play on your heart strings. Produced on a big scale with a choice cast. MATINEE at 3:30.

Admission to each show except Mon., Tue. and Wed. 20 cents to S. T. C. Girls.

SENIORS! SOPHOMORES!A New Element in Our Colleges.

For something over a thousand years our colleges and universities have been developing along a more or less established pathway. Only in very recent years, speaking with a historical perspective, have we seen any radical departures from a time honored scheme. But of late the field of knowledge recognized in our colleges has enlarged enormously, the numbers at our institutions of higher education are beyond the wildest dreams of our forefathers and we have a new element making itself felt—the alumnae.

Perhaps it is wrong to say they are a new element, but a story told recently at the national conference of alumnae secretaries will define their new significance. A gentleman was traveling in the South once, and was being driven along a shady path by an old colored coachman, whose ambling steed gave him plenty of opportunity to display an unusual skill in flicking off an occasional flower or twig with his long whip. Finally a wasp's nest came into view and his passenger suggested, "Uncle, why don't you tackle that?"

"Not fo' me boss," he said, "I ain't gwine to fool wit dem; dey's organized."

That is the key—organization. We have had alumnae from this college since 1885, and they are as loyal as any you find anywhere. They have done some magnificent things for their Alma Mater. But they have not functioned as they could have had they been organized.

There are two ways that the Farmville Teachers College Alumnae Association is planning to organize, first in local clubs or chapters, and second in class organizations.

There are around 2,500 alumnae from this college, and at the present time only ten (10) chapters are doing effective work. Seniors, when you leave here in June, will you not show your love for your College and your appreciation for what she has done for you, by joining the local chapter and if there is not one, will you not organize one? The greatest possibilities for effective work lie with the local clubs, because their energy can be made immediately effective and responsive.

In most of the cities in Virginia, our alumnae have been eager to organize—it is only natural that the cities should start the organizations, because of the ease in getting together. I think one of their aims has been social, but immediately upon the heels of organization comes the desire to enter into some field of service.

We want our alumnae in towns and counties to organize too. Even if the group is small, we would like them to be identified with the organization.

The other form of organization is class organization. We should like for classes as they leave here keep their class officers for five years, then elect them every five years afterwards. Keep in touch with each other, and at certain intervals come back to Commencement for a class reunion. It has been my experience that all of us love to come back to our Alma Mater, but when we get here and see none of the old familiar faces of our classmates, we have a feeling of loneliness. Class reunions will remedy this feeling, and this year we are trying our first plan of class reunions. We are asking the classes of 1894, 1904, and 1914 to come back in honor of the class of 1924. We are hoping most sincerely that great numbers of them will come.

In conclusion, I want to appeal to you through the great love I know you have for your College to do the following things when you leave:

1. Send in your correct address every year. Teachers seem to move so often that it's impossible to keep up with them unless you do this. When you are married be sure to notify us of it. Just a card is all that is necessary.

2. Join the chapter of our alumnae association in the city or community in which you teach, and if there is none there, organize one.

3. Pay your dues of $1.00 a year. Our dues are the cheapest that I know. The University of Virginia Alumni dues are $5.00 a year.

4. Remember who your class secretary is and send her all news items of all alumnae you know, so that she may keep the Rotunda posted.

5. Plan to come back the first year after graduation, and certainly every five years afterwards.

Dr. Alderman in his address of welcome to the Alumnae Secretaries' Association in Charlottesville told this story. Ambassador and Madame Jusserand were visiting in his home on one occasion. Madame Jusserand was much non-plussed over the much used word "alumnus." In France there is no word corresponding to this. In fact college spirit is strictly an American product, a Frenchman would just as soon give three rals for the post office at his college or university. Finally Madame Jusserand asked Dr. Alderman, "What is meant by the word alumnus?" He replied, "An alumnus is a devoted son of a good mother." May the students here catch that spirit and live up to this ideal.

Miss Rice:—"Now what makes you think Caesar was hungry when he entered Rome?"

Elevator:—"He said, veni, veni, veni; we call 'em hot dogs."

WHY IS THE NOVEL POPULAR?

stincts? Thackeray's as a study of style? Stevenson's as a study of romanticism? and Jane Austen's as a study of the less significant but most interesting characteristics of people? All of which is given to us in the best of language and most charming way.

Access to good novels, to be read in spare time, is a challenge to anyone to become more cultured, grow in experience, become broader minded and to live many lives in the short space of one life.

The following new novels have been added to our college library since January:

Austin—26 Jayne Street.
Train—His Children's Children.
Norris—Bread.
Conrad—The Rover.
Tarkington—The Midlander.
Swinnerton—Nocturne.
Sabatini—Scaramouche.
Bailey—Tin Soldier.
Conrad—Nigger of the Narcissus.
Conrad—Lord Jim.
Mansfield—Bliss and other Stories.
Hough—Covered Wagon.
Ferber—So Big.
Cather—Lost Lady.
De la Mare—Henry Brocken.

MISS BIERBARROW RECOVERING

Miss Ada Bierbarrow met with a very painful and serious accident some time ago. While putting her car in a garage the garage door shut, striking her arm. She went to Richmond to have it x-rayed. The picture showed that the bone was broken in three places in her arm and once in her hand.

She is out again and getting along nicely.

We think the eggs at S. T. C. should take Gym because they never run out.

THE LANGUAGE OF FLOWERS

Spring had come to Melbourne and also to the ministerial college there. This meant that the little town was smothered with riotous budding of trees, shrubs, and flowers. The insistent flaunting of these blooms at every turn finally gave Jack Hilton, one of the college students and a rather bashful lover, what he considered a brilliant idea in courting his lady love.

He first purchased two books, exactly alike. One of these he wrapped very carefully and the other he studied until he seemed to solve a problem. Then he made his way to the only florist in town.

"I want a box of flowers with purple columbine, sprigs of spindle tree, and a jack-in-the-pulpit sent to Miss Clara Hastings," the boy announced, referring to his little book.

"Columbine, spindle tree, and jack-in-the-pulpit," repeated the florist in an undertone as he took the order. "What will those students want next? Where's your card?" he asked aloud. "There is no card. Just this," Jack replied. He handed the carefully wrapped package to the man and left in high spirits.

The florist ransacked his tiny shop, but only purple columbine and spindle tree were to be found.

"Who ever heard of sending a jack-in-the-pulpit," he said. "Here's a clump of sweet williams. I think that is much better. The whole thing looks mighty peculiar to me anyway. Joe, take this up to Miss Clara Hastings."

Clara was an impulsive, fascinating young lady who liked to think that she was the belle of the town. She really cared for Jack, however, because his bashfulness, which she called manly reserve, made him different from the other college boys. So certain was she of her popularity that she was not at all surprised when the florist box arrived, but she was amazed at the contents.

"Who in the world could have sent such?" the girl cried, searching for the card. Then she spied the little package. Its title was "The Language of Flowers" and on the fly leaf was written "Find my message and name among the flowers."

"How like Jack," she murmured as she looked for the meaning of purple columbine and spindle tree. A bright blush mounted her cheeks when she found "Your image is engraved on my heart. I cannot do without thee."

At that moment the sweet william caught her attention. Immediately the warm blush turned to two scarlet spots of anger, and she thrust the flowers from her with all the force of her impulsive nature.

"That foolish William Spencer thinks he's so smart," Clara cried, choking with disappointment over the thought that Jack was not the giver. "Just because I wrote him a few notes in high school, he thinks he can get sentimental now."

For the first time Clara realized that being the belle of the town was not the world. Indeed, that it was disgusting when there was such an empty meaning to it as William would intend, for she knew he cared nothing for her.

"I'll show him what I really mean," she determined "and I'll use his own suggestion, too."

She searched the little book, and found narcissus and variegated pink symbolizing egotism and refusal. In spite of the unusual combination she wore several of these flowers to the village church the next day where she was certain William would be. Jack saw the flowers, thought they were meant for him, and left without speaking. William, much to Clara's surprise, was not at all affected by the conspicuous corsage. On the contrary, after the services he came towards her with the most beaming expression she had ever seen. Before she could shun him, he said,

"Oh, Clara! Have you heard that Mary and I will be married next month?"

"Why William!" gasped Clara suddenly realizing that her vanity had received another jolt. "Didn't you send me flowers yesterday?"

It was now William's turn to be astounded, but Clara did not want for his answer because a sudden glimpse of the whimsical old florist made her suspect the reason for the mystery.

"Do you remember sending me any flowers?" she asked, disregarding the ceremony.

"Yes, some queer mixture of a jack-in-the-pulpit," he began, forgetting the substitute he had made.

"A jack-in-the-pulpit," the girl repeated, now seeing the real meaning and becoming rosy with happiness. She tore from her belt the flowers she meant for William and ran into the churchyard, looking everywhere for a certain figure. At last she saw him searching in the little book for the meaning of narcissus and variegated pink. Clara found a red rose and dropped it on the open book, saying softly,

"Jack-in-the-pulpit, it was all a mistake. Find what this means. It is what I want to say."

He did and was well content.

Upon being obliged to leave a pleasant party, from the want of a pair of breeches to dress for dinner in: Between Adam and me the great difference is

Though a paradise each has been forced to resign,

That he never wore breeches till torn'd out of his,

While, for want of my breeches, I'm banished from mine.

NOTED EDUCATOR PAYS TRIBUTE TO COLLEGE AND PRESIDENT

Says Nowhere in America is Better Training in Practice Teaching Given.

The following extract from the Boston Journal of English is the expression of the Editor, Dr. A. E. Winship who recently visited the college and gave a delightful talk to the students.

For many years Dr. Winship has visited schools and colleges in all parts of the United States and has as broad a knowledge on educational conditions as any man in the country. Such a compliment from such a source means a great deal to the college and its able President. In his article entitled "Farmville's Personality," Dr. Winship says:

In twenty-two years as president of the State Teachers College for Women at Farmville, Virginia, J. L. Jarman has given the oldest genuine Normal School of the South a compelling personality.

Twenty-two years ago a new personality took charge of Farmville and began to give the institution itself an interesting personality. J. L. Jarman has had three slogans: "An Adequate Campus," and every time any place was for sale that adjoined the campus, or that could later be annexed to the campus by a future purchase, was captured by President Jarman in the name of the trustees. In twenty-two years thirty city lots have been purchased, so that today the old cramped campus has been almost fabulously expanded, and as a business venture the value of the land purchased has increased marvelously.

A second slogan is "A College Grade Faculty," and President Jarman's investment in faculty talent has been as significant as his investment in real estate.

A third slogan has been: "Adequate and Appropriate Practice Teaching," and nowhere between the seas do students get more or better practice in a campus training school, in consolidated country schools, or in two-room schools, rural schools, than do the Farmville seniors.

President Jarman's graduates go into the schools of Virginia with a professional personality which combines an unusual inheritance with an exceptional civic, social and vocational vision.

The trustees of Columbia University have announced the appropriation of almost $10,000,000 for the maintenance of the University for 1925.

She (moonlight and all that rot)—"Do you know what a dumb waiter is?"

He (same surroundings of course)—"Sure, an undeveloped elevator for use in hotels, apartments and so on."

She (still in the moonlight)—"I should say not. It's a man who asks a girl for a kiss and waits for her to say 'yes.'"

NEW Y. W. CABINET INSTALLED

Beautiful Service Begins Work of New Cabinet.

The annual Y. W. C. A. Installation Services were held Tuesday, May 20, 1924, in the college auditorium. The services were very impressive, and beautifully carried out. The Y. W. C. A. has been very active this year, and the entire school has benefited by its work. The new cabinet is indeed an able one, and we feel sure that the members will faithfully carry on the work of this splendid organization.

The following program was carried out:

Processional—"Lead on, O King Eternal."

Hymn—"Jesus Calls Us."

Bible Reading by Association President.

Prayer for New Cabinet.

Reading of the Purpose of the Association.

Installation of New President.

Installation of New Cabinet.

Charge of New President to Association Members.

Solo—Dr. J. S. Jarman.

Prayer by New President.

Benediction—Sung by Choir.

Recessional—"Follow the Glean."

Silent Recessional of Cabinets.

Sunday morning at chapel service Dr. Harper referred to the work done by the recent Southern Christian Convention held in Norfolk. At the Sunday morning service Dr. Newman also mentioned some of the things done.

Among the important business transacted was the voting of $400,000 endowment for Elon College. A committee was appointed to work out the details of this.

MAY DAY CELEBRATED WITH BEAUTIFUL CEREMONY

Third Attempt to Have May Fete Ends in Unlimited Success.

The annual May Fete of the State Teachers College was held Thursday, May 15, 1924. The throne and trellises of the Court were beautifully decorated with greens and flowers. Not to be outdone by the scenery, the costumes of the attendants were elaborate and were the epitome of Spring.

The heralds announced the coming of the Queen through the medium of the orchestra. The four attendants and the flower girls preceded the Queen, Miss Anna Belle Treacle, who appeared in an embowered cart. She ascended the throne and was crowned Queen of the May. The subjects of the Queen then paid homage and performed before her.

The planning and execution of the May Day program reflected credit on the director, Miss Evelyn Kendrick, and her assistants. It was one of the most beautiful May Fetes the College has ever had.

Those taking part were:

Heralds—Evelyn Beckham, May White. Maids—Martha Hinch, Dorothy Gibson, Lucille Barnett, Mary Spiggle.

Flower Girls—Gertrude Quinn, Dorothy Shoffner.

Queen—Anna Belle Treacle. Pages—Henry Hubbard, T. C. Coleman.

Program.

1. May Pole Dance—8th and 9th Grades.
2. The Coming of Spring—Kindergarten.
3. See Saw—First Grade.
4. I See You—Second Grade.
5. Chimes of Dunkirk, Dainty Steps—Girls—Third Grade.

First: Elizabeth Paylor.

Second: Olive Smith.

Fourth Year Class.

First: Lalla Jones.

Second: Julia Alexander.

VIRGINIAN STAFF ELECTED FROM ENTIRE STUDENT BODY

New System of Selection Welcomed By College.

The following have been elected by the Student body to the "Virginian" staff of 1925:

Editor-in-Chief—Audrey Chewing.

Literary Editor—Margaret Moore.

Art Editor—Katherine Montague.

Business Manager—Cornelia Dickinson.

Assistants will be appointed by this staff. This is the first time the "Virginian" staff has been elected either in the spring or from the student body at large. Although representatives from various printing and engraving houses have offered bids, no definite steps have yet been taken and it is not yet known exactly when the contract will be signed. In the meantime, however, the staff is enthusiastically planning for a very beautiful and interesting "Virginian."

BOHEMIAN CLUB PRESENTS ANOTHER PLAY

Delta Chapter Gives "Dust of the Road" as Part of Program.

The Delta Chapter of the Bohemian Club presented its first program Tuesday, May 20, 1924. Under the direction of Miss Louise Luxford, the members of the chapter presented "Dust of the Road" by Kenneth Sawyer Goodman. The cast was well chosen, and each member took her part well.

The story centers around Prudence and Peter Steele. Peter has taken a sum of money left in his trust. When the play opens, Prudence's uncle has just turned away a beggar because she has forced him to. After the uncle retires, a tramp whom Prudence mistakes for her husband, comes into the house. The tramp rebukes her for refusing the beggar admittance into the house. When Prudence asks Peter to drive the tramp away, Peter thinks that she has had a nightmare, or the tramp has disappeared. Prudence leaves and the tramp comes before Peter. He admonishes him for having taken the money. Peter regrets this and finds happiness in a peaceful mind.

The Staff's Last Word.

The editorial is going out. We might go out in silence—but we won't. Having had experience as a staff, how could we? And anyway, who wants to creep out silently? It is much more fun to pitch a rock into our little mud puddle who are leaving and leave a ripple behind us, even though it dies away too soon. This is our rock. We pitch it gaily, as befits a staff hardened by years of hard labor.

But that is only a mask. Yes, underneath, we are human. So human that to calmly say goodbye to days that we have shared together hurts even when those days have been filled with much raving and tearing of hair over the chronic dearth of material, with sundry revivings of each other, and other staff-like amenities. We have grumbled and quarreled. Of course. But how we have enjoyed it!

We have tried to serve you well, Student Body. We know that we have failed in many things. Who hasn't? But we have given you our service wholeheartedly, and sincerely. It is over—our service. We are leaving others to take our places—to keep for you a record of your tears, your laughter, your days of school life. To them and to you we say goodbye. And to you—but especially to them, we wish—good luck!

Wasting of Student Government?

Thursday evening we went to the Student Council installation service. It was a beautiful service and an impressive service—as far as it went. It was only about half there, though. On the stage sat rows of white clad or capped Council members, impressive, serious. In the auditorium sat a line of capped Seniors, behind them a row of Juniors and behind them a few representatives from the Sophomore and Freshman classes, and behind them—vacant seats and a few students in the extreme rear of the auditorium who had courage to come although not dressed in white.

Now what? Didn't you know it was your service? Didn't you know that your officers were taking their oath to perform their duties "without fear or favor?" Yes, you knew it. But indifference, indifference, indifference! A little later it will be a different story when they incur your divine wrath for having the impudence to infringe upon the liberty of some member of the student body. Not that you'll consider them your officers then, inventions of Satan, rather, public nuisances. But at any rate, not something to be regarded tolerantly and passively as rather harmless imbeciles. There won't be any indifference then! Student body attitude to Student Government here is all wrong; you can't get around that, white-wash it as you will. We hate to think that we are worthy of it, or ready for it, but what else is there to think?

COLLEGE CUT OUTS

Princeton and Harvard continued their winning ways in baseball against all comers. The Tigers won from Georgia 7 to 2 on their Southern trip, while Harvard took Middlebury into camp 11 to 5.

At assembly last Friday morning the V. P. I. Chapter of Phi Kappa Phi Honor Society gathered on the stage for the purpose of presenting certificates of membership to candidates from the class of 1924. Dr. Louis O'Shaughnessy, the president of the local chapter, was master of ceremonies, and after a brief introductory talk, introduced to the Corps the speaker of the occasion, Dr. Arthur Holmes, Professor of Psychology at the University of Pennsylvania.

A great deal of interest is being displayed in the boys' colleges in setting aside a day for the honoring of Fathers. Emory College, in Georgia, has adopted the Saturday following Mother's Day as Dad's Day, when fathers of students will be especially welcomed on the campus. V. P. I. is soon to take action on this question and the boys are looking forward to the time when mothers and fathers alike shall be honored and remembered.

On May 1, the Harrisonburg Teachers College held their annual May festival. The Queen of May was Mary Sturtevant of Portsmouth and the Maid of Honor was Mary Bibb, formerly of Farmville, now a member of the graduating class of Harrisonburg.

"Why are you mailing all those empty envelopes?"
"I'm cutting classes in a correspondence school."

Orchestra Drummer: "I'm the fastest man in the world."
Violinist: "How's that?"
O. D.: "Time flies, doesn't it?"
V.: "So they say."
O. D.: "Well, I beat time."

Break, break, break

On your cold grey stones, O sea,
But I bet you could break for fifty years.
And not be as broke as me.

The traveling salesman walked up to the magazine counter and said to the girl there: "Have you Life?"
"Judge for yourself," she replied, giving him a punch.

AT THE EACO THEATRE—Week May 26th-31st.

MONDAY AND TUESDAY WILLIAM S. HART in "WILD BILL LEICESTER." A SPECIAL PARAMOUNT PICTURE. Bill Hart's here again to welcome his old friends and make new ones. It's his first picture since his retirement and a rousing one, with a great cast and Pinta, the famous Hart pony. This story is a sizzling tale of the fighting, rioting days of the early West. Founded on fact and written around the greatest gunman that ever lived. REMEMBER THIS IS A SPECIAL NEW PARAMOUNT PICTURE. Radio News Monday and 8th episode of "THE WAY OF A MAN" Tuesday.

WEDNESDAY CORRINE GRIFFITH, CONWAY TEARLE and ELLIOT DEXTER in Robert W. Chambers' famous novel "THE COMMON LAW." One of the very best productions of the year. This is a wonderfully one production, and if you fail to see it, you will miss a rare treat. TAKE OUR WORD FOR THIS. If it isn't so, we'll refund your money. Also Aesop Fables. Matinee at 4 o'clock.

THURSDAY "MIGHTY LARK A ROSE." A symphony of life in the high and low places. A story as gentle as a mother's lullaby, yet as stirring as the trumpet blasts of a military band. EVERY MAN, WOMAN AND CHILD WILL ENJOY THIS. Also a comedy. Matinee at 4 o'clock. Proceeds are for benefit of RURAL CLUBS.

FRIDAY—RICHARD BARTHELMIESS and DOROTHY GISH in the SPECIAL PRODUCTION, "FURY." There never has been a greater drama of the sea! That's the absolute truth. A drama of a father who hated all women and of a son who gave up one to avenge another. Nine BIG reels of entertainment and a GOOD COMEDY. Admission to S. T. Girls 25 cents.

SATURDAY—THEODORE ROBERTS, DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS, Jr., and a great cast, in the PARAMOUNT Picture "STEPHEN STEPS OUT" from the story, "The Grand Cross of the Crescent," by Richard Harding Davis. Folks! We know that you will just love young Doug and old Theodore Roberts in this picture. Also 8th episode of "In the Days of Daniel Boone." Matinee at 3:30.

Admission to each show except Friday, 20 cents to S. T. C. Girls.

MILLER INSTALLED FOR SECOND TERM

Dignified and Impressive Ceremony
Marks Student Government
Installation.

The Student Association held its installation services on Thursday evening at 6:30 o'clock in the auditorium.

The outgoing and incoming committee was seated on the rostrum. The vice-president of the outgoing committee presided. The program was opened with a solo by Miss Evelyn Barnes. Miss Helen Miller, who was re-elected President was given the oath of office. The president then took the chair and administered the oath to the members of the new committee. She expressed her thanks to the outgoing committee for their loyalty and cooperation in the past year. She welcomed the new committee and expressed the hope that in the coming year the Student Association would be better than ever before and that they would have the loyalty and hearty cooperation of the entire student body. The service was closed with the Alma Mater song.

WHO'S WHO

The following is a list of members of the Fourth Year Class. Some are labelled. Some are not. You will have little difficulty in recognizing any of them, we think. An additional collection will appear in the next issue of the Rotunda.

Hark! did you hear that melody?

'Tis our Evelyn, our song bird, Ready, willing, cheerful, gay,

Her merry voice is always heard.

Evelyn, of course, needs no introduction. Her pleasing personality and accommodating nature won us long ago. A pleasant word and a winning smile is usually Evelyn's manner of greeting everyone.

Pauline doesn't sound exactly right when applied to our tall, graceful Senior, so we all call her Polly. She has been an invaluable member of the staff since she came to us four years ago, and, ah! she is also our poet. Her lyrics have often honored the Rotunda and proud we will be some day when we see her edition—"Poems"—Pauline Timberlake. But Polly is also an artist and proof of her skill in this branch of the fine arts may be seen in the "Virginian." She has a strong sense of humor; so say this to her and see what she says:

"Polly want a cracker?" No, Polly likes toast, she has a toaster.

"Polly want a chair?" No, Polly likes a fire escape.

"Polly want a broom?" No, Polly collects dust pans.

In her we find another girl to whom we can apply this—

"She is pretty to walk with,
And witty to talk with,
And pleasant to think on, too."

"I ain't proud," describes her exactly. She is hail-fellow-well-met and equal to any occasion from the Bell-hop in "Hees and Haws" to the Lion who does not need to say, "I want some courage." She will be missed not only for her fun as the clown in the show, but for her true and sincere worth for there can be only one "Maggie" with the dignified name Margaret Agnes McDuffie.

A soft, sweet voice is indeed rare, but, possessed of this, Nell uses it as a magnet with which she draws to her a host of friends. A loyal friend; a peach of a pal and an all around good sport, we find her much in demand. The happy-go-lucky and with a smile for every one Nell is capable and dependable. Indifference distinguishes her from the average college girl and she delights in being "different." Nell is not lacking in the dignity we instinctively look for in a Senior and when she dons her cap and gown we are truly impressed. We can but predict success for one whose college life has been so full of achievement. Good luck, Nell.

Pink!—How many different visions that one word calls to mind! Some dignified—others decidedly not. Visions of Pink in cap and gown sanctimoniously preceding the other Fourth Profs on Friday mornings; visions of her at the head of the table in Rotunda staff meetings, tearing her hair and screaming wildly for "something to fill up space;" visions of her face with a "look of judgment" somehow seeming to sit awry, as though slapped on at the last moment in government meetings; visions (or nightmares) of a weird figure disappearing swiftly up the stairs at dead of night; of that same figure on the fire-escapes; and again, on the campus or in the halls, doing a vividly impressionistic dance of—oh, of anything.

And other visions as contradictory as these. If they weren't contradictory, they wouldn't be you, Pink.

This senior is conscientious and dignified. If you would see her walking sedately down the aisle in cap and gown and yellow shoes, you would never imagine the fun and badness that lurks beneath—except maybe by the yellow shoes. Would you think that this girl would rush madly all the way down High Street to protect the same precious yellow shoes from the few stray drops of rain? She has great executive ability, and is the sternest of judges. She knows how to keep the student body in "the straight and narrow path" and has accomplished this feat several times this year. Yes, she has her deeper side, but she can lock this securely in her trunk, and be playful as any Freshman. We cannot say less of her, is there need to say Moore?

Who doesn't know and like this little girl, who is always running around acting the part of everybody's little "Fat Sister?" When you meet her she has a cheerful greeting and, oh, that smile! Her mouth stretches until the ends almost meet in the back and her eyes disappear leaving only happy little slits, but we can see in spite of this that her sympathies are ours.

She's little and fat and jolly it's true. She thinks she's cute, and we do too.

Bees humming? An aeroplane overhead? A buzz-saw nearby? Not at all. Your error. What you hear is merely the stimulating presence of a certain little member of our Senior Class. Just a wee bit of a thing she is—reminds you rather of a humming bird (no pun intended), all throbbing life and color. But let 'er buzz; let 'er hum. We love her, for her joyous smile pervades the atmosphere and brightens even the grayest of days, even if you do "sorter" have to take a good breath, and hold your hair on when the young cyclone comes around. Know her?

Professor Caldwell, of Louisiana College, is conducting a study course at the Baptist Church in Pineville every Sunday afternoon, for the benefit of Sunday School teachers and workers, and for any others who would like to engage in work of this nature at any time. Several college students are enrolled in this class and everyone enrolled is doing nicely.

The first portion of the New Convention Normal Manual has been completed and the class is open for new students who might want to enroll Sunday night to begin the second part of the work. Many more college students should be in this class.

CAPELLI ENCHANTS AUDIENCE

Voice and Personality of Metropolitan Opera Company Member Takes College Captive.

On Friday morning, May 16, the music lovers among us and even those who aren't received one of the most delightful treats of the year, when Mr. Capelli, noted tenor, and member of the Metropolitan Opera Company, New York, sang a number of selections.

Mr. Capelli enchanted the audience and received round after round of applause. Among his solos, two which seemed to appeal to his listeners the most were: "O Sole Mio" and "Funiculi-Funiculi." This does not mean that every one was not enjoyed to the fullest extent but that his voice and personality seemed to be at their best in these songs.

Our only regret was that Mr. Capelli could stay no longer or that we could not listen for at least another hour to his voice, which took numbers of us into fairyland, and when he stopped, dropped us back into commonplace existence with a sharp thud.

Dr. Jarman said "he hoped to have Mr. Capelli come again sometime in the future." So say we all. This will be at least one concert when the auditorium will be filled to its capacity.

WELL KNOWN SPEAKERS TO TALK AT COMMENCEMENT

The Reverend Joseph Dunlingson, D. D., of the First Presbyterian Church, at Danville, will deliver the baccalaureate sermon at Teachers College, June 8. Dr. Dunlingson, well known in Farmville, and one of the most gifted preachers in the state, is an Englishman. He has been in this country a number of years, however, and received his theological training at Union Seminary, Richmond.

Dr. Douglas Freeman of Richmond and editor of the "News Leader" of that city will deliver the graduation address on Tuesday. Dr. Freeman bears the unique distinction of being asked back to deliver this address by representatives from the classes after his magnificent talk at this college on Founder's Day.

The College and its guests have an unusual pleasure in store for them at commencement in hearing these two notable speakers.

SONG OF JUNE

As drops of water in a golden urn,
Slowly the days slip into June.
Slowly, yet swiftly, one by one
They come—and pass—and go.

As drops of water in a golden urn
That, filled to its brim, waits at the end
Of a journey, sweet at its close:
Slowly the days slip, one by one.

So nearly full, the urn that, waiting, stands
There at our journey's end! So nearly full
That there can be no room for tears,
Tears that are born with our goodbyes.

No room for tears—the days slip, one by one,
Laughter and song they know—not tears!
We have been friends and now we part:
The days slip, one by one—the urn is full!

"CROOKED ANSWERS"

The following are some more amusing answers to test questions obtained by Miss Blanche Graham:

Means by which we can wipe out malaria—

"Illuminate the muskito"
"Due away with stage water"

Prevention of Scarlet Fever
"Never drink behind any one"

Pertussis is "Mingintistics"
"A seed producing bacteria"
"A sectional disease"

"Ringworm is an intestinal paracyte"

To prevent Bubonic Plague
"Destroy the places where rats lay their eggs"

"Never take a cold bath unless you can get a good vacation"

One of the aims of Physical Ed—"To elevate mental strength" ferlace energy"

ALUMNAE NOTES

Miss Edith Estep, now teaching in the Berryville High School, expects to return next year for third professional work.

Miss Marjorie Goodwyn, in addition to teaching in one of the Richmond schools, makes the illustrative drawings for the advertisements of Mosby and Company.

Dr. Robert T. Glassell, of Bowling Green, announces the engagement of his daughter, Louisa Brown, to Claude Richard Clarke, of Norfolk. The wedding will take place in June.

On Saturday, May 17, Dr. Jarman was guest of honor at a luncheon in Portsmouth, given by the alumnae of that city and neighborhood.

BOHEMIAN CLUB PRESENTS BARRIE'S "ROSALIND" AND "THE TWELVE POUND LOOK"

Delightful Programs Rendered by Beta and Chi Chapters of this Interesting Organization.

Great interest is being taken in the new organization at Teachers College —The Bohemian Club. More and more interest abounds as the club grows. In the past weeks several interesting programs have been given the various chapters of the club.

On Wednesday night, May 21, the Beta Chapter of the Bohemian Club rendered a most enjoyable program. The Association Room was packed with an appreciative audience and the players were inspired to do their very best. The first number of the program was a musical number. The Orchestra under the direction of Mary Tyler entertained the audience with several beautiful selections. The second number was a solo dance by Amonette Demott which was a very special feature and enjoyed immensely. The third and last number of the program was "Rosalind." The cast of the play was carefully chosen and the players seemed to fit their parts.

The Chi Chapter of the Bohemian Club presented its first program Monday, May 26, 1924. After several musical numbers Barrie's play "The Twelve Pound Look" was presented. This was greatly enjoyed by all.

Program.

SHAHER HEADS PIERIAN

The Pierian Literary Society held its regular meeting May 21. At this meeting revisions to the constitution were adopted.

The following were installed as officers for the coming year:

President—Daisy Shafer.
Vice-President—Mary Douglas Walker.
Secretary—Elizabeth Westbrook.
Treasurer—Mary Spiggle.

"What poets do you think of when you burn your finger?"
"Dickens, Hewitt, Burns."

FRESHMEN NOT TO GIVE RECEPTION

The Freshman class regrets that owing to unforeseen circumstances and numerous obstacles, it is unable to give the customary annual reception to the Seniors this year. The officers of the class conferred with Dr. Jarman on the subject, and on his advice, decided that it was best not to attempt to give it.

The class extends best wishes to the Seniors with its regrets. Both are very sincere.

MISS WINNIE HINER TREASURER OF COLLEGE

Miss Winnie Hiner, well known to students and alumnae of the State Teachers College has been elected Treasurer of that institution. Miss Hiner, graduate of the class of '11, has served the College in capacity of Assistant Business Manager ever since her graduation.

MAY DAY AT PROSPECT

Prospect School held its May Day on Monday, May 19. The exercises were in charge of the primary and grammar grades, under the direction of Misses Georgia Taylor and Elsie G. Bell. They are to be congratulated on the festival for it proved to be a success.

The May Queen was Miss Mildred Wilkerson, and no one can deny that she carried her honor with dignity and grace. Her long train trimmed with roses was carried by two little first grade girls. The maids were girls of the sixth and seventh grades and the heralds were William House and Jack Brightwell.

A lovely woods served as a natural background for the throne and the grounds for the exercises.

Prospect wishes to thank Miss Kendrick and the girls from the Teachers College Training School or their May Pole Dance.

DEDICATION

Because we wish to express our thanks for his ready assistance, never failing suggestions and constant willingness to help whenever asked; and because the Rotunda has attained much of its success through his ready and ever present assistance we dedicate this issue of

THE ROTUNDA

to
MR. JAMES MERRITT LEAR.

PROF. BELL IN DEMAND AS COMMENCEMENT SPEAKER

Prof. Leon E. Bell of the department of Education, delivered two commencement addresses last week. One was given May 28 to the graduating class of Victoria High School and the other, May 30, to the Pamplin High School.

BLUE RIDGE PROGRAM

If we had thought of going to Blue Ridge or had decided we didn't want to go; after seeing the program given in the auditorium Thursday night and hearing pages read from a Blue Ridge Diary, we have certainly changed our minds and are wondering if by any possible chance we will be able to go. And if we had intended going, well then we simply cannot wait to arrive.

The Diary above would have made one long for the good times and the quiet twilight services; while the little scenes, given by phantom figures to illustrate, simply fill our hearts with a desire to actually go to Blue Ridge. The way in which the girls were greeted upon getting off the train made us think of how nice the old girls were to us when we arrived at College.

We could see the mountains purple in the twilight and hear the girls' sweet voices rising among the trees at the Vesper services.

The bathing suit made us feel that once more summer was here and oh! for a swim in the cool water among the hills.

Who among us can resist the temptation to follow the call of "B-l-u-e R-i-d-g-e" after the truly life-like reproduction of a week spent among the hills?

OVERBEY PRESIDENT OF DRAMATIC CLUB

At a business meeting of the Dramatic Club held Friday, the officers for the coming year were elected.

They were as follows:

Lucy Haile Overbey—President.
Frances Sale—Secretary and Treasurer.
Madeline McMurdo — Property Manager.
Stella Presson—Assistant Property Manager.
Elizabeth Jarman—Publicity Manager.

1924 VIRGINIAN BEST YET

The 1924 Virginian, the College annual, made its appearance last week. This number of the Virginian is the most beautiful and interesting ever issued. The pictures are excellent, and give a wonderful insight into our College life. The Staff has worked unusually hard, and the results are shown in the splendid annual which they have put out. They are indeed to be congratulated.

TWELVE FACULTY MEM- BERS WILL NOT RETURN

Mr. J. M. Lear is leaving to take a position as a member of the faculty of the University of North Carolina.

Mrs. Lear is going with her husband.

Dr. Tidyman has accepted a position as a member of the Faculty of the State Teachers College, Fresno, California.

Miss Dietrich is leaving to accept a position nearer home.

Miss Murphy is also leaving.

Miss Everett was substituting for Miss Carrie Sutherland. Miss Sutherland will return.

Miss von Shilling has been granted a leave of absence of one year to study at Columbia.

Miss Kendrick will leave as she was only substituting for Miss Barlow. Miss Barlow will return—having completed work leading to her Masters degree.

Miss Cary Jeter will leave as she was filling the place of Miss Pattie Jeter.

Miss Spear has been granted a leave of absence to continue her work on her Masters degree.

Miss Abi Russel is leaving to go into a city library.

Miss Munoz will not return.

PROFESSOR LEAR TO LEAVE COLLEGE FOR N. C. U.

Has Been Business Manager of Virginian and Rotunda for Almost Fifteen Years.

Prof. James Merritt Lear, head of the Department of History and Social Sciences for fifteen years and Business Manager of both Virginian and Rotunda since 1912, is, with this year, completing his service to the State Teachers College at Farmville. Next year he will enter upon his duties in the department of Economics at the University of North Carolina. During his residence in Farmville, Mr. Lear has been an invaluable and public-spirited citizen to both town and college. As evidence to his active participation in College life is his membership and active interest in the following committees: Course of Study, Literary Societies, Advisory Committee of Professional Students and Athletics.

J. Merritt Lear, son of W. W. Lear and Mary Nolley, was born in Petersburg, Virginia. Both of his grandfathers were ministers, in fact the entire family has gone into the teaching and preaching professions.

From accounts received from relatives, Mr. Lear was a mischievous small boy and the happiest day of his life was when he entered Randolph-Macon Academy wearing his first long trousers. Mr. Lear received his education in private schools, including McCabe's and Randolph-Macon Academy. After finishing Randolph-Macon Academy he entered Randolph-Macon College and took his A. B. degree. He taught at Nolleys School for boys before returning to Randolph-Macon for his Masters Degree.

At college Mr. Lear took an active part in all activities. He played on the foot ball team, and was a member of both the Franklin Literary Society and the Phi Kappa Sigma Fraternity. After receiving his Masters degree, he studied in Germany at Leipzig University under the famous Laprecht. On his return to America he taught several years but gave it up on account of his health, and took up engineering. He was working with the State Highway Commission when elected to the chair of History at Farmville. In 1922 Mr. Lear married Miss Rachel Christy Robinson of Alva, Oklahoma, and at present supervisor of the second grade. Mr. and Mrs. Lear carry with them the good wishes of the entire student body and faculty.

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer, and these will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matters should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of their copies of The Rotunda will be appreciated.

Editorial

"The man who tells you all his troubles becomes one of yours."

"When you grow suspicious of a person and begin a system of espionage upon him, your punishment will be that you will find your suspicions true."

"The odium of success is hard enough to bear without the added ignominy of popular applause."

"A lie travels by the Marconi route, while Truth goes by slow freight and is often ditched at the first water tank."

A Magazine.

How about a literary magazine? Our weekly paper isn't large enough, or it is the place for much literary work. Practically all colleges of our size (and many smaller) have a magazine in addition to a newspaper. We can have it, too. And a good one. If you could see the stories, poems and essays the Rotunda has had to reject because of lack of space, you'd know we could. Let's go.

COLLEGE CUT OUTS

Since Brenau College has announced that she is for intercollegiate athletics, the girls have organized a Physical Education Club for the purpose of preparing themselves as leaders in girls' athletics. Miss Pearl Jones was unanimously elected president of the organization.

The University of Pennsylvania will graduate a class of 1900 members for 1924. A commencement in two sections will be necessary for this year's graduating class.

"The administration and the new library buildings, now under construction at the University of Florida are only a part of an extensive building program planned for the University for the next two or three years," says the Florida Alligator.

Harvard University is planning to have eighty tennis courts this spring. Tennis is a major sport at twenty-seven colleges and a letter is given in this sport in six other schools.

Urgent demands growing out of nation-wide interest in the work being done by New York's police-women will be met by the establishment this summer of a course for college women in a school of police-women in Bethlehem, Pa.

The University of Texas is holding a student body election to discover who is the most "girl shy" man on this year's football team. The one selected is to escort 11 girls to a local theatre, where Harold Lloyd's picture, "Girl Shy," is being shown.

On account of the cut in appropriations by the recent Mississippi legislature, the University of Mississippi will not conduct a summer school this year. Many Mississippi students will be forced to seek work out of the state this summer as a result of the cancellation of the proposed summer term.

A BURDEN LIFTED

Any one going through the hall and passing Room 12 in the West Wing would think a factory of some kind had been installed.

The noise is a pleasing one to the ears of the Executive Committee and Secretary of the Alumnae Association, for it is that of a machine which is printing names and addresses for our new Addressograph.

The machine is a great time saver. Formerly every piece of mail,—the Rotunda, letter or post card,—sent to an alumna had to be addressed by hand. Many times faculty members and students worked feverishly to get out the material on time. A record was kept of the time consumed in doing this work and it was estimated that it took one person thirty-eight hours to address one letter to each alumna. With the new machine, the Addressograph, the nearly three thousand addresses may be accurately typed in almost three hours.

Dr. Jarman purchased the machine for the use of the College, and we, the Alumnae Workers, as one of the benefactors wish to thank him heartily for this time saver.

The Seven Wonders of a Freshman.

1. "I wonder when the bell will ring."
2. "I wonder if I will get called on."
3. "I wonder if I passed that test."
4. "I wonder if he loves me."
5. "I wonder who borrowed my book."
6. "I wonder who will lend me a pencil."
7. "I wonder what will happen next."

AT THE EACO THEATRE—Week June 2nd-7th.

MONDAY—"MOTHERS-IN-LAW." A Special Production enacted by a select cast, headed by Gaston Glass. This is an extra good attraction. You'll cry a little and you'll laugh a good deal. The story was written by the authors of "Rich Men's Wives" and "Poor Men's Wives." Also Pathe News. Matinee at 4 o'clock. Proceeds from this picture go to the 4th year professionals of the S. T. C.

TUESDAY—CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG and ELLIOT DEXTER in "ENTER MADAME." A sumptuous version of the New York theatrical success that ran forty-five capacity weeks on Broadway. A scintillating comedy-drama of love and life in the theatre. Also 99th episode of "THE WAY OF A MAN."

WEDNESDAY—TOM MIX in "SINGLE SHOT PARKER." In this we show Tom Mix, pronounced by critics and the public to be the screen's most daring rider. There is a thrilling hold-up scene in this picture where more than five hundred people are used. Also Aesop Fable. AS AN EXTRA ADDED ATTRACTION, MISS ANNIE ABBOTT, THE LITTLE GEORGIA MAGNET WILL DEMONSTRATE HER WONDERFUL POWERS. Admission to S. T. C. Girls, 25 cents.

THURSDAY—GLORIA SWANSON in "THE HUMMING BIRD." A BIG SPECIAL PARAMOUNT PRODUCTION. "THE HUMMING BIRD" soars to the heights of swift, thrilling melodrama. And Gloria, in a novel boy-and-girl Apache role is magnificent. Also a comedy. MISS ABBOTT WILL BE THE ADDED ATTRACTION THIS NIGHT ALSO. Admission to S. T. C. Girls, 25 cents.

FRIDAY—GLORIA SWANSON in "THE HUMMING BIRD" will also be shown on this night. It is too big and too fine a picture to be only shown one night. The Swanson in this picture is the greatest Swanson you've ever seen. As gorgeous and beautiful and alluringly gowned as ever—and also—hold your breath! in her first male impersonation! GLORIA SWANSON IN TROUSERS! Admission to S. T. C. Girls, 25 cents.

SATURDAY—THEODORE ROBERTS and a fine cast in the PARAMOUNT picture, "TO THE LADIES." MARRIED? You'll scream at this comedy of married life! ENGAGED? See this picture before you start housekeeping! A picture that toasts the ladies, and roasts the blues. It's from the play that made the whole world howl! Also 9th episode of "IN THE DAYS OF DANIEL BOONE." Matinee at 3:30. Admission to S. T. C. Girls, Monday, Tuesday and Saturday, 20 cents.

FARMVILLE STUDENTS RAW MATERIAL FOR EDUCATIONAL EXPERIMENTS

M. B. COINER

Dr. G. T. Somers, formerly a member of the Department of Education in the Farmville State Teachers College, has recently published a Doctor's thesis which will be of interest to students and alumnae, but especially to the members of the class who entered as Freshmen in 1919. The title of the thesis is "Pedagogical Prognosis" with the sub-title "Predicting the Success of Prospective Teachers." It is listed as No. 140 in the series "Contributions to Education" published by Teachers College, Columbia University. Its acceptance and publication by Teachers College indicate the high value placed on it by that institution.

As is suggested by the title of the thesis, Dr. Somers wanted to find out whether there is anything in the ability or personality or success as a student showing itself in the normal-school "recruit" which might be used to predict what grade of success she will have as a teacher "in the field." He therefore gave a series of intelligence and information tests to all the 1919 freshmen; then got personality ratings on all of them from the teachers under whom they had worked; and then compiled their academic records for the first semester. These three "measures" can be referred to as "tests," "personality" and "grades." Other ratings and records were collected also, but these were the most significant for predicting success.

It was found that any one of the "measures" by itself was not a safe criterion for predicting success; but a combination score or composite grade made up of all three had a very definite value in predicting. For example, of those who ranked in the highest 10% in test-personality-grade score—that is, were granted "A" on a combination of the three "measures"—54% were graded "A" in total record made as students in the college, 40% were "B," and 7% were "C." None were lower than "C." Similarly, of those who were in the lowest 10% in test-personality-grade score, 6% made "C" records as students, 47% made "D," and 47% made "E." This shows what importance the first term of a student's life holds.

There is just as close a relationship between this test-personality-grade score and success as a teacher "in the field." Of the upper 10%, 58% were reported by principals and superintendents as "A" teachers, 42% as "B" teachers, and none were lower than "B." Of the lowest 10%, 20% were reported "C," 30% "D," and 50% "E."

The work of Dr. Somers in this study is probably more extensive and significant than any that has been made on a similar problem of vocational guidance and prediction; and although he has suggested many other lines for continued study on the problem undertaken by him, he has arrived at some very valuable conclusions, only a few of which are reported here. The whole study would not be interesting to the average teacher; but principals and superintendents could get valuable help on the questions: "What foretells the probable success of a teacher?" and "Who should be recommended for a scholarship in a teachers' college?"

Cavalry Recruiting Officer—"Where did you learn to ride a horse?"
Applicant—"On the back, sir."

WHO'S WHO

She is indeed a prodigy of wisdom. Knowledge, power, influence, and real ability are all hers. And does she draw? To be sure she does. Julia is a real artist. The cuts in the Virginian will testify to that. She is a true Alexander; she conquers everything before her.

She is bright and has executive ability too. Everyone in school knows about her wonderful work as president of the Y. W. C. A. She has led that organization through a whole year of trials and tribulations, always showing the best judgment and utmost self-confidence. This does not always show itself, however, for at times, when she is writing letters, all the fine Y. W. inspiration disappears, and even the picture on her dresser does not have the desired results, and she is forced to call upon her friends for help. But this little senior is a true friend, a willing worker and always ready to serve in some phase of school life.

Who is the reserved, calm girl who shows in her every step that she is a true "dignified senior?" Dorothy, of course. As her friends well know—"Still waters run deep" is aptly applied to her for under her aloof manner lies ready sympathy and an alert, active mind. We like to think of our Dorothy as one of those very few who are not afraid of hard work even when they get no credit for it.

We are proud of Dorothy
As proud as we can be
The reason is a good one
As any one can see.

Anna Bell seems just a little too serious for her so we have given her the less formal name of A. B. What we shall do without her next year is hard to tell; for A. B. is not just beautiful to look upon, she has been the star forward on the Varsity for four years and her voice has held us entranced on many an occasion. A shame it is that we have to lose such versatile girls from our Student Body. Good luck to you A. B. We shall miss you next year.

Another tall and dignified Senior! Her dignity cannot be covered up even with charcoal and blue overalls! In the audience a remark like this was heard, "There sits Roberta like a perfect lady."

How can the Dramatic Club go on without her? For she could collect everything from foxes to garden walls and take the most important part in a play, the role behind the scenes. She could shift the wall, the fox, the storm steps, the garden in a twinkling of an eye, with all ease and grace. After the play she always had a party for the actors. The players only can realize her services. Behind the scenes when we heard one call Ro-ber-to we all scattered and made for Ro-ber-to who played the title role in "Behind the Scene."

Boys will be boys, you've heard that fact full many a time before. At our school we turn it round and add a little more; for we possess a hero bold who is our pride and joy—but in this institution 'tis a girl who will be boy. So every time we have a play, we make use of the handsomest of faces. A concentrated silence greets her entrance on the scene; you hold your breath and a sigh escapes as you note her noble mien. You hear a mighty thumping (at first you think it queer), but it's only rapid beating hearts of maidens, seated near. And so, as she plays through her part, she sways you to her will. You follow her quite breathlessly, with many a pleasing thrill. Then when the play is over, and you come to, with a start, to the College Matinee Idol you have given all your heart. But it isn't only this, my friends, in which our maid excels—she leads her school, oh, yes, she does! She leads her school in yells.

L'ENVOI

(With apologies to Rudyard Kipling)
When the last lesson is finished and the books are laid aside,
When the brightest student has fainted and the wisest teacher has sighed,
We shall rest, and, faith, we shall need it—
lie a-bed until twelve or two,
Till the mothers of All Good Daughters shall give us something to do.

And those that have passed will be happy!
They shall sit in their favorite chair;
They shall splash at the soda-fountain,
and shake her shingled hair;
They shall find real men and draw them—magnet-like—Peter and Paul;
They shall talk an age at a sitting and never be tired at all!

And only the moon shall gaze at us,
the moon that is ever to blame,
Yet no one shall whisper "Honey," for that is no longer the game,
But each for the joy of the riding, shall ask us to ride in his Car,
And shall drive the thing as he sees fit.

In spite of things as they Are!

FRESHMEN WIN FIELD DAY MEET BY TWO POINTS

Seven of Last Year's Records Broken in this Year's Contest

The Annual Field day was held May 29, on the Training School field. The scoring was close throughout the whole program and the interest of the bystanders was kept up to the highest point until the last race was run and the final score was announced. The score was as follows: College seniors 3; College Juniors 1; Sophomores 54; Freshmen 56.

Elizabeth Watkins was the highest individual point scorer with eleven points.

The following is a comparison of the American records, last year's record and this year's record:

Collegiate Records	1922	1923	1924
1. 50-yard dash	6 secs.	6 4/5 secs.	7 2/5 secs.
2. Basket Ball Throw	88 ft. 10 in.	67 ft. 3 in.	71 ft. 2 in.
3. Running High Jump	4 ft. 7 1/4 in.	4 ft. 1 in.	4 ft. 2 in.
4. Base Ball Throw	217 ft. 3 in.	177 ft. 8 in.	170 ft.

(Score counts: 1st place, 5; 2nd, 3; 3rd, 1.)

Other events of the day were the Flag Relay race won by the Freshmen, the Relay Race won by the Freshmen, and the Chariot Race won by the Freshmen; also, the Suit Case race which was won by B. M. Riddle, Freshman.

We would also like to state that seven of the old Normal School Field Day records were broken this year. The records broken were:

75-yard dash, Running High Jump, Running Broad Jump, Standing Broad Jump, Hop Step Jump, Shot Put, Javelin Throw.

ALUMNAE NOTES

Miss Maria Tate Sterrett was married in Washington, D. C. on May 20 to Mr. Jennings Judy Swecker, principal of the Blue Grass High School in Monterey, Virginia, where Miss Sterrett taught last year. A position judiciously Miss Sterrett taught last year. A chosen, may yield more than a mere salary.

A good many Farmville students have continued their studies at George Peabody College for Teachers, influenced perhaps by the large number of peabody graduates in the faculty, and news comes to us through Peabody publications. Miss M. Clarice Bersch B.S. 1920, is a rural supervisor in Maryland. Miss Blanche Ankers, B. S. 1921, is now Mrs. Forest McCraw.

On May 8, Mrs. M. B. Coynor organized a local alumnae chapter at Crewe. The preliminary steps were taken by Mrs. J. A. Cox (Miss Ida Sharpe), and a dozen interested persons were present at the inaugural meeting. Mrs. Hunter H. Watson (Miss Pattie Eppes) was elected president and Mrs. Edward Bates (Miss Alice Whitaker) secretary-treasurer. Their plan is to form a Nottoway County chapter with some of the meetings at Blackstone and Burkeville.

The program for the annual meeting of the Association of Alumnae on June 6 is: 10:00 Business meeting; 1:00, Alumnae luncheon; 8:30, Address and reception, Miss Carrie Sutherland, Speaker.

FASHION SHOW

On Thursday, May 29 at 8 o'clock Teachers College had a fashion show. It was given under the direction of Miss Catherine Tupper, and by the girls in her classes. Miss Jacquelin Marston played softly on the piano as the models posed to show their costumes. The children's dresses, made by the students, were worn by children of the town and presented a lovely group as the curtains were first drawn back.

The good and bad taste in clothes was displayed. Correct and incorrect church costumes were shown. A smart business suit, correct sport clothes, dainty voils of all colors, and beautiful linen dresses followed in rapid succession.

Good and bad taste in evening dresses and school clothes was also displayed. All those attending greatly admired the work of the domestic science classes.

MISS ELIZABETH WATKINS
She won the cup Field Day with a score of eleven points.

SOPHS WALK AWAY WITH RATS-16 TO 5

Baseball Game Wins Cup for Second Year Class.

The annual baseball game between the Sophomores and the Freshmen was played Monday, June 2. The Sophomores were too much at every turn for the Freshmen. Helen Sutherland had too much speed and control for the Freshmen. She pitched seven innings allowing only 12 hits and no walks, whereas three Freshmen pitchers allowed 15 hits and walked 12 men. The Freshmen pitchers seemed ineffective and unable to locate the plate. Emory, for the Freshmen, had the Soph batters down better than Hall and Barnes. Mary Miller, catching for the Freshmen, is a big league player. Seldom is a catcher found on a girl's team that can equal her. She not only caught an excellent game but was one of the heaviest hitters of the Freshman Team, getting three hits and bringing in two runs.

The score:

SLEEPING BEAUTY MAKES A HIT

ONE OF THE MOST BEAUTIFUL PLAYS EVER GIVEN HERE

COURSE I. WINS COMMENDATION BY PRESENTATION

One is never too old to enjoy fairy stories, and Sleeping Beauty presented on Friday night, May 30, gave the audience a delightful glimpse into fairyland.

The curtain opened on a woodland scene, where later the fairies and bees gathered from their woodland haunts. The queen of the fairies had just joined her subjects when a message, announcing the christening of the little daughter of the king and queen, was delivered. The fairies at once decide to be present.

The next scene was that of the christening of the baby. How the good fairies turned the wish of the wicked witch of death to the Princess to a hundred years' sleep was skillfully portrayed.

In the third scene, the princess, now a young maiden, finds her way to the attic of the palace. She sees an old woman spinning, and after watching her a while decides to try to spin herself. She pricks her finger with a spindle and falls into a sleep of a hundred years.

The last scene brought the Prince Charming to the sleeping court to awake the princess from her long sleep. And as with all fairy stories, they lived happily ever after.

Miss Margaret Murphy very ably directed the presentation of Sleeping Beauty. Much credit for its success is due to the participants in the play, and the costumes were very elaborate and suggestive of a verdant atmosphere.

MANY PARTIES OCCUPY LAST SCHOOL WEEK

The past week of school has been crowded with parties and entertainments of all kinds. The following are a few of them:

May 28—
Miss Winnie Hiner was hostess at a party given to Boarding Room Hall. The R. O. H. T. gorgeously attired in red, dined en masse in the Tea Room.

May 29—
Miss Mary entertained the old and new Student Council at lunch.

Mrs. Lear's student teachers entertained her at supper.

The Senior Class as guests of Miss Mary Hiner went on a bacon bat to Lithia Springs.

The Zeta Tau Club went on a bacon bat to Farmville Lake.

The Campbell Club went on a bacon bat to Lithia Springs.

The Jefferson Literary Society went on a bacon bat.

June 6—
The Gamma Theta Sorority had a picnic at Farmville Lake.

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer, and these will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matters should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of their copies of The Rotunda will be appreciated.

Goodbye—Good Luck

It is almost over. You who are leaving are finding new roads to travel; and we who are to remain behind must try, as best we can, to fill your places. Have you thought, classes of '24, just what it will mean to us next year—without you? It is going to seem queer; and more than merely queer. We're going to miss you, '24. At chapel, at meals, in the Tea Room, downtown, at classes, on the campus, at the games—the pictures simply refuse to be painted. Let's not try to paint them. They would be sad, painted with even the brightest of colors. Instead, here's to this year! Here's to twenty-four—the year we all have shared and loved; the year we have filled together, with joy and laughter, with quarrels and troubles; and with love. You know we've loved you, twenty-four. So—here's to you!

Importance of Alumnae Chapters

Shadows exist because the sun shines; the pangs of separation are severe when associations and companionships have been happiest. The past few years hold for the graduates of 1924 many bright memories, some unique; the future has in store new experiences which will tend to dim the old. One value of membership in local alumnae chapters is keeping these memories alive through social and business gatherings. The songs and gay reminiscences of the Winchester chapter evoked a spontaneous tribute to the Farmville spirit from an outsider. To these chapter meetings the members bring news they have collected about other alumnae and the College, and thus they keep in touch with their Alma Mater. The chapters, through knowledge, will then be ready to cooperate as a unit, in the large projects of the College, whether they function locally upon the campus, as our Student Building, in which we have so much pride, or whether they are part of State-wide movements, like the Alumni Council work inaugurated last year for the advancement of education.

Participation as a body in affairs of community interest is another way in which local chapters can prove their worth and the efficiency of their training here. The reaction will be attention and interest focused more directly upon the College, and more high school graduates turned in this direction.

These are some of the ways in which alumnae can still experience the joy of loyal service to their Alma Mater. They will doubtless find others. The Association of Alumnae welcomes the classes of 1924 most cordially as worthy recruits in this rapidly growing organization.

CLASS SONG WEEK

Untold talent was exhibited in the music and poetry of the songs written by the four classes of Teachers College.

The songs to the class sponsors were especially good. The Faculty seems to be the live wire at Teachers College for all the peppy songs were written to them.

Tears did flow when the sad sweet songs of goodbye were sung. All spirit of competition between classes was laid aside when the classes sang sweetly to each other. They became one grand group with a thought for each other.

Song week has always been one of the most impressive programs put on at the Teachers College and the past week did not lose its former glory.

There is no doubt that the memory of it is stamped upon the minds of all who heard them.

Green (Hearing piano practice)—
"What on earth is that noise?"
Nut—"That's Miss Munoz practicing the scales."

Greener—"Gosh! she must weigh a ton."

AT THE EACO THEATRE —Week June 9th-14th.

MONDAY & TUESDAY—ZANE GREY'S story "THE HERITAGE OF THE DESERT" made into a BIG SPECIAL PARAMOUNT PICTURE. Many of the scenes in this production are in natural colors and are very beautiful. It is enacted by a selected cast headed by BEBE DANIELS and NOAH BERRY. Here is a story as big as the Western country it deals with. Screened amid the rugged magnificence of the West. THIS IS NO ORDINARY PICTURE, AND WE STRONGLY URGE EVERY ONE TO SEE IT. Monday night Pathe News, and on Tuesday night the last episode of "THE WAY OF A MAN."

WEDNESDAY—CORRINE GRIFFITH in "SINGLE TRACK." A spectacular photodrama of life in the open with just a touch of the society element in a sensational entertainment in which the star as Salome does the dance of the seven veils. It is a pulsating with the human interest element. Also Aesop Fable.

THURSDAY & FRIDAY—Another BIG SPECIAL PARAMOUNT PRODUCTION "THE SPANISH DANCER," with Pola Negri and Antonio Moreno heading the special cast. For the first time since coming to America, Negri is the Pola of "Passion." But never has the flashing jewel appeared in such magnificent setting. It cost a million dollars to make this picture, and it is one picture in a thousand. A GOOD COMEDY EACH NIGHT. THERE WILL BE SPECIAL ORCHESTRA MUSIC AT THE THEATRE EACH OF THESE NIGHTS IN CONNECTION WITH THIS SUPERB PICTURE. Admission to S. T. C. Girls 25 cents.

SAURDAY—"AROUND THE WORLD IN THE SPEEJACKS." A motion picture record of A. Y. Gowan's famous voyage around the world in a 90 foot motor boat. A 90 foot boat circled the globe and brought this film back to prove it! SEE THIS PICTURE AND YOU WILL SEE THE WORLD. This should prove a real treat to all. Also 10th episode of "IN THE DAYS OF DANIEL BOONE." Matinee at 3:30.

Admission each night except Thursday and Friday 20 cents.

COLLEGE CUT OUTS

Suicides Include 32 University Students

Thirty-two college students are found among the 12,948 suicides in the United States during 1923. The triviality of the reasons for suicide is remarkable. One girl died of gas because she was "not permitted to bob her hair, roll her stockings down, and be a regular flapper." The oldest suicide was 97 and the youngest 6.

Glenn "Tiny" Hartranft, Stanford's star weight man, broke all school records in the shot put last week in a track meet when he shoved the weight 50 feet 11½ inches, missing the world's record by one-half inch. He is expected to break the world's record before the close of the present track season.

The Glee Club of the University of California will tour the United States, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Germany, and France during the summer.

In celebration of its seventy-fifth birthday anniversary, the University of Wisconsin served a large cake bearing seventy-five candles. An idea of the size of the cake can be obtained from the fact that the frosting alone required sixty-five pounds of sugar. The first piece was served to the President of the school.

Bud Evans, star sprinter of the University of Illinois track team, equalled Paddock's record for the 100 meter dash in the trial run this week. The Illinois flash was clocked in 10 2/5.

Nevada State University has a most unique secret society called "Sundowners of the Sagebrush." It consists of twelve men who have "bummed" their way at least 1,000 miles.

Two dormitories and the power plant at Asbury College, Wilmore, Ky., were destroyed by fire recently, with a loss of $2,000,000. The early arrival of the Lexington fire engine, 25 miles away, saved the entire college from destruction.

Compulsory class attendance for juniors and seniors at Montana University was abolished and steps were taken by the faculty recently to raise the eligibility requirements for students taking part in extra-curricular activities.

"Come, come," said Tom's father "at this time of your life, There's no longer excuse for thus playing the rake— It is time you should think boy, of taking a wife." "Why, so it is, father,—whose wife shall I take?"

WHO'S WHO

We hear a complaining voice in the hall, and immediately after hear a laugh and we all know who it is. The tall skinny member of our class who is always worked to death but who, nevertheless, has time to fuss and laugh about it. Surely you recognize by now our sedate classmate—Marion Clarkson.

Harriet is one of our most versatile seniors. In addition to being musical and athletic she is something of a poet and her clever writings have proven an asset to her class for four years. Her generosity and sincerity have won for her many friends who hate to see her leave.

Teence—will we ever forget the way she plays Basket-ball? What will the Varsity squad do without her? And the way she cut up in the minstrel show was a perfect scream. She is an all-round good sport and a Senior to be proud of. Here's luck to you, Teence.

During the four years that Agnes has spent among the halls of our Alma Mater, she has endeared herself to all of us (except when she black-balls us in A. Z. D.). We dread the thought of not having her with us in all of our good times next year, and more than that what we shall do without her talent and ready assistance is as yet an unsolved problem. Why don't we put in a "M. S." course so as to keep our Seniors with us a little longer?

Sadie Katherine Harper (Hercules) has remained true to her colors and her class, "Io, these many years." She is a faithful, steady girl and few people know her true worth. She is especially noted for her fast work in the suitcase race last year, which she won for the Juniors. Here's to Herc, we know she will be successful.

When it comes to being in a minstrel or taking the part of a king while the princess sleeps, Lucy is right there with bells on. Though full of pep and ready for anything she nevertheless has the necessary amount of Senior dignity. Good luck, Lucy.

Who doesn't know Nellie's pleasant smile? Often we do not hear her approaching footsteps (she is not the noisy kind) but we turn to meet her friendly smile with a feeling of relief for we know that she's "right there with the goods," always willing to work, and plenty capable.

"Varium et mutabile est femina" Vergil was right! There are certainly many sides to this Senior. One moment Lalla is the intellectualist, the next an E. B. Her extempore verse and gay guitar make her welcome wherever a good time is in order. She is our minstrel in a cap and gown.

Edna Mae Wilkinson. She left yet came back to old S. T. C.; even a place such as V. P. I. could not take the place of her Alma Mater.

Can there be an exceptional member in the Senior class who has a warped and embittered nature, due to any past experiences at S. T. C. or elsewhere? Ah, we think not, so cheer up, Frances. We know your keen mind and deep thought lift you from the plane of trivialities and leave us to marvel at their fathomless depths.

"Hello, the club! Is my husband there? Not there, you say? But wait—I haven't even told you my name."

"Say, lady! There ain't nobody's husband here never!" was the dorky's reply.

Liz: "Are you sure your parents know I'm coming home with you?"
Mary: "They ought to, I've argued with them a week about it."

The girl across the hall says classical music sounds to her as though it were always about to begin.

MANY CHANGES IN S. T. C. FACULTY

New Faculty Welcomed by the Student Body

Our sincere and keen regret this year at losing some of our most valued teachers is lessened by the fact that capable successors have been secured. The entire student body extends a cordial welcome and a hearty invitation to the new members of the faculty and home department to enter into their school life. The student body stands ready to co-operate with them in every way to make the college more efficient. Again, we welcome them with best wishes for a happy and successful year.

The following changes have been made in the faculty:

Head Department Education and Director of the Training School: Mr. John P. Wynne, M. A., Trinity College, one and 1-2 years at Teachers College, N. Y. Comes to us from Mississippi, A. & M. College.

Head Department History & Social Science: Dr. Morris K. Turner, A. M. Harvard, Ph. D. University of Pennsylvania. Last position held in State Normal School, Fairmount, W. Va., Head Department History.

Head Department of Music: Mrs. Katherine King, B. Music Director of Music College of Industrial Arts, Denton, Tex.

Head Department Geography: Miss Myrtle Grenels, B. S. George Peabody College. Present member of faculty.

Head Department Reading: Miss Leola Wheeler, graduate Smith College and Emerson College of Oratory. Former member of faculty.

Head Department Physical Education: Miss Mary B. Barlow, Ph. B. Kee Mar College, graduate Posse Normal School of Gymnastics; graduate Emerson College of Oratory; was on leave last year, student Columbia University.

Associate Department Home Economics: Miss Bessie H. Jeter, B. S. Teachers College, Columbia University; graduate Georgia Normal & Industrial College; was on leave last session, student Columbia University.

Associate Department English: Miss Carrie Sutherland, B. S. George Peabody College; former member of faculty.

Assistant Department Modern Languages: Miss Helen Draper, B. S. Teachers College, Farmville; former member of faculty.

Assistant Department Geography & History: Miss Carrie Spradlin, B. S., Teachers College, Farmville. New position.

Assistant Department Education: Miss Grace E. Mix, former Head of Kindergarten Dept. New position, part time work.

Director of Kindergarten and Grade I: Miss Mary B. Hayes, present Supervisor Grade I.

Assistant in Kindergarten:

Miss Nell D. McArdle, B. S., S. T. C., Farmville. New position.

Supervisor Grade V: Miss Alice E. Carter, graduate S. T. C., Farmville former member of faculty, student last year at Columbia University.

Supervisor of Grade II: Miss Ida Woodrow Penny, A. B., Winthrop College; one year at Teachers College, N. Y. Comes to us from the faculty of Winthrop College.

Supervisor Grade VI: Miss Ilma von Schilling, will be on leave of absence for the coming year, student at Teachers College, N. Y.; Mrs. Ruth Harding Coyner, present member of the faculty, will substitute for her.

New Rural Supervisors: Miss Pauline Camper, at Worsham; Miss Fleeta Cooper, at Rice. These are both former members of the faculty.

Librarian: Miss Sarah Harris McDonald, A. B., R.-M. Woman's College; graduate Carnegie Library Training School, Atlanta, Ga.

Assistant in Registrar's Office: Mrs. Genevieve Venable Holladay, a graduate of S. T. C., Farmville.

New Assistant in Home Department: Mrs. Eva Hetrick Warren, Mrs. Jas. Kay Laing.

MRS. KING DIRECTOR OF GLEE CLUB

Successful Musical Year Expected.

The Glee Club with Mrs. King as its director is hoping to accomplish a great work this session. Mrs. Katherine King, B. M., was formerly Director of Music in the College of Industrial Arts of Denton, Tex. With this experience, we feel sure that Mrs. King will be of great assistance in making this year a successful musical year.

The Glee Club held its first meeting Wednesday, October 1st.

The yearly operetta will be given some time in February. A miscellaneous program is being planned for this fall.

Names of new girls wishing to try out for the Glee Club were taken October 1 and they will be tried out at the earliest possible date. This was the first effort of the club to make this its banner year.

FIRST DANCE OF SEASON

The Juniors will have a dance in the Gym. Saturday night, October 4. Dancing will go on from eight to eleven.

Good music by an orchestra. Ice cream cones will be sold. All come and enjoy a snappy Saturday evening. Benefit Student Building.

Dumb (badly beaten in election): "Did you vote for me?"

Bell: "Yes, I was the one."

—Tuley Weekly Review.

FINE PROSPECTS FOR A GOOD YEAR IN ATHLETICS

Much Promising New Material In School.

Are our athletic prospects for the coming season good? They certainly are. Most everything seems to be in our favor; with Miss Barlow back, as head of the Physical Education Department and Miss Buford, who certainly cannot be beaten as coach, then to back us all, we have Miss Graham, who is also a member of our Physical Education Department for the coming year.

We shall surely miss the members of last year's Basketball team who have not returned. However, from all reports, it seems that there have been some brilliant stars dropped into our midst as Freshmen and with quite a bit of excellent material from last year, we should certainly be able to far surpass all of our previous records.

We have high hopes of playing at least a few games in the new Gym. That is of course, providing the dining room is completed.

The Basketball schedule for outside games has not yet been completed; but the plans are for a larger and more difficult one than that of last year.

As far as other athletics are concerned it is almost too soon to discuss them. With the prospects of the Gym and constant practice, it looks as if last year's field day and baseball game will seem insignificant, indeed.

We welcome the freshmen athletes and we are certainly more than glad to have some of our old ones back.

Here's wishing all of them good luck and places on the team.

Let's stand behind them this year, girls, and show the team that not only their class, but the whole school is backing them.

A WORD FROM DR. JARMAN

To every student who has registered with us this year, we wish to extend a hearty greeting and a warm welcome. We are glad to have you here and trust that you will find your college life so pleasant that you will be just as glad as we are that you are with us.

The old students know that we are pleased to welcome them "home;" they know the spirit of the college, and we trust and believe that they will do all in their power to make the new students catch this spirit as soon as possible.

To those who are with us for the first time, we wish to say that the best we can hope for them is that they will soon be as much at home and as loyal to the institution as those who are already identified with the college from other years.

Trusting that this will be a happy and successful year for everyone, I am

Yours very truly,
J. L. JARMAN.

IMPROVEMENTS IN FARMVILLE, VA.

Farmville Presents Changed Appearance Upon Arrival of S. T. C. Girls.

Work has already begun on the new Hotel. The contract was given to Mr. H. D. Moring. The building which was one of the town's oldest land marks, has been torn down and the foundation is being laid. It is hoped that the Hotel will be complete by next fall.

Let's give the town a rising vote of thanks for the new streets, but especially for the new street which is in front of our college. The beautiful paved street is a great improvement over the old cobblestones. We have new signs, too, to regulate the heavy traffic that is attracted by the school. The town is certainly growing, and we see a greater Farmville coming.

WEDDINGS OF INTEREST

Chamberlain-White

Mr. A. F. Chamberlain, and Miss Myrtis, an (old) Farmville girl, were married at McKenny, in Dinwiddie County, August 28, 1924.

Watkins-Jones

A wedding of great interest to the State Teachers College, and Farmville, was solemnized August 25, 1924, when Miss Elizabeth Jones, a graduate of the last year's class, was married to Mr. Sam Watkins, of Farmville. The wedding took place in Holland, Va.

Wall-Lancaster

A wedding of much interest, was celebrated September 6th, at John's Memorial Episcopal church, Farmville, Va., when Miss Mary LeGrande Lancaster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Lancaster, became the bride of Mr. Joseph Harry Wall. The Rev. Frederick Deihl, D. D., rector of the church, was the celebrant. The wedding was very attractive and will be remembered for many years as a most interesting event of the season.

The bride is a degree graduate of the State Teachers College at Farmville, and for several years has been teaching French in the Norfolk High School.

The groom is a graduate of Hampden-Sidney College, and is now editor of the Farmville Herald.

CLASS NEWS

Much Interest and Enthusiasm Shown by Classes.

The Senior Class held its first regular meeting Monday night, September 29. The following officers were elected for 1924-25:

Kitty Morgan, Pres.
Anne Conway, V.-Pres.
Bertha Spradlin, Sec.-Treas.
Lucile Walton, Reporter.

Much enthusiasm was demonstrated upon the re-election of Mr. T. A. McCorkle as Honorary Member of the class.

Plans were made for a rummage sale which is to take place Saturday, October 3. The class also chose the same class flower, motto, and colors of last year. The president extended a cordial welcome, in behalf of the class to the five new members present, after which, the meeting adjourned.

One of the peppiest class meetings ever held, was that of the Junior Class which met in Room C, Tuesday night, September 30. The officers for the coming year were elected, also the class man; they are as follows:

Anne Smith, Pres.
Gertrude Quinn, Vice-Pres.
Mary Spiggle, Secy.
Olive Smith, Treas.

Miss Mary Clay Hiner was unanimously elected Class Man.

Tuesday night is to be the regular class meeting night, at seven o'clock in Room B.

It was decided that the Junior Class will sell ice cream every Wednesday night between bells. Don't go to bed hungry.

ADDITIONS TO HOME DEPARTMENT

New Dormitory Added

Not only are there additions and changes in the faculty, but there are also additions to the Home Department.

Mrs. Eva Hetrick Warren, of Smithfield, Va., and also a graduate of Farmville, is the chaperon of Garland Dormitory, and Mrs. Jas. Kay Lang, of West Virginia, is chaperon of the Student Building.

As our college grows, our dormitories must be enlarged. We now have a new dormitory named Hiner Dormitory, and this dormitory is now under the chaperonage of Miss Mary Clay Hiner.

We are all especially interested in the Tea Room, and those who have charge of it. Mrs. Gish is at present assisting Mrs. Smith in the Tea Room.

Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda will be appreciated.

Borrowing

Beware, Freshmen! Save yourself before it is too late. There is a trade awaiting you, which you will probably follow and later regret. That is the trade of borrowing. Before I came to college, I never knew or realized the few advantages and many disadvantages of borrowing. Why? Because I'd never practiced it. Imagine my shock and horror when some "shy and retiring" maiden, entirely unknown to me, tripped in and actually gave me the honor of allowing her to wear my very best dress. Ah! but the honor was not so great when I received it back looking at me mournfully and with reproach because of its mistreatment. I soon found that I was coming out small, so I soon fell into the popular art of borrowing.

Complete ownership of ones clothing was a thing of the past. After a few of us received some of our clothes hardly recognizable, so great was the change, we decided to start a club. We called it, "The Non-Borrowing and Non-Lending Club." It had a membership of four, each member holding an office. Members were scarce, but we hoped for a bright future. How we were scorned within the first hour. We intended to succeed even though we were jeered at and called "stingy." Alas! that very afternoon before "the N. B. and N. L. Club" had reached two hours of age, the president had borrowed a coat from the secretary. Thus ended the long life of a club with such high ideals.

I wonder when this practice first started? Perhaps it was back in the dark ages, when some cave man borrowed a club to use on his none too faithful wife. If the wide use of a trade gains prominence for a maker, then I am sure that college girls should erect a monument or tablet to the man who gave birth to the trade of borrowing.

The Rotunda wishes to add its bit of welcome to the Freshmen who are entering our school this term. We hope that you are going to consider it your school—make its organizations your organizations, support them loyally, and enter with zest into the life of the school community. We welcome also the old graduates who are returning to Alma Mater, for further work. Yours is an unusual opportunity for service—may you soon find and fit in to your particular niche in the scheme of things.

PAN-HELLENIC RULES

1 Membership in a NATIONAL pedagogical Sorority does not prevent anyone becoming a member of a NATIONAL Collegiate Sorority in any College.

2 A girl who is a member of a club and a Sorority may not rush a girl for her club or Sorority except during the days given, through Pan-Hellenic regulations, to her particular Sorority for that purpose.

3 No date shall be had with Sorority girls and "rushees" until after 4:30 p. m., and none on Wednesdays. (This rule is excepted on Saturdays and Sundays.)

4 Old Sorority girls who return to school to visit during the rushing season automatically become governed by the same "rushrules" that are observed in the college.

5 No girl who is rushing or being rushed, may study with, or be with a rusher or rushee, as the case may be, during study hour or from 10 p. m. to 7 a. m. This neither means that old girls may not be together at this time nor new girls together.

6 There shall be no financial rushing. (This does not include the two parties provided for, through Pan-Hellenic.)

7 A Sorority may have only two rush parties, one of which must, of necessity come under Pan-Hellenic regulations.

8 No favor shall be given at a Sorority "rush party" costing over one dollar each.

9 The discussion of one Sorority on campus by another Sorority on campus is not permitted.

10 The business of printing financing and distributing said rules and regulations, shall be arranged by Pan-Hellenic.

11 New rules and amendments may be added and old ones repealed according to the wisdom of Pan-Hellenic, subject to the approval of the Sororities in College.

WEEKLY PROGRAM

EACO THEATRE, Oct. 6-11, 1924

MON.—Mildred Harris, Norman Kerry and a Big Cast in the Special Production "Shadows of the Past." A story written by the author of "The Sheik." Here is a photoplay of dramatic power and rich in entertainment and it equals its worthy predecessor "The Sheik." It deals with the fascinating East.—Also Pathe News will be shown on this date.

TUES.—William Farnum, Lois Wilson in "The Man Who Fights Alone," a BIG new Paramount Picture. Introducing "Fighting Farnum," as a Paramount star. His great talent and virile personality made more entertaining than ever in this expertly produced drama of a lucky man's winning fight for life and love.—Also 2nd episode of "The Steel Trail."

WED.—Tom Mix in "The Heart Buster." Here is an enjoyable picture, filled with action and heart-interest and in which Tom Mix performs many heroic acts. This is the type of picture that will afford good entertainment to old and young. It is exceptionally good.—Also Aesop Fable.

THUR. & FRI.—Marion Davies in the Super-Special Production "Little Old New York." Perfect is a large word to apply to any theatrical creation. We say without reservation, that "Little New York" is a perfect picture. Delightful beyond words is this charming photoplay of America's young days. The loves, the trials, the adventures of the men and women who laid the foundations of a Great Nation, have been woven into one of the most remarkable photoplays of screen history. To see this Great Romance is to add an unforgettable memory to your storehouse of treasured pictures.—Matinee Friday at 3:30.—Orchestra music and a good Comedy each night.

SAT.—Sir Hal Caine's great story "Name the Man," featuring Conrad Nagel, and a most excellent cast. Here is a motion picture masterpiece. The story of a great love that gave without question and asked not even justice from the world of men. A picture the years will not forget.—Also 12th episode of "The Fast Express."—Matinee at 3:30.

Y. W. C. A. ENTERTAINS FOR NEW GIRLS

On Friday, September 26, the Y. W. C. A. gave its annual party for the new girls, to which all members of the student body and faculty, and home department, were invited.

In order that everyone might become more easily acquainted with each other, a tag table was kept in the reception hall from four to seven and here everyone was tagged with his or her own name.

The town students were royally received at the reception hall door by a double line of anxious old girls looking for their Y. W. sister and were taken from there to the auditorium where they were entertained by music and stunts.

The famous chorus girls of the Senior class gave their song and dance act called "The Dancing Dolls." Lucy Hale Overby, Bessie Meade Riddle, and Russell Everett took a short but interesting sight-seeing trip in a very fine looking though somewhat loosely constructed car. Nebuchadnezzar plowed the cornfield in a manner very satisfactory to his driver until he kicked quite realistically and then the curtain was drawn on the scene. Mrs. King sang "A Voice in the Wilderness," and the Mandolin and Guitar Club, assisted by members of the Glee Club, sang several of their humorous songs that are always enjoyed by the college girls.

Refreshments were served by committee girls dressed in white and wearing blue triangle caps, after which, "Good Night Ladies" was sung.

SEVEN MEMBERS OF THE S. T. C. FACULTY DO NOT RETURN

Dr. Tidyman is a member of the Faculty at the State Teachers College, Fresno, Calif.

Miss Ilma von Shilling is now a student at Columbia University.

Miss Emma Deitrich is a student at Oberlin, Ohio.

Miss Christine Munoz has charge of music in the schools of Alexandria.

Mr. J. M. Lear is a member of the Faculty of the University of North Carolina.

Miss Cary Jeter is now teaching in Roanoke Rapids, N. C.

Miss Edna Norton Spear is teaching in Fall River, Mass.

STUDENT BUILDING FUND

Contributions to the Students Building during the summer months, amounted to $2,784.97, which brings the grand total to $37,185.53. The donors and amounts of the individual contributions will be published in a later issue of our paper.

PORTSMOUTH CLUB MEETS

The first meeting of the Portsmouth Club was held Monday night. The following officers were elected:
President Norma Carney.

V.-Pres. Margaret Petty.
Sec.-Reporter .. Maxine Lucas.
Treas. Alma Maynard.
Miss Carrie Spradlin was elected sponsor for the club. It was moved and carried that the Portsmouth Club meet twice every month.

JUNE GRADUATES, AND WHAT THEY ARE DOING

All of us are always interested in our alumnae, especially, those who have graduated very recently. Some of the graduates and where they are teaching, are as follows:

Catherine Kemp, Emily Calcott, Roberta Hodgkins, Julia Alexander, Christine Armstrong, Lalla Jones, and Patty Beaman, are teaching in Norfolk, Virginia.

Lucy Irving has left us for far-avout Porto Rico.

Julia Reid and Betty Cole are in Roanoke.

Mary Turnbull and Spottswood Wimbish, are in Richmond.

Nancy Lyne, Anna Ruth Allen, Margaret Day, and Ruth Cox, have procured positions in Covington.

Agnes Baptist is in Alexandria, and Doris Cochran, is teaching under Miss Munoz.

Nell McArdle has returned to us and holds the position of assistant supervisor in the Kindergarten.

Frieda Crockin and Pauline Timberlake are teaching in Portsmouth.

Irma Dickerson is a student at Peabody this year.

Thelma Marshall and Martha Blair are in Blackstone.

Janie Moore and Sarah Barnes are in Danville.

Frances Warren is teaching at Somerset.

There are several girls in N. C.:—Anna Belle Treakle, at Durham; Dorothy Diehl, and Virginia Wall, at Winston-Salem, and Evelyn Barnes, at Charlotte.

Elizabeth Norman and Charice Ryland, are in Winchester.

Nancy Terry is teaching at Baskerville; Helen Read at Disputanta; Frances Evans, at Holland; Elizabeth Cogbill, in Petersburg, and Dorothy Luck and Virginia Beale, in Franklin.

Some of these so-called higher classed finishing schools turn out the same blocks with a hard-wood finish.

Her lips said, "yes."
Her eyes said, "No."
But which one lied—
I'd like to know.—D. F.

College would be a wonderful place if it wasn't for the classes.

The Point of View

In a great quarry, once I chanced upon
Three workmen, chiseling a slab of stone.
Monotonous task, confining, dusty, slow!
And while I gazed, something I longed to know.
"What do you there?" I asked one quietly.
"I shape these blocks," he answered literally.
His neighbor stared, as my request was made.
"Why—thus I can earn my living; 'tis my trade!"
Somewhat apart, the third man plied his tool—
Skilled, lawless touches, taught in no swift touch.
"What do you, friend?" Though easily I guessed.
He was an artist; artisans the rest.
One keen stroke more. He paused, then raised his head.
"I build cathedrals, sir!" he he proudly said.
—Frances Crosby Hamlet.

How sweet and gracious, e'en in common speech,
Is that fine sense which men call Courtesy!
Wholesome as air and genial as the light,
Welcome in every clime as breadth of flowers,
It transmutes aliens into trusting friends.
And gives its owner passport 'round the globe.
—James T. Fields.

SUNDAY SCHOOL RALLY

Last Saturday night immediately after supper, a Sunday School Rally was held. The girls of the different churches namely: the Episcopal, Presbyterian, Methodist and Baptist, were asked to meet in various class rooms. The superintendent of each Sunday School and the pastor of each church, met with the girls and welcomed them with a short talk.

The girls were invited and urged to come to Sunday School and join a class or take a class to teach if they were especially interested in the small children. Every branch of the church was open to the school girls, Sunday School, the Young people's societies, Morning and Evening services. Everything was done to make the girl feel at home in the churches.

After all, for the next few years, we are going to be in Farmville more than we are at home, so why not accept the hospitality of the churches and make them our own?

In the past, the record of the girls' attendance at church and Sunday School has not been what it should; no responsibility seems to have been felt in regard to regularity. Why not take advantage of this opportunity to become better acquainted with the town people thus making ourselves feel more at home in Farmville?

MUCH EXPECTED FROM THE LITERARY SOCIETIES THIS YEAR

Much has been said about the various organizations here at Teachers College, but as yet nothing has been said of the literary societies which we have. Every college takes great pride in literary organizations, and Farmville is not at all remiss in this phase of college life. We have six literary societies, viz: Pierian, Argus, Cunningham, Jefferson, and Ruffner. These societies have certain bid nights when new girls are asked to join.

Meetings will soon be called to begin the work of the literary societies and we are expecting great things along the literary line this year.

MORE ELECTIONS

Last spring we struggled over elections—Y. W. C. A. and Student Government—for it is a struggle trying to find just which are the best girls for the important offices.

We thought we had it finally all fixed and settled but no such luck—for some of our very best girls have found it impossible to return to school. Nancy Lyne, our Young Women's Christian Association president, will not be here this year, so this important position was left vacant.

The Student Government also lacks officers. Freida Crocklin, who was elected treasurer is not back; and Winnie Sutherland, our Campus League chairman, has disappointed us, so here again we have more elections. Then again, some classes lacked Student Government representatives.

It is most important that every girl should cast her vote for these officers.—They are our organizations and we are responsible for them.

Let's be active citizens and vote for any and all officers that are needed to fill vacancies.

THE LIGHT HOUSE

TRAGEDY

"All We Want is Sociability"

Every Friday night, the Y. W. C. A. conducts what is known as a Sing which is presented under the auspices of the Music Committee. They made a good start last Friday night with a rather varied and entertaining program. As usual, many popular songs were sung by the entire audience. Then Madeline McMurdo entertained us with a very interesting reading. Last, but not least, was the presentation of the 'Light-House Tragedy.' Our villain was exceedingly good as he crept stealthily up the winding staircase with his murderous intentions.

These Sings are held to help create a feeling of friendliness and sociability among the girls, and Friday night was only a sample of what is coming later. Each Friday night, you'll find a treat in store for you, so don't fail to come and join the fun.

Petersburg-Dinwiddie Club

The Petersburg and Dinwiddie County girls, met for the first time, Thursday night, October 2, 1924. The following officers were elected:

Pres.—Mildred Ragsdale.
Vice-Pres.—Jean Doyle.
Sec.—Betty Edmunds.
Treas.—Alice Boisseau.

No further steps were taken. The Jarett girls have expressed their desire to combine with the club, and this matter will be taken up at the next meeting.

CLASS NEWS

Senior Class

The regular weekly meeting of the Senior Class was held Monday night, in Room E. The committee in charge of the rummage sale, reported that $17 was cleared. As the Senior Class is larger this year, it is to have another student government representative. Nominations for this office were made. In addition to this business, the class dues were decided upon.

Culture is "To know the best that has been said and thought in the world."

The great end of life is not knowledge but action.

He is a fool who leaves certainties for uncertainties.

Dramatic Club Reorganized

Much Pep and Enthusiasm Shown

The Dramatic Club met September thirtieth for the first time this year. The meeting was almost 100 per cent. attendance. Miss Leora Wheeler, advisor and director, met with the club to offer suggestions, and plans for this year's work. Miss Wheeler takes Miss Edna N. Spear's place. Miss Spear being in Boston working for her M. A. degree. Miss Wheeler has been abroad for the past three years doing Red Cross work, she returns with wide and varied experience and new ideas which will influence the Club greatly. The officers of the Club were presented, work of last year discussed, then a meeting of true value begun.

Miss Wheeler pointed out the need of a more organized, more active, better known club in the school. There are no records of the club, except those kept last year. No constitution has been discovered. A suggestion for minutes to be kept of regular meetings was made, this was favorable to all. That the Dramatic Club should contain only a certain number of girls, was another suggestion. Plans for the coming year were made—plays reviewed, one-act and longer ones a decision for new costumes and settings was very favorable also.

A Try-Out Committee was appointed for those girls wishing to become members of the Club. The requirements of the committee are: Type; Stage Delivery, and Stage Presence. The members adjourned very interested and enthused.

AULD LANG SYNE

We surely miss the "old girls!" When we returned, we realized at once that there was something lacking; there was a void that seemed as though it must be filled. Then it dawned upon us, we missed the old faces.

But where were Nancy, Frieda, Winnie, Henny, and Tobe? Surely they must appear, for they were coming back. Alas, no! for various and sundry reasons they were unavoidably kept from returning.

Nancy, Frieda, Henny, and Winnie are teaching in various schools throughout the State; while Tobe is fitting herself to become a nurse.

Yesterday is dead. Forget it. Tomorrow has not come—don't worry. Today is here—Use it. Bee.

Seize what is higher, and you will possess what is in between.

FARMVILLE GIRLS

ENTERTAIN AT RICE

Very Enthusiastic Audience Present

All through the school year, groups of girls go to various country schools and give programs for the benefit of these schools. Friday night, October 3, a program was presented, by some of the girls from Teachers College, at Rice.

The Teachers College has charge of several country schools and has just taken over the school at Rice. In order to arouse interest in the community a group of girls including some Glee Club girls and several Seniors presented the following program:

1. The Dancing Dolls.
2. Who is Sylvia?
Good-night, Good-night, Beloved.
3. A Reading—Peggy Moore.
4. My Lady Chloe.
5. My Old Kentucky Home.
My Honey.
6. Wild Nell, the Pet of the plains.
6. Negro Spirituals and other Songs.

Glee Club Begins work

Try-Outs to Be Had at Once

The Glee Club held its first meeting Wednesday afternoon in Room D, at 4:15. After trying several new pieces, a short business meeting was held. The president, Annie Miller Almond, appointed a Standards Committee, with Anne Conway, chairman and Doris Fletcher, Margaret Cobb, Virginia Cowherd, Elizabeth Jarman, Mabel Edwards and Mary Vaughan, serving with her. Another committee, to try-out new members was composed of Annie Miller Almond, chairman, Doris Fletcher, Virginia Cowherd, Mary Vaughan, Edna Hall, Mabel Edwards and Elizabeth Bugg. The new members will be tried out starting Monday. The Glee Club is looking forward to a very successful year with its new and capable director, Mrs. Katherine King.

BUILDING OPERATIONS

ON THE CAMPUS

Our new building is nearing completion. In place of the unsightly pile of burnt wood and rubbish that we left here in June, we have a lovely brick structure that means dining-room and recreation hall, to us. Dr. Jarman does not want the work to be rushed, because he wants it to be built in the best way possible.

WOMAN LIKELY TO BECOME GOVERNOR

"Ma" Ferguson

Mrs. Miriam Ferguson has been nominated for governor of Texas on the Democratic ticket. If Texas does not turn from her habit of going Democratic, Mrs. Ferguson's victory in November is certain. The July election gave Judge Felix Robertson more votes than Mrs. Ferguson, but on account of an unique law, which says that a candidate must have more votes than the total of all his opponents, a second primary was held at which Mrs. Ferguson received about 80,000 more votes than her opponents.

Judge Robertson was a Democratic candidate backed by the Ku Klux Klan. Mrs. Ferguson won as a Texan fighting for the liberties of Texas. She is absolutely opposed to the Ku Klux Klan. Her victory is more significant for the defeat of the Klan for the nomination of a woman for governor. The Ashville Times, (Ind. Dem.) remarked that "Curiously enough the organization which poses as the great defender of American womanhood has received its most crushing political defeat at the hands of a woman."

The Brooklyn Eagle, thinks "there is nothing in the annals of feminism comparable to Mrs. Ferguson's victory which is all the more remarkable because it took place in a Southern State where recognition of women as political factors was long delayed."

The New York Times views "Ma" Ferguson as a woman of "unquestionable ability, intelligence and splendid character typical of best American womanhood." It finds a touch of romance and medieval chivalry in her taking her husband's place when he was legally ineligible to enter the electoral lists.

CLUB BIDS

The clubs wish to announce, that the following girls have accepted bids:

Pi Alpha—Ruth Paulette, Carrie Drewry, Dorothy Hancock.

Zeta Tau—Katherine Rainey, Virginia Jordan, Mary Frances Tuttle, Mary Ellen Canada.

Mu Omega—Frances Davidson, Gwendolin Edye.

The Mu Omega Club entertained some of the new girls at a spread in the Gym Tuesday night, between bells.

Sandwiches, dopes, and dancing plus plenty of pep made an evening long to be remembered.

Pity is love when grown into excess.

CECIL ARDEN AND

MARIO CAPELLI

Give Joint Concert at College

Sherman K. Smith presented in joint recital Cecil Arden, Mezzo-Soprano, and Mario Capelli, lyric tenor, at the State Teachers College Auditorium October the ninth, 1924. Miss Arden has been with the Metropolitan Opera Company for several years. There she sang with Caruso and Farrar in "Lo-leitta." Her repertoire includes the ding roles in "Samson and Delilah," "Carmen," "Aida," and others. She has appeared in "L'Orocolo," "L'Orsear Blue," and "Louise," also several others. The purity of her tone, beauty of face, and charming personality delighted all who heard her.

Signor Capelli is an Italian tenor. He possesses all the glamour of voice for which his country is famous. He has been singing in concert before American audiences for the past four years.

EDITORIALS

Little need be said to the old students of S. T. C. in regard to Fire Prevention Week. For the sake of the new students, let me stress the importance of this week's celebration.

The night was dark and dreary, and it was Friday, November 17, the siren woke us in the night, and blew and blew, and blew. It took many long and dreary hours to build the South Wing of old S. T. C., but in two short hours, it was in ashes. Besides the inconvenience and expense, we can never erase from our memories the horribl sight of our beloved school threatened by flames.

Girls, let's be careful with electrical appliances, canned heat, and matches. We all love our Alma Mater and we owe it to her and to our State to preserve her, a memorial to the advancement of learning. Be careful this week and through the years to come.

What is more unsightly than an old familiar school desk, bearing witness to the pastime of generations of school boys? Some desks prove that real artists at one time studied in that school room, leaving very little room on the desk for their successors to improve their skill in art.

Again, what is more trying than to try to read a paper written on the scratched, uneven surface of that desk? The poor teacher has to spend valuable minutes trying to decipher the word that runs on into some geometrical drawing, indented on the desk.

How much better it would be if the marks left by students would beautify their school rather than disfigure it! It might be so! Come on girls, let's start a campaign to get rid of all the marks on desks at S. T. C., and then never put another one on!

Let's go walking, let's go to the Gym, let's go to the Tea Room, and many other "let's go's" are heard every night after supper. But one peep in the auditorium will show how few "let's go to Prayers" have been said. And one wonders why it is. This is the only time in the program of our day at S. T. C., that is set aside for worship. It is the only time we have to really think about and commune with God—to know ourselves. Is it we don't care to give those few minutes to our Master, or is it mere thoughtlessness?

"When first we met, my eyes were wet
With sympathy for thee,
A helpless wreck on life's great shore
You humbly looked at me,
I loved you then and helped you on
To better, nobler things,
To what you are—the one bright star
On which my happiness clings.
And many say you'll not repay
My loving, tender care,
That you will roam far from your home,
Back to the world's bright glare.
But think not I will heed their cry,
I trust you more than that,
I know you're grateful in your heart
Dear little tommy-cat."

There is nothing truly valuable that can be purchased without pains and labor.

Education is a possession which cannot be taken from men.

The wise learn many things from their foes.

Time brings the truth to light.

Whatever crushes individuality is despotism, by whatever name it may be called.

Twenty miles of sewing cotton may be used in the making of a fur coat.

Wisdom does not occupy itself with what will make a happy man.

It is hope which maintains most of mankind.

WEEKLY PROGRAM

EACO THEATRE, Oct. 13-18, 1924

Shows Will Commence Each Night at 7:45.

MON.—"The Slave of Desire," from the immortal story, "The Magic Skin," by Balzac, enacted by an excellent cast. The story of a young poet who was made the gift of a mystic skin with powers to bring everything he desired—it's one of the immortal gems of literature and has been made into a gripping and romantic motion picture.—Also Pathe News.—Matinee at 4 p. m.

—Proceeds from this picture are for the Home Demonstration Advisory Council.

TUES.—Charles Jones in "Against All Odds." A double-barreled romance; a guaranteed ghost; the hypnotic spell of a haunted ranch house. Buck Jones is good for bobbed hair. His daredevil stuff is literally hair-raising.—Also Episode 3 of "The Steel Trail."

WED.—Robert B. Mantell in the Big Special Production "Under the Red Robe," a picture that costs more than a million dollars to produce. Every single inch of it, is filled with rich detail of action, bright color, chivalry, intrigue, and it is a glorious spectacle.—Remember, this is a Super-Special Production.—Also Aesop Fable on this date.

THUR. & FRI.—"Six Days," from Elinor Glyn's great novel.—Take a lesson in the Art of love! It looks easy, but you've got to know how! Elinor Glyn, author of the famous "Three Weeks," knows more about the gentle art of making love than any other person living. You'll agree, too, after you see her thrilling romance of a beauty snatched from society's auction block by a man who knew how! It's one of the most deliciously daring films ever put on the screen.—Also A Good Comedy and Orchestra Music each night.

SAT.—Martha Mansfield in "The Silent Command," a Special Picture. This picture is in a class by itself and has more novel scenes and situations of great power than any other picture released this season. It is a stirring DRAMA of LOVE and intrigue on the high seas. It will grip you in its thrall.—Also 13th episode of the F A ST EXPRESS.—Matinee at 3:30 p. m.

—Admission to S. T. C. Girls: 25c Mon., Thurs., and Fri. Other days 20c.

LITERARY SOCIETY NEWS

So far, the Literary Societies have had to take a back seat, but now that schedules are straight, class officers elected, and things are settling down, the plans of the Literary Societies are most progressive.

The Cunningham had its first regular meeting last Wednesday night. Nothing very definite was decided. For their next meeting, they are planning a most interesting program.

The other societies, five in number, have exceedingly peppy plans and it looks as if once again, the Literary Societies are coming into their own.

For the benefit of the Freshman, let me say, there are six Literary Societies in school:—Argus, Cunningham, Pierian, Athenian, Jefferson, and Ruffner. New members are voted in at the end of the first term.

Before anyone is asked to become a member of a society, their records are looked up, and their English teacher consulted, only those having been recommended by the English Department are eligible for membership.

Peppy Literary Societies will mean a lot to this school, so let's all show our interest and make them a vital part of our school life!

Rummage Sale and Dance for Student Government Building

New shoes, old shoes, skirts, scarfs, coats, beads, rings, vanities, dresses, hose, candy and peanuts—Rummage. "Nothing else!" The bargain of a lifetime made possible by the members of the Senior Class in their efforts to increase the Student Building Fund. The success of their initial attempt furnished the inspiration for another sale on Saturday, October 11. All donations thankfully received.

Saturday, October 4, from 8 to 11 p. m., the first dance of the season was held in the gymnasium under the auspices of the Junior Class for the benefit of the Student Building. The music was furnished by a colored orchestra composed of four. The dance was well attended by the students, faculty, and Home Department.

Ice cream cones were sold during the dance and an admission of fifteen cents was charged.

It is hoped that all spent a most enjoyable evening and will attend the following dances given for the same purpose.

Change in Rotunda Staff

Anne Conway, on account of an unusually heavy schedule, and ill health, was forced to resign from The Rotunda Staff. Lucile Walton, formerly assistant editor-in-chief, was elected editor-in-chief. The vacancy left by her was filled by Madeline McMurdo, the former athletic editor, Virginia Lewis was elected as the new athletic editor.

The staff has elected Ola Thomas and Frances Jones as typists.

PERSONALS

Miss Martha Blair, '24, returned to Blackstone to resume her teaching after visiting at S. T. C., last week-end.

Miss Georgia Taylor, supervisor of the Fifth Grade at Prospect, spent the past week-end in Farmville.

Mr. John P. Wynne, head of the Education Department and Miss Cooper, supervisor of Rice school, attended the reception at Rice, Friday night.

Miss Jennie Tabb left last week, for Huntington, W. Va.

Miss Annie Laurie Stone, one of the supervisors at John Randolph, with several of her student teachers, motored to Lynchburg Sunday for the day.

Miss Lois Williams, '23, has returned to Portsmouth to resume her work after spending the week-end at S. T. C.

Misses Anna Belle Treagle, '24, teaching at Durham, N. C., and Mildred Hall, '24, teaching at Kenbridge, visited friends in town and at S. T. C. the past week-end.

A very interesting letter was received last week from Miss Mary Friend, '24, who has accepted a position in Poto Rico. She is teaching departmental work.

INTERCOLLEGIATE NEWS

A forty piece band for Furman has now been assured. Arrangements have been made with the War Department, whereby the members of the band will enlist in the R. O. T. C. service and the War Department is to furnish suits and instruments. In case of war this band will become that of the 327th Infantry. This band will fill a long-felt need at school. Especially will it be valuable at football games. Plans have been made to give public concerts and to furnish music at all public gatherings. This band will be directed by Mr. A. J. Garing. He was formerly with Sousa's band, and he was band director of the New York Hippodrome for several years. He is one of the best in the South, and Furman is very fortunate in securing his services. While waiting for the arrival of the equipment, those men that have instruments will practice with the Shriner's band.

The Democratic Club of Elon College is planning to do big things before the coming November elections. This organization intends to study the issues involved in the elections, and give out some first-hand information to Elon students who are eligible to vote.

The student government of Vassar, has again reorganized under the name of the Students' Association of Vassar College. The officers of the old regime resigned because they felt that there was no personal responsibility and because they were tired of the job of being mere policemen.

"The administration and the new library building at the University of Florida, are only a part of an extensive building program planned for the University for the next two or three years," says the Florida Alligator.

The oldest university in the world is in Asia. According to W. R. Wheeler, in the days when the European nations were just emerging from a state of savagery, scholarship in Asia was held in high regard. This pioneer university was founded in 960 A. D., some years before Salerno, the oldest European school.

Twenty-five religious denominations are represented among the students at the Pennsylvania State College.

NUMBER 3

PROF. J. P. WYNNE, HEAD OF DEPT. OF EDUCATION

AND DIRECTOR OF THE TRAINING SCHOOL COMES TO US FROM MISSISSIPPI

Mr. Wynne is a native of North Carolina, and a graduate of a Carolina State High School. He has an A. B., and a M. A. degree from Trinity College, Durham, N. C., and has done graduate work at Teachers College and Columbia University for one year and two summers. His graduate study has been in education, psychology, history, and philosophy.

As a teacher, Professor Wynne has had a broad and rather varied experience. During his year at Trinity, he served as a teacher in the West Durham High School. While working for his Master's Degree, he was assistant in the Department of Latin. After receiving his Bachelor's Degree, he served as a teacher and Principal in one of the rural High Schools of Virginia. After receiving his Master's Degree, he was principal of the city High School, Mount Airy, N. C. Later, he served in the 56th Infantry of the U. S. Regular Army.

After the Armistice, he taught American History and Government in the Army Post Schools in France. In the fall of 1919, he was elected Assistant Professor of Education and Psychology in the Mississippi A. & M. College. In 1921, he was given the rank of Assistant professor and in 1923, he was made full professor and placed in full charge of the work in education and psychology. In the summer of 1920, he was Director of the Wayne County Summer School for Teachers, Goldsboro, N. C. During the past summer, he was Professor of Education in Millsaps College, Jackson, Miss.

Professor Wynne has written a number of magazine articles that have been published in the magazine section of the Sunday Commercial Appeal, and in the High School Journal. He won first prize in a State-wide contest among High School teachers and principals in North Carolina, under the direction of the American Historical Association in 1917-18, on the subject of "Why the United States Entered the World War." He is the author of Syllabus in the Principles of Educational Methods, Syllabus in the Principles of Educational Organization, and Guide to Educational and General Psychology.

The State Teachers College at Farmville is quite fortunate in having at the head of its Training School a man of Professor Wynne's training and experience. In the extension of the rural supervision we need a man as general director who has had experience, and is interested in rural problems. That Professor Wynne is interested in this work is indicated by the splendid corps of teachers which has been selected for Worsham and Rice, the two schools that have recently become associated with the college. It will be the policy of the college and of the director of the Training School, to see that these rural schools, which thus co-operate in the teacher-training work, get more efficient teachers and have a better school than would otherwise be possible for them. With efficient supervisors of the Training Schools in Farmville, Prospect, John Randolph, Rice and Worsham, and a general director of the Training School work, who has the background of a broad and practical experience and a sound theory of education, the college will continue in larger proportions its role of preparing young women for greater service in the educational development of Virginia.

Isabel Payne.

Jac Draper, who took part in plays here several years ago, is again with the Club.

WORKING FOR DEGREES

Thirty-Two Seniors Applying for Degree

In the realm of teaching there is a great demand for trained teachers and especially for teachers holding a degree from some college. Farmville has realized and met this demand by conferring the Bachelor of Science Degree in Education. The Students also feel the necessity of obtaining a degree and this is evidenced by the number of students in the various classes.

Last year, there were approximately 366 Freshman, 225 Sophomores, 31 Juniors, and 25 Seniors at Teachers College, Farmville, Virginia.

This year, there are approximately 355 Freshman, 337 Sophomores, 46 Juniors, and 32 Seniors. It is evident from the preceding figures, that the higher classes are increasing and that while the Freshman Class does not greatly increase, a greater percent of the students remain through the four years. In this way, the upper classes increase each year and at present, there are thirty-two Seniors applying for degree in 1924. Each year a larger degree class is expected at Teachers College.

SHOTWELL, HEADS SENIOR BASKET BALL

GREEN AND WHITE EXPECTS TO OUT-SHINE RED AND WHITE

The Senior Class expects to have a winning basket ball team this year.

Practice will be held each Monday and Wednesday on the athletic field, at 5 o'clock. The fourth Professionals may not be up on the practice end of the game, but they expect to "get there just the same." What they do not have in skill, they will make up in size; think of Jean West as center—Helen Miller and Annie Miller Almond as guards. Don't think that all of it is to be taken out in size, however, for they have some players. Look at the captain—Erna Shotwell, and Eula Harris and Kitty Morgan. It is their intention to make a walk-away with the cup this year, to knock the red and white out of sight, and to shower it with green.

COMPLETE VIRGINIAN STAFF APPOINTED

Work Begun on 1925 Virginian

THE VIRGINIAN, a magic word. Yes, this word brings to mind many things—the staff at work, reports as to what the next annual will contain, pay tables in the reception hall, pictures being taken, all the other details of annual making, and at last the completed book.

The complete staff has been appointed, much has already been done towards the 1925 Virginian, and the staff is getting down to hard work. The complete staff is as follows:

Editor-in-Chief—Audrey Chewing.
Ass't Editor—Dorothy Askew.
Literary Ed.—Peggy Moore.
Ass't Lit. Ed.—Annie Lisle Tucker.
Art Editor—Katherine Montague.
Ass't Art Ed.—Anne Smith.
Ass't Art Ed.—Joe Culin.
Bus. Mgr.—Cornelia Dickinson.
Ass't Bus. Mgr.—Katherine Shore.
Ass't Bus. Mgr.—Sara Fox.

OUR TOWN GIRLS

Playing a great part in our school life are the town girls. What would we do without them? One of their outstanding qualities is loyalty to their classes. A review of the officers of the school organizations, will show that the town girls are well represented in every organization. It is interesting to note that many of them attended kindergarten at the Training School.

Again, the town girls play a big part in our social life. If you are wise, you make friends with the town girls, because when you're blue, and lonely, too, it's the town girls who take you to their homes and cheer you up.

We are indeed fortunate in having such generous and accommodating girls for our classmates.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT.

The second regular student body meeting of the year, was held Monday night, October 6, in the auditorium after supper, at which, the following newly elected council members took oath of office: Kate Trent, Treasurer; Louise Carwile, Campus League Chairman; Flamentine Pierce, Fourth Professional Representative; Clara Thompson and Thelma Woolfolk, Third Professional Representatives; and Helen Crisman, Second Professional Representative.

VINCENT, PRESIDENT OF SOPHOMORE CLASS

MISS FLORENCE BUFORD RE-ELECTED CLASS MAN

The peppy second professional class elected its peppiest member as president the other night and followed this up with a good bunch of other officers:

V. Pres.—Madelene McMurdo.
Sec.—Lucy Hale Overby.
Treas.—Sara Fox.
Reporter—Alma Manard.
This class is the largest in the history of the school and it intends to show the school that it is not only here in quantity.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS MEETS

Miss Estelle Smith's Sunday School class met for the first time on Wednesday evening, October 8, 1924. The following officers were elected:

Pres.—Louise Clements.
V. Pres.—Grace Fowlkes.
Sec.—Mabel Barnett.
Treas.—Juliet Jones.
Reporter—Dorothy Maddux.
Honor-Roll Sec.—Ethel Porter.

After the election of the officers, Miss Smith gave a short talk about the work of the class. It was decided according to the usual custom, to give a Bacon Bat. On Friday evening the class met Miss Smith at her home and started for the "Old Camp Grounds" over in the Meadow.

MISS WHEELER ENTERTAINS DRAMATIC CLUB

On Tuesday afternoon, Miss Wheeler entertained the Dramatic Club in her apartment on High Street. There was a large attendance of both old and new girls. Real Chinese tea was served in real Chinese china cups, and though the sandwiches and cakes were American, they were very much enjoyed by all.

The Dramatic Club is very much indebted to Miss Wheeler not only for her delightful entertainment of Tuesday afternoon, but also for the fine interest she has shown and the great assistance she has given all through the beginning of this year.

TOPICS IN BRIEF

Women may not have as much sense as men, but they quit wearing stiff collars long ago.

Ma' Ferguson's idea seems to be that a pillow-slip government is a sham.

Every now and then the world is bitten into rabies by some mad dog-ma.

Wars sometimes turn into revolutions when men stop fighting long enough to wonder what they are fighting about.

EDITORIALS

The fact that we should have shade in the front windows at least, is indeed a true one, but at present we cannot afford them, so it's up to us to do the best we can. When we look out the window to the street it seems a long way and the thought that someone passing can easily see anything that we are doing, very seldom occurs to us, nevertheless, it's true. If you will go out to the street and look up, you will see that it doesn't seem so far from there. Especially, after the lights are on, it is true that people can see in so easily and the only thing we can do is close the blinds, however, there have been very few closed up to the present. Girls, it's up to us, it not only reflects on our own modesty, but on the school, as well. We have started campaigns against other things, and it's up to us to start a campaign against this. We don't want the Campus League girls to have to add to their list of duties the one of going outside every night and seeing which windows have the blinds open. Keep this fact in mind and remember that you want to have both yours and the college reputation as good as possible.

Yes, the Library is small. No, there are not enough reference books and the congestion during study hours has been very bad. Have you done anything to help relieve the congestion and lessen the noise? If you have, you deserve credit, and if you haven't, then it's up to you to start something which will help. At present, we cannot have any more space and the number of reference books will have to increase slowly. This is small excuse for the noise and confusion which goes on constantly from the time the Library opens at 7:30, until it closes at 10:00.

Surely the girls who are in there because they have work to do, are not the ones who make the noise. Then there must be some who go there for a place to visit and to see all their friends. If they have nothing to do and you have, say so and tell them that their company will be more pleasant at another time.

You girls who are making the noise should remember that the Library is a place in which one has to work. When you go there just to talk and have a good time, you are making it unpleasant and hard for some one else. Our college spirit is not what it should be, if we have to wait for the Librarian to leave her work and like a policeman, come and call us down.

It's not only new Students, but old ones, as well, who need to call to mind the fact that the Library is for everyone's benefit. Come on, girls, and help others to remember by doing your part.

SIGNING THE PLEDGE

Every S. T. C. girl signs the Student Government pledge in her heart for she knows that it is a pledge of true worth and that by it she may attain a high standard of personal honor. She signs it gladly with the pen because it is the proof that she has openly pledged her best to her Alma Mater and to each of her school mates. The spirit of co-operation is found in the spirit of the pledge and through it we are brought face to face with the greatest contribution we can render our class mates: that of aiding them in finding and living the highest, noblest, and truest type of life.

KNICKERS!

At Chapel, Tuesday, the Student Body was very much surprised to hear an announcement made by our beloved President in regard to the wearing of knickers. Evidently, there has been an excessive use of this unbecoming apparel.

Dr. Jarman said: "Girls, beware of knickers! Bathing suits are all right at the beach, I reckon. Knickers are all right on certain hiking parties, I reckon, but let Miss Mary White Cox be the judge."

So, remember, girls, as Dr. Jarman said—Beware, but not wearers of knickers.

WEEKLY PROGRAM

EACO THEATRE, Oct. 20-25, 1924

MONDAY, TUESDAY and WEDNESDAY:—

"THE COVERED WAGON" will be the attraction these three days. Here's the greatest screen entertainment ever seen. 2,000 miles of entertainment—and every mile a thrill. 3,000 actors, 300 covered wagons, a two-mile train—600 oxen—1,000 Indians—5,000 horses.—Just a few items to show you the BIGNESS of this picture. The romance that dwarfs any spectacle ever filmed. The epic romance of America's making. The greatest thrill show on earth. HERE'S YOUR GREATEST SCREEN ADVENTURE. And a glowing love story with LOIS WILSON and J. WARREN KERRIGAN. You've never seen its like before; you'll never see it again. Our usual short subjects will be shown each night.—Matinee: Monday and Wednesday at 3:30.

THURSDAY and FRIDAY—"THREE WEEKS," Elinor Glyn's immortal romance, with CONRAD NAGEL and AILEEN PRINGLE in the fine cast. This is a lavish, super Special Production. Everything that made the book a sensation is here in the film. Venice nights breathing love and danger; the spy—the fight in the canal; the lover's revenge, and then the thrilling episode that brings the story to a whirlwind finish. Here is a picture that you will never forget—Just as the world has never forgotten the beautiful romance from which it was made. There will be a good COMEDY and ORCHESTRA music each night.

SATURDAY—"THE GOVERNOR'S LADY," a Super-Production of David Belasco's stage success, enacted by a special cast. You will be mightily thrilled and entertained by this photoplay, which is a popular success because it contains all the elements necessary for an entertaining picture.—WE recommend it 100 per cent.—Also 14th episode of "FAST EXPRESS."—Matinee at 3:30.

—Admission S. T. C. girls to "COVERED WAGON" 50 cents. To "THREE WEEKS," 35 cents, and "GOVERNOR'S LADY," 20 cents.

LET'S GO—TEAM!

"Edna, get on your bloomers, and tennis shoes, its time for Basket Ball practice!" shouts Eva as she ran in practice!" shouted Eva, as she ran in the room.

"Good gracious," cried Edna, "I can't find my middy, but I don't guess it will hurt this old sweater to play in it."

"I bet there's going to be one mob at practice this afternoon, cause you know there surely is some good material up here from the Freshmen, to say nothing of the Sophomores. Those poor little "Freshies" are going to wish they'd never seen a basket ball when those inter-class games are over!! There are a few of the old 'Varsity who are not back, but, gee! isn't the old Sophomore team going to shine this year, Edna? I wonder where "Red" and Virginia Waddel are, and Grace Trittipoe? Virginia and Grace surely knew how to place that ball in the basket, didn't they? and ole' "Red" knew how to break up shots. Nevertheless, there's "Crutie," Virginia Vincent, Anne Virginia, Annie Lee Gwaltney, and then dear old Celeste Whaley, and Olive Smith of the Junior Class, and who says that's not enough to make a cracker-jack team this year?"

"I'll say it is, Eva, and we just dare those "Freshies" to try to beat us. Still I guess we'll have to work hard 'cause I've heard there are stars from several High Schools around here. In fact, I've played against some of them. I think, and I mean they're plenty good. Here's Evelyn Peake and Virginia Perkins from Lynchburg, Kitty Reid, Julia's sister, and you know if she's anything like Julia, she must be good, and Jean Mitchell, the center on Kenbridge team, and Virginia Hall, Henny's sister, and goodness—only knows how many others we don't know. I know the Freshmen are going to turn out a strong team. It's in them, and I'm thinking they have plenty pep!

"Wonder who's Captain of the Junior team?" asked Eva.

"Why, Celeste Whaley. Gee, don't you wish she were on our team. Erna Shotwell is Captain of the old Senior team. You know, Eva these Juniors and Seniors are not very large in number, but they can surely play basket ball."

"Indeed, they can!" said Eva.

"Oh, by the way; I hear there is some talk of a Volley Ball team this year. Have you heard anything about it?"

"Yes, I heard some of the girls discussing it the other day. I don't think it has been definitely settled yet, but gee! I hope there will be one, 'cause I do like Volley Ball so much, I think we ought to have a grand team out of this group of girls, 'cause there are lots of girls who can't play basket ball, but could play Volley Ball."

"Gee! look what a mob there is down here! You were right, Eva, about the girls coming out. Well, the more, the better."

FILLERS

Better it is to write of laughter than of tears, for laughter is the natural function of man.

It is the rule of rules and the general law of laws that every one should observe that of the place where he is.

Commonly a modest man obtains the character of being reserved, and a silent man of being disagreeable.

The genius of conversation consists much less in showing a great deal of it, than in causing it to be discovered in others.

Each one should endure with equanimity what he has brought upon himself.

The research for what is true and the practice of what is good are the two most important objects of philosophy.

One is not often dissatisfied with others excepting because one is dissatisfied with one's self.

The truest sign of being born with great qualities is to be born without envy.

INTERCOLLEGIATE NEWS.

The Oldest University in the World in China

The oldest university in the world is in China. According to W. R. Wheeler, scholarship in Asia was held in high regard in the days when European nations were just emerging from a state of savagery. The White Deer Grotto University in Kiangsi Province, 400 miles up the Yangtze River Valley, was founded in 960, A. D. and antedates Salerno, the oldest European university, by some time. As a school it began its existence about 900 A. D. It received the name from the poet, Li Po. He had a white deer that earned for him the name of White Deer Gentleman. He and his brother made their home in a cave in front of which, in the fourteenth century, an image of a deer was placed, and there it remains to this day.—The Florida Flambeau.

In the person of Judge Robert W. Winston, the University of North Carolina has a sixty-two year old student. At the age of sixty, Judge Winston decided to go through college again. He is now a Junior.

S. I. N. A.

A four-manual Skinner organ has been installed in the new Whitley Auditorium building at Elon College. The opening concert was held recently and was attended by music lovers from all parts of North Carolina. The organist for this occasion, was Mr. Louis Potter, who because of his playing for the Presidents of the United States, is called "the White House organist."

The Seniors at Roanoke College, have recently been given the privilege of optional chapel attendance. Due to the large Freshman class of this year, the seating problem had become acute, so that the forth-year class was granted the privilege of optional attendance.

The recent ceremonies which were attendant upon the laying of the corner stone for Cornell's new $1,000,000 union building have marked the beginning of the construction of the new hall. This building is being erected as a memorial to Willard Straight, 1901, and will serve as a general recreation center for the university community and also for visiting alumnae.

At its 158th annual commencement this year, Rutgers College became Rutgers University by a ruling of the State legislature. This higher classification was made possible by the State legislature in 1917, when it designated the local institution as the "State University."

LITERARY SOCIETY NEWS

The members of the Argus Literary Society met for the first time last Saturday with even more than their usual enthusiasm. The officers for the coming year were elected. By a unanimous vote, Peggy Moore was chosen president. The other officers elected, were: Annie Miller Almond, V.-Pres.; Lucile Wright, Treas., and Frances Sale, Sec. Plans for the coming year were discussed and a committee chosen to arrange the program—it was decided to study some definite subject rather than to have the usual programs. A great need has been felt, in the past few years, for better and more alive literary societies at Farmville, and this year the societies shall strive more than ever to meet this need.

The Pierian Literary Society met on Tuesday, October 7, in the S. B. Auditorium. The officers were elected in the spring so the society went right to work. A definite course of study was decided upon and plans were made for a very interesting meeting next Tuesday night. Tuesday night at 7 o'clock, was set as the time for regular meetings, and it was decided that a meeting would be held every two weeks.

PORTSMOUTH CLUB MEETS

Saturday afternoon the girls of the Portsmouth Club packed Miss Carrie Spradlin, Mr. McCorkle, some eats and themselves in a truck filled with hay, and departed for Willis Mountain.

After a gay ride, they arrived at the mountain. Of course, the first thing to do, was to climb it. Upon reaching the top, several members took snapshots of the group. The descent was made with astounding rapidity—and it is said that some members declined (?) to stop until they reached the bottom.

A kind-hearted man told them to help themselves to apples—they did, and Alice Reed, the eater of seven, was acknowledged Champion Apple Eater.

They had a most satisfying supper of "weanies," rolls and toasted marshmallows. They ate all that Norma Carney did not feed to Hiram, their most excellent driver.

The moon looked down upon the merry ride homeward, saw no greater tragedy than Ruth Snellings sitting on Lois Westbrook.

All those present, including Alma Maynard and Mr. McCorkle, agreed that they had a most "scrumptious" time.

JOKES

He—Come near selling my shoes to-day.

She—How come?

He—Had them half-soled.

He—Pardon me, may I have this dance?

She—No, I'm too danced out.

He—You're not too damn stout, you are pleasingly plump.

Dorothy—Dudly has a Straight 8 Packard.

Elevator—It is not, its a roadster.

"What could be more sad," said the school teacher, "than a man without a country?"

"A country without a man," answered the pretty girl.

New Student-Teacher—Please sign your name, I didn't ask for your signatures.

Freshman—Dr. Fields said I was all right physically.

Sophomore—She said I was all right except for my scapulae.

Junior—Something was wrong with my hair too.

Mr. McCorkle—How would you care for a school plant?

Summer Student—Water it every day.

EDUCATIONAL EXHIBIT SUCCESSFUL

Held Thursday and Friday in Armory

The County Council held its annual Educational Exhibit Thursday and Friday, October 23-24. On Thursday, there were two speakers at the opening. A parade was held on Friday morning in which the school children, and teachers, participated. There were also many attractive and interesting floats.

The Educational Exhibits from the various schools in the county were displayed in the Armory. Among the interesting exhibits was the exhibit of the method used in the construction of roads and bridges. Many other county organizations had attractive booths.

THE MOELLER TRIO

Students at the State Teachers College and residents of Farmville enjoyed a wonderful program Wednesday night in the College Auditorium, rendered by the Moeller Trio, from New York.

The Moeller Trio is an organization of unusual ability. Each member is an artist of exceptional talent, and the vocal and instrumental selections that were rendered proved a veritable delight to all present.

The program follows:

- (a) Where'er You Walk..... Handel
- (b) My Heart is Fixed Bach
- Henry Moeller
- (a) Praeludium and Allegro .. Pugnini-Kreisler
- Ruth Stickney
- (a) In the Night..Huntington-Woodman

I'm glad I'm you.—Flamingo.

ATHLETIC COUNCIL ELECTED

SHOTWELL PRESIDENT, WHALEY SECRETARY AND TREAS.

The election of the officers for the Athletic Council was held Wednesday—October 15, after chapel in the auditorium.

Miss Barlow explained the purpose of this Council, preceding the election. She stated that no steps concerning athletics will be taken without the approval of the Council. This Council is made-up of a President, Secretary, and Treasurer, Cheer Leader, and two members of the Faculty, Miss Graham and Miss Buford.

It was decided that the cheer leader would be elected later, as the girls have not yet had a chance to display their ability.

The following girls were elected:
President—Erna Shotwell.
Secretary-Treas.—Celeste Whaley.

MANDOLIN-GUITAR CLUB

If the meetings of the Mandolin-Guitar Club are held with as much interest throughout the year as its first one held on Wednesday, October 15, was, the club may safely hope for a prosperous and peppy year.

The officers for the year are:
President—Evelyn Thompson.
Secretary and Treasurer—Pauline Rivercomb.

There are about twenty members already enrolled.

The club wishes to extend to those who wish to join and have not already done so, a cordial invitation to do so at once.

EXPERIENCED TEACHERS CLUB

A movement is on foot to establish a permanent club in the college of students who have already had some teaching experience in the State. The first meeting was held on Thursday, October 16, 1924. Thirty-one members were enrolled. Bessie Motley was elected president, with Ruth L. Richardson, vice-president, and Frances Sadler, secretary-treasurer.

A second meeting was called by the president for Monday, October 20, at which time the club was to be properly christened and its purposes more definitely outlined but because of the large number of new members it was voted that they should be given a chance to share in the suggestions for a proper name for the club. The organization now has fifty-one members drawn from the Second, Third and Fourth Professionals.

Landlady: "Young man, do you realize you have not paid your rent for two months?"

TENNIS COURTS ARE BEING PREPARED

At last, we see prospects of playing tennis, girls! The courts are really being fixed, and it seems as tho there will be five. Yes, five nice, large tennis courts to play on right behind Duvall Cottage. Really, it seems too good to be true. The ground is being leveled off now, and from all appearances it looks as if the nets will be up and everything will be in readiness for some big tournaments in the near future. This will give all the little girls who are gradually assuming unappreciated pounds, a chance to lose a few instead of gaining, and will give everyone a chance to put their muscles in to play. The future looks good for tennis—here's hoping we won't be disappointed.

LITERARY SOCIETIES

The first meeting of the Athenian Literary Society was held in the Y. W. Association room Saturday evening after Prayers.

The following program was given:
Inaugural Address—Daisy Mitchell.
Solo—Dean Cox.
Reading—Betty Hopkins.
Penny Contest—Conducted by Sue Puckett.

Sue Roper and Mabel Edwards won the contest and were awarded the prize.

The Cunningham Literary Society, held a call meeting for the purpose of electing a vice-president. Gertrude Quinn, was elected to that office. A program committee which was appointed, consists of Gertrude Quinn, Chairman; Frances Howard and Ruth Bartholomew. It was decided to appoint a Membership Committee. Those on the committee are: Ruth Bartholomew, Chairman; Virginia Vincent, and Lucile Walton.

There being no other business, the meeting adjourned.

RICHMOND CLUB ORGANIZED

On Thursday night, October 16, the girls who live in and near Richmond, met and organized a Club with the following officers:

President—Ruth L. Richardson.
Vice-President—Virginia Cowherd.
Secretary and Treasurer—Ruth G. Richardson.

Reporter—Sue Puckett.
At this meeting sixteen members were enrolled, and much enthusiasm was shown. It is evident that another active club is to function at S. T. C.

VICE-PRESIDENT OF STUDENT GOVERNMENT IMPROVING

Eugenia Vincent, who has been ill for quite a long while, is reported to be improving rapidly. It is hoped that she will be well enough to return home from the hospital sometime this week.

Y. W. C. A. CONDUCT SUCCESSFUL MEMBERSHIP CAMPAIGN

"The Golden Trail" Given Monday Night

The Y. W. C. A. has been handicapped in its work by the necessity of electing several officers to fill vacancies. Frances Howard was elected president and Mary Lynn Petty, vice-president to fill the vacancies created by election of Frances Howard to the presidency. Mabel Edwards has been appointed chairman of the music committee and Sue Puckett, of World Fellowship.

The membership committee under the leadership of its new chairman, Mary Lynn Petty, put on a most interesting and convincing campaign. Each night at prayers, appropriate speeches were made. Monday night, Sue Roper explained the purpose of the Y. W. C. A. Tuesday night, Ruth Bartholomew told what the Y. W. C. A. does in college, emphasizing the living of sincere Christian lives.

Wednesday night, Gertrude Quinn, talked about the necessity of broadening our horizons. The Y. W. C. A. was very fortunate in having Mrs. Van traveling secretary and member of the National Board to speak to them about her work in South America. She told how she had helped to organize a Y. W. C. A. in Rio de Janeiro. Friday night Olive Smith talked about the All-Round Girl. Saturday night, Cornelia Dickinson told why a girl should join the Y. W. C. A. The campaign culminated in a beautiful pageant—"The Golden Trail," given Monday night, October 20.

Following is a synopsis of the pageant:

The Spirit of the association, young and hopeful, sees good and promise in all nations as they pass in procession before her, and believes that women everywhere can work together to make a better world, while 20th century, attended by Fear, Ignorance, and Prejudice, is pessimistic and sees only discouragement. The association appeals to the women of the United States, as they enter, to do their part, but they, under the influence of the evil spirits of Fear, Ignorance and Prejudice, refuse, protesting that it would be as easy to weave gold out of straw. The Spirit of the association is for a time downcast, but as she remembers the power of Faith, Faith enters; then as she realizes what Hope and Love can do, they also enter and the three show the association and the women of America how through their transforming power the miracle can be performed. The 20th century, seeing the miracle that has been wrought, throws off her pessimism. The association calls the women of the nations to unite around her and then asks them and the audience to walk down the golden trail to the 20th century.

HAMPDEN-SIDNEY DANCE

Nineteen S. T. C. Girls Attend

To the strains of the Old Dominion Orchestra, many a head fluttered and many a good time was had last weekend. The Hampden-Sidney Opening Dances were held Friday and Saturday nights, October 7th, and 8th. The State Teachers College was well represented:

Mrs. Lang and Mrs. Williams—Chaperones.
Miss Carrie Gudheim with Mr. Floyd Andrews.
Miss Isabel Kester with Mr. Hem Fleming.
Miss Helen Hodges with Mr. Bean Hughes.
Miss Alice Thomas with Mr. Jack Morton.
Miss Dorothy Myers with Mr. Joe Whitehead.
Miss Bessie Meade Riddle with Mr. George Scott.
Miss Mary McIntosh with Mr. Andrew McLaughlin.
Miss Caroline Parkinson with Mr. Charles Browning.
Miss Margaret Robinson with Mr. Robert Porterfield.
Miss Angel Teel with Mr. Cabell Fitzpatrick.
Miss Ermine Watkins with Mr. Halter.
Miss Louise McCormick with Mr. Frances Nottingham.
Miss Polly Riddle with Mr. Joseph Bradshaw.
Miss Ruth Creecey with Mr. Bara Dahl.
Miss Jo Culin with Mr. Bob Hunt.
Miss Amorette Demott with Mr. Flem Hurt.
Miss Dodie Shoffner with Mr. Earnest Garland.
Miss Gertrude Quinn with Mr. Douglas Fry.
Miss Lucille Barnett with Dr. Sydnor.

Southampton, Sussex and Surry Combination as S. S. and S.

As a result of a very peppy meeting of the Southampton girls, the following were elected as officers:

President—Greenhow Parker.
Vice-President—Dorothy Rawls.
Secretary—Stella Presson.

The Club decided to take in the girls from Sussex and Surry. A combined meeting of the three counties was held later and it was agreed to have as its name S. S. and S. In order to get better acquainted with each other the Club has decided to go on a hike Saturday.

Ideal College Paper

True Test is in General Spirit it Portrays.

The subject, The Ideal College Paper, is broad, but is receiving the hopeful thought of numbers of students in college here and elsewhere. These students are concerned with the problem, how to make their college paper better and more representative of the school life. The fact is, however, that there are too few students concerned over this problem.

It is difficult to define what constitutes an ideal college paper, for there seems to be in such a publication an abstract quality—one that is difficult to express. It seems to me that there are three phrases of the subject which we might consider with profit; the material used in the paper, the organization, and the general spirit reflected therein.

In discussing the material for the paper, we first think of the scope. Is it broad enough to include the various activities of the school? Will it make a paper that will be in after days a true picture of the best life of the college as we shall love to remember that life? Certainly this material should include the school news,—what has happened of general interest. Then, too, there are the editorials. Do they freely express the thought of the students? Are they of real value? All college students, practically, are interested in athletics. They want their victories, and defeats, too, written up in their school paper, so that in after days on re-reading the paper, they will have pleasant memories of the spirit shown by their Alma Mater. Can you imagine a school paper without jokes? Certainly not! Jokes should not be lacking, and should give a distinctive flavor to the school paper. It should be a matter of pride that this flavor be delicate rather than coarse, for the quality of humor one enjoys is a very sure index of refinement, or its lack. All of the material should, of course, be written in a vivid and pleasing manner—the ideal college paper is worthy of being kept.

A few words, only, are necessary as to the organization of the school paper. As a rule, the paper should have certain sections in it developed to particular kinds of material; viz: articles of general interest on the front page, special columns rigidly reserved for the news notes, alumnae interests, athletics, jokes, etc., respectively. When this plan is carried into execution, the readers become accustomed to looking to a certain part of the paper for particular news, and their college paper becomes doubly endeared to them through its familiar aspect.

The true test of a college paper lies in the general spirit it portrays. A college is judged by its paper—by the spirit shown therein. How may a school have an ideal paper without having the help of every student? In this respect, a school paper should be democratic—everybody's paper. It is often said that the staff has to do most of the editing. This is true in many instances. A school cannot hope to have an ideal paper unless it has the co-operation of every student. If it fails in this, the paper cannot possibly reflect the spirit of the school. If the paper is to be a true story of school life, then everyone must do her bit—must support the staff, must make the staff's cause her own, must make the cause an ideal supreme.

"It's not the individual
Nor the school as a whole,
But the everlasting team work,
Of every single soul."
—(Adapted from Rudyard Kipling.)

SOCIAL

Mu Omega Club gave a most enjoyable dance and banquet Saturday evening, October 18. The dance was in the Gym, the music being furnished by a peppy "colored orchestra." A color scheme of orange and black, was carried out in all the decorations, and lovely Hallowe'en favors were given to each guest. The dance was followed by the banquet held in the Tea Room, which looked very weird and fascinating with blinking Jack-o'-Lanterns, and many other Hallowe'en decorations. A delightful salad course was served.

The Pi Alpha Club gave its final rush party, Thursday, October 16, in the Tea Room. It was in the form of a Japanese party, and decorations and favors were carried out to represent Japan. The place cards were attached to vases of rose buds, carrying out the color scheme of gold and white. Favors of Japanese umbrellas and dolls were given each new girl. A salad and ice course were served.

The Zeta Tau Club held its final rush party Tuesday night, October 17, in the Tea Room. The banquet room was attractively decorated in Autumn tints, with stalks, grinning Jack-o'-Lanterns and spirits common to Hallowe'en were in abundance. After the banquet the entire party went to the movies.

INTERCOLLEGIATE NEWS

The Inter-Collegiate Press Association of South Carolina, will meet in the city of Greenville on November 20th and 21st. Furman and Greenville Woman's College, will act as joint hostesses.

The University of Wisconsin has instituted a system whereby college girls and working girls may exchange jobs during the summer.

Auburn now has the distinction of having more alumni engineers in the Westinghouse Engineering School than any other college in the United States.

A movement to endow Louisiana College with $390,000 has been undertaken by the Baptist of Louisiana, which when put over will mean more buildings, more courses, improvements on the grounds and a larger faculty; in short, a 'greater Louisiana College.'

By making the Conservatory of Music an institution separate from the college, the authorities have prepared Wesleyan for a larger and better two-fold service to the young women of the South.

Winthrop College, besides having 1537 young damoiselles on her campus, has four faculty members in the latest "Who's Who in America." They are President David Bancroft Johnson, founder of the college and past president of the National Education Association; Dr. A. P. Bourland, director of extension; Prof. J. W. Thomson, professor of Education; and Prof. Wm. G. Burgin, professor of political science.

Census proved a rather amusing thing at William and Mary the other day. It disclosed the fact that the Williams were plurality among the men and the Marys among the women. The students of that institution are rather proud of that coincident and as they say, "The king and queen are dead! But long live their name."

Harrisonburg Teachers College has taken a big step in athletics this year. For the first time they are to have a Varsity hockey team and much enthusiasm is being shown on the part of the new girls as well as the old. We wish them luck!!

CLASS NEWS

Saturday, October 18 was Tag Day for the Student Building. The campaign was carried on by the Junior Class and on this bright October morning, one might have seen almost the entire class assisting in tagging all possible contributors. The red and white costumes of the Juniors were all the advertising necessary and passers-by found it hard or impossible to say "No" to the plea of "Buy a Tag, please."

Consequently, many feminine dresses and masculine lapels flaunted gay tags bearing three Bricks, and the inscription: "I have paid for my brick, have you?" The Juniors are much pleased with the proceeds of the day's work, but they aren't giving out much information. Look out for the Juniors.

Dr. Jarman has returned from Norfolk, where he spent a week at the annual Methodist Conference.

As someone has so eloquently phrased it, the slogan of the Sophomore Class seems to be "excuse our dust." The Class has started to work with vim and enthusiasm. They decided to sell sandwiches as a means of raising money to buy a few bricks for the Student Building. The Sophomores expect the result to be co-operation on the part of the entire student body. Please reserve ravenous appetites for Thursday nights about 10:15.

Such exclamations as "Can't wait to get my ring,"—"Did you order a pin?"—"Don't think I didn't order a ring, 'cause I did," followed the announcement that orders for pins and rings would be taken after Class Meeting. Sophomores, let's have 100 per cent attendance at Class Meetings on Tuesday nights.

CLUB BIDS

After a series of festivities that lasted throughout all of last week, the three clubs are ready to announce the following pledges:

MU OMEGA—Mary Alice Blanton, Jo Cultr, Amelia Johnson, Mary Tucker, Ruth Richardson, Alice Thomas, Polly Riddle, Helen Hodges, Dorcas Cheney, Frances Jones, Evelyn Dulancy, Nancy Cole, Polly Smith, Virginia Hall, Kitty Reid, Isabel Payne, Caroline Parkinson, Margaret Robinson.

PI ALPHA—Eleanor Zacharias, Helen ShieIds, Margaret Lou Sterns, Mary Elizabeth Bruner, Anna Jett, Mittie Quarles, Frances Paxton, Carol Moir, Ermine Watkins, Louise Torrence.

ZETA TAU—Virginia Perkins, Evelyn Peake, Louise Jones, Judson Lisey, Margaret Lisey, Rosa Lee Maddux, Emma Hester, Virginia Graves, Jean Mitchell.

The modern woman is one who has a shot gun in her hope chest.

BRUNSWICK CLUB ORGANIZED

At a recent meeting of the Brunswick Club, officers were elected for the coming year:

Pres.—Mary Ruth Winn.
V.-Pres.—Marie Orgain.
Sec.—Elizabeth Jones.
Treas.—Dorothy Jones.
Miss Florence Buford was unanimously re-elected honorary member of the club. Plans were made and put into effect for raising money for the Student Building. After the president had extended a cordial welcome, in behalf of the club to the eight new members, the meeting adjourned.

ARE WOMEN GOOD SPORTS

It is frequently said that women are not good sports. This is many times only too true. The fundamental reason, is that woman has not had the opportunity to exercise qualities of good sportsmanship in athletic contests, as well as in other activities, where social, professional and business relationships demand a high degree of sportsmanship conduct.

As late as the 18th Century, and even the 19th Century, beginning at the age of ten, girls were trained to be "young ladies," and it was thought that participation in games, sports and athletics, demanded vigorous physical activity, was "un-lady-like." One of the outstanding qualities of a good sportsman, is to be a thorough gentleman. In no less degree a girl can be a true woman, a lady if you like, on the athletic field. That is why, as college women, we think that chewing gum, lying on the floor between quarters, or being loud or boisterous during a public game is entirely unnecessary and not to be tolerated.

Women are learning to be better sports now that we are taking more active part in athletic contests. We are learning that the best athletes, true sportsmen, do not question the decision of officials, are obedient, and do not talk over-much. Missionaries tell us that Orientals, men as well as women, have not learned to be good sports, athletics being comparatively new to them. One of the members of our own faculty, Miss Leola Wheeler, who has recently returned from the missionary field in China, says that the Chinese girls cannot endure defeat, that the losing team invariably bursts into tears and leave the field.

As women become more active in the business, industrial and political fields they are becoming better sports. The opportunity to be a good sport rarely comes to the recluse, a person who never mixes with people, never works with people, never plays with people.

What do we mean by Good Sportsmanship? Do the points quoted above define the subject? In 1922, a study of good sportsmanship, was made by R. C. McClain, assistant supervisor of Health Education, Detroit Public Schools and published in the American Physical Education Review. It states "At present a definition of the specific elements of sportsmanship is not in existence." He gives as the major qualities that should be developed, and which control the objectives in play, and athletics, as:

"The quality of Honor.

The quality of Courtesy.

The quality of Unselfishness."

He goes further to say that a girl or boy possessed of these basic qualities, will be a sport under the most trying circumstances.

In every phase of education, if we do not develop character and the habits of good sportsmanship, we have missed our aim. The playground, the athletic field, are laboratories where we hope to try-out, put into practice and control the educational objectives. The best coaches and instructors in (Continued on last page.)

ANATOLE FRANCE DIES

Anatole France, the genius of France died October 12, 1924, at the age of eighty years. His end was expected as his health had been rapidly declining for over a year. Only a few hours before his death, he expressed the conviction that he had but a few more hours here.

He has been for over forty years, without a rival in France. Not only France, but the whole world suffers an irreparable loss with the death of this great man. No living writer is so fully appreciated in his own country. The whole world united in reading and commending his work. All through his works, we find there is the beauty of his cultured taste, literary skill, and imagination. He was a novelist, critic, poet, and scholar. As a poet, he belongs to the Parnassian group by his elegant and tender verses called Vers Dorés, Les Noces Corinthiennes.

As novelist, he published Le Crime de Sylvestre Bonnard, Les Desirs de Jean Servien, Jveaste et le Chat Maigre, Thais, Balthazar.

Anatole France was a prodigious artist in ideas and carried away his readers by the gracefulness of his thought and the elegance of his wit.

His real name was Jacques Anatole Thibault. He was the son of a bookseller. The last few years of his life, he was interested in the Bolshevik experiment in Russia.

In 1920, France was married to a girl thirty years his junior. He declared he was starting life anew.

Although he enlisted in the French army during the World War, his opposition to war and love for humanity were expressed in an interesting letter to American women engaged in rebuilding the devastated ruins of France.

During the last few years of his life, he became active for the League of the Rights of Man, a humanitarian organization. He was also, active in the release of two Italians, Sacco and Vanquitti who were convicted of murder, and whose case was known world wide.

Y. W. C. A.

At the usual Friday night sing, the Y. W. C. A. presented a most enjoyable program. Several selections were given by the Mandolin-Guitar Club. The principal feature of the evening, was the gym stunt. With Miss Nell McArdle as instructor, the students perfectly executed orders. Miss McArdle gave exercises which were indeed beneficial.

Among those which may be recommended, are breathing with the left lung, winking of eyes alternately, and tweaking of ears. We are sure that Miss McArdle's marching instructions will help Miss Buford in her classes, where marching is—oh, well, ask the proud Sophomores who were once insignificant Freshmen—they know.

"Has your order been taken?"

"Yes, and so has Bunker Hill."

HARRISONBURG ESTABLISHES PERMANENT UPPER CLASS PRIVILEGES

Before this year, each of the upper classes at Harrisonburg, had handed a list of the privileges they desired for the year to the head of the school for her approval. They were then submitted to the faculty to be discussed and decided upon. Each year, this formality of granting privileges has been gone through, but in the future, these privileges granted this year will be granted to all fourth, third and second year classes.

These are the privileges granted the two upper classes:

Fourth year students may be allowed to go out at nights in groups of two unchaperoned, and may remain out not later than 10:15 on all days except Sunday and not later than 10 p. m. on Sunday, provided they have previously registered with the Dean of Women in the usual way. (1) Fourth year students may ride with young men in the day with the approval of the Dean of Women. (2) Fourth year students may be allowed to miss meals but are required whenever possible to notify the dietitian in advance of such absence. (3) Fourth year students may go walking and calling on Sunday between the hours of four and six, omitting the downtown or business section of the city. (4) Fourth year students may be permitted to be served meals in approved restaurants and tea rooms any day except Sunday, unchaperoned, and with young men provided they receive the approval of the Dean of Women when accompanied by young men. (5) Fourth year students may be allowed to go to the approved tea rooms or restaurants for meals on Sunday in groups of two or more students or one student accompanied by a young man, provided permission of the Dean of Women has been received and a chaperon has been provided. (6) Fourth year students may receive callers on nights other than Friday or Saturday night, provided no student receives callers on more than three nights during the week. (7) Fourth year students may be allowed to act as chaperons for under classmen with the approval of the Dean of Women provided that no student who has been under discipline by the Student Government may take advantage of this provision.

Third year students may be allowed to go out at night in groups of three or more unchaperoned, and may remain out not later than 10:15 p. m., on all days except Sunday and not later than 10 p. m. on Sundays, providing such students register with the Dean of Women in taking advantage of this privilege. (2) Third year students may ride with young men in the day, unchaperoned, with the approval of the Dean of Women provided no student has engagements on more than three nights per week. Third year students may be accompanied to the campus from down town before 6 p. m., provided no previous arrangement or engagement has been made to this effect. Third year students may eat in approved restaurants or tea rooms any day except Sunday, unchaperoned, and with young men, provided they receive a meal card and the approval of the Dean of Women when accompanied by young men.

WATCH THE SOPHS!

The Sophomore Class is indeed alive! To hear the healthy screaming on the halls every Thursday night, one would think they were merely trying to prove their healthy lungs.

But, have you tasted those much yelled about sandwiches? If you have you glory in the yells which mean that once more your appetite will be appeased for the small sum of 10c. If you haven't a treat is in store. Follow the crowd to the place from whence the sounds are coming, take your dime along and invest in the Biggest Bargain of a life-time.

Sh! Hush! Have you to experience the feeling that you have interrupted a secret? There's one in the air. Watch the Sophs. They walk as though they tread on air with their heads in the clouds. What is the meaning of all the mystery? But keep a look-out for posters and the Bulletin Board or you might miss something. Soon the secret will explode.

Keep your eyes and ears open, its coming!

EDITORIALS

Some time ago we were lucky to have in the school, a magazine devoted almost entirely to literary work. For some reason or other, this was given up and all the work left for the Rotunda to do.

There is a great need in this school for an outlet of literary talent. If a number of years ago this school could support and edit a magazine devoted to literary work, we can certainly do it now when our student body is almost twice as large.

Think how interesting it would be if once every month, we could look forward to a magazine which would have short stories, book reviews, poetry, literary and historical articles all written by authors in our midst. I am sure that every one of us would far rather have one written by our friends and next door neighbor than to buy any one of the popular magazines in circulation.

It is up to us, then girls, to put forth the effort. One person or several persons alone, will never be able to put this across. It will require the combined efforts and co-operation of every one of us, to make such a magazine possible.

Why not put this across? We have done other things that seem just as difficult. This is certainly a worthwhile object. Let's think about it and have another publication from this school.

WHAT IS EXPECTED OF

US AS TEACHERS?

We, who are so soon to go out into the world teaching and training the future rulers of our great Republic, should know what responsibility will rest upon us and what will be our part in modeling the minds, souls, and bodies of the future citizens of our land. The challenge to American Education by Payson Smith in the past Journal of the National Education Association shows us what is before us, and what we, as teachers, should accomplish in this great work which we are about to take up.

Going back to the beginning of American public schools we might find it began after the arrival of the Mayflower. Unless the intelligence of a country is widespread among the people, how is democracy to be a success? As democracy develops, the educational program of a country must also develop.

It is the duty of the American schools to make those in the coming generation good citizens. American people pay taxes for the support of schools. They expect to have confidence in the teachers to whom they send their children. Then is it not our duty to teach these children loyalty and love for their country and service both in time of war and in time of peace; to develop curious, inquiring and pioneering minds, which are greatly needed at the present time; to produce an American citizenship richer in the quality of co-operation, and to bring about unity of attitude on certain fundamental things?

When the schools fulfill the task which is set before them, then will the education of our country extend throughout the land. And as our education grows our democracy will also grow.

ALUMNAE NOTES

The Farmville Chapter of the Association of Alumnae held its first meeting Thursday, October 23. An unusually large number of alumnae attended, and much interest was manifested in plans for the year. The first half hour was social during which Miss Wheeler contributed to the pleasure of the occasion by showing many articles of use and beauty which she had brought from China, and by describing the peculiar customs of the people in connection with them. New officers were elected at the business meeting, which followed:

President—Mrs. M. B. Coyner.
Vice-Pres.—Miss Elizabeth Moring.
Secretary—Mrs. H. L. Newbill.
Treasurer—Miss Virgilia Bugg.
The next meeting will be on November 13.

The Norfolk Chapter has made an early beginning in its support of the Student Building Fund. Its activities have taken the form of a benefit card party and a rummage sale.

The Richmond Chapter was reorganized on Wednesday, October 29. A report will appear later.

Miss Ethel Gish, a member of the Second Year Class of 1923-24, was married on October 22, to Mr. Randolph Wilmoth, of Farmville.

An excited girl: "Miss Shelton, Garland Dormitory is on fire!"
Miss Shelton: "Very well, I'll make a note of that."

"You are to be excused early today," said the professor. "Please walk lightly through the halls, so that you won't awaken the other classes."

Weekly Program

EACO THEATRE—NOV. 3-8, 1924

MONDAY—JACKIE COOGAN in "A BOY OF FLANDERS." A Special Production. Here we have Jackie Coogan restored to his enduring rags in the sweetest story ever told. The most beautiful picture of the season. You'll just want to hug Jackie when you see him as the little Flemish orphan boy. —Also Pathe News.—Matinee at 4 o'clock.—Proceeds from this picture, are for the benefit of the Kindergarten Mothers' Club.

TUESDAY—LEATRICE JOY in the new Paramount Picture, "CHANGING HUSBANDS," a Cecil B. DeMille production. A merry mix-up of wives and husbands that gets funnier and funnier with every foot. No serious matrimonial problems.—Just a lot of darn good fun. Also 6th episode of "The Steel Trail."—Matinee at 4 o'clock.

WEDNESDAY—TOM MIX in "THE TROUBLE SHOOTER," with Tony, the wonder horse. In this picture, Mix rides that dare-devil little horse, Tony, across a swaying trestle with a speeding locomotive coming up behind. Tony wears horse-snow shoes in this picture.—Don't miss it.—Also Aesop Fable will be shown on this date.

THURSDAY—"SIX DAYS," Elinor Glyn's famous story, in a Special Picture, with Corinne Griffith and a fine cast. "Six Days of Love." It looks easy, but you've got to know how! Take a lesson in the art of making love from Elinor Glyn author of "Three Weeks." Also good comedy and orchestra music. Matinee at 4 o'clock.

FRIDAY—No Pictures.—The Theatre is rented to the Associated Charities, and they will present "THE RADIO GIRL," a local talent play, with a cast of 75.—beautiful costumes and scenery.—Fancy dances and specialties.—Admission—Reserved Seats, 75c, other seats, 35c and 50c.—All reserved seat tickets will be sold at Hubbard's next door to the Theatre.—SHOW starts at 8 o'clock.

SATURDAY—PAULINE STARK in "THE ARIZONA EXPRESS," a big Special Production, that carries a consignment of love, mystery and romance. An honest to goodness melo-drama by Lincoln J. Carter.—Warning—If you have a weak heart, stay away from this mile-a-minute railroad thriller. It reeks with sensation. We also start a new SERIAL, "THE IRON MAN."—An extra good show.—Matinee at 3:30.

ADMISSION to S. T. C. Girls—Monday and Thursday, 25c. Other pictures, 20c. — Take advantage of the Matinee this week.

TRAINING SCHOOL

The mothers of the Kindergarten, and first grade children, were most delightfully entertained in the Kindergarten room on October 23, by Miss Mary Burns Hayes, Supervisor of the Kindergarten and first Grade, and her student teachers. This was the first meeting of the year and was held for the purpose of reorganizing the club, and giving the mothers and teachers a chance to become acquainted. The officers for the coming year, were elected. They are:

President—Mrs. Roscoe White.
Vice-President—Mrs. T. H. Fallwell.

Secretary—Mrs. Willie Gray.
Treasurer—Mrs. Arthur Jones.
After the business was concluded, tea was served by the teachers. A great deal of enthusiasm was shown over the work, and already plans are being made for the work of the coming year.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

The spirit of S. T. C. is the spirit of co-operation, the spirit that moves every girl to have a personal interest in each element of her college life, to stand for them, if right, and if wrong, to make them right.

Let us have your co-operation in Student Government. If it is a good thing, if it is right, stand for it. If it is wrong help us to make a correction. In this column we will be glad to discuss any phase of our Student Government organization at the request of any member of the Student Body, and questions submitted by students will be answered to the best of our ability.

Suggestions and questions may be left in the box outside of the Student Government room.

May we hear from you?

Y. W. C. A. FINANCE CAMPAIGN

Tuesday, October 28, marked the beginning of the finance campaign of the Y. W. C. A. Special talks on the Y. W. C. A., its work and its connection with other organizations, were given at chapel on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday mornings.

On Wednesday evening, the Service and Social Committee in a "Come and See" showed to the Y. W. C. A. members something of the work they do on the Campus. On Thursday evening the play "How He Won," was presented.

A table was placed in the reception hall, Wednesday and Thursday, at which, girls who are members of the Y. W. C. A. were asked to sign the pledge cards. A room to room canvas is being planned for November 3-4.

Y. W. C. A. INSTALLS NEW MEMBERS

The Y. W. C. A. held an impressive service Monday night when the new members were formally recognized.

Into the auditorium lighted only by candles, the cabinet followed by the new members, marched singing "Lead On, O King Eternal." The old officers and members carried lighted candles, while those of the new officers, new cabinet members and new association members, were unlighted.

Elizabeth Bugg lead the procession, Frances Howard, president, Mary Lynn Petty, vice-pres., and Sue Puckett and Mabel Edwards, committee chairman.

These new officers lighted their candles and after the prayer by Frances Howard, Mary Lynn Petty presented the new members to the president and the Association. These members while soft music was played, marched by, and lighted their candles, by the candles of the cabinet members.

After the president had given the charge to the new members, they then marched out singing "Follow the Gleam."

The Association has enrolled over 300 new members, many of which are Girl Reserves and enthusiastic over Y. W. C. A. work. With such a membership, the Association expects to have a very successful year.

COME AND BE "SHOT"

Visitors at S. T. C. this past week, would surely have been attracted and mystified by the occurrence upon the floor in various portions of the building, of a sort of square hieroglyphic. Many guesses were made as to its purpose. Every possible conclusion was made from the possible location of new pillars to a cryptic assurance of the watchfulness of the Ku Klux Klan. The students were enlightened, however, when they were aroused from their peaceful classes to come forth and be "shot." Oh, no! not with a gun. An inoffensive camera was the weapon, and stood in the mysterious squares. The purpose of so much photography is some sort of a record for somebody. We will know that later. Suffice it to say, that we patted our hair, powdered our noses, whenever possible, and came forth. Each click of the camera mowed down a dauntless "S. T. C.-ite!" while the photographer reaped a plentiful harvest of more or less smiling countenances.

BE A SPORT

the field of Physical Education, are urging that in Play, we measure by the good sportsmanship displayed. Higher institutions of learning are requiring that their Athletic Coaches be college or university men, regular members of the faculty, educators, having as their chief aim, character development. Too often, athletic coaches have been merely "trainers," not men of high ideals.

Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, in a recent sermon on Sportsmanship, speaks of the Golden Rule as nothing more than a statement of good sportsmanship. As Christians one of the hardest things to do, is to love our enemies, as taught in the Sermon on the Mount, yet according to Dr. Fosdick, magnanimity is simply good sportsmanship. He speaks of Robert E. Lee, who after the Civil War was over, never would let anybody mention General Grant in his presence, except with high respect. In athletics, it shows an unsportsmanlike attitude to criticize the conduct of opponents.

Girls, if we wish to remove the stigma from women of not being good sports, let us "play the game," let us make the best of existing conditions, let us avoid criticizing, let us cheer good plays by opponents, let us play to win, but let us preserve the ideal of good sportsmanship. Instead of asking who lost or won, let us ask—

"What was the score in Good Sportsmanship?"

"BE A SPORT!"

What if you lost or won the game?

"BE A SPORT!"

You didn't play for fame
You played for the fun,
When all is said and done—
So:—

"BE A SPORT!"

"BE A SPORT!"

"BE A SPORT!"

(Detroit Sports Campaign Yell)
Let OUR creed be:—

"For when the Great Scorer comes
To write against your name,
He writes not that you lost or won,
But how you played the game." —

INTERCOLLEGIATE NEWS

Too Easy!

The ministry of education of China is opposing the sending of Chinese students to American universities, saying that American college courses are inefficient and degrees are obtained too easily. Instead of sending so many students to America, the ministry is urging that more money be spent to send the more deserving ones to European institutions of learning.

In the University of Hawaii, the racial problem is working itself out admirably. Last year, the student enrollment was as follows: Caucasian, 162; Japanese, 79; Chinese, 71; Hawaiian and part of Hawaiian, 25; Koreans, 6; Filipinos, 2. Dr. Leibrick of the faculty says: "They conduct their student activities by self-government. The student body constitutes a small inter-racial democracy. There is absolute social, political, and athletic equality, and there is no evidence of group action based upon race."

Seniors at Washington and Lee are carrying canes this year as a mark of their high standing.

Last summer William and Mary conducted a summer school in Europe, having granted credit hours to twenty candidates for degrees for this study and travel.

JOKES

In order that all assignments may be clearly understood, it is suggested that all members of the faculty call the attention of their classes to the titles of the books used. Certain students—not all freshmen, at that—have recently exhausted themselves and the librarians, searching in the college library, for a certain book of which each possesses a copy! Why not dust off all your books, little ones, and incidentally, observe the title of each?

"I wrote Dad I was itching for a check."

"He sent me a scratch pad."

—Tiger.

"Have you had your iron today?"

"Yes, I've bitten my nails."

PERSONALS

Kemp and Elizabeth Bowen, '24, who are teaching in Norfolk, visited the college this past week-end.

He—"I've never kissed a girl before."
"What do you do—make them turn around?"

Hawkshaw himself (detective arriving on scene.)—"Heavens," he said, "this is more serious than I thought,—the window pane has been broken on both sides."

"Are you Hungary?"

"Yes, Siam."

"Den Russia to the table and I'll Fiji."

"All right, Sweden my coffee and Denmark my bill."

DR. KATE WALLER BARRETT SPEAKS ON THE OPPORTUNITIES OF WOMEN

Eight hundred of Virginia's future teachers had the privilege, on Wednesday, November 5th, of hearing a speech which should inspire them to go forth and show the State the art of teaching at its best. Dr. Kate Waller Barrett, of Alexandria, delivered the address which was one of the most stirring and earnest ever heard from our platform. She pointed out that the people before her would in the next decade, touch personally over 400,000 people in the home and the class room. What an opportunity for service. Women, as Dr. Barrett stated further, are more potent in politics because they are free and unprejudiced, more influential in the home and school, because they are mothers and, in the majority, teachers. "Women," says Dr. Barrett, "make the atmosphere of the country much more than men do."

Dr. Barrett is connected with the Iwakoto Girls School, which it would be entirely erroneous to call a reformatory. One can readily understand the success of such an institution, when under the guidance of such a splendid woman as the doctor. She says, "When people learn to put people in the repair shop, instead of the dump heap, then we'll get somewhere."

Dr. Barrett is also playing a major part in the political activities of the United States. It was she who seconded the nomination of Mr. Carter Glass in the Democratic Convention at New York last summer, and who spoke in such a way as to make men and women, worn out with continuous speech-making and speech-hearing, sit on the edge of their chairs with interest. She is a daughter of which the South can well be proud and one qualified to speak authoritatively on the subject of Woman's Opportunities, for she has taken advantage of these opportunities and lived up to the highest standards of womanhood.

On Wednesday afternoon, Dr. Barrett made an address on Citizenship, before an open meeting of the Womens Club. She stated that the tripod upon which citizenship and patriotism rested, was that of Bread, Beauty, and Brotherhood. One listening, could not help but understand how this eloquent—powerful woman held and swayed the Democratic Convention. Her address was enough to make every true son of America rally to the country she termed "America, the Beautiful, whose other name is love," and whose religion should be based upon consecration, devotion and knowledge.

Small Talk

Mrs. Brown's husband hanged himself in the attic. After the tragedy, a neighbor wished to call on Mrs. Brown to extend her sympathy. The daughter of the neighbor said, "Oh, mother,—please don't go, you always say the wrong thing, let me go."

Where upon, the mother agreed to speak only of the weather and thereby avoid the tragedy.

LITERARY SOCIETIES

The Argus Literary Society met on October 25th, in the Student Building auditorium. In the absence of the president, Annie Miller Almond, presided. A program and social committee were appointed and phases of the year's work discussed. Names of new girls, were presented and discussed, but no formal vote was taken. "Bid Day" will soon be held.

The regular meeting of the Athenian Literary Society which met Saturday evening, in the Y. W. Association room, was as might be expected, of a spooky nature. Instead of the White electric lights which penetrate every corner, the room was dimly lit by orange lights which cast uncanny shadows on the black cats and witches who rode up and down on the slightly moving white curtains.

A gay Hallowe'en Sprite finally persuaded a little girl to go with her to play pranks. Mother Hallowe'en, accompanied by her cat, appeared as if by magic and told the story of Hallowe'en over a Steaming caldron.

The Hallowe'en Sprite and Mother Hallowe'en disappeared in form but seemed to remain in spirit; the dim lights grew dimmer and each member participated in a rigamarole ghost story. By the time this was finished, a rather creepy feeling was created and cold chills were running up and down our spines. To make things spookier, a white apparition entered with a gust of wind, distributed to each girl her fate, and quickly with another gust of wind, was gone.

This was as much as the girls could endure, so brighter lights were turned on and Florence Riess conducted a very catty contest, Elizabeth Barrow, winning the prize.

After the singing of the Society song, delightful refreshments were served, which were, as all preceding features of the program, enjoyed by all.

A very interesting program on the life of Joseph Conrad was presented at the regular meeting of the Cunningham Literary Society on Wednesday evening, November 5th. Evelyn Beckham gave a brief, but thorough account of the life of Joseph Conrad. A very interesting talk was made by Lucile Walton, on the geographical settings of Conrad's works. Virginia Jordan gave an interesting as well as beneficial book review on Conrad's Victory.

It was decided that the aim for the year would be the study of modern authors.

Penn State held "Poverty Day" on the campus, where it looked as if hundreds of hoboes were making camp. Many novel stunts were pulled by the Freshmen in celebrating their annual event.

WOMANLESS WEDDING

On Thursday night, November 6th, S. T. C. auditorium, at 7 o'clock, a great many of the students and a number of town people witnessed one of the leading social events of the season—A Womanless Wedding—a new thing at S. T. C., but never the less, a success. Mr. Coyner, as the blushing bride, charmed and delighted the many spectators, while with Mr. McCorkle as minister, we almost wondered if after all he had not mistaken his vocation. The men in our Faculty being rather in a minority, we were obliged to call on town people who responded with their usual willingness.

All passed off smoothly at first, but the audience found themselves with bated breath when the rejected suitor—(Charlie Garnett.) stated that he had objection to the wedding, but the father once more comes to the rescue and the ceremony goes smoothly on.

The gowns worn by the bride and her attendants, were indeed beautiful and in the height of fashion. The wedding was a rainbow one, and all colors were represented.

The bride and groom were almost overcome with the congratulations of their enthusiastic friends when the ceremony was over.

Not in many a long day have we had the pleasure of seeing such an attractive wedding and S. T. C. will talk it over many times as a successful event of a successful year.

Student Government Column

A Greenock merchant chanced to fall into the harbor of this particular town and would have drowned, had not a sailor, passing by, come to his rescue. He handed a shilling to the lad who had saved his life and the surrounding crowd immediately protested against the contemptible insignificance of the man. The great poet Robert Burns, was standing near and, with a smile of ineffable scorn, treated them to restrain their clamor. "For," said he, "the gentleman is, of course, the best judge of the value of his own life."

At what value have you placed your life, your abilities, your character and conscience? You, yourself, must decide the worth of each element of your physical and mental life. This worth is based upon your use and control of the elements, and these cannot be ascertained until the elements have been put to a test. There must be a battle with a resulting defeat or victory.

Others cannot make you believe you have done well when you have failed nor can you be persuaded that you have failed in a task your own conscience pronounces well done. Some of the greatest victories are won in the soul. The world knows nothing of them, yet these victories weave their influence into a character which is exposed to the world.

Only by doing best all that is right, whether alone or in company, can you face your inevitable self, place upon it the highest personal value and pronounce yourself approved in the sight of honest men.

BRUCE CURRY INSTITUTE

The local Y. W. C. A. was well represented at the institute held at R. M. W. C. last week-end. The institute was in the nature of a training class for Discussion of Group Leaders. Dr. A. Bruce Curry, a noted Bible lecturer, was the able leader and made the meeting very helpful and inspirational. The key-note through all the session was Life at Its Best, this was approached through the Bible and thru every day problems.

Among the college presidents, were W. & M., W. & L., S. T. C., Harrisonburg; V. P. L., Lynchburg College, R. M. W. C., S. M. A., Hampden-Sidney, and the University of Virginia. All of the delegates co-operated one with another and exchanged ideas of helpfulness. Those attending the institute from here, were: Mary Jones, Frances Howard, Ann Jett, Chubby Gray, Daisy Shaffer, Lucille Wright, Gertrude Quinn, Ann Robertson, Louise Blake, and Sue Roper.

The Plays the Thing.

An enchanted garden and a princess—a dragon and elves and ghosts, to say nothing of a hero who is all that heart could desire, in the way of dashing gallantry and manly courage!

Surely these include all the elements necessary for the carrying out of a most intriguing and satisfactory plot. At any rate, the Seniors have found it so in their play—"Maiden Over the Wall," which they are to give on the night of Saturday, November 22nd, at 7:30.

Just a whimsical little thing it is,—with its dancing maidens, its tender-hearted elves, and wailing ghosts. From the very parting of the curtains, the audience is whisked away in an atmosphere of dark mystery and medieval magic, to a place that "never was on land or sea," where, true to all fairy precedent, the lovely princess, held in thrall by the cruel and blood-thirsty dragon, is discovered and released by the hero, a most modern young man.

To come down to earth—which is very hard to do when one has started in an enchanted garden—it is a charming play, and no one should miss the opportunity of seeing it. Rehearsals are progressing satisfactorily, with an admirable cast, foremost among whom are Peggy Moore, as the imprisoned princess, and Mary Rives Richardson, as the nonchalant, devil-may-care-hero. The proceeds are for the Student Building.

THE FIRST GRADE PARTY

No doubt, there were many, many, Hallowe'en parties in progress on October 31st, but none quite so successful and enjoyable as the one given in the First Grade last Friday morning. Goblins, witches, black-cats, ghosts, and owls were in evidence everywhere, and even entertained the on-lookers with wild, fantastic dances. The refreshments, costumes, and entertainment were all planned for and arranged by the children themselves. Everyone present testified to its success.

ATHLETIC POINT SYSTEM INTRODUCED

CHEER LEADER ELECTED

Immediately following the Student Body Meeting which was held Monday night, November 3, the Athletic Association had quite a peppy meeting.

Peggy Moore was unanimously elected Cheer Leader for the school. After this, Miss Graham gave a brief talk in which she stated that S. T. C. has at present the finest Athletic Council in its history, and this council with the co-operation of the student body is going to put on the biggest program ever staged at S. T. C. We are going to have some phase of athletics throughout the entire year. This year there is to be Tennis, Basketball, Volley Ball, Indoor and Outdoor Baseball, Next year Hockey and Soccer will be included.

To each girl winning the required number of points a certificate and monogram will be given. In order to obtain one of these monograms, each contestant must pass certain tests, and must win thirty-five additional points, which may be chosen.

The following are the tests: (These have to be passed:—)

I—Badge Test—to pass the three tests, included in the Playground tests for girls.

II—Baseball Target Throw—hit a target placed at certain distance, four out of four trials. If six out of six are made, additional points will be given.

III—Basketball Distance Throw—make a throw of 45 feet. One point extra for 50 feet and two points for extra 55 feet.

IV—Hiking—develop ability to hike ten miles in one trip. Hike ten miles in addition to earn three extra points. Not more than six points to be earned by hiking.

EDITORIAL

"THE time has come the Walrus said to speak of many things—" That seems to be what is happening in school at present, among the many is one which concerns good citizenship. When you go down town the next time, watch the girls you meet and see how they are walking. Very nearly all are walking three and four sometimes five or six abreast. Is this fair? The people of Farmville have been lovely to us and they are always more the considerate. It seems that we should repay them in as many ways as we can. When we monopolize the pavement in this way, we certainly are being anything but considerate. We are not even giving them a fair chance. It is worth the life of a single pedestrian to wend his way along Main street between 4 and 6 o'clock in the afternoon.

Last year we so far overlooked this fact, that Dr. Jarman had to call our attention to it. We don't want to make it necessary for him to do this a second time. So girls, think before you stretch from one side of the pavement to the other. We are not expected to walk single file, but neither is it polite to drive other people out in the street. Think this over, and avoid causing other people embarrassment as well as inconvenience.

RUMOR says that this year, there is not to be the usual lively competition between the Freshman-Sophomore classes, over getting their colors over the Rotunda first, the day before the big game. When one asks "why?" the answers have been either that there have been hard feelings between individuals or that this is the only way each class will have to get the Rotunda at least once.

Are these plausible reasons? No matter what we may do whether there is competition attached to it or not, there is bound to be hard feelings. Because some individuals are poor sports, is it right for the rest of us to suffer? Are we to make this another time when the innocent will suffer for the guilty?

I am sure that neither the Freshman or the Sophomore class will get any pleasure from walking calmly to the Rotunda and putting up the red and white or the green and white (as the case may be.) Even if a class has to leave without ever being lucky enough to be the first at the Rotunda on that eventful day, the colors without the competition means nothing.

This is the only form of class rivalry we have. Is this piece of pep to be taken away from us? What harm can a straightforward, fair competition do anyone? Is the Next step to be to take away basketball?

It's up to the all-classman to stand up for their rights. This is a case when the majority will rule. Are the poor sports, those who are afraid of a fair competition to rule? Come, show where you stand. Fight for your colors and make the day of the game a gala-day in the school. Speak up, don't be dictated to. Say what you want, and get it!

STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE
HIGH SCHOOL ACCREDITED

Mr. Warren D. Bowman, Principal of the Training School, recently received a letter from Mr. M. L. Combs, State Supervisor of Secondary Education, to the effect that the State Teachers College High School has been placed on the accredited list of Secondary Schools of Virginia, for the session 1924-25.

The High School started off well this session with an enrollment of 80 students. A number of new students have been admitted to the senior class which brings the enrollment of this class up to 30. The new permanent High School schedule which was put into effect this fall, is working admirably. The administration and teachers look forward to a successful and prosperous year.

The enrollment of the entire Training School has now reached the number of 376 pupils.

THE RICHMOND CLUB HIKE

On Saturday evening at the hour of three, The Richmond Club of S. T. C., Went on a hike to the Lithia Springs. With packages filled with all kinds of things.

We built a big fire and wummies we roasted. And what could be better than marshmallows toasted? We ate and we sang and then ate some more. Everything tasted better than ever before.

But all good things come to an end, they say. So back to the campus we trudged on our way. And then all together we said just alike. That we never had had so much fun on a hike.

GAMMA THETA BANQUET

The annual Gamma Theta rush banquet was held Saturday, November 1, in the Tea Room. The color scheme of blue and white, was attractively carried out from the large white chrysanthemums in the center to the blue lights ornamenting the table.

The old girls returning for the banquet were: Agnes Baptist, Nancy Lyne, Julia Ried, Frances Warren, Elizabeth Thompson, Mary Stephenson, Kathryne Thompson, Helen Brent, Louise Pearsons and Elizabeth McClung.

NEW MEMBERS OF DRAMATIC CLUB MAKE FIRST APPEARANCE.

On Friday evening at the sing the new members of the Dramatic Club, made their first appearance in a delightful sketch, "All Things Come to Those Who Wait."

Time—Anytime.
Place—Railroad Station.
er and Bliker, seo.

Characters—Station Master, mother and x number children. (The writer was forced to stop at 59 for want of an adding machine.)

Problem—How to cross railroad with x number of children?

Solution—Wait until all trains have gone.

Of course, the new members had little chance to really show their talent, but it was enough for the Student body to know that with such material it can expect good results from the Dramatic Club.

ALPHA CHAPTER OF SIGMA SIGMA SIGMA GIVES TWENTY-SIX BANQUETS

As has been the custom at S. T. C. for many years past, the Alpha Chapter of Sigma Sigma Sigma came to the climax of its rush season, when on Friday, October 31st, the annual rush banquet was given in the Tea room. Sorority colors and emblems were effectively carried out in the decorations and menu. Attractive place cards enabled the participants to find their places while the rushes were presented with beautiful favors as a remembrance of a gala occasion.

After the banquet was over, the gay party found its way to the Auditorium of the Student Building and enjoyed an informal dance. Here, the decorations further carried out the color scheme of purple and white. After dancing, light refreshments were served. Miss Pauline Camper, Tri-Sigma faculty adviser, acting as hostess.

Out of town guests were Misses Mary Lydia Quarles, Susie Craft, and Nancy Huxton, who are teaching in Charlottesville; Miss Eliza Davis of FACES; Misses Agnes Walker and Gypsy Johnson, of Norfolk; Miss Marion Sales, of Ashland; Miss Katherine Allen, of Prospect; and Miss Sally Barksdale, of Roanoke, Va.

HALLOWEEN COSTUME DANCE

A costume dance was given in the gym on Halloween under the direction of the Brunswick Club, for the benefit of the Student Building.

The gymnasium was beautifully decorated with black and orange paper, pumpkins, and autumn leaves. The music was furnished by Bartholomew's Ten-Piece Orchestra. The prize for the best costume was awarded to Miss Ida Jones and the booby prize to Miss Blanche Graham, the judges being Misses Barlow, Bullock and Grenels. During intermission, Miss Gertrude Quinn gave a special dance in a Turkish costume. Fortunes were told and ice cream and punch were on sale.

The University of Richmond has a heavy debating schedule this year. There are seven experienced inter-collegiate debaters there and the University is looking forward to a successful year.

A I Referee.

Miss Blanche E. O. Graham, has the honor of being one of the five A-I referees in Virginia, as recognized by the State Basketball Committee and is endorsed by the American Physical Education Association, and Committee on Athletics at the University of Virginia.

Miss Graham was coach of the Winthrop High School basketball team for three years, of the Morgan Memorial basketball team for three years, of her class team at Sargeant for three years, and played center on the Varsity at Sargeant for three years. She also taught basketball at Sargeant one year. She was a member of the Wall-Sealing team at Sargeant for three years, on the LaCrosse team for two years, captain of the second soccer team, member of baseball team two years, captain of LaCrosse ball team, member of Cricket team, rowen on second crew, held Sargeant record in Hop-Skip-Jump, was vice-president of the Athletic Association, and was a member of various clubs while at Sargeant.

Miss Graham attended the meeting of the State Basketball Committee held in Richmond, Va., Saturday, October 25th. The following is an account of the meeting:

The committee first appointed a list of approved officials for the coming year. There are to be two classifications of referees, A and B. Those in A are experienced referees who have refereed successfully in the past year. Those in class B, have not succeeded as well as those in A, but may come into A as soon as examined and passed by the committee. The idea of these two classes being to raise the standard of refereeing.

The committee also set a standard fee to be paid referees. Plans are being made to hold institutes in refereeing in certain sections of the State, which if successfully carried out, will be of a great advantage. At present, there is a very limited supply of referees and it is hoped that it will be increased.

SECOND NUMBER OF LYCEUM COURSE ON NOVEMBER 12TH

On Wednesday, November 12, the student body will have the pleasure of hearing two distinguished artists—Miss Georgia Price and Mrs. Katherine Tift-Jones. Miss Price is a harpist of unusual skill and has a thorough mastery of the instrument. The harp Miss Price uses was designed especially for her and is one of the most beautiful in America, and worthy of its owner's genius and European training.

Mrs. Katherine Tift-Jones, a well-known reader, owes her fame to her charming personality, individual appearance and presentations, and her ability to enchant her audience by the perfection of her art. She studied under the talented Mary Ann Lipscomb, of Georgia, and reflects great credit upon her well-known instructor.

Both Miss Price and Mrs. Jones, have received ovations wherever they have appeared, and anyone who has witnessed their performance will agree that they justly deserved all the praise.

INTER-COLLEGIATE NEWSA Friend

The chum who sticks through thick and thin,
Who clasps your hand if you lose or win,
Who cares not whether you're down or up,
But stands nearby with a cheering sup;
Who sings your praise whatever you do,
And helps, and boosts and sticks like glue;
Who shares your joys as well as your woes,
And don't give a whoop if it rains or snows
So long as it helps to serve your end,
Is the only chum to call a friend.

THE VISIT

Mrs. Brown—Yes, it is awful weather, Mr. Smith, and I can't get my clothes done as I can't hang them in the rain.

Mrs. Smith—Oh, why don't you hang them in the attic, it is such a nice place to hang things.

EDITORIAL

"Please send my mail to Table 22." How many girls have felt just a least bit "Prep schoolish," when they had to write that. After all, why haven't we Post Office Boxes as other colleges have? It would certainly be a saver, in time, labor and string. Our Post Mistress could put up the mail in much less time and save the time delivering it in the dining-room. Also packages could be gotten in vacant periods and mail gotten after each delivery instead of waiting for meal time.

And, too, many a pound has been lost when exciting letter arrives—food is forgotten, while many fall into the "slough of despondency" when there is no letter and forget to eat.

The book of etiquette says: "do not read while dining." Do our manners come up to this standard?

Reason certainly tells us to have Post Office Boxes—it is much more systematic—requires less labor, is a great time-saver and is most important to save each precious minute in this busy life. And after all, we are a regular college now, why not be one to the fullest extent even unto Post Office Boxes? Is it sentiment that keeps alive this old custom, or lack of thought?

Once again, the question of consideration for others must be brought to our attention. This time, it is in a question of consideration for the Faculty, and for our fellow-students.

When we are in our rooms during the day we seem to forget that others are in classes. We remember something that we have left in another room, or that we have something we want to tell someone that lives in another room across the court or down the hall. Instead of walking to the room and speaking to the person, up goes the window, then a wild shriek, answered by one equally as wild, and perhaps a conversation of five minutes or more goes on in this same manner.

The teacher who is trying to teach his class something and who most unfortunately has a class room anywhere near, has to stop his lesson and wait. The students lose connection and interest during this pause, unless they are very unusual students. These five or more minutes are wasted both for teacher and pupils.

We have to make every minute count here and it is not fair for one or two girls to make from twenty to thirty girls lose five minutes. These conversations have been noticed particularly between the girls living on boarding room and white house halls, and those living on infirmary and west wing.

There is not a single girl in this school that doesn't want to play fair. So when you have a vacant period, don't use it to annoy others, if you haven't a class, remember, there are others who have. Transact your social or business conversations in a more private and considerate way!

Weekly Program

—WEEK OF NOVEMBER 17th-22nd, 1924—

THE LEWIS PLAYERS, with DICK LEWIS, will play at the Theatre during this entire week. There will be an entire change of program each night. A good orchestra accompanies this company, and they will present good, clean Vaudeville between the acts of their plays.

DICK LEWIS has a repertoire of exceptionally good entertainment this season and will open Monday night with "WHO'S DAUGHTER." "A FAMILY AFFAIR" will be presented Tuesday night. On Wednesday night, "Hearts of the Blue Ridge," will be the play, and in this one, you will see DICK take the part of an old negro Mammy.

THURSDAY NIGHT, the Comedy-Drama, "Other Peoples' Money" will be the attraction. "The Straight Road" a feature dramatic play, will be presented FRIDAY night. On Saturday at 3:30, there will be a special Matinee.

SATURDAY NIGHT—the closing attraction will be "RIDE IN YOUR OWN CAR" a play written by Don Melrose, especially for Dick Lewis.

—The Lewis Players carry special settings for their plays that would do credit to a New York production.—All tickets will be sold at the Theatre.—Shows start each night at 8 o'clock.—Admission to Adults: 50 cents. Children under 12 years of age, 25 cents.

TIFT-JONES-PRICE CONCERT IN AUDITORIUM

SECOND NUMBER OF
LYCEUM CURSE LITERARY SOCIETIES PRE-SENT PAGEANT

One of the most delightful concerts given in the College Auditorium, was presented Wednesday, November 12th, by Miss Georgia Price, harpist, and Mrs. Katherine Tift-Jones, American Disense. Miss Price skillfully and beautifully played many selections. She also interpreted on her harp many of Mrs. Jones' readings. Miss Price justly deserved the praise which she received for her mastery of this difficult instrument.

Mrs. Jones more than filled the expectations of the audience. Her presentations and personality charmed her hearers. She is indeed an artist, a fact which the audience was not long in realizing.

ZIMMER HARP TRIO WITH MARIO CAPELLI TO APPEAR IN CONCERT AT S. T. C.

Sherman K. Smith will present in joint concert the Zimmer Harp Trio, and Mario Capelli, lyric tenor, at the College Auditorium, November 17. The Zimmer Harp Trio headed by Nellie Zimmer, nationally known Harp Soloist, is a trio of unusual ability. The members, who are Louise Harris, second Harpist, and Gladys Crookford, Harpist and pianist, are artists of exceptional talent. Miss Zimmer has a thorough mastery of the instrument; this is patent in the wealth of tone, which emanates from the harp. The program, which will be devoted to classical, semi-classical, and folklore music, cannot help but fascinate the audience, because of the variety of selections.

Signor Capelli needs no introduction. Both his fine voice and magnetic personality, have charmed previous audiences at the college, and he is again being anticipated with great pleasure by all.

The program follows:

I
Winter Thomas Rogers
Misses Harris and Crookford

II
(a) Where'er you walk Handel
(b) Little Brown Bird Wood
Signor Capelli

III
(a) Air de la Cantata Bach
(b) Legende Renie

Misses Zimmer, Harris and Crookford

The Literary Societies will formally issue bids on November 22, 1924. On Thursday, November 20th, they will present a pageant written by Miss S. Elizabeth Davis, under the direction of Margaret Moore. The pageant is based on Dr. C. Alphonso Smith's "What Can Literature Do For Me?" The scene is laid in a Student's study, and the curtain rises on the Student vainly trying to write. The Spirit of Literature enters and shows the Student how, with the knowledge of Self-Expression, Idealism, History, Human Nature, and the Glory of the Commonplace, she might know mastery of Language.

The following is the cast:
Self-Expression—Pierian Literary Society.
Idealism—Athenian Literary Society.
History—Jefferson Literary Society.
Human Nature—Argus Literary Society.
The Glory of the Commonplace—Ruffner Literary Society.
Mastery of Language—Cunningham Literary Society.

LITERARY SOCIETIES

ARGUS LITERARY SOCIETY

The Argus Literary Society had their regular meeting on Saturday night. A great deal of enthusiasm was shown over the discussion of new members, which completed the business of the meeting.

The first program of the year was given. At a previous meeting, it had been decided to make Modern Fiction the subject of study for the year. To introduce this a short sketch was given, which proved to be most amusing as well as enlightening.

The meeting adjourned with great plans for the future, which it seems, will indeed be carried out if this amount of pep is shown at every meeting.

THE FOOTBALL SEASON

"In the spring a young man's fancy Often turns to thoughts of love." In the fall, Oh what a difference! Football takes the place of love.

Then no letters, burning letters. Saying, "I love you more and more," But instead, the college paper, Telling you the football score.

ANNUAL BANQUET TO BE HELD IN RICHMOND

On Friday, November 28, the Farmville alumni will hold a banquet at Murphy's Hotel, Richmond. Plates will be $1.50 each, and any one desiring to reserve a plate, may do so by writing to Miss Mary Glasgow, 1612 Park Avenue, Richmond.

The Richmond Chapter is preparing a very interesting and entertaining program. They are very desirous of having a large crowd and are ready to assure everyone a good time.

The Sensational Syncopaters Organize.

Several girls in the school, after playing for the Halloween dance, decided to act upon the advice of many students and organize an orchestra, which will fill a need long felt in the school. A meeting decided that only two officers were needed, one a leader, and one to buy and take care of the music. Ruth Bartholomew, was elected to fill the former place, and Emily Whitmore the latter.

After much discussion, the members decided to call themselves "The Sensational Syncopaters." A regular hour was set for practice.

The personnel of the orchestra is as follows:—

Emily Whitmore, Piano.
Olive Smith, 1st Violin.
Adelaide Emory, 2nd Violin.
Helen Thomas, Mandolin.
Pauline Reynolds, Mandolin.
Mary E. Booker, Mandolin.
Marion Titchett, Guitar.
Winnie Lang, Guitar.
Madeline Gary, Guitar.
Anne Jester, Gazook.
Ruth Bartholomew, Drums.

MISS BUFORD AGAIN HONORARY MEMBER OF SOPHOMORE CLASS

On Thursday morning, the Sophomores appeared for the first time this year in their snappy caps. To the tune of a peppy march "On Came the Four Hundred."

The resident presented, to the student body and faculty, Miss Buford, who having adequately filled the office of Freshman Man was re-elected by the class to be their leader during the Sophomore year.

After Miss Buford had been presented, the class sang her a song with an amount of enthusiasm which showed that they actually appreciate what an excellent choice they have made.

With Miss Buford at their head, the chapel exercises being over, the Sophomores about facted and left the auditorium.

NOTTOWAY CLUB ORGANIZED

The girls from Nottoway county, met Thursday, November 6th, and organized a club. The girls are looking forward with great interest to the good times in store for them. The following officers were elected:

President—Katherine Shore
Vice-Pres.—Alice Cook.
Sec.—Treas.—Stella Spencer.
Advisor—Mrs. Lang.

UPDIKE HEADS FRESHMAN CLASS

The peppiest meeting of the Freshman Class this year, was held in the auditorium of the Student Building on November 5th, 1924. Talks were given by Anne Smith and Olive Smith, preceding the election of officers. After a very heated and forceful discussion of the nominees, the following officers were elected:

President—Virginia Urdike.
Vice-Pres.—Marian Chewning
Secretary—Amanda Gray.
Treasurer—Evelyn Dulancy.
Athletic Council Representative—leanor Zacharias.
Cheer Leaders—Kitty Red and Jackie Woodson.

The president called another meeting of the class November 10. Miss Graham told the girls about the inter-class games that are to be played on Thanksgiving Day. The Freshman Class will be divided into four groups, Course I, II, III and IV. These teams will play each other and the Freshman teams will be picked from the four teams. Each squad has elected a captain and they are going to have some stiff practicing.

Armistice Day Exercises

On Armistice Day, a most impressive program was effectively carried out in Chapel.

In addition to the singing of patriotic songs, several interesting talks were given by members of the faculty who were overseas during the War.

Miss Wheeler, the first to speak, told a number of her experiences in France, as War worker.

Messrs. Winn, Coyner, McCorkle, and Bowman, related a few of their experiences in the service, touching upon the nobleness and supreme sacrifices made by everyone during the War. As a climax, Dr. Diehl, delivered an excellent speech on the important part of the United States in the Great War.

PROGRESSIVE EDUCATION CLUB MEETS

The Progressive Education Club met Friday night, November 7th. The Club was honored by the presence of the honorary member, Mr. Wynne, who made a most interesting address.

The Club is planning to discuss vital current educational topics at the bi-monthly meetings. Each member is writing to her former division superintendent for problems for discussion, which will make for more efficient teaching in the State.

"NATURE STUDY"

The person who said: "Ain't Nature Grand!" Got his information second hand.

Did he read till his eyes in tears would soak,
Did he know a maple from an oak
Did he walk when the sun was broiling hot?
My frank opinion is, he did not!

—L. T.

GUTZON BORGUM HERE SOON

Gutzon Borglum, the sculptor, who dreamed a dream and who is bringing that dream to pass in the Stone Mountain Confederate Memorial, is coming to Farmville on November 19th, to tell something of how that dream is being realized.

This daring and colossal plan of his to carve an army across the precipice of Stone Mountain, near Atlanta, Ga., as a memorial to the Confederacy, was presented to the public in the spring of 1915, but owing to the World War, was not launched until 1923. On April 20, 1923, at a conference of Southern governors, held in Atlanta, a beginning was made. Mr. Borglum estimates the entire cost of the Pantheon and Memorial Hall at $3,500,000, of which, $325,000 has been raised up to date.

Mr. Borglum, as well as being a famous sculptor, is an interesting speaker, thoroughly filled with his subject. Last year, he spoke to an audience of 900 people in Lynchburg.

His is a subject in which every Southerner and especially every Virginian, should feel a great interest. It is hoped that he will be greeted in Farmville by the audience he deserves — by an audience made-up of those who wish to preserve for posterity, some of the traditions of the old South. Mr. Borglum is, by his lectures, stimulating interest in this great work in order that funds may be forthcoming for its completion.

Mr. Borglum is coming to Farmville under the auspices of the Woman's Club. Admission to all students will be fifty cents, to others, one dollar.

GET YOUR SKATES

Girls, clean up your ice skates for a cold winter's coming and plenty of ice. Mr. Coyner will be glad to accompany you and perhaps, he may be prevailed upon to instruct in this art, those of you who come from the warmer regions.

It is also hoped that a guarantee may be extracted from him to the effect that all falls and bumps will be painless. This is doubtful, but he will pull you out if you insist upon taking an icy bath. Putting all jokes aside, there really is to be ice skating this year. So be prepared.

MISS SPEAR ILL

The girls that were here last year and alumni will be distressed to hear of the illness of Miss Edna Norton Spear, who has been a beloved member of the faculty for several years, and has been greatly missed this year.

She is now under the care of White and Clark, surgeons, Temple, Texas.

HOT COALS FROM THE TONGS!

Young Man—"So Miss Adeline is your oldest sister? Who comes after her?"

Small Boy—"Nobody ain't come yet, but pa says the first fellow that come can have her."

New Books in the Library

Cabel—Straws and Prayer Books.
Canfield—Home-Maker.
De la Mare—Ding Dong Dell.
Galsworthy—White Monkey.
McKenna—Tomorrow and Tomorrow.
Mencken—Prejudices, Fourth Series.
Walpole—The Old Ladies.
Archer—The Old Drama and the New.

Byrne, Donn—Messer Marco Polo.
This little story of the love of Marco Polo for Golden Bells, the daughter of Kubla Khan, makes an utterly delightful tale. Cabel calls this "a very magically beautiful book."

Byrne, Donn—Blind Raftery.
A charming idyll of the Irish countryside, telling of the love of a blind harpist for the beautiful Spanish lady, Hilaria, and the thwarted revenge of the Welshman of Claregalway. Quite equal to Mario Polo.—Booklist.

Hergesheimer, Joseph—Balisand.
An excellent character study of a colonial Virginian, who though an ardent admirer of Washington, was out of touch with his fellows on the political topics. A rich, colorful and moving book beautifully written.—Booklist.

Stallings, Laurence—Plumes.
This story of the experiences of Richard Plume, an enlisted soldier who returns badly wounded to a wife and baby in Washington, is a compelling study of the progressive development of war. The characters speak with an arresting candor which cannot help but provoke the reader to an intelligent and sympathetic interest. Mr. Stallings is co-author of What Price Glory, an impressive success now being played in New York.—Booklist.

Patersen, Isabel—The Singing Season.
A historical novel of considerable distinction, realistically reproducing both the color and the illusions of the early days of the Renaissance, when Spain was rent by political and religious dissensions.

Forster, E. M.—Passage to India.
One of the outstanding books of the season. The story concerns the reactions of two new-comers—Adela Quested and Mrs. Moore—a young and an old woman—to India. In the background play the vague colors of India and Anglo India, and the gross misunderstandings that must arise when two races live together. A Passage to India has the beauty and pathos which belong to Mr. Forster's best work.

Sedgwick, Anne Douglas—The Little French Girl.
The contrasting social standards of the French and the English, in particular, their different views about marriage, form the background of this story. Alix, the little French girl, is sent to England to find a suitable marriage. The vivid sense of the mind and the manner of approaching life and its problems of two countries combine to fashion a book that is highly distinguished.—Book Review Digest.

Macauley, Rose—Told by an Idiot.
This story is a panorama of the changes and events of the years from 1879 to 1923 as they affect the lives of the Garden family—the Rev. Aubrey Garden, a minister who was always changing his creed; his wife who patiently adapted herself to each of papa's new faiths; his children and grandchildren. The follies and peculiarities of each period are touched off brilliantly and wittily. Satire it is—but never bitter or intolerant.—Book Review Digest.

Wharton, Edith—Old New York.
Four stories of four successive decades in New York social life which together form an authentic social history of old New York in the middle years of the last century. These tales rank with Mrs. Wharton's best work.

Shaw, Bernard—Saint Joan.
Thomas, David B.—One Hundred Years of the Monroe Doctrine.
Wharton, Edith—The Old Maid.
Wharton, Edith—False Dawn.
Gibbons, Herbert Adam—An Introduction to World Politics.
Robertson, William Spence—History of the Latin-American Nations.
Macauley, Rose—Told by an Idiot.
Byrne, Donn—Blind Raftery.
Hergesheimer, Joseph—Balisand.
Iconoclast—J. Ramsey MacDonald—The Man of Tomorrow.

VIRGINIA EDUCATIONAL CONFERENCE

The usual Virginia Educational Conference will be held in Richmond, November 25 to 28. In 1923, the attendance totaled 4,000. It is hoped that it will be as large, or if possible greater this year.

This year finds the Conference with many business problems to solve. The electing of a new president for the State Teachers Association plan for the erection of a Preventorium, and legislature plans for the next Conference.

There will be discussions in the various departments, and addresses at the general meetings.

The railroad authorities have promised reduced rates to Richmond for those wishing to attend the Conference.

INTERCOLLEGIATE NEWS

The non-fraternity men of Emory University, have rented a house which is to be known as the "Emory Home." There has been a need felt among the non-fraternity men for many years for a place that could be used as a general "hang-out," and "meeting place," and this idea has been enthusiastically greeted. Already, many applications have been filed for rooms.

This seems to be a straw vote and only three fourths of the colleges and universities of the nation are conducting such rallies, assuming political clubs, or in some way, showing the mossbacks that college men have at least the faintest glimmer of appreciation of what is going on in the outside world.

Exchange.

A woman's debating council has recently been organized at William and Mary, with the purpose of settling inter-collegiate debates. Meets are coming with several large women's colleges for the spring and winter quarters.

POINTERS

"Signing Up" is not getting permission.

Advantages of hurrying to breakfast:

1. Less time to wait for mail service.
2. More time to clean up your room before first class.
3. More time to recuperate from your regular seven-thirty "Paul Revere Ride."
4. Less time for water to get hot.
5. Less time for rolls to get cold.

Do you think Wordsworth was wrong, when he declared the most dishonorable accusation which can be brought against an author to be "that of an indolence which prevents him from endeavoring to ascertain what is his duty, or, when his duty is ascertained, prevent him from performing it."

Remember! the box outside of the Student Government door is ready to receive questions, suggestions or articles from any S. T. C. girl.

SOCIETY

A wedding of much interest in Prince Edward county, was solemnized November 11, at noon in the Methodist church at Prospect, when Miss Katherine Allen, '21, became the bride of Austin Bridgeforth.

The wedding was largely attended by residents of Farmville, and the Tri Sigma Sorority girls, of which the bride was a member while at S. T. C.

The night preceding the wedding, a large dance was given to the bridal party and friends of Miss Allen. Music was furnished for dancing from ten to two by the Hampden-Sidney orchestra. The girls from the college who were invited to the dance, were:

Misses Martha Finch, Dorcas Chaney, Caroline Parkinson, Ermine Watson, Virginia Vincent, Helen Hodges, Ann Smith, Lucille Barrette, Dottie Sholmer and Katherine Montague.

PI KAPPA OMEGA ENTERTAINS

On Monday afternoon the Pi Kappa Omega chapter, entertained the members of the faculty, faculty members, who were formerly members of the society and the honorary members at a reception.

The day was the first social event of the P. K. O. year, everyone was most enthusiastic and enjoyed themselves to the fullest extent.

Bessy Moore gave a delightful reading, which added greatly to the enjoyment of the afternoon.

Perhaps the members and their guests, spent a most delightful afternoon.

I BELIEVE

(The Creed of a University Summer school girl, as composed by herself)

I believe in flappers and cake-eaters, the men and women of Sodom and Gomorrah, that after-noon the cake-eater goeth the flapper flaps.

I believe in the curses of intelligence, the curses of look-alike in the eyes, the curses of human beings, as well as that seen at the movies in every woman's school in correspondence.

I believe in the ability to the north to go as well as south, with the moon and the stars, to make the world gay and lovely.

I believe in the only place bought in the "Corner," in rouge, in powder, in lipstick, in all make-ups and cosmetics that live on.

I believe that every hour of every day, we should deceive others by how much and what we say.

I believe in presents (when given to a woman) in promises instead of earrings, and in the divine joy of vampirism.

"Did she take Tri Sigmas?"

"No indeed, she took the Sigmas!"

Woman of House—"Who's there?"

Bouncer—"It's only me, darling—your husband."

A. O. H.—"My husband doesn't call me darling.—Police! Police!!

STANDARD OF TEACHERS TRAINING

The National Education Association feels that the diversity in professional requirements of teachers training in the different states and localities, is much greater than it should be. Resolutions have been adopted by the National Education Association placing four-years of work beyond high school as an ideal and a desirable standard. Two-years beyond high school, is the present standard and they think this should be realized within the next few years.

Farmville is helping the National Education Association to accomplish its ideal by adding about thirty degree students and over two hundred two-year students to the teaching force of the country each year.

THE MONOGRAM PLAN

MONOGRAM PLAN AS ADAPTED BY ATHLETIC COUNCIL

Plan for the College Monogram S. T. C., to be awarded by the Athletic Association of the State Teachers College at Farmville, Virginia, as passed by the Athletic Council and the Faculty Advisory Committee.

Any girl may secure the College Monogram S. T. C., and a certificate by meeting the following requirements:

1—Each applicant for the honor, must have a good record in Sportsmanship. (Note—If in the opinion of the Athletic Council, the possessor of a Monogram does anything to lower this standard, she forfeits the right to wear this Monogram until she again attains the standard of good sportsmanship.)

2—Each applicant must be physically fit before competing. This includes Posture.

3—Each applicant must make an average grade of C in her Academic work (Note—In order to become a member of a class team, an applicant must make a passing grade in all subjects.)

4—Each applicant must pass all tests marked with an "X" and earn a total of 35 points from tests not so marked.

1—X-Badge Test.

1—Potato Race. Race to be run in (Concluded on 3rd page)

Student Body Hears Zimmer Trio and Capelli

THRU THE KINDNESS OF

DR. J. L. JARMAN

On Monday, November 17, 1924, thru the generosity of Dr. Jarman, the entire student body had the privilege of hearing the Zimmer Harp Trio, and Mario Capelli, lyric tenor, in a joint recital.

The Zimmer Trio, headed by by Nellie Zimmer, harp soloist of national reputation, is a trio of remarkable ability. Miss Zimmer delighted her audience, by the ease and grace with which she played. Her harp seemed almost human, as the flow of mellow tones issued forth.

The other members were Louise Harris, second harpist, and Gladys Crockford, harpist, and pianist, also artists of rare charm and talent.

The student body has had the pleasure of hearing Signor Campelli several times, but never has he sung more beautifully, than he did Monday.

Her Next Turn

Mary: "Is Johnny courting you?"

Marie: "Not exactly, but he is getting there step by step. When he first called on me he sat at evening with the album in his lap. Next time he sat with my dog in his lap. Then he took my little brother in his lap. And next Sunday night is my turn."

Joseph Leonard Jarman

PRESIDENT JARMAN AND THE STUDENT BUILDING

IT is good to have dreams and better still, to live to see those dreams realized. About fifteen years ago, President Jarman conceived the idea of a Student Building, to be erected by the students in order that they might not only have a concrete demonstration of their love and loyalty to their Alma Mater, but at the same time provide for those who were to follow after them, a place for the housing of all student activities: The Y. W. C. A., Student Government Association, Dramatic and Glee Clubs, Literary and Debating Societies, Sororities, Student Publications, etc.

This project was no sooner determined upon by President Jarman than the work was begun; in his characteristic enthusiasm he "started the ball rolling," just as soon as possible, and the first graduating class to make a contribution to this building, in the way of five-year pledges, was that of 1911. Out of this class of 105 graduates fifty-three pledged, amounting to a total of $964.50, a small beginning for a building which was to cost more than a hundred thousand dollars, but a beginning never-the-less. Since that time, every class has made pledges, and a number have given a cash contribution in addition, at the time of their graduation. The largest amount that has been pledged by any one class up to this time, is that made by ninety-three girls out of one hundred and seventy-seven in the class of 1922, amounting to $3,315.00.

The student body each year has worked faithfully for the Student Building; the alumnae all over the State, and for that matter, in many other States, have rallied to the call and sent cash contributions from various sources. The building has been used for a dining hall ever since the fire; the upper floor of the building were rushed to accommodate and to house the students who had roomed in the old South Wing.

The Virginia Legislature made an appropriation of $500,000 for the building, which is at last a reality. Standing on a front corner of the campus, the Student Building looms high over the surrounding structures, and has been seen at a great distance by those entering the town from several directions, a beacon of welcome to all "old girls," when they return. In the time of the disastrous fire of 1918, which occurred just a year ago, the building was a real "life-saver," for it was there that there would have been no room for a temporary dining hall, and the hundred girls who had roomed in the burned wing would have been without accommodations. The building has been used for a dining hall ever since the fire; the upper floor of the building were rushed to accommodate and to house the students who had roomed in the old South Wing.

(Concluded on 3rd page.)

THOUGHTS FROM THE PAST

The following clippings were taken from some of the past school publications. They truly express the sentiments of the Farmville girls in regard to Dr. Jarman:

"Dummy," November 19, 1920.

"There are various ways in which we may express love and loyalty. We may with words and feeling declare our love openly; perhaps we may worship another silently as from afar, or yet again, we may make it evident by our actions. . . ."

"So often we hear the expression—'Dr. Jarman and his girls,' and there is a word of meaning in that phrase. The Normal School girls, are indeed his girls, and their loyalty to him and love for home does not end with the completion of their course here. It endures and remains with them when they go out into the State to become teachers.

"And now, all together, sing:

"What's the matter with Jarman?"

Rotunda, December 17, 1920.

"Should we not give honor to whom honor is due?

"We feel that Dr. Jarman has done more than any one force in planning the Normal School on the firm foundation of conservative, yet idealistic, standards."

Rotunda, November 17, 1923.

"For you, whose life is as a torch held high, to guide us on our way, we your girls, would ask the boon of just three simple blessings; may your eyes be always clear to see the things that the years should bring; may you have an unflinching faith that will lead you to your goal; may each morning find you with courage and strength to face the task before you; and each day close bestow upon you the joy of unselfish service rendered, and the peace of work well done.

Virginian, 1907.

"Last Will and Testament.

"To Dr. Jarman our esteemed president student body of history who are so attentive as his faithful follower, 'Gipsy'.

Virginian, 1920.

"Last Will and Testament"

"We will and bequeath to Dr. Jarman, that we may 'SMILE, SMILE, SMILE' through life, a kit-bag containing all the Senior troubles."

When it comes down to the girls of '24, it seems that all that can be said has been voiced. Let us put a big exclamation point after everything, and say it over again!

EDITORIAL

DR. JARMAN.

IF we want an example, we always have one, if we need a friend, we know who to call on, when in need of advice, we need not think twice before we know who to go to, if it is a favor we want, there is someone who will always do his best for us and if we are in trouble, no one is more ready to help us, or lend his co-operation no scheme however good is even quite perfect until his opinion has been passed, this can only be one person, ---Dr. Jarman---who has proved himself the friend of every girl at S. T. C. Nothing better can be said of Dr. Jarman than that we each one love him. The old saying "Actions speak louder than words," has applied to no one it seems to me more than it applies to Dr. Jarman, for his every minute is spent doing something which will add not only to our health, happiness and education, but will make us better fit to help humanity. All Dr. Jarman ever asks in repay for his untiring service is the co-operation of each of us, and there is certainly not a single one of us but will do our best to co-operate with him in every respect.

The Campus League has done its part, the school authorities have done their part, but are we doing ours? About three weeks ago, the Campus League put on a Clean-Up Campaign; and when it was over the Campus was indeed clean, then the falling leaves rather marred the beauty and cleanly aspect of the Campus, so that the school authorities had all the leaves raked up and when they finished once more we could look out upon green grass. What have we done as our part? If you only notice as you walk along you may see here a girl eating candy, without thinking as she unwraps it down goes the paper. Another, as she passes chewing gum around to the girls, throws down the wrapper, each one of the girls, also drops the paper from her gum. Another has finished her apple, the core being in her way, down it goes. Is this fair? Why can't we play fair? The grass is more easily killed at this time of the year than at any other, yet we never seem to think of this, we cut at any and every point. At the end of the pavement leading from the front pavement to the main entrance, there is no grass on either side. It certainly detracts from the looks of the Campus and it is no ones fault but ours. Why not make it our part to be a committee of one not only to make a resolve to do better ourselves, but to remind others when they forget, and make our Campus as beautiful as possible in spite of the torn-up parts.

ENGLISH CLASS

GIVES PROGRAM

On Thursday evening, November 13, the afternoon session of Miss Hiner's English 16 entertained her and the morning session with a short program given in the auditorium. The motive of the program was the statuary of the college and various pieces were introduced and the school life centering around them was portrayed. The program was participated in and composed by the entire class. The numbers were as follows:

I—Introductory Remarks — Olive Smith.

II—"Joan of Arc" Presents a Typical Day at S. T. C.

III—The "Winged Victory" compares the dates of 1904 and 1924.

IV—The "Appeal to the Great Spirit" voices Several Opinions and Complaints.

V—Three Young People make a Practical Study of "Venus de Milo."

VI—"Diana" and "Minerva" Chat.

SHENANDOAH VALLEY

CLUB ORGANIZED

Here comes a new club! An enthusiastic meeting of the girls from the Shenandoah Valley was held Thursday after dinner for organization. The members of the faculty and Home Department, who are from the Valley, were asked to join, and the following officers were elected:

President—Frances Sale.

Vice-Pres.—Elizabeth McClure.

Sec.-Treas.—Evelyn Thompson.

Reporter—Virginia O'Connor.

WORLD WEEK OF PRAYER

OBSERVED AT S. T. C.

The week of November 9-16, which has been set aside by the Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A., through the country as World Week of Prayer and Fellowship was observed on our campus.

Special Prayer services beginning on Sunday A. M., at Morning Watch, and extending through the week each night after supper, were held and subjects of world interest and need were discussed. On Friday night, a small pageant was given which served to emphasize "The Great Vision," namely: the union of all nations in a Spirit of brotherhood, fellowship and love for God, Sunday 16, the Universal Day of prayer for students was also observed by special morning watch and afternoon prayer service.

JOAN SPEAKS

Dear me, girls, think of the dreadful state we were in this time last year. My beautiful home was all black and scarred, my girls were sent home and I was pushed and pulled around at a rate that made me dizzy. Those were terrible times, but so many nice things have happened since the piercing shriek of the fire siren was sounded that cold morning last November, we have most forgotten.

Pardon us, New Girls, the fire was such a part of us, we forget you don't know about it too. It was a terrible time when bang came trunks, suit-cases and girls down the steps together.

Dining room wing was reduced to ashes and all of my girls sent home. But pretty soon, they all came trooping back for with the help of the Faculty, a kitchen was built and our gym was turned into a dining room so "tis an ill wind that blows no good," as some wise person once said. And my reception hall! People have told me, and I know they aren't shooting me a line-for I've over heard enough conversation on Friday and Saturday nights to know the difference—that it is the prettiest in the State.

Miss Mary told me a mighty fine secret about the new dining room. She said, "Oh, but that would be telling any way, I'll be mighty glad when the dining room is finished for I feel terribly when my girls rush by me to the Student Building."

You know I've been watching these new girls and I think they are perfectly fine. They have just walked right in and made themselves at home. That is just what we wanted them to do.

I believe the girls are happier and enjoying school more than ever before. I think that the nicest birthday present we could give dear Dr. Jarman, is a busy, happy school year, with plenty of co-operation thrown in.

PRESIDENT JARMAN

(Concluded from 1st page)

And thus it stands, a monument not only to the love and loyalty of students and alumnae, but a wonderful expression of the mind and heart of President Jarman, whose enthusiasm and optimism have been the inspiration of all who have joined with him in its erection; his never-flagging zeal has spurred on many a lagging effort and we are sure it is not exaggeration to say that a great deal more than half that has been done has been done for love of President Jarman, rather than for Alma Mater.

WE BUILD

We build for the past:
Our school-girl past,
With its memories tender and sweet;
There is never a doubt
That, this past left out
Our life would be incomplete.

We build for the present:
The splendid TODAY
With its April smiles and tears;
For the lessons of truth
Instilled in our youth
Will last through the coming years.

We build for the future
And all it may hold;
For the girls of the years to come;
To give us a share
In the pleasures rare
That will grace their dear school-home.

For the College we build:
Alma Mater, so fair,
Thy daughters are loyal and true;
With zeal in each heart
They are doing their part
To show their devotion to you.

And so we build on,
Just a brick at a time,
Until our fair building shall rise
A monument sweet
To our love, and replete
With the spirit of sacrifice.

For as we build on
We're doing our best
To give of ourselves as we can;
By earnest endeavor
'Our faith flagging never)
Completing our beautiful plan!
—Jennie Masters Tabb.

Hiawatha

By the shores of Cuticura,
By the sparkling Pluto Water
Lived the prophylactic Chiclet—
Dandarine, fair Chevrolet's daughter;
She was loved by Instant Postum,
Son of Sunkist and Victrola,
Heir apparent to the Mazda,
Of the tribe of Coca-Cola.
Through the Tanlac strolled the lovers,
Through the Shredded Wheat they wandered;
"Lovely little Wrigley Chiclet,"
Were the fairy words of Postum.
"No Fyr-Fyter can quench the fire,
Nor any Aspirin still the heartache.
Oh, my Prestolite desire,
Let us marry, little Djer-Kiss."
—Selected.

Bill: "Well let's drop the principle and show some interest."—The Blue Stocking.

Sounds Fishy

A black-skinned pipe shop man went into a bank to get a check cashed. He had to stand in line quite a while, and finally just as he got to the paying window, the teller hung up a sign:—"The Bank is Busted."
Sambo: "What yo all mean, boss—the bank am busted?"
Teller: "Just busted, that's all. Didnt you ever hear of a bank being busted?"
Sambo: "Yassar, boss, yassar. But Ah never had one ter bust right in mah face!"—Pipe Progress.

Experience

There was a young woman named Florence,
Who for kissing professed great abhorrence,
But when she'd been kissed,
And found what she'd missed,
She cried till the tears came in great torrents.
—Va. Tech.

The young man approached the father of his sweetheart with the request to marry her.
"Can you support a family?" the old man asked.
"Heavens," said the indignant suitor, "I only asked for the girl."—Exc.

How Careless

Every member of the family had been stricken with ptomaine poisoning.
"You have certainly been careless about your food in some way," said the doctor to the mother of the family. "Are you sure you haven't left any food standing in tin?"
"Well, we were right careless," the mother admitted. "We went on a picnic the other day and left the lunch in the flivver until dinner time."—The Progressive Farmer.

TO DR. JARMAN.

We're come to you from many a clime
With many a purpose in view;
Some to work hard for knowledge sublime,
And some for something to do.

We're under your inuence just for a while,
Only a year or two,
Yet all of us learn to love your smile,
As well as the deeds you do.

We may come for work or come for for play,
Or because "we might as well,"
But soon we live in a greater way
We are under your magic spell.

There's something in you that makes us live—
Not to merely go by;
But to learn to take and to learn to give—
To push on and "never say die."

Oh, we'll wander far and wander near,
And wander the whole world thru,
But there'll still be a spot in our hearts
held dear,
To be filled with our love for you!

SENIORS AND FRESHMEN WIN! FRESHMEN-SOPHS; 40-4; SENIORS-JUNIORS, 14-6

On Thanksgiving morning at 8:30, in the Armory, the first Inter-Class games at the Basketball season, were played. The Freshmen playing the Sophomores, and the Juniors playing the Seniors, Colors were streaming from one end of the Armory to the other, and pep was certainly not lacking throughout the entire time.

Both games proved interesting, especially that between the Juniors and Seniors.

The Freshmen and Sophomores played one-half, and then the Juniors and Seniors played a half.

The Freshmen-Sophomore game started out by Mitchell getting the tap. Ball went to Freshman good. Litsy broke up pass, but the Sophs fouled, and Jones made first foul goal. The Sophomores did not score in the first quarter at all but never theless, they kept fighting. At the end of the first quarter, the score stood 16-0 favor of Freshmen.

In the second quarter, Mitchell again got the lead, made a rebound foul, but Sophomores missed the goal and the ball went to Freshman goal again. During this quarter, the Sophomores scored for the first time when Foster made a free throw. At the end of first half, the score was 26-1 in favor of the Freshmen.

In the third quarter, the Sophomores came back at the Freshmen, and Barnes scored one foul goal. Boisseau and Mitchell tied for tap. The Freshmen continued to add points but they had to fight to do it, 38-2 being the score at the end of the third quarter.

FRESHMEN CLASS PRESENT THEIR MAN

On Tuesday, November 25th, the largest Freshman class that S. T. C. has ever known, presented their honorary member. About 350 Freshmen, dressed in white, with red ribbons flying, and with their president, Virginia Uplike, and Miss Carrie Spradlin, their Class Man, at their head, marched down the chapel aisle.

Much pep and enthusiasm was shown in the singing of the three songs composed by members of the class and most effectively led by Mary Alice Blanton.

After chapel, the class had their picture taken in front of the College.

The class is running over with school and class spirit, and with Miss Spradlin as their advisor, they will make the Freshmen class the best class ever in S. T. C.

BIRTH DAY CAKE PRESENTED IN CHAPEL

A large white cake, the center of which, contained forty one-dollar bills for the Student Building Fund, was presented to Dr. Jarman, in chapel on his last birth day, Wednesday, November 19th.

The Sheikh: Through the Sahara's worst sandstorm I have come to thee, Nellie.

The Sheikess: Aye, Rudolph, surely thou must be a man of grit.

During the fourth quarter the spirit of the Sophs was still high, and they fought straight to the end. Boisseau scored in getting tap on Perkins' substitute for Mitchell. Sophs scored two more foul goals. When the final whistle blew, the score was 40-4 in favor of the Freshmen.

Both teams played a good game and prospects for a Varsity, are in store. The line-up was as follows:

Freshmen: Pos. — Sophomores: Jones, E. F. C. Barnes, M. P. G. Foster, L. M. J. C. Boisseau, A. Reid, K. S. C. White, A. C. Zacharias, E. G. Crute, E. G. Litsy, J. Substitutions: Freshmen—Perkins, L. Mitchell, Ward for Reid, Folkes for Hall, Grey for Crowder; Sophs—Oakley for White, Gary for Litsy, Goode for Crute.

The Junior-Senior game was thrilling from beginning to end, the final score being 14-6 in favor of Seniors.

The Juniors started off by Whaley tapping the ball, but ball went to the Senior goal. Shotwell scored first point for Seniors on a foul goal. Crenshaw shot first field goal for Juniors. Barnes came back with a field goal for the Seniors at the end of the first quarter, the score stood 5-5.

In the last quarter of the first half both teams started in to play off the tie, but some how, the Seniors added two more points to their score, while the Juniors failed to add during the quarter, thus making the score 7-5, in favor of Seniors.

SPANISH CLUB HOLDS INTERESTING MEETING

The second meeting of the Spanish Club was called to order November 22, by the president. Under the head of new business, it was decided that the Club would have red carnations, the national flower of Spain, as their flower, and their motto would be: "He who works, triumphs."

After the business meeting, a short program was given as follows:

A talk by Rosa Marie Maldonado.

A short play, "El Doble Robo."

Refreshments were served after which the meeting adjourned.

"THE TRIANGLE"

The girls of Isle of Wight, Prince George, and Nansemond counties held a meeting November 20. The following officers have been elected:

President—Anne Leigh Gwaltney.
Vice-Pres.—Evelyn Byrd.
Sec'y-Treas.—Virginia Inge.
Reporter—Lionelle Wright.

Plans for the year were discussed, and voted upon. The girls from these counties, have formed a club, "The Triangle." This is the first time these counties have been organized in a club. They are expecting to get much pleasure from the club this year.

A wife is a great comfort during all those troubles which a bachelor never has.

"MAIDEN OVER THE WALL" A GREAT SUCCESS

"I just know it'll be good."
"So do I, Mary! Peggy Moore is the heroine. She is an enchanted princess, and Mary Rives Richardson is the hero!"

"Why doesn't it hurry and start? It's already 7:32, and it was supposed to start at 7:30!"

"Oh! — — —! Sh — — —! There — — — the curtain!"
"Oh! — — —! My! Isn't that beautiful?"

"Alice, look at those little elves—Aren't they the most precious things in a house EVER seen?"

"Yes, they certainly are too dear for words, but my, what a horrible old dragon that is! I hope it won't hurt the princess!"

"Here comes the princess, now!"

"Isn't she adorable?"

"Doesn't Mary Rives Richardson make a perfect queen?"

"Ooooo! What spooky ghosts! I'm going to sleep with you tonight, Virginia."

This was just a little of the conversation overheard at the Senior play "Maiden Over the Wall," given Saturday night, November 22, for the benefit of the Student Building. The play was charming and met with such success, that it was given over again on Monday night, for the benefit of those who did not see it Saturday, or who were eager to see it again.

MR. HOWARD KESTER SPEAKS AT S. T. C.

The students at S. T. C. were especially fortunate this past week, in having the opportunity of hearing Mr. Howard Kester, of Lynchburg College speak in behalf of the Student Friendship Fund. Mr. Kester has traveled abroad and many of his actual experiences are told in his talk at 8 p. m., Tuesday evening, November 18. A room-to-room canvass has been made, giving students at S. T. C. a chance to contribute to this worthy cause.

DRAMATIC CLUB

Rehearsals for the "Yellow Jacket" are progressing very favorably. The rehearsals are held every Monday, Wednesday, and Thursday night at 8 p. m. in the Student Building auditorium. The play will be given sometime in January.

Lucy Haile Oyster, president of the Dramatic Club, has been at her home in

FRITZ BRUCH AND HIS CONCERT ENSEMBLE AT STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE

On Friday, Nov. 25, Fritz Bruch, and his concert ensemble presented an unusual and unique program in the College Auditorium. The program consisted of vocal solo, sopranos, mezzos, instrumental trios, and readings.

Fritz Bruch is one of the most notable and brilliant composer-cellists of the present day. He is a virtuoso of unusual skill. His work shows enthusiasm and fearless execution; his tone is true and rich. Mr. Bruch has formed an artistic partnership with his sister, Miss Ina Bruch, a violinist of outstanding talent. Miss Bruch played the most difficult concerti, sonatas, and various other compositions.

Mary W. Whitten, the pianist and organist, has for several seasons been the organist of the State Teachers College. Her playing is of a high order of excellence and technical skill.

Miss Pauline Thurston, easily won her audience. She combined with her playing another talent, that of speaking to music. The violin, cello, and speaking voice produced a strikingly beautiful effect, which has the advantage of being original.

With this remarkable group, is Miss Lucille M. Brown, a singer. Miss Brown has a lovely clear soprano voice of extensive range. She delighted her audience with her well-chosen selections.

SOPHOMORE CLASS MEETING

Pep and enthusiasm reigned supreme at the Sophomore Class Meeting, Tuesday night. With Margaret Lewis Stern as cheer-leader, the Sophomores are going to show S. T. C. what real cheering is! Come on! Sophs, let's have some "who-who" old time pep meetings!

LEARN TO SMILE

Why go around with a frown and a sneer,

Just learn to smile at everything
Just learn to smile at everything

SUPPORT THE NEAR EAST RELIEF

President Thwing of Western Reserve University is heading a committee composed of prominent educators throughout the country, to enlist the immediate co-operation of the colleges in the support of Near East Relief, the organization chartered by congress to provide relief for the refugee and orphaned population of the Near East.

There are 40,000 children now in Near East Relief institutions for whom no other possible provision exists and for whose support funds must come without delay. There are about 100,000 more living in refugee camps without education or training or proper living conditions, for whom some help must be secured. The organization needs money for this work at once.

The first objective of Near East Relief at present is to secure the observance of Golden Rule Sunday on December 7th, the day set for making practical application of the Golden Rule in our relations to the orphan children of the Near East.

On this day the people of America are asked to eat an orphanage dinner, such as the children in Near East Relief homes eat every day. The menu includes Turkish pilaf for which a recipe has been prepared by the chef of the Hotel de Bergues in Geneva, and can be served for very much less than the most frugal of Sunday dinners. As the people of the twenty nations participating in this observance gather about a common table, they are asked to make contributions measured by the Golden Rule, for the support of these Near East orphans. Those partaking of the simple meal eaten by these children should have a more acute sympathy for these little ones to whom this fare spells luxury.

Enthusiastic co-operation is expected from college people inasmuch as it is young college people for the most part who are carrying on the work of Near East Relief overseas. In Armenia and Syria and Greece these younger alumni are undergoing real privations to carry on the work for which Golden Rule Sunday asks support.

In the orphanages of Near East Relief there are now 40,000 children. This figure is about ten percent less than last year. Some twenty percent of the children were sent out from the American institutions either to support themselves, or to go into homes of countrymen able to provide for them. Some ten percent more of very little children were taken into the orphanage from the refugee camps where they had been left entirely without care due to the death of their parents who succumbed to hunger and disease.

Three years of schooling and training for self-support are part of the Near East Relief program. Every boy and girl who leaves its care is equipped to look after himself and so far as is possible with the limited funds each of these children is educated to take a place of leadership in the new life that his people are building from the wreckage of the old.

Among these serving on the national committee with President Thwing are President Hibbard, of Princeton, President Kane of Oberlin, President Webb of Mount Holyoke, President Center of Pomona, President Pennington of Wellesley, President Wilbur of Lehigh, and President Parker of Bryn Mawr.

EDITORIAL

Do you find the Sundays dull and lifeless here? Are they kept by you as your parents would wish it? When you are at home, you go to Sunday School. I wonder if it is just because you are supposed to go and now that you are here you feel as if you can do as you please since your parents do not see or know what you are doing. The different churches try to make their Sunday School seem just like the ones at home, and it is as little as we can do to show our appreciation by attending them. They have gone to the trouble and expense of enlarging for the benefit of the S. T. C. girls. Those who go get real enjoyment out of the Sundays here, while the others feel out of harmony with the day.

How many girls do you influence when you stay at home and should be at Sunday School? The Freshmen will be inclined to look up to the upper classmen. Girls, are we going to take this day as one for our week's washing and sewing? Our hair would look just as well if it were washed on Saturday night. We are forming now our lasting habits.

As teachers, we will be looked up to for leadership of the younger generation. Among our past experiences out in life will be that of acting as a Sunday School teacher. The people where we go, will expect us to take an active part along the line of church work. Is our school life here developing us to meet such a demand?

Laying aside all such obligations to other people and ourselves do we not owe to God the one hour which is given every Sunday morning to the study of His word? This time is justly due Him, who gave His life for us.

Are we showing our faculty just how we feel toward them, or are we leaving it to their imaginations? Our outward attitude seems to be that the faculty are imposing upon us, when they give us work to do, instead of going ahead and doing it, we leave things to them. It is very seldom and almost never, that we are willing to do any extra work, look up anything of interest. Why not do what we can to show the faculty that we are co-operating with them, and that our attitude is not one of resentment, but of willingness and desire to help and do our part? This is the way we all feel but we are taking a poor way to show our feelings. Surprise your teachers from now on by doing not only what you are forced to do, but outside things which will make it easier for them to give you all they would like to.

I. K. U. ENTERTAINS
FOR NEW MEMBERS

The International Kindergarten Union entertained Tuesday afternoon in the kindergarten room at a lovely and enjoyable party. The I. K. U. is composed of Course I and II girls, and the party was given to make these girls better acquainted with each other. The principal feature of the evening, was the initiation of the new members. In addition to this, games were played. Tea and refreshments were served during the afternoon.

BASKETBALL GAMES

(From 1st page.)

In the last half, the Seniors continued to score, and the Juniors likewise. In the third quarter, the Seniors added three more points, and the Juniors, one more, making it 10-6. In the last quarter, the ball was kept at the Senior goal most of the time, altho, the Junior guards broke up many might-have-been goals. The Seniors scored four more points, making a total score at the end of the game of 14-6.

Both games showed clean playing and the cheering showed good sportsmanship throughout.

The line-up was as follows:

Seniors ... Pos. ... Seniors
Thompson, C. ... F. ... Frances, N.
Crenshaw, L. ... F. ... (C) Shottwell, E.
Whaley, C. (C) ... C. ... Harris, E.
Smith, A. ... S. C. ... Morgan, K.
Wright, L. ... G. ... West, J.
Smith, O. ... G. ... Cheving, A.
Substitutions: None.

Referee—Miss Blanche E. O. Graham; umpires—Miss Nell McArdle, score-keeper, Bugg, and Barksdale; time-keeper, Edwards.

The total score for the Red and White, was 46, and for the Green and White, 18. This gave the Freshmen and Junior classes the privilege of decorating the Rotunda with their colors.

Weekly Program

AT THE EACO THEATRE—WEEK DEC. 1-6, 1924

MONDAY—Pola Negri in "MONTMARTRE," a new Paramount picture.—Montmartre, the gay White Way of Paris.—Where the pace is swift and life is a thrill.—Where Apache and aristocrat mingle and are merry.—Where you'll see Pola Negri as a peppery dancer, whirling to the strains of love.—Also Pathé News.

TUESDAY—"THREE WISE FOOLS," a special production with a big special cast. The most thrilling romance of Broadway history has been made into the most powerful and appealing photoplay of the year. It has ACTION—HUMOR—POWER and CHARM.—Also 9th episode of "THE EEL TRAIL."

WEDNESDAY—"ICEBOUND," A Win. DeMille Paramount picture with Richard Dix, Lois Wilson and an excellent cast "icebound" won the Pulitzer prize for the best American play. Now it finds new laurels in Screenland's Hall of Fame.—See it and know why.—Also Aesop Fable.

THURSDAY AND FRIDAY—RUDOLPH VALENTINO in the Super-Special production "THE SAINTED DEVIL." Here's the Valentino you love best of all. The dashing lover-dancer-horseman of the "Four Horsemen" and "Blood and Sand." In a South American romance blazing with color and bristling with thrills. Filmed on a scale as lavish as "Beaucaire." With a big cast of stars. NEVER HAS VALENTINO APPEARED TO BETTER ADVANTAGE THAN HE DOES IN "THE SAINTED DEVIL."—Also good Comedy and Orchestra music each night.

SATURDAY—THOMAS MEGHAN in "WOMAN - PROBE." A Special Paramount picture that we have shown here before. He is supported by Lila Lee and a big cast.—No girl was going to sting HIM! No, Sir! UNITS—LARGE VS SMALL

A large unit of study brings together and ties up in one bundle, a large number of related facts forming a well-constructed whole. History, science, geography, and literature, is built up of these large wholes or units of knowledge, rather than out of individual facts.

A unit is not a fact for a single fact standing alone is meaningless. It is not a miscellaneous collection of even important facts. A unit of knowledge is that in which there is a central organizing idea. The idea is not only a center, but is the principal of organization in the development of the topic. The purposive idea is the living energy that shapes the big unit in its process of growth toward fullness and maturity.

A developing unit of study gathers to itself and embodies the full content of a rich, well-organized collection of knowledge. A big unit fully mastered in its facts, meaning, and relations becomes a clear and well-defined standard for measuring future units of similar character. As the central idea takes root and develops naturally in a child's mind, it organizes his knowledge into a growing habit of thought. His mind takes on an expanding knowledge—structure which becomes his own method of thinking, and of interpreting the world.

To scatter attention over a multitude of subjects, to get a smattering of this or that, to memorize and soon forget, miscellaneous bunches of facts, is to spend the time and go through the motions of teaching but to make little permanent progress. Every complete topic adequately worked-out in the class should make a strong and permanent impression, should be a real achievement known and felt to be such by the children. We should learn to centralize the thought of children upon conspicuously important topics, objectively fruitful.

Any portion of knowledge that is to be acquired, should be divided into suitable units of attack; one large thought together with its supporting details should constitute one section, another large thought together with its associated details the second, etc. All these together, composing the whole field. The student, instead of making progress in knowledge, fact by fact, should advance by groups of facts. His smallest unit of progress should be a considerable number of ideas so related to one another that they make a whole. Such a unit or "point" is the basal element in thinking.

Some teachers lose too much time on smaller things. They putter away at such tasks until there is no time left for much larger duties such as physical exercise, sociability, and general reasoning.

The conclusion that may be drawn from this entire discussion, is that the large, elaborately organized teaching unit furnishes a sound basis for classroom instruction. It lays down a general plan for a scholarly and efficient treatment of important subjects in full accord with the recognized principles of good teaching. Without such such matched plans for the intensive treatment of the central units of study, instruction scatters and runs to waste or it follows dried up channels.

Now, of course
I may be wrong.

One of the few faults
I don't possess

For example: when
Dr. Jack tells a joke, I Always laugh before it's Finished—for if I think
About it at the end—I
Just can't force myself to Laugh.
Gee, but I'm clever.

"Why didn't you just keep silent, then," inquired his friend.

"That's what I did, and she said,
'Silence gives consent,' and that end-

SENIORS PLAY JUNIORS TO-NIGHT

SOPHOMORES PLAY FRESHMEN WEDNESDAY

Saturday night at 7:30, in the Armory, the Juniors and Seniors will play another game of basketball, and Wednesday night, at the same hour, the Freshmen will meet the Sophomores, for the second time.

The games bid fair to be very thrilling, as the Sophs and Juniors, undaunted by their defeat, are coming back with a determination to win or die, while the "Freshies" and Seniors spirited by their victory, do not for one minute intend to lose the standard they have already set.

Freshmen, Sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors, be sure to come out and help your team to victory by rooting!

S. T. C. Students Attend Alumnae Luncheon

Form Part of Program at Annual Re-Union at Richmond, Va.

Early visitors at S. T. C., on Friday November 28, would have wondered why nearly a score of be-wrapped young ladies were faring forth at such an unearthly hour. Their enthusiastic conversation would soon have enlightened any eavesdropper. This was the privileged party who were to attend the Alumnae luncheon at Richmond. They piled into the school truck—a little delayed but not at all discouraged, and set off. The many trials of running out of gas and bumping about considerably held no qualms for them. They laughed, sang and made up jingles and limericks all the way to Richmond and back, aided and abetted by Miss Lessie Lea, who chaperoned them.

Eleven-thirty, found them alighting at Murphy's Hotel and at once they assembled in the Kiwanis Club room, where the luncheon was served. Many and distinguished were the guests. Part of our Faculty was there. Looking around one saw Miss Coulling, Miss Rice, Miss Lea, Miss Tucker, Miss Bierbower, Miss London, and Mr. Wynne, Dr. and Mrs. Jarman, accompanying the speaker and Miss Mary Clay Hiner at the guest table.

Dr. Jarman presided much to the delight of every one present. All the alumnae felt the years between them and graduation drop away immediately and all the S. T. C. students at once felt at home. The entire luncheon was punctuated with the songs and yells of the "youngsters" as Dr. Jarman termed the members of the student body, who were present. They did their level best to put all the zest and enthusiasm possible into the meeting. After speeches of welcome by Miss Hiner president of the Alumnae Association, and by a member of the Richmond Chapter, Dr. Jarman introduced Dr. Douglas S. Freeman, the speaker of the occasion. Dr. Freeman, editor of the Richmond News Leader, is known to all the students here last year, as the man who made our Founders' Day address. He, in his speech, paid a glowing tribute to Dr. Jarman and

HIGH SCHOOL TO GET OUT PUBLICATIONS

The High School of the State Teachers College is planning to put out an annual this year. The whole high school voted to have an annual and now an investigating committee is working to see if the school is financially able to support such a publication.

There is also some discussion going on, particularly in the ninth grade, about the practicability of the high school publishing a monthly magazine.

We wish the high school luck with its publications and will be glad to help in any way possible.

the State Teachers College at Farmville. It made each alumnae and student present, proud to own our college as their Alma Mater. He said that Farmville's spirit of democracy—her lack of cliques and her loyalty—were outstanding. He attributed her growth and reputation to Dr. Jarman and her physical setting. His address was one that every student here should have heard. It would have still further increased our spirit of democracy, and loyalty, and inspired us to do greater things.

Besides the alumnae and guests all ready mentioned, the students from S. T. C. numbered sixteen, making a total of ninety-eight guests, the largest number so far that have ever attended an Alumnae Luncheon.

The S. T. C. girls attending, were: Misses Kitty Morgan, Helen Miller, Nelda Frances, Katherine Shore, Audrey Chewing, Erna Shotwell, Anna Branch Reams, Lillian Nunn, Anne Smith, Elizabeth Bugg, Olive Smith, Lucile Wright, Kate Trent, Anne Robertson, Virginia Vincent and Ann T. Oakey.

MANY STUDENTS HOME

FOR THANKSGIVING

"Well, I 'spose I'll be the only one left here over Thanksgiving." That's just what about a hundred or so girls were saying on November 26. But you weren't, were you? Nobody was quite the only one, although there were indeed a great many girls away. Just loads and loads of girls went home and loads and loads more went to other places visiting. Tables were closed and the school seemed quiet and desolate. Still those who stayed had a plenty going on to keep them busy so after all "things weren't so bad but what they might have been worse."

Even those who deny that woman is qualified for high executive office, admit that she might qualify as speaker of the House.

FIFTH PROFS IN EVIDENCE

As a mother welcomes a returning child, so S. T. C. welcomed the last year's Fourth Profs from the first honk of Kemp's Ford, 'till the last one had gone there was not a dull minute for them—(or us, either.)

Twelve of the 1924 Degree graduates, came back to spend Thanksgiving with their Alma Mater.

The class has always been full of pep and enthusiasm and their month's teaching in the cold world, have not dampened their spirits one bit.

At the game Thursday morning, they were much in evidence, still loyal to the red and white, and they boosted the Freshmen to a glorious victory.

A class meeting was called which resulted as usual in something interesting and different. So Saturday evening after prayers, the old girls were reminded of the good old days and the Freshmen were given a peep into the golden past, when C-I-e-o-patra appeared and Anthony turned up his toes and suicided.

Several parties were given for them. The Juniors gave an Afternoon Tea, and Miss Hiner, a breakfast.

Fifth Profs, we love you and miss you. Wont you come back again?

W-E-L-C-O-M-E will always be on the door mat for you!

BONNIE BRIER BUSH

SCOTCH MUSICAL COMEDY COMPANY PRESENTS THE BONNIE BRIER BUSH

On December 2nd and 3rd, the Scottish Musical Comedy Company presented "The Bonnie Brier Bush," in the college auditorium. The profound impression made by The Cotter's Saturday night and the consequent requests for other productions by the Scottish Comedy Company, have occasioned the construction and presentation of "The Bonnie Brier Bush."

The scene of the Bonnie Brier Bush is laid in the village of Drumtochty, Scotland, about the year 1873. Flora Campbell is driven from her home by her father, Lachlan Campbell, because of her attachment to the laird's son, Donald Hay. Through the kind interference of Margaret Howe, and Dr. Maclure, Lachlan becomes reconciled to his daughter. Another interesting member of the cast, is Posty, the village letter-carrier.

The first act is characterized by pathos and sentiment, the second by humor and song. The company gives a true portrayal of Scotch peasant life, bringing out the customs and traditions of the Scotch. Taking the sketch all around, it was delightful, entertaining, and well worth the time spent in enjoying it.

PROFESSOR WYNNIE AUTHOR OF A PSYCHOLOGY

Among the new books favorably mentioned in the November number of "The Journal of Educational Method" is "Guide of Educational and General Psychology," by Professor John P. Wynne, Director of the Training School and Head of the Department of Education. This is an interesting and practical text book for college and university classes.

SOPHOMORES AND FRESHMEN

OF EQUAL INTELLIGENCE

It has generally been considered unwise to report to students who take intelligence tests just what grade they make. But there are some facts regarding scores or grades in general, that are interesting and valuable, and that may be told without any undesirable consequences.

Last year, all the first year students were given a well-known test. This session the same test was given to first year students. Class rivalry demands an answer to the question:—"Which class did better?"

A quick answer can not be given. First it is necessary to say that a distribution of grades has been made on the basis of a general principle that 10 per cent. of the students should be classed as "A" students, 20 per cent. as "B", 40 per cent. as "C", 20 per cent. as "D," and 10 per cent. as "E." This principle is not universally accepted, but it is widely accepted, and it appears to be eminently reasonable. On this basis of grading, then, last year's entering class had fewer "A" members, more "B" members, more "C" members, fewer "D" members and the same number of "E" members. Last year's class had one member who received a grade higher by one point, than any member of this year's class. Unfortunately that student left college before the year was out. Her score was 67, out of a possible 75. In this year's class, two members received a lower score by one or more points, than any member of last year's class. It is important to say immediately that a difference of one point is really a very insignificant difference.

To answer the question asked above it is safe to say that the classes which entered State Teachers College in September, 1923, and September 1924 are practically identical in ability. If there are differences that are favorable or unfavorable to either class, a different test might easily reverse those differences, since they are so slight and are derived from so many students. The remarkable thing is that the results are so nearly identical.

MISS McFARLAND SPEAKS AT S. T. C.

Miss McFarland, Y. W. C. A., Secretary of the South American field, spoke to us at prayers Monday night, and in Chapel Tuesday morning.

She gave exceedingly interesting talks about her work in South America, telling of the organization of the Y. W. C. A., and her experiences with the girls there, also how the Y. W. C. A. is helping an unconceivable number of girls and women to a fuller, broader life.

She told us that South America is not a country, but a continent made up of eleven different republics, and that many different languages and dialects are spoken there. We have heard many horrible stories of South America and Miss McFarland says that the most horrible part is that so many of these stories are true.

THE SILENT SERMON

Those of us who had the courage to stay here through Thanksgiving were certainly rewarded in full measure on Thursday night. Evelyn Dulaney, a member of the Y. W. C. A. Music Committee, arranged a most attractive stunt entitled, "The Silent Sermon." The costumes were colorful, the actors were wonderfully natural, and the music was superb.

Everyone present pronounced it one of the best and most enjoyable stunts given this year.

Do your Christmas shopping at the Farmville Alumnae Bazaar in the reception hall of the Student Building, Wednesday, December 10, from three to seven p. m.

We are glad to see that Mary White Cox, and Miss Winnie Hiner, are out of the Infirmary.

Furman Students Are Afflicted With Cross Word Puzzle Disease

Cross word puzzles, which are fast taking the place of the song "It Aint A Gonna Rain No More" in the field of popularity, have taken the Furman students by storm, and now the little group of squares are the center of attraction on the campus.

Cross word puzzles, which are a relatively new addition to the feature sections of daily newspapers, are worked out with enthusiasm by the Furman men. In fact, they are getting to be as popular on the campus as the sporting pages of the papers.

Some students have not been willing to stop with the mere solution of the puzzles as they appear in the papers but have ventured to create some of their own.

It is no unusual sight to see four or five students grouped around a newspaper arguing about what is the proper word to go in the squares for "a European rabbit" or "a river in Grossburgentherburg."

Cross word puzzles are good vocabulary builders, but not exactly what one should use his time on when examinations are as close as they are now. Perhaps if the professors could arrange their examination questions in cross word puzzle form, more passing marks would be secured by the students.—Hornet.

GUTZON BORGLUM COMING

Gutzon Borglum, will speak in the auditorium Friday night, December 12. Mr. Borglum was to have been here some time in November, but was detained. He comes under the auspices of the Woman's Club, of Farmville.

Admission to all students will be 50 cents, to others, $1.00.

EDITORIAL

"RATS!!"

"THEY FOUGHT THE DOGS AND KILLED THE CATS"

IT is a great pity that the Pied Piper has disappeared for he is undoubtedly needed here. Rats chase across the platform in the auditorium while people are speaking; they play tag in the closets; their claws are heard scraping as they slide down radiator pipes at night; they creep across faces which are peacefully sleeping; they get into one's garments and wiggle when one puts them on; they carry away the contents of boxes and gnaw holes in Sunday coats. Greater still, than these petty details, the rats are destroying our buildings. It is a crime, especially to allow our new Student Building to become infested by these vermin. Something should be done immediately to kill out the rats now existing and thus prohibit the natural increase. If something is not done, in a few years we will have:

"BROWN RATS, BLACK RATS, GRAY RATS, TAWNY RATS, GRAVE OLD PLODDERS, GRAY YOUNG WHISKERS,
CORKING TAILS AND PRICKING WHISKERS, FAMILIES BY TENS AND DOZENS."

KNOCKING!

"I wish we'd have some decent food!" "What in the Sam Hill is that old wall up there for?" "Why can't they do things efficiently around here?" Yes, Yes, girls—this is no Utopia, we'll admit that, but our knocking things certainly won't help any. Neither is it sensible to be blind to all the faults of S. T. C. in idolatrous adoration, but knocking is always out of place. These sledge hammer blows make unpleasant noises even if they are unable to impress our firm foundations. And did you ever know a knocker to DO any thing? There are two nice sounding phrases we can bring into this editorial. They are the familiar old "destructive criticism" and "constructive criticism." Let's use the latter, and build our college even stronger and better than ever.

BUILDING FOR YOUTH

The following poem, printed in a recent number of the Johnsonian, the Winthrop College newspaper, has created much comment throughout the country:

An old man going a lone highway
Came at the evening cold and gray
To a chasm vast and deep and wide.
The old man crossed in the twilight dim,
The sullen stream had no fears for him,
But he turned when safe on the other side,
And built a bridge to span the tide,
"Old man," said a fellow pilgrim near,
"You are wasting your time with building here
You will never again pass this way.
Your journey will end with the closing
day,
You have crossed the Chasm deep and wide.
Why build you this bridge at evening tide?"

The builder lifted his old gray head,
"Good friend, in the way that I've come," he said,

"There followeth after me today,
A youth, whose feet must pass this way.
This stream that has been as naught to me
To the fair-haired youth might a pitfall be.
He, too, must cross in the twilight dim,
Good friend, I am building the bridge for him."

Reprinted from The Johnsonian.

THANKSGIVING

"Ye olden Tymes" were surely restored at S. T. C. Thanksgiving. A real turkey and plum pudding dinner, with all the delicious smaller necessities so dear to one's palate, greeted us. We feasted royally, reviving memories of other days, when similar gobblers graced the table. It was indeed a joyous time, and we gave a hearty "Hurrah for Thanksgiving dinner" to those who planned it.

Miss Blanch Edith Oliver Graham, is in the liminary. We wish her a speedy recovery.

Weekly Program

AT THE EACO THEATRE—WEEK DEC. 8th-13th.

MONDAY—GLORIA SWANSON in "A SOCIETY SCANDAL," A brand new Paramount Special production. "The inside story of society's shocking divorce scandals. Told amid the dazzling splendor of society ball room and boudoir. Gloria's gowns! Oh, you MUST see this one. — Also Pathe News.—Matinee at 4 o'clock.

TUESDAY—BEBE DANIELS in "DANGEROUS MONEY," one of the latest Paramount pictures. Bebe's first picture as a full fledged star. Come and see her make good, in the role of a poor girl made reckless by sudden riches. Cast includes TOM MOORE. This is an absorbing story with a romantic atmosphere.—Also 10th episode of "THE STEEL TRAIL."

WEDNESDAY—The National Hygiene Association will present "Who's to Blame," a motion picture in 7-reels, featuring Gaston Glass and Constance Binney. There will be a matinee at 4 o'clock for ladies only. The night show will commence at 8:15, and will be for men only.—No children admitted.

THURSDAY and FRIDAY—Norma Talmadge in the Special production "THE SONGS OF LOVE." A story of the impassioned love of an Arab dancing girl for a French officer. In this picture Norma Talmadge outshines the sheik as an impassioned Mohammedan dancing girl. A romance of Araby! Nights of love and song under the dreamy sapphire skies of the Algerian Sahara.—Adapted from the novel "Dust of Desire" read enclosed Herald.—Also a Good Comedy and orchestra music each night.

SATURDAY—"His Children's Children," a special Paramount Picture that we have shown here before. With Bebe Daniels and a Big cast. The strongest, truest indictment of American society ever written. A sensational exposure of New York's wealthy families and the kind of lives their children lead.—Few pictures are so tremendously gripping, so brilliantly acted, so gorgeously produced.—Also 9th episode of "The Iron Man."—Matinee at 3:30. Admission—S. T. C. Girls, 20 cents Tuesday and Saturday. Other days 25 cents.

INTER-COLLEGIATE NEWS

We are glad to see that the Forum in the Yellow Jacket is so successful. This column is an innovation and is intended to be instrumental in voicing the sentiments of the student body on all subjects. Much interest is apparently shown and the articles are pointed and interesting.

We are interested in learning from the Emory Wheel that Dr. Hwang, President of Phi Beta Kappa has been investigating Alpha Epsilon Upsilon, the honorary fraternity at Emory University with view of placing a chapter there. We wish them luck.

Seven of the University of Kansas have declared they won't shave until Kansas wins a football game.

The Greenville Woman's College, by next fall, to rate as a standard college. Recently $2000 has been received from the State Baptist Board to be spent in standardizing the college. This amount was made possible by the A. S. Campaign.

Miniature statuettes of the varsity football players at the University of Pennsylvania have been carved out of wood and cork and mounted on a wooden pedestal. They are on display in the training quarters.

An alumnus of Ohio State University came all the way from Singapore, game with Michigan in the Ohio state.

ALUMNI NOTES

Calvary church, Dinwiddie, was the scene of a lovely marriage on Saturday, November 15th, at eight o'clock, when Miss Carrie Mason Galusha became the bride of Mr. Thomas Jones Mellwaine, superintendent of schools in Prince Edward county. The rector Rev. S. O. Southall, and Dr. W. B. Mellwaine, of Japan, father of the groom, were the officiating ministers. Immediately after the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Mellwaine left for a Southern trip. They are now at home on Buffalo street, Farmville.

Another November wedding was that of Miss Louise Crews Tune, of Vernon Hill, and Mr. Joseph Lynwood Osborne, of Ingram, Va.

Miss Helen Jackson Rogerson, and Mr. Herman Leigh Page, were married in September and are now living in St. Petersburg, Fla.

Miss Julia Sher is principal of Doswell Junior High School, which presented the fourth (Henry Clay) episode of the Hanover County historical pageant, given November 28, during the Educational Conference in Richmond.

The officers of the Norfolk Alumnae Chapter, are: President, Mrs. William W. Watkins; Vice-President, Miss Mildred Morris; Secretary, Mrs. Z. A. Jones; Treasurer, Miss Catherine Kemp.

The officers of the Peterbur, Alumnae Chapter, are: President, Miss Elizabeth Cogbill; Vice-President, Miss Elsie Meredith; Secretary, Miss Pattie Percival; Treasurer, Miss Madge Hood; Reporter, Miss Bettie Green. The chapter is planning a card party and other means of raising money for the Student Building Fund.

School Science and Mathematics for March, 1924, contains an article entitled, "Some Contrasts in the Geography of the Virginia Piedmont and the Illinois Plains," the Virginia Piedmont referred to, being Prince Edward county. The author is Miss Bessie Ashton, formerly head of the department of geography here.

JUNIORS ENTERTAIN

On Saturday afternoon, November 29, the Juniors entertained the visiting members of both of last year's graduating classes. The party was held in the Y. W. C. A. social room and began at four-thirty. The room was decorated in the class colors, red and white, with narcissus and red balloons. Although practically impromptu the party was proclaimed a success and everyone seemed to have a good time. Dr. Jarman came in to pay his respects to the guests and their hostesses.

The visitors were entertained by musical and games. Miss Olive Smith, the organist, and her orchestra favored the company with several selections. Then everyone made up and recited limericks. Among the compositions were some literary gems. The Juniors are thinking of printing them as a memorial of the class of Twenty-Four. The party at length broke up after the serving of refreshments.

The Junior's guests included Miss Mary Gay Hiner, honorary member of the Junior Class, Misses Emily Calcott, Katherine Kemp, Pauline Timberlake, Julia Alexander, Margaret Agnes McDuffie, Claudia Gilchrist, Janie Moore, and Nell McArdle, of the degree class of 1924, and Misses Florence Stegeman, Gustave Powell, Helen Looney, and Alice Disharoon, of last year's diploma class.

NUMBER 11

YOUR REQUEST IS GRANTED!

GUTZON BORGLUM IN FARMVILLE.

CHRISTMAS HOLIDAYS

FROM DECEMBER 18 TO JANUARY 6.

Your request is granted! Four very commonplace words, but Thursday night, in Student Body Meeting, they produced an effect nothing less than magic. Few in number, but sufficient in meaning to raise eight hundred girls from the sloughs of despair to the heights of mildest happiness.

Now, just what is this all about? It's about Christmas Holidays. What else could create excitement in these hectic days of term papers, last minute tests, projects and note books.

Ever since our petition to Dr. Jarman, asking for an extension of our Christmas Holiday, there has been but one topic of conversation.

Dr. Jarman had it many ways; on Monday our cause was hopeless, on Tuesday, it was settled beyond the shadow of a doubt, that we would have the Holiday. Again on Wednesday and Thursday, there was some fluctuation of opinion, but Thursday night brought a final decision. Sounds dramatic, and it was!

Can anyone be more maddeningly deliberate than Dr. Jarman? Tense with expectation and the dreadful uncertainty of the thing, the eight hundred sat and listened respectfully to the announcement that Gutzon Borglum would be with us on Friday night. So, as Dr. Jarman said, before we consider that, we must discuss this.

But we weren't doomed to have our hopes shattered because the time to consider that did come. We were told that even if we did realize fully that it would be the wise thing to take up our new term's work on New Year's Day. We all are foolish at times and—our request was granted!!!

As the meeting adjourned some one said: "What's the matter with Jarman?" and from every throat rose a hearty Amen of "He's Alright!"

BEWARE—THE SOPHOMORE CLASS!!

The peppy Sophomore Class met on Tuesday night to elect representatives to the Students' Standards Committee. The Sophs as usual, were "right there with the goods." With Berta Thompson and Sally Roane McMurdo representing the Sophomore Class, the Students' Standards Committee will be the best ever.

Sophs, continue to show your class spirit, and attend the class meetings. Sh! Sh!—What have the Sophomores got up their sleeves? By the skull and cross-bones—look out!!

WHO IS SANTA CLAUS?

FRIDAY NIGHT SING

It's just like going to the show, to go to the Sings on Friday night.

There's always something great in store for you.

The Harmony Hounds were the sensation of the last Friday evening's program. They played beautifully throughout the intermission. (Anyone desiring to engage this famed orchestra, see the leader, Elizabeth Westbrook.)

Another feature of the evening was a Modern Version of the Courtship of Miles Standish. It was one of the cleverest stunts presented this year, yet we cannot say that we would have recognized in the characters our pilgrim ancestors. The cast included the following:—

Priscilla Mary Alice Blanton.
Miles Standish "Chubby" Gray.
John Alden Evelyn Dulaney.

BASKET BALL GAMES TONIGHT

SOPHOMORES PLAY FRESHMAN AGAIN—JUNIORS PLAY SENIORS

Yes, the games really are going to be played to night at 7:30 in the Armory, the Sophomores playing the Freshmen again, and the Seniors the Juniors.

Due to Miss Graham's illness, the games that were announced to take place on Wednesday night, were postponed until a later date, in hopes that Miss Graham would be well by then. She is much better and will umpire the games, and Miss Nell McArdle will referee.

These games are being anticipated with much excitement and enthusiasm by all. The Sophomores have come out with a double force, and are prepared to meet the Freshmen, who have not for one minute slacked up in their practice, with a vim!

Freshmen, beware! the victory is not so certain this time!

The Juniors have not lost courage either, Seniors! They are going to give you a wild chase in this game, although they have not been able to practice any since the last game—and we are ALL going to yell! yell! yell!

Going to yell! yell! yell.
We're ALL going to yell! yell! yell!
Like— Oh! well—
Time will tell!

It's a wise crack that knows its own author.

SPEAKS OF STONE MOUNTAIN

Noted Sculptor of Stone Mountain, at S. T. C. Auditorium

UNDER the auspices of the Woman's Club, Mr. Gutzon Borglum, famous sculptor, on Friday, December 12, delivered a lecture on Stone Mountain, and its significance. Governor E. Lee Trinkle, who was in Farmville for this occasion, presented Mr. Borglum.

His Life

Gutzon Borglum, the genius, whose name will forever be linked with the "eighth wonder of the world," the carving of Stone Mountain, was born of Danish parents, fifty-six years ago, in Bear Lake, Idaho.

The greater part of his boyhood, however, was spent in Fremont, Nebraska, a frontier town peopled chiefly with Indians. It was here that he got his first glimpse of life, its meaning, its sufferings, its strength.

Mr. Borglum's artistic capacity showed itself early in his youth, when he got into no end of trouble with his teachers, because he was forever drawing pictures of horses, Indians and other people in his books, or on his slates.

Despite the fact that Gutzon loved his parents devotedly, he was fond of running away from home. On one occasion, before he was ten years old, he ran away and stayed three days. Another time, he remained away for six months.

When still a youth, his family moved to Omaha, and Gutzon was sent to St. Mary's, a boy's school, near Kansas. Here he stayed for two years winning much favor with his instructors, because of his skill in drawing, and sculpturing. He tired of this, however, and returned home where he remained until his family again moved, this time to California.

Inspired by the colors of the hills, the sunsets and sunrises, Mr. Borglum gave himself over to painting. He sold many pictures and entered Art School in San Francisco. He later studied in Paris, Holland, and Belgium.

While in Paris, his paintings attracted so much attention, that the "Societe Nationale des Beaux Arts" elected him a member. Some of his paintings were also bought by Queen Victoria, the Duchess of York and the Queen of Norway.

Some of his great works in sculpturing, besides the carving of Stone Mountain, are the bust of Lincoln in the Capitol at Washington, the wonderful carving of the Twelve Apostles, in New York, the marble figures' Conception, and 'The Centaurs,' 'General Sheridan on Horse-back,' and numerous others.

It was because of the distinction he won as a sculptor of the dramatic and poetic, that he was given the commission to carve Stone Mountain.

On a piece of paper, Mr. Borglum sketched his vision. In it, there came the picture of thousands of soldiers, marching across the face of the rock on horseback and afoot, symbolizing the long, hard fight the South had made for a "Lost Cause." Then he set about carrying out his plan. The gigantic figures are now being carved on the stone face of the mountain, a memorial that will tell its story for a hundred years, and then for a hundred years more.

His Lecture

In order that the audience might have a better understanding of the significance of Stone Mountain, Mr. Borglum devoted the first part of his lecture to a discussion of the relationship existing between artists and the general public. He says that men of artistic temperament are often patronized. This is because the mass of people do not realize that artists are creative and that they are the ones who pick out the finer things of life. Because he is a sculptor, Mr. Borglum spoke of that phase of art. The Greeks were the first to realize that monuments are records of people who have reached great heights. Consequently, in the age of Pericles, we find that much of the old sculpture is destroyed and new monuments made. This reaction is again found in Italy, when Michael Angelo brought about the emancipation of art by using his own creative powers. However, his gifts were not used to best advantage, for he produced individual rather than national monuments.

Stone Mountain is significant because it is the first real record of the history of the United States. Mr. Borglum said that when he came South, he found the sentiment about State's Rights almost religious in its fervor.

He came to Atlanta by the request of the Daughters of the Confederacy, who had planned to have a bust relief of Lee at the base of the mountain. He convinced them that the idea was too small for the ideal, and that it was neither fair to the South nor to Lee. Mr. Borglum took the job with the view of showing the South at the height of hope. Thus, he had the chance of writing the great epic that belongs to America.

At present, Mr. Borglum is working on Lee, Jackson, and other leaders of the South. Lee is given a central position because of the position he held and also because he expresses the feeling of the South. Behind them stretches or 600 or 700 feet of infantry and in front of them the cavalry.

General Forrest is given a prominent place among the cavalry, because he changed the military tactics of handling the horse in battle. The artillery are represented as coming over the mountain.

The great obstacle in carrying out the plans was size of the mountain. Because of its enormous size, it was difficult to place the drawings. After two years of experimenting, a plan was formed which was successful.

Mr. Borglum has interested the industrial people and the government, in the ideals of the South by carrying out this wonderful idea. On the new fifty cent pieces will be found the pictures of Lee and Jackson.

Mr. Borglum closed his lecture by saying that he hoped this great monument would be the forerunner of other sentiments, and ideals that should be put in monuments.

The student body wishes to thank the Woman's Club for making the occasion possible. It deeply appreciates the fact that Dr. Jarman made it possible for every student to hear a wonderful man like Mr. Borglum, who is without a doubt performing the eighth wonder of the world.

SPEAKING OF DUMB RATS

Our idea of intelligence was exemplified by the freshman who asked how many quarters there are in a football game. No doubt the same red-cap is now wondering who wrote Theodore Roosevelt's Autobiography.—Oklahoma Daily.

The dumbest rat, claims the Mercer Chapter, was one who thought that a flying tackle had feathers; but we subconsciously remarked that he had decided to join. Florida Alligator.

We have heard of a great many dumb freshmen, but the puncture-proof pin cushion goes to the rural specimen who arrived at Emory fully convinced that the International Harvester Company made the Grim Reaper.—Emory Wheel.

DANCE TONIGHT

Come to the dance in the Gym tonight, from 8 to 11 o'clock. Don't miss it! Santa Claus will be there with all his belongings, and a Christmas Tree. Music will be furnished by the Sensational Syncopated Orchestra. Come on, come all, and bring your pocket-books.

Aunt Jimima, a big negro washer-woman, had just been knocked down by an automobile. A crowd gathered around to sympathize with her.

"You'll get damages for this, Aunt Jimima," and one of the crowd.
"Damages? Huh!" she replied, "Ise out all the damages that I want—I cose repairs."

DON'T MISS IT!

HAVE YOU SEEN SANTA?

EDITORIAL

For the last few years, the cry in school has been "Give us more forms of athletics!" The general opinion was that unless one could play basketball or was especially good in some form of field day activity, he had no way in the world to so much as get a look at a monogram. Scheme after scheme was thought of, but dropped, and grumbling went on constantly. This year, the athletic council has worked out for us a very definite plan, which gives everyone a chance to try out for a monogram. Now it's up to us to carry out the plan, to make it a success. Every girl in school should be enough interested and have enough enthusiasm to at least try out for her monogram. If you can't make it this year, go out for everything, get the practice which may mean you will get it next year. Back up the athletic council, they have started this for our benefit, let's show them our appreciation by having a one-hundred per cent. try-out for the coveted "S. T. C." so dear to each one of us.

Many things have to be brought to our attention during the course of a school year, most of these are small things that by reason of their smallness, have been neglected, nevertheless, some of the smallest are the ones that cause the most inconvenience. One case of this kind of things has been most prominent in school this year, namely: that of petty thievery. Perhaps this is a rather strong name to apply but it is certainly a true one. You can not call going into a class room, the bathroom or the hall and deliberately taking an electric light bulb, anything but stealing. If you break a bulb, the person in charge at the home office will gladly give you another. Think of the inconvenience you cause other people. Dark halls are not very pleasant or very safe, and dark class rooms are not only nerve wracking to a teacher, but hard on our eyes. The case of electric light bulbs is merely an example of many such things that go on constantly. The girls seem to have gotten to the point where they walk in each other's rooms, pick up anything they want to borrow, without even letting the owner know where it is. The motto seems to be: "What's yours, is mine." No girl realizes how these things reflect on her, and how they appear to other people, or she would be more careful. Not a single one of us would deliberately steal money or anything of that kind, yet when your best friend walks in to find her notebook, fountain pen or book, and no trace of it is to be found, she is most likely to accuse some one of taking it in a dishonest way. Think about this, girls, and don't be so utterly disregarding of other people's feelings and thoughts.

STOP! LOOK! AND LISTEN!!
YE CHRISTMAS SHOPPERS!!

"Young folks, old folks, everybody, COME!" Come where? To what? To that delightful Bazaar and Play to be given by the pupils of the Fifth Grade Training School, Wednesday, Dec. 17, 1924, in the Assembly Room.

Many artistic gifts made by the pupils of the Fifth Grade may be purchased at the Bazaar. Among these gifts are Christmas Cards; book-marks; bean bags; pan holders; boxes containing Christmas Cards; blotters; home-made candy in gay Christmas boxes. To anyone's inquiry "Explain the why of the Whichness"—the answer is the children need money with which to buy a picture for the Fifth Grade.

Come and SEE a play that is imbued with the real spirit of Christmas—come and buy gift suggestive of the Yuletide.

FRENCH CIRCLE

The French Circle has organized this year with some real work in view. The election of officers resulted in:—
Pres.—Frances Barksdale.
Vice-Pres.—Mabel Edwards.
Secretary—Sally McMurdo.
Treasurer—Margaret Crawley.
Critic—Evelyn Beckham.
So far, the meetings have been very encouraging, and great interest is being shown. The constitution provides a definite end for which to work and the various activities are a source of real value and pleasure to the members. A Christmas program was given at the last meeting, Dec. 15th, as follows:—
Noils (Christmas customs in France)
—Frances Morton.
Sobats de Noil, Florence Riss.
Noil (a Christmas story), Mary Spiggle.
Un Poin, Evelyn Beckham.
Conte de Noil, Sally McMurdo.

Weekly Program

AT THE EACO THEATRE, WEEK DEC. 15-20, INCL.

In this Big Special Production, we have Youth—Joy—Jazz—Cigarettes—Cocktails—Niggers—Petters—White Kisses, Red Kisses—Kollicking dances—Riotous Flirtations—Nerve—Snice—Blap-erism on a spree—Pleasure-Mad daughters—Sensation-craving mother.—This Big production is from the novel by Warner Fabian.—Pathe News on Monday, and 11th episode of "The Steel Trail," Tuesday.—Matinee Tue. at 4.

WED.—"Steadfast Hearts." This is the famous Collier's Weekly story of the Virginia mountains, made into a drama of powerful Clarence Buddington Kelland, human appeal. A thrilling story of loves, hates, mountain feuds and undying devotions. Enacted by an excellent cast.—Also Aesop Fable.

THUR.—"Viola Dana in 'Rouged Lips.'" The story of a girl with a musical comedy soul. This is a sparkling photoplay from the snappy story "Upstage" that tickled five million people.—Read the enclosed Herald.—Do not miss this picture.—Also good comedy and orchestra music.

FRI.—"The Man Life Passed By." A special Metro Classic, with Jane Novak, Percy Marmot, Eva Novak, Cullen Landis and Hobart Bosworth.—The story of a man driven to the slums—and how he sought revenge on his rich enemy's daughter.—Also Comedy and orchestra music.

SAT.—Antonio Moreno and Pola Negri in "The Spanish Dancer." A Special Paramount picture that we have shown here before. Here is a million dollar production and a story of a thousand thrills. This is a great picture.—It is worth seeing twice.—Also 6th episode of "The Iron Man."

ADMISSION—S. T. C. girls: 20 cents Wed. and Sat., and 25 c other days.

FADS

Fads? What are they, anyway? Well, it is certainly hard to say, even though in most any place, you come in contact with them every day.

You could hardly say that a fad is a characteristic, although, I suppose one could be; but a fad is usually thought of as a passing fashion, or an idea of some description.

Where is there a school that has no fad? You would certainly have a long search to find such a place. The majority rules concerning fads as in most other things—but they are not changed, or dropped until the student body is openly disgusted.

Old S. T. C. is no exception to the rule concerning fads and if you come to school here, you will become initiated sooner or later. You simply can't get away from them.

You see some girls wearing their various belts high beneath their arms—others notice them also—and soon all the girls are wearing high belts—sometimes never thinking of their individual appearances. The same applies to wearing bands in your hair. Every one must wear a band—on Sundays and special occasions, at least! Wearing skirts just below your knees and rolled stockings—and almost hiding yourself beneath an array of fraternity pins! Everything, anything, to be 'quite the thing.'

However, fads do not exist only in wearing apparel. Lately, it is 'quite the thing' to acquire a fine blaze—sophisticated expression, especially, when you are at a dance or something of the kind, and to arrange your so-called 'line' accordingly. Of course, you have all tried that by now—so why need I say more about it?

Then, there are certain expressions. A girl says—"What a darling dress!" The other girl says—"Thanks, honey, you must be wearing it!"—you hear it and hear it and then hear it again! In fact, you hear it almost as much as you hear—"Well, don't ever think so and so didn't do so and so, 'cause they did!"—And—"How about that!" Even if you run, these expressions follow you!

Also, last but not least it is the fad at S. T. C. to have a 'true love,' a 'secret love,' and a 'purple passion!' What girl doesn't know that fad? There is no such girl! "He" may be a brick-layer—the ice man, a mere tourist—some one you know, or some one you never heard of—but of course every girl must have one!

Fads! Fads!! Fads!!!

We all agree that fads are funny, but they are also interesting. Are they approved of? Can fads cause you to become a fanatic? You never can tell—but what do you think?

ARGUS LITERARY SOCIETY

On Saturday night the Argus Literary Society had a very interesting, as well as instructive program on modern poetry. After a short business meeting, several reports were made on modern poetry, modern poets, and their works. They were as follows:—
The Trend of Poetry .. Pat Cowherd.
Edna St. Vincent Millay, Reggy Moore
Amy Lowell, Mary Linn Pett.
John Mansfield, Lucile Wright.
Edgar Lee Masters, ... Edith Crowell.
Edwin Arlington Robinson, Frances
..... Sale.

RUFFNER LITERARY SOCIETY

The new girls of the Ruffner Literary Society were the guests of the old members, Thursday, Dec. 4, at a delightful spread. The girls were simply entranced(?) by the melodious strains of the guitars of Evelyn Thompson, and Alma Maynard. The new girls in their turn showed their pep by entering into the games and songs.

As an eloquent village newspaper has put it—"A good time was had by all."

JEFFERSON LITERARY SOCIETY

The new members of the Jefferson Literary Society, were welcomed at an informal party given in the Student Building auditorium, Friday evening, Dec. 5. The room was attractively decorated in the colors of the society. Refreshments were served.

INTER-COLLEGIATE NEWS

At a recent meeting of the Freshman Class of University of Richmond, a committee was appointed and empowered to assist in the enforcement of "rat" rules, especially the wearing of caps. This is believed to be the first time any freshman class has assisted in the enforcing of laws governing their own class. Perhaps there's method in their madness.

A recent investigation at Hampden-Sidney showed that one student in four was working his way through college.

Seniors at Massachusetts Tech will be given a physical examination to determine the effect of four years' work on the student.

THE CAROLINA CLUB

The Carolina Club is in full sway, and on its way to success. The following officers have been elected:—
Pres.—Louise Fairchild.
Vice-Pres.—Virginia Woodhouse.
Sec.—Treas.—Mary Black.
Plans for the year have been made. So look-out for the Carolina Club.

SHENANDOAH VALLEY CLUB

This year saw again the organization known as the Shenandoah Valley Club, with a large number of members from both faculty and student body.

A social meeting was held Saturday, Dec. 6, at five o'clock in the Cabinet Room. Tea and cakes were served.

The International Kindergarten Union will hold its Christmas meeting on Tuesday, 16th, at 4:30 o'clock in the Student Building auditorium. A very attractive program is to be put on, presenting the Spirit of Christmas with songs and recitations. Just what you will like.

Don't forget the change in place—Student Building.

W. J.—So you are eighty years old. That's a pretty good age.

Prof. McBeth—Oh, its nothing wonderful. If my father were alive he would be one hundred.

FRESHMEN DEFEAT SOPHOMORES!

BY SCORE OF SEVEN TO ONE.

FRESHMEN AGAIN VICTORIOUS

The Sophomores came back at the Freshmen, Saturday night, and held them to the score of 27 to 1, in the second inter-class game of the season.

The game started off with a vim. Between the two goals for the entire first quarter, the Freshmen 'scoring one field goal, and the Sophomores one foul goal. This close score encouraged the Sophs and they played with a determination to "hold 'em."

The Freshmen would not stand for "2," as a final score, so they steadily rolled it up in spite of the splendid work of the Sophomore guards, until the final whistle blew on a score of 27 to 1, the Sophs failing to add another point.

The entire game was fast and hard fought, but was one of the roughest games ever played on the court.

Madeline Gary's guarding on the Sophomore team, could not help but be noticed as an outstanding feature of the game. Her juggling and manner of breaking up passes, are hard to be surpassed.

The line-up was as follows:

Freshmen Sophomores
Jones, F. F. Lewis, V.
Hall, H. F. Foster, L.
Mitchell, J. C. Crute, E.
Reid, K. SC. White, A.
Crowder, C. G. Mount, M.
Zacharias, E. G. Gary, M.
Substitutions:—Sophomores:—
Gwaltney for Mount, Vincent for Foster, Barnes for Lewis.

Freshmen:—Gibson for Jones, Perkins for Mitchell, Peake for Reid.

Referee—Miss Nell McArdle; umpire—Miss Covington. Score-keeper—Miss Bugg. Time-keeper: — Miss Mabel Edwards.

FRIDAY NIGHT SING

Every Friday in every way, the sings get better and better. The sing given Friday night, was one of the most entertaining and enjoyable of the term. The story of John Brown's baby, was beautifully (?) told in song by a gang of girls. Miss Olive Smith, the famous one-piece orchestra, gave a few selections on a harmonica and guitar. Last, but not least, came the famous singer: Cario Mapelle. The applause that greeted Mr. Mapelli showed that he was as much in favor as ever. As usual, he entranced his audience by his selections, but it was not until he sang "O Sole Mio," by request, that he took the house by storm. The sing ended with the S. T. C. version of "Ain't Gonna Rain No More."

THE SENIOR DANCE

"Did you go to the dance Saturday night? Well, it was the best one that's ever been up at this school."

The gym was beautifully decorated in green and red, the Christmas color scheme being carried out in everything. Adorable girls and boys went in and out among the dancers peddling their wares—of balloons, horns, and other toys.

At nine o'clock, Santa Claus arrived with a cherry word for everybody and left with the promise that he would see them again on December 24th. The question still remains unsolved—however—who is Santa Claus?

New Dining Room To Be Used After Christmas.

Girls, bid the gym good-bye as an eating place, and prepare for it to take up its proper functions. After Christmas, we will be in the new dining room and the gym is to be used for the purpose for which it was intended.

The new dining room is to be beautiful. On each side there is a balcony, and the floor-space is much larger than that of the old dining room, where we hardly had room to turn around. The lighting fixtures are very pretty and so are the walls. There are three exits which, of course is a blessing, as so many toes got mashed when we only had one.

Our gym is to be one of the best equipped in the South. Won't it be simply grand to have our basketball games there? Can't you hear Jarman Hall's walls ring with our cheers of victory?

THE HANGING OF THE GREENS

According to our custom, on Monday night, we celebrated the Hanging of the Greens. Miss Shelton, first told us something of this custom—how it originated and why we carry it on today. A little playlet was presented, carrying out this same idea. "The Spirit of Joy bade all to follow her in the distribution of the greens." The whole audience participated and now the atmosphere everywhere makes us realize that Christmas is really here.

HARRIS MANAGER OF VARSITY

At a recent meeting of the four Professional class basketball teams, Eula Harris was elected manager of the Varsity, for the coming year.

MISS RICE TELLS STORY OF "THE OTHER WISE MAN."

Is it wrong to be kissed under mistletoe

At Christmas tide, when all is gay
And life is made for fun and play?
Is it wrong to be kissed under mistletoe?
I've often wished to know!

There was mistletoe on our parlor light,
My father had put it there,
He had balanced himself on a rocking-chair,
And tied it up with ribbon bright.
He must have thought that it was right
To be kissed under mistletoe.

It was Christmas night and the lights were low,
My brother was hiding behind a chair,
Which won't nice, or hardly fair,
Because, you see, I didn't know
And he told my mother, and it was so—
I was kissed under mistletoe.

My mother said "not another date,"
And I felt sad and awful blue,
So I went to the attic—like I always do—
And there I found, oh, thanks to fate,
From Mother's diary, that in ninety-eight
She was kissed under mistletoe.

Is it wrong to be kissed under mistletoe
At Christmas tide when all is gay—
And life is made for fun and play.
Is it wrong to be kissed under mistletoe?
I've often wished to know.

M. M. McMurdo.

Capelli Sings To-Night at the Christmas Carol Service.

The Christmas Carol Service will be held in the Auditorium tonight at 7:00 o'clock. The Glee Club will assemble on White House Hall and march down, singing "Holy Night." After this Mario Capelli will give several selections. Miss Margaret Moore will then read some Christmas stories. The program will be concluded by the singing of Christmas Carols by the audience.

After the service, the Glee Club will divide into three groups to go out into different parts of town, caroling. Any member of the student body who desires to go, may do so.

Club: "What's all the row about?"

Another: "Aw, nothing much. Just the advertising manager and the art editor scrapping again about who does all the literary work on this magazine."—Yellow Jacket.

It has been the custom in our school for many years, to have Miss Rice tell 'The Story of the Other Wise Man' at prayers, just before the students go home for the Christmas holidays.

On Tuesday night, those who attended prayers, had the pleasure of hearing her tell the story.

Miss Rice tells this story with much feeling and expression. You can almost see Artiban as he tells his friends of his belief in the coming of a new light and truth.

We see Artiban mount his horse and ride out in the night, to meet his friends, the Three Wise Men, who are going to visit the Babe that is to be born in Jerusalem.

Artiban had sold all of his property and put his money into three jewels, a sapphire, a ruby and a pearl of great price, to carry as gifts to the Babe.

The sapphire was spent to save the life of a stranger whom Artiban had never seen. By stopping to help this poor man, he was too late to meet his friends, so he had to travel alone.

The ruby, his second stone, was given to save the life of a baby he had never seen before.

He spent his life searching for the Christ who was born in Bethlehem.

One day after he had become an old man, some one told him that Christ was to be crucified on the cross at a place called Golgotha. Ah, he thought I still have my pearl, will go and buy my Master's freedom. As he was thinking of this, a young girl rushed up to him crying: "Have pity on me, save me from worse than death." There he was, his Master to be crucified on the cross—this girl crying to be saved—and he had only a pearl. What should he do?

He took the pearl from his bosom and laid it in the hand of the slave: "This is the ransom, daughter. It is the last of my treasures which I kept for the king."

As he finished speaking, a mighty earthquake shook the earth. Artiban was struck on the head by a rock and fell to the ground.

The girl recovered and turning heard the old man say: "Not so, my Lord. For when saw I Thee and hungered and didst Thou? Or thirsty, and gavest me drink? When saw I Thee a stranger and took Thee in? Or naked, and clothed Thee? When saw I Thee sick or in prison and came unto Thee? Three and thirty years have I looked for Thee; but I have never seen Thy face, nor ministered to Thee, my King!" Out of the stillness came the words: "Verily I say unto thee; inasmuch as thou hast done it unto one of the least of these My brethren, thou hast done it unto Me."

SANTA VISITS THE JUNIORS

On Tuesday evening, December 16, Santa Claus responded to an urgent request from the Junior class and came to their Christmas party. The celebration was held in the Y. W. C. A. social room from nine until ten thirty. It was largely attended.

First, the guests sat around a tree lighted with red and green candles, decorated with the loveliest of Christmas ornaments and crowned with a large silver star. Carols were sung and then an interesting drama, the "Gathering of the Nuts" was presented under the direction of Miss Clara Thompson. The President then said it was necessary to have a little business meeting. This, however, was made interesting by the fact that all business was carried on in poetry, composed by the class. Then every one listened enraptured to the story of the first Christmas and "Why the Chimes Rang," as told by Miss Gertrude Quinn.

The rest of the evening was turned over to Santa Claus who distributed the various gifts and red stockings.

(Concluded on 4th page)

SOPHOMORES ENTERTAIN TEAM

The Sophomore basketball team was entertained Tuesday night at a delightful "pop party" and dance held in the gym.

The gym was made festive by Xmas decorations and unusually good music was furnished by a recently organized Soph Jazz Orchestra.

The Sophomore class was there in full force at 10 minutes past 10, and cheers were given for the team and Miss Buford, when they came in.

President Vincent presided; Class Man, Buford, with a little Xmas package from the Sophomore class. Then "Class Man" Buford, seeming to vastly appreciate this gift, made a charming little "thank-you" speech.

There was general dancing, and later on, delightful refreshments were served, after which, Lucy Haile Overby, made a little speech telling the team of the appreciation of the class of their splendid spirit.

All through the party, plenty of enthusiasm was shown by constant snake dances, yells and songs.

Come on, Sophs, let's do it again.

A MERRY, MERRY CHRISTMAS!

EDITORIAL

CHRISTMAS is in the air! You can feel it on all sides. Everyone seems happy. Never have people done so much work in so short a time, as they have done in the last few weeks. If you ask what it all means, you are told everyone had the Christmas Spirit. Have you ever stopped to analyze this Spirit? If you have, you have found it a hard thing to do. What is it that makes everyone feel so kindly toward everyone else, and willing to do as they are asked—so eager to be of service? The pep and enthusiasm which everyone is so full of, will last for two or three weeks, and then it will all drop back into the old every-day world of growing again. Why does this climax have to come? Would it not be a wonderful thing, if all through the year, we would feel as we do now? There is no reason why we cannot keep up our attitude toward each other, longer than "twelfth night." Let's make New Year's resolution carry us through the coming year, with this same spirit which prevails during the Christmas season!

MERRY XMAS and a Happy New Year! Words that are resounding from all sides these last few days before the holidays. The Rotunda wishes to echo the sounds to everyone of its subscribers. We hope that your holiday will be the Happiest ones ever spent, and that the coming year will be one of great happiness and good luck. While your year is being made a Happy, prosperous one, won't you in turn, help make the Rotunda's year the best one ever known? You may do this by lending your co-operation. Don't wait for some member of the staff to come and ask you to write. If you can write an article of any kind, put it in the box at the Rotunda office and receive our heartiest thanks. If you can't write, at least be a booster—offer suggestions, back your school paper to the limit. With this in mind, while you are having a Happy year, do your best to make ours Happy, also. Best wishes, everyone, for all the coming year!

JOAN SAYS—

Christmas is here and we are all dressed-up for the holidays. Since Monday night, when you hung the greens, it has looked mighty pretty, and Christmasy. This red bow over my head, cheers me up quite a bit, I tell you. I'm so sorry you won't be here much longer to enjoy the decorations, but since Dr. Jarman said "Your Request is Granted" you have been so excited and busy, that I know home and rest sound good to you.

It will all be so different this year. Last year, we were all together having a fine old time. When a few were home-sick, the rest of you were so gay that times just didn't fit in.

It is mighty fine for you all to be able to hang your stockings by your own fire-place, isn't it? And I hope Old Santa treats you fine, and Christmas morning finds you with everything you hoped for and more besides. May this be your very happiest Christmas, and as you leave me, I will say with jolly old Saint Nick:

"Merry Xmas to all and to all a good time."

No matter how angry a girl may be, she always makes up.

THE CYNIC

When I was sweet sixteen I thought
That every man I met
Was either good or interesting.
I wish I thought so yet!

When I was sweet sixteen the thrills
Chased up and down my spine
If e'er a man looked in my eyes,
Ye gods, the world was mine!

But nowadays there are no thrills;
All youthful joys are gone.
I've drained life's cup to bitter dregs,
For I am twenty-one!

Although I'm tired of love and life
And wish I'd not been kissed,
What if I'd stayed a prude till now;
Oh, what would I have missed!

—Exchange.

Dr. Jarman and Miss Tabb attended the meeting of the Presidents, Deans, and Registrars, of Teachers Training Institutions, in the State, held in Richmond, December 16th. The meeting was called by the Department of Public Instruction.

Weekly Program

AT THE EACO THEATRE, WEEK DECEMBER 22nd—27th

MONDAY and TUESDAY—Leatrice Joy, Rod La Rocque, Theodore Kosloff, and many others in the Cecil B. DeMille, Special Paramount production—"Triumph." Here is a beauty show, a fashion parade, a smashing story—"Triumph" weaves them all into the greatest love-and-luxury drama DeMille ever made! Dazzling gowns, lavish settings, gorgeous entertainment. Higher-class entertainment cannot be found at any theatre.—Pathe News, Monday and 12th episode of "The Steel Trail" Tuesday.

WEDNESDAY—Conrad Nagel and a fine supporting cast in "The Rendezvous."—"You'll be thrilled! Here's a drama that will keep you absorbed—From First to Last,—and then some. A drama of love, unafraid, that will keep you thrilled from start to finish.—Also Acrop Fable.

THURSDAY—Jackie Coogan in "Circus Days." Here we have Jackie Coogan and a circus in one WONDERFUL picture. This picture is said to be better than any picture Jackie ever made. It will prove a rare treat for every child in town.—Also a good comedy and orchestra music.—Because it is Christmas, and because every child will want to see this picture, we are going to run a Special Matinee at 3:30, and allow every child, under 15 years, to go in for 10 cents each.

FRIDAY—Antonio Moreno, Estelle Taylor and a fine cast in the Special Paramount picture—"Tiger Love." The same man filmed this drama of a whirlwind Spanish courtship. A drama of flaming hearts 'neath the moon of old Spain.—Also orchestra and good comedy.

SATURDAY—"The Call of the Canyon."—Zane Grey's story made into a Paramount picture with Richard Dix, Lois Wilson and Marjorie Daw.—We have shown this picture before, and having seen it, we know that it is well worth showing a second time.—Don't miss it.—Also 7th episode of "The Iron Man."

ADMISSION—Wednesday and Saturday 25 cents to adults, other days 35c—Children under 12 years, 15c to each show, except that they can all come to Matinee Christmas Day, for 10 cents.

THE TRUE SPIRIT

Helen Dodge wrapped her dark furs about her with a sigh—"I shall certainly be glad when school closes for the holidays. Mother is accepting invitations for me and I am simply thrilled over the prospect of the season! There are to be more dances than ever!"

"Is that your idea of a true Christmas?" asked a sweet voice behind her.

"Why of course, Isn't it yours?"

"Oh, no; not at all. I always try to make at least one person happy at Christmas, even if I sacrifice myself." The speaker then went on her way.

Helen stamped her foot, saying—"Agnes Merrill always did make me tired!"

Her friend Margaret, turned and looked after Agnes—"She looks as if she might need some cheering up, herself, poor thing!"

"Poor thing, nothing. Girls who can not afford things like the rest of us, should not come to Westmore. I, for one, shall not be bothered sighing over her."

That night a telegram came for Helen, saying that her mother was ill, perhaps, dying, and because of a flu epidemic. An efficient nurse could not be obtained. Helen fainted, and when she gained consciousness, she found herself homeward bound. By her side, was Agnes Merrill. What, she demanded, are you doing here?

"I studied nursing two years ago, and if you will permit me, I want to nurse your mother."

Helen could not speak but great tears sprang unheeded down her cheeks.

The next ten days were dark ones, filled with agonizing thoughts and weary waiting. Seldom did Helen see anyone except the servants. At the end of the tenth day, Mrs. Dodge was pronounced out of danger. All credit of her recovery, was given to Agnes.

It was Christmas Eve. Two girls stood before a fire in the great Dodge home, their arms around each other's waists. Helen raised her dark eyes to the blue ones above her. "I am so happy, happier than I have ever been before. I am so glad, father decided to adopt you, Agnes, and to give me a new sister for Christmas. I have learned that the true Christmas spirit, is unselfishness, and service, and you have showed it to me, Little Sister."

A ROMANCE

"Darling, I love you." The murmur came from the corner of the pantry.

Immediately a plate fainted and a cup heroically endeavored to bring her back to life by fanning a gentle breeze upon her enameled complexion.

"Without you, life would be just one dish of hash after another," was murmured from the same corner.

A pan marched disgustedly from the room, while a tumbler took a tumble from the table. The dignified clock hid its face behind its hands and the knife and fork tried in vain to spoon.

"I am completely wrapped up in you," the lady sighed. The teapot hissed. The pitcher left his box because he could not put them out. The window hurriedly left her sash because she had a pane. The salt got fresh and the pepper knocked off her top, while the butter tried to saucer. Another faint ripple and the bread knife fell from the table, with a bang, cutting the apple to the core.

"Beautiful," he whispered. All was over. A loud snap was heard and the Victrola on the table in the corner ceased to talk.—Exchange.

Dumb Dora:—(reading sign over ticket office)—Oh, John, it says 'entire balcony, 35c.' Let's get it, so we'll be all alone."

TO BE OR NOT TO BE

Did you put me down as a little prude
As we stood on the porch last night?
Or did you just think me a little too
"good"

To think certain actions were right?

Did you think me too Puritanically staid

For a porch without any light
And moments that seemed Providentially made

For an ideally blissful goodnight?

Do you think that because I refused
you that kiss

Resisted that moment's temptation
That I am forever doomed to be "Miss"

Ah me! This demands explanation.

When a girl breaks this old fashioned man-made rule

With a kiss for any one in the throne

She is usually thought just a plain little fool

Though some like to have her along.

It's hard to decide just which path to choose.

Is it best to be distantly cool—
Or cut convention's chains all loose

And find the gay road with the fool?

Yet the road of the flirt is a bright
one they say
Till the toil in the end comes due
So in my dilemma I'm asking you,— pray—
What IS a poor girl going to do?
—The Twig.

CUNNINGHAM LITERARY SOCIETY

The regular meeting of the Cunningham Literary Society was held Wednesday, Dec. 10. After the initiation of the new girls, a very enjoyable Christmas program was presented. Those taking part, were:

Moby Brown—Christmas Eve in the Gertrude Quinn—Match Girl.
Ruth Bartholomew—Night Before Christmas.

Santa Claus then appeared and presented each member with a gift.

After wishing everyone a "Merry Christmas," the meeting adjourned.

WORTH-WHILE THOUGHT

Faith and Wisdom

The young men followed the star to find Christ.

and was indeed are we
If we follow the spirit of love today,
For we'll find it the Christ to be.

will you decline the verb 'amo' please?"

Student: "Yes, sir; I'm afraid I'll have to."

Professor—What do you mean by such insolence. Are you in charge of the class, or am I?"

Student—(humbly) I know I'm not in charge sir.

Prof.—Very well; if you're not in charge, then don't try to act like a conceded ass.

It is remarkable how many doubtful meanings an alleged pure-minded person can find in an entirely respectable joke.—Cornell Widow.

CHRISTMAS UPS

There's Elenor, now, I can't—If I don't give to her and she does to me, why—If her gift to me is worth more than mine to her, I—If I should give her more than she gives to me, I never—If I gave something to her and she didn't give—Oh, Horrors! Ain't it awful?"

Stammering Lieut.—Does anybody know where I put-put-put- my put-put-puttees?

Captain (in next room)—Ah! They have got a Ford to working at last!

"Won't you come into my parlor?"

Said the spider to the fly.

"Parlor,—nothin' getta flivver!"

FOOTBALL BY AN ENGLISHMAN

Football is a "hasty" game.

Indiscriminate by the tough;

They hit each other in the face.

Which makes the game quite rough.

They tackle men they've never met.

And try to snatch the ball,—

When the other team is visiting.

It isn't fair at all!

The quarterback's a clever chap,

He knows the plays by heart,

And when he whispers one, two, three,

Away the fellows start,

The referee is paid a fee for Wearing long white "pawnee."

Despite the rudeness of the game,

I swear, it's awful fun!!

And jolly well I'm going in,

To see just how it's done.

filled with Christmas goodies. Each member of the class, as well as Miss Hiner, the honorary member, also received an attractive calendar as a memento of the evening from the President. After the jolly elf had finished with the presents and everyone had duly opened them and—oh-ed and ah-ed over them, he (?) for the first time noticed an enormous basket of fruit resting in front of the tree. He discovered that it was Miss Hiner's method of giving her regards and best wishes to the class, so he made another round, giving out rosy apples and a golden orange. Soon after this, the gathering broke up regretfully, with the exchange of hearty wishes for a happy holiday. These, the Juniors, said to each other and to S. T. C. at
